[3] Emperors Leo and Anthemius Augusti to Heliodorus, Count of Imperial Finances. pr. Our Serenity has instructed that the tax registrars (chartularii), who are appointed from among the supporting offices of the Praetorian Prefecture (de cohortalibus officiis) of each province to audit the accounts of the Imperial Finances, not be subject to the fast post-service or to any other burden beyond the ancient custom, since the Greatest Prefecture is understood to have made the same disposition, so that, freed from these necessities, they might be able to audit the accounts of the Imperial Finances faithfully. 1. But if at any time Our order is violated by rash daring on any part, both the governor of the province and his support staff (apparitio) shall be punished with a condemnation of 30 pounds of gold. 2. In addition, (We order) that the vir spectabilis Count of the East have permission to inhibit the nefarious efforts of the governors (moderatores) as well as of the Prefecture's staff (cohortalis officii), since they have been warned about this matter by the palace officials who also fear the same penalty, if the decrees of Our Piety should not in all ways gain an appropriate performance. 3. We also ordain this by a general rule, that in all provinces both the nomination of special collectors (susceptores) for accounts of the Imperial Finances as well as the defense of the accounts being audited be managed not only through the viri clarissimi provincial governors, but also through viri spectabiles Proconsuls, as well as the Augustal Prefect and the praiseworthy Vicars, along with their offices, with the palace officials always reminding and also looming over them, making sure that, after the nomination even of special exactors for accounts of the Imperial Finances, license not be permitted to provincial governors or their offices, or even decurions, to reduce an exaction belonging to the Sacred Treasury or to transfer it to treasurers or to any other external accounts. The four-monthly reports concerning the rendering of accounts are to be transmitted to the Most Sacred City at the risk of the provincial governors through a suitable auditor of the same accounts. 4. For if what Our Tranquility has ordered has not been attended to in any degree, both the governors themselves and their offices shall know that they are to be struck with the penalty designated above.

Given July 25,[92] at Constantinople, in the consulship of Athemius Augustus, for the second time (468).

[4] The same Augusti to Heliodorus, Count of Imperial Finances. We instruct that, if by chance a tax assessment (delegatio), which is sent out customarily each year by the Greatest Prefecture into diverse provinces, should not include all the accounts of the Imperial Finances or the way in which their exaction ought to proceed, even so the appropriate exaction of all the accounts of the Imperial Finances shall be carried out by both the viri spectabiles Proconsuls non rectoribus provinciarum eorumque officiis et curialibus omnium largitionalium titulorum exactionem procurari: vicenarum librarum auri condemnationem prae oculis habentibus, si quid minus exactum vel illatum sacro fuerit aerario, quam prisca et inveterata consuetudo sacris largitionibus inferri constituit.

[92] Krüger writes March 25, so as to precede the following title.

D. k. Iul. Constantinopoli Anthemio A. II cons.

XXIIII Ne Operae a Collatoribus Exigantur

[1] Imppp. Valentinianus Valens et Gratianus AAA. ad Viventium pp. Operarum praebitionem, quae illicite a provincialibus hactenus expetita est, sinceritas tua cessare praecipiat.

D. x k. Mart. Treveris Valentiniano np. et Victore conss.

XXV De Immunitate Nemini Concedenda

[1] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. ad populum. His nostrae serenitatis edictis civitatum tabulariis erit flamma supplicium, si cuiusquam fraude ambitu potestate iniusta cuiuspiam profiteretur immunitas, ac non secundum praecedentem definitionem omnes omnino abolita specialium immunitatum gratia necessitas tributariae functionis firmata censitorum peraequatorum provincialium iudicum peraequatione constrinxerit.

D. III non. Mart. Mediolani Merobaude II et Saturnino conss.

[2] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Anthemio pp. Per Bithyniam ceterasque provincias possessores et reparationi publici aggeris et ceteris eiusmodi muneribus pro iugorum numero vel capitum, quae possidere noscuntur, adstringi cogantur.

D. VII k. Nov. Constantinopoli Honorio VIIII et Theodosio V AA. conss.

and vicars, as well as the vir spectabilis Count of the East, and the Augustal Prefect, as well as the provincial governors and their offices and the decurions. They have a condemnation of 20 pounds of gold before their eyes, if anything less has been exacted or paid to the Sacred Treasury than an ancient and long-standing custom has established be paid to the Imperial Finances.

Given July 1, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Anthemius Augustus, for the second time (468).

Twenty-Fourth Title Labor Services Shall Not Be Exacted from Taxpayers

[1][93] Emperors Valentinian, Valens, and Gratian Augusti to Viventius, Praetorian Prefect. Your Sincerity should instruct that the provision of labor services (operae), which up to now has been illicitly sought from the provincials, cease.

Given February 20, at Trier, in the consulship of Valentinian, Most Noble Boy, and Victor (369).

Twenty-Fifth Title No One Is to Be Granted Immunity

[1][94] Emperors Gratian, Valentinian, and Theodosius Augusti to the People. By these edicts of Our Serenity, flames will be the punishment for tax officials of the towns if immunity for any person should be pronounced[95] by anyone's fraud, bribery, or unjust power; and if, the influence of special immunities being abolished, the obligation of the tax payment does not bind everyone in every way in accordance with the preceding definition,[96] after the adjustment of the tax assessors, tax adjusters, and provincial governors has been confirmed.

Given March 5, at Milan, in the consulship of Merobaudes, for the second time, and Saturninus (383).

[2][97] Emperors Honorius and Theodosius Augusti to Anthemius, Praetorian Prefect. Landowners (possessores) in Bithynia and the other provinces shall be compulsorily bound to both the repair of the public road (agger) and to other services of this type in proportion to the number of land (iuga) and personal (capita) tax units that they are known to possess.

Given October 26, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Honorius, for the ninth time, and Theodosius, for the fifth time, Augusti (412).

[93] = C.Th. 11.10.1.
[94] = C.Th. 13.10.8.1; combine with C. 11.48.9.
[95] Krüger suggests emending to provideretur, "be provided."
[96] See C.Th. 13.10.8 pr. = C. 11.48.9.
[97] = C.Th. 15.3.5, with somewhat different wording.

XXVI De Conditis in Publicis Horreis

[1] Impp. Valentinianus et Valens AA. ad Volusianum pu. pr. Omnia quae in horreis habentur expendi volumus, ita ut non prius ad frumentum tendatur expensio, quod sub praefectura tua urbis horreis infertur, quam vetera condita fuerint erogata. 1. Et si forte vetustate species ita corrupta est, ut per semet erogari sine querella non possit, eidem ex nova portione misceatur, cuius adiectione corruptio velata damnum fisco non faciat. 2. Ad istud autem negotium arbitratu ac iudicio tuo nobilis prudens fidelis optime sibi conscius pro integritatis meritis adponatur custos ac mensor, qui vel frumenta modio metiatur vel iustis aestimationibus colligat, quanta habeantur in condito.

D. VI id. April. divo Ioviano et Varroniano conss.

[2] Idem AA. Artemio praesidi. pr. Cum ad quamlibet urbem mansionemve accesseris, protinus horrea inspicere te volumus, ut devotissimis militibus effloratae et incorruptae species praebeantur. 1. Nam si per incuriam officii gravitatis tuae sartorum tectorum neglecta procuratione aliqua pluviis infecta perierint, iam ad damnum tuum referentur.

D. VIII k. Sept. Arelate divo Ioviano et Varroniano conss.

[3] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Anatolio pp. per Illyricum. pr. Nulli posthac horreaticas species contingendi copia praebeatur. 1. Sin vero quisquam temerator horreorum extiterit, qui sibi ex praedictis aliquid audeat usurpare, hanc poenam sciat nostro arbitrio definitam, ut deportationis poenae subiectus totius substantiae cogatur subire iacturam.

D. VII id. Iul. Constantinopoli Caesario et Attico conss.

Twenty-Sixth Title Items Stored in Public Granaries (Horrea)

[1][98] Emperors VALENTINIAN and VALENS Augusti to Volusianus, City Prefect. pr. We want everything that is kept in the granaries to be disbursed in such a way that the disbursement not reach the grain that is brought into the city's granaries under Your Prefecture before the old supplies have been appropriated. 1. And if by chance the supply has been corrupted by age in such a way that it cannot be appropriated by itself without a complaint, some from the new portion should be mixed in, by the addition of which the hidden corruption not cause a loss to the Treasury. 2. However, for this business, at your discretion and judgment there should be appointed a guard and measurer who is noble, wise, faithful, and suitably conscientious in accordance with the merits of his integrity, who is either to mete out the grain in a modius measure or reckon by fair estimations what is stored.

Given April 8, in the consulship of the deified Jovian and Varronianus (364).[99]

[2] The same Augusti to Artemius, Governor.[100] pr. When you approach any city or post station, We want you to inspect their granaries right away, so that fresh (efflorataе) and unspoiled supplies are offered to the most devoted soldiers. 1. For if through the lack of care on the part of the office of Your Eminence (gravitas tua) any supplies perish after being damaged by rain as a result of neglecting the repair of the roofs, they will be reckoned as your loss.

Given August 25, at Arles,[101] in the consulship of the deified Jovian and Varronianus (364).

[3][102] Emperors ARCADIUS and HONORIUS Augusti to Anatolius, Praetorian Prefect in Illyricum. pr. Henceforth no one should be offered the capacity to touch supplies kept in granaries. 1. But if someone is discovered to be a despoiler of granaries by daring to use something from the aforesaid (supplies), he shall know that this punishment is defined by Our judgment, that, being subject to the penalty of deportation, he be forced to undergo the loss of all his property.

Given July 9, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Caesarius and Atticus (397).

[98] = C.Th. 11.14.1, with somewhat different wording; combine with C. 1.28.1 (= C.Th. 1.6.5).

[99] Based on C. 1.28.1, Krüger suggests a date "in the consulship of Valentinian and Valens Augusti" (365). Seeck dates to April 4, 365; Schmidt-Hofner, to April 8, 365.

[100] The word for governor here is praeses. C.Th. 8.3.1 (364) is addressed to an Artemius, corrector (of Lucania and Bruttium, according to Krüger).

[101] Krüger points out that at this time Valentinian made a journey from Sirmium to Emona.

[102] = C.Th. 11.14.3. Seeck dates to June 7, 397.

XXVII Ut Nemini Liceat in Coemptione Specierum Se Excusare et de Munere Sitoniae

[1] Imp. Anastasius A. Matroniano pp. pr. Quotiens urguente necessitate comparationes frumenti vel hordei aliarumque specierum quibuslibet provinciis indicentur, nulli penitus possidentium sese sub cuiuscumque privilegii occasione excusandi tribui facultatem censemus, omnique, cuicumque possidentium quocumque modo quocumque tempore per sacros apices vel etiam pragmaticam sanctionem aut iudicialem forte dispositionem huiusmodi excusatio data est vel postea data fuerit, licentia minime umquam contra tenorem nostrae legis saluberrimae valitura. 1. Adeo namque huiusmodi onera cunctis, pro qua singulos portione contingit, volumus inrogari, ut ab isdem comparationibus nec sacratissimam nostrae pietatis nec serenissimae nostrae coniugis domum pateremur subtrahere.

D. III k. Aug. Constantinopoli Olybrio vc. cons.

[2] pr. Οἱ τὰς πόλεις οἰκοῦντες ἢ ἐν αὐταῖς κεκτημένοι μὴ ἀναγκαζέσθωσαν εἰς ἑτέραν πόλιν ἢ εἰς τὴν μητρόπολιν εἴδη χορηγεῖν. 1. Εἰ δὲ καί τις ἀπαραίτητος αἰτία καταναγκάσει τοῦτο γενέσθαι, τοῖς δικαίοις τιμήμασι τοῖς ἐν ἐκείνῃ τῇ πόλει κρατοῦσιν, ἐξ ὧν τὰ εἴδη παρέχεται, πιπρασκέτωσαν, ἐκείνων ταῦτα μετακομιζόντων τῶν δεομένων τῶν εἰδῶν. 2. Ὑπολογιζέσθω δὲ τοῖς πιπράσκουσι τὰ τιμήματα τῶν εἰδῶν εἰς τὰ συντελούμενα παρ' αὐτῶν ἐν χρυσῷ δημόσια. οὐδὲ γὰρ δίκαιον νῦν μὲν ἀπαιτεῖσθαί τινα παρέχειν εἴδη, μετὰ χρόνον δὲ αὐτῷ τὰ τιμήματα λογίζεσθαι, οὕτως εὐθηνίας γενομένης. 3. Τοῦ λαμπροτάτου ἄρχοντος ἑκάστης ἐπαρχίας ἐγκινδυνεύοντος εἰς τὸ καταλογίζεσθαι τὰ τῶν εἰδῶν τιμήματα κατὰ τὰς ὡρισμένας προθεσμίας ὑπὲρ αὐτῶν ἐκπέμπεσθαι. 4. Μηδεὶς δὲ ἀναγκαζέσθω πιπράσκειν πᾶσαν χρείαν αὐτοῦ, ἀλλὰ τὰ ἐκπεριττεύοντα εἴδη· ἀσεβὲς γάρ ἐστιν ἀποστερεῖσθαί τινα τῶν οἰκείων καὶ ἑτέροις ταῦτα χορηγεῖν· ρ' χρυσίου λίτρας ὑφισταμένου ζημίαν καὶ κινδυνεύοντος εἰς τὴν ἀξίαν καὶ τὴν ζώνην αὐτοῦ τοῦ παραβαίνοντος τὸν νόμον ἢ συγχωροῦντος αὐτὸν παραβαθῆναι.

5. Μηδεὶς ποτε χωρὶς μεγάλης ἀνάγκης ἐπιταττέσθω τοῖς κτήτορσιν συνωνήν, καὶ ὅτε δὲ γίνεται, κατὰ θείαν μόνον κέλευσιν γινέσθω, ἐφ' ᾧ τε τὸ τῆς συνωνῆς χρυσίον ἐκ τῆς συντελουμένης παρὰ τῶν κτητόρων ἐν χρυσῷ συντελείας παρακατέχεσθαι, ἐὰν ὅλως τὰ τῆς οἰκείας αὐτῶν

Twenty-Seventh Title No One Shall Be Permitted to Excuse Himself from Purchase of Supplies and the Service of Securing Grain

[1][103] Emperor ANASTASIUS Augustus to Matronianus, Praetorian Prefect. pr. Whenever, at the urging of necessity, (compulsory) purchases of grain or barley[104] or other supplies should be declared in any provinces, We decree that no landowner (possidens) be granted the right to excuse himself under the pretext of any privilege. No permission will have any validity against the terms of this most beneficial law of Ours in any way and at any time, no matter which landowner has been or will have been granted an excuse of this type, through sacred imperial letters or even a pragmatic sanction or perhaps a judicial arrangement (iudicalis dispositio). 1. For so much do We wish that burdens of this type be imposed on everyone, in the portion that they fall upon individuals, that We do not suffer the withdrawal of the most sacred household either of Our Piety or of Our Most Serene Spouse from the same purchases.

Given July 30, at Constantinople, in the consulship of the vir clarissimus Olybrius (491).

[2][105] pr. Those who live in the cities or possess property in them are not to be compelled to provide supplies for another city or for the metropolis (the provincial capital). 1. But if some unavoidable cause forces this to happen, they should sell at the just prices prevailing in the city from which the supplies are furnished, while those who require the supplies provide for their transportation. 2. The prices for the supplies are to be reckoned for the sellers in accordance with the public taxes they pay in gold.[106] For it is not just that someone be required to provide supplies, and that the prices be reckoned for him after that time, when it has thus become cheap. 3. The vir clarissimus governor of each province will carry the risk for calculating the prices of the supplies (and) that they be sent out at the times designated for them. 4. No one should be compelled to sell his entire supply, but (only) the supplies that are in surplus. For it is impious that a person be deprived of his private supplies and provide them for others. The person who violates the law or facilitates its violation faces a fine of 100 pounds of gold and also risks his station (dignitas) and his rank (cingulum).

5. No one ever is to impose a compulsory purchase on the landowners except under great necessity, and when this happens, it should only take place in accordance with a divine (imperial) order, on the basis of which the gold for the purchase shall be furnished from the tax payments made by the landowners in gold, if the amount of their own private tax payment should suffice completely for the purchase.

[103] Combine with C. 7.39.4, 11.62.14.

[104] Cujacius emends to olei, "oil," based on C. 11.23.2.

[105] Restored from Bas. 56.9.5. The constitution may be from the Emperor Anastasius; compare C. 1.4.19. Lounghis et al. date to 498.

[106] Blume says the prices are to be reckoned at the same rate at which taxes in kind were commuted in gold.

συντελείας ἀρκῇ πρὸς τὴν συνωνήν. 6. Ἐὰν δὲ μὴ χρεωστῶσι δημόσια οἱ τὴν συνωνὴν ἐπιταγέντες ἢ μέρος χρεωστῶσιν, ἐν νομίσμασιν εὐστάθμοις πρότερον τὸ χρυσίον λαμβανέτωσαν καὶ οὕτως τὸ εἶδος ἀπαιτείσθωσαν, μηδενὸς τολμῶντος ἢ παράσταθμα δοῦναι τὰ νομίσματα ἢ ἐλλιπῶς ταῦτα καταβαλεῖν ἢ ἄλλως πως ζημιῶσαι τοὺς ὑποτελεῖς, ἀλλὰ καὶ τὸ τετραπλάσιον παντὸς τοῦ παραλλήλου καὶ τῆς ζημίας ἀπαιτουμένου καὶ τοῦ ἐλλιπῶς καταβάλλοντος. 7. Εἰ δὲ καί τις συνωνὴν ἐπιτάξας τολμήσει ἢ τὴν ἐπιταγεῖσαν παρανόμως ἐκβιβάσει, πεντήκοντα χρυσίου λίτρας προστιμάσθω καὶ τῆς στρατείας καὶ ἀξίας ἐκπιπτέτω, ὑποκείμενος καὶ μείζονι κινήσει. 8. Καὶ ὅτε δὲ κατὰ θείαν κέλευσιν γένηται ἐπιταγὴ συνωνῆς, ἕκαστος τῶν κτητόρων πρὸς τὴν ἀναλογίαν τῶν ζευγῶν ἤτοι ζυγοκεφαλῶν ὑποκείσθω τῇ συνωνῇ, μηδενὸς αὐτῆς ἐξαιρουμένου.

9. Ὁ δὲ ὑπὲρ ταύτην τὴν ἀναλογίαν ἀπαιτῶν τινὰ τῶν συντελειῶν προφάσει τῆς συνωνῆς καὶ ζημίᾳ τῶν πεντήκοντα τοῦ χρυσίου λιτρῶν ὑποκείσθω καὶ ζώνης καὶ ἀξίας ἐκπιπτέτω καὶ ἑτέραν μείζονα προσδοκάτω κίνησιν. 10. Ἀλλὰ ταῦτα χωρὶς τῆς Θρᾳκικῆς διοικήσεως νενομοθέτηται. ἐν Θρᾴκῃ γάρ, ἐπειδὴ οὐκ εἰς ὁλόκληρον εἰσφέρεται τὰ δημόσια, διὰ τὸ προφάσει τῶν βαρβαρικῶν ἐφόδων ἐλαττωθῆναι τοὺς γεωργοὺς καὶ μὴ ἀρκεῖν τὴν ἐν εἴδεσι συντέλειαν τοῖς κατ' αὐτὴν ἱδρυμένοις στρατιώταις, καὶ πάντων μᾶλλον ἀποτρέφεσθαι εἰς αὐτὴν στρατιωτικὰ τάγματα ἀνάγκη ἐστὶ συνεχὴς πάνυ γίνεσθαι, ἐπειδὴ μὴ ἐνδέχεται δίχα συνωνῆς ἀποτρέφεσθαι τοὺς ἐν αὐτῇ στρατιώτας· ἐν ἐκείνῃ τοίνυν τῇ διοικήσει ἡ μέχρι σήμερον κρατείτω συνήθεια, ὑποκειμένων καὶ τῶν ἐμπόρων τῇ συνηθείᾳ, πρότερον μέντοι καὶ τοῖς συντελεσταῖς καὶ τοῖς ἐμπόροις καταβαλλομένου τοῦ τῆς συνωνῆς χρυσίου ἐν εὐστάθμοις νομίσμασι καὶ ὀβρύζοις, καὶ οὕτως αὐτῶν ἀπαιτουμένων ἀδιαστρόφως καὶ ἀζημίως τὸ εἶδος εἰσφέρειν, τοῦ δὲ ταῦτα παραβαίνοντος τοῖς αὐτοῖς ἐπιτιμίοις ὑποκειμένου. 11. Βέλτιον γὰρ ἀντὶ τῆς ἰδιωτικῆς ἐμπορείας μᾶλλον τοῖς στρατιώταις καὶ τοὺς ἐμπόρους χορηγεῖν τὰς ἀναγκαίας αὐτῶν ἀποτροφάς.

12. Ἐὰν δέ ποτε διά τινας πόλεις μὴ ἐχούσας σιτωνικὰ χρήματα μήτε ἑτέρωθεν εὐπορούσας ἀνάγκη γέγονε συνωνὴν ποιήσασθαι, ἐξέστω μὲν τοῖς ἄρχουσι ταύτην ποιεῖν, ἐν μόνῃ δὲ τῇ ἐνορίᾳ τῆς πόλεως τῆς τοῦ σίτου δεομένης καὶ ἐν τοῖς αὐτῆς ὁρίοις, καὶ κατὰ τὰ ἐν τοῖς τόποις κρατοῦντα κατὰ καιρὸν τιμήματα. τοῦτο δὲ παραφυλαττέτωσαν καὶ οἱ πατέρες τῶν πόλεων καὶ πᾶς ἕτερος τῆς συνωνῆς προνοούμενος.

13. Εἰ δὲ καὶ ἀνάγκη γίνεται πολιτικὴν γενέσθαι συνωνήν, ὡς ἐπιζητουμένων εἰδῶν ἐν τῇ βασιλίδι πόλει, καὶ ἐν ταύτῃ κατὰ θείαν μόνην κέλευσιν προβαινέτω, τοῦ χρυσίου πρότερον κατὰ τὰ ἐπ' ἀγορᾶς ἐν ἐκείνοις τοῖς τόποις ὤνια παρεχομένου ἀδιαστρόφως καὶ ἀζημίως, μετὰ τοῦ καὶ τὰ ναῦλα ἐκ τοῦ δημοσίου παρέχεσθαι, ὥστε τὸν συντελεστὴν πιπράσκειν μόνον τὸ ἐπιζητούμενον εἶδος καὶ πληρωθῆναι τοῖς δεομένοις τὴν χρείαν.

6. If those who have been assigned the purchase are not in arrears for their taxes or are so in part, they should first take the gold in full-weighted coins and in this way the supplies be demanded of them, and no one should dare either to give coins deficient in weight or to fall short in their payment, or otherwise to cause loss to those liable, but everyone who causes a loss and falls short in his payment (is to pay) a penalty four times the difference (i.e., between what they paid and what they should have). 7. If indeed anyone dares to assign a compulsory purchase or exacts an assigned one unlawfully, he is to be fined 50 pounds of gold and lose his service and rank, remaining subject to a greater penalty. 8. And when an assignment of a compulsory purchase occurs in accordance with a divine order, each of the landowners should be subject to the purchase in proportion to his tax liability in land and personal units (i.e., iuga and capita), and no one should be excepted from this.

9. The one who demands any of the taxes beyond this proportion under the pretext of a compulsory purchase shall both be liable to a fine of 50 pounds of gold and lose his rank and station, and he shall also await a greater punishment. 10. But these measures have been ordained except for the diocese of Thrace. For in Thrace, as the taxes are not paid in their entirety, since the farmers have been reduced in number on account of barbarian incursions and the payment in supplies is not sufficient for the soldiers stationed there, it is necessary above all that assignments to feed the military occur continually there, since it is not possible for the soldiers in that province to be fed without a compulsory purchase.[107] Therefore in that diocese the custom that has obtained up until today should prevail, and the merchants are subject to it, that the gold for the purchase first be paid both to the collectors and to the merchants in full-weighted and pure coins, and in this way they are required to provide the supplies without delay or loss, and the person violating these measures is subject to the same penalties. 11. For it is better, instead of the private market, that the merchants furnish the soldiers their necessary provisions.

12. But if ever it is necessary that a (compulsory) purchase be conducted on account of any cities not having funds for the purchase of grain or resources from anywhere else, it shall be possible for the governors to carry this out, but only in the territory of the city that lacks grain and within its boundaries, and in accordance with the prices prevailing at that time in the place. Both the fathers of the city should observe this as well as everyone else supervising the purchase.

13. And if it is necessary for there to be a public (politike) purchase, because supplies are being sought in the Imperial City, indeed in this case it may go forward only in accordance with a divine order, with the gold provided without delay or loss in accordance with the market prices in those places, and providing for the transport charges from public funds, so that the tax payer sell only the supplies that are sought, and the need for those lacking (thus) be filled.

[107] The text is unclear, and the translation is based on Mommsen's suggestions for what one would expect here.

14. Μηδὲν δὲ ἐκ ταύτης τῆς διατάξεως καινιζέσθω τὰ ἐπὶ τῇ συνωνῇ τῆς Ἀλεξανδρέων μεγαλοπόλεως διατετυπωμένα, ἀλλὰ κρατείτω καὶ ὁ θεῖος τύπος ὁ διατυπώσας τὰ περὶ τῶν ἐπεισάκτων στρατιωτῶν ἀποτροφῆς. 15. Ὑποκείσθω δὲ τῷ προστίμῳ τῶν πεντήκοντα τοῦ χρυσίου λιτρῶν καὶ τὸν εἰς ζώνην καὶ ἀξίαν ὑπομενέτω κίνδυνον ἥτε μεγίστη τάξις τῶν ἐνδοξοτάτων ἐπάρχων καὶ οἱ λαμπρότατοι τῶν ἐπαρχιῶν ἄρχοντες μετὰ τῶν πειθομένων αὐτοῖς τάξεων καὶ οἱ κατὰ τόπον ἔκδικοι καὶ ἄλλοι οἱ δημοσιεύοντες παραβαίνοντες αὐτοὶ τὸν νόμον ἢ παραβαθῆναι συγχωροῦντες ἢ μὴ μηνύοντες ἀνυπερθέτως καὶ ἀληθῶς κατὰ τῶν παραβαινόντων αὐτόν.

[3] [Ὁ αὐτὸς βασιλεύς.] pr. ... Θεσπίζομεν σιτώνην ... Ὅταν ἔν τινι πόλει σιτώνου γένηται χρεία, κατὰ δοκιμασίαν καὶ ἐπιλογὴν καθ' ἑκάστην πόλιν ἐπισκόπου καὶ τῶν ἐν τοῖς κτήτορσι πρωτευόντων γινέσθω ἡ ἐπὶ αὐτῷ προβολή, οὐ κατὰ τὸ δοκοῦν τοῖς προβαλλομένοις, οὐδὲ ἐφ' οἷς ἂν βουληθείησαν προσώποις, ἀλλὰ μόνων τῶν ἐπὶ τῆς χώρας ἐκείνης ταξεωτῶν τῶν στρατευομένων καὶ τῶν ἀποθεμένων τὴν τάξιν, διὰ τῶν εἰρημένων προσώπων πρὸς τὴν σιτωνείαν προβαλλομένων, ἐπειδὴ εὐχερέστερον οὗτοι ταῖς δημοσίαις χρείαις ἐντετριμμένοι ἐκ μακρῶν χρόνων τὸ τῆς σιτωνείας διανύουσι βάρος. 1. Πάσης δὲ ζημίας ἀπαλλαττέσθωσαν οἱ σιτωνοῦντες καὶ πληροῦντες τὴν εἰρημένην χρείαν κατὰ τὸ δίκαιον λογοθετείσθωσαν· οὐ γὰρ δίκαιον αὐτοὺς ἀντὶ τοσούτων κόπων καὶ ζημιοῦσθαι. χορηγείτωσαν δὲ τὸν σῖτον κατὰ τὰ ἐπ' ἀγορᾶς ὤνια καὶ μηδὲν περαιτέρω. 2. Ὁ δὲ παραβαίνων ἢ παραβαθῆναι συγχωρῶν τὸν νόμον λ' χρυσίου λίτρας ἐπιτίμιον καταβαλλέτω.

[4] ... Ἦλθεν ... Προνοίᾳ ἐπισκόπου οἱ κατὰ χώραν ταξεῶται τὴν σιτωνίαν μετέρχονται.

XXVIII De Collatione Donatorum vel Relevatorum aut Translatorum seu Adaeratorum

[1] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Hermocrati pp. pr. Dispositionem amplissimae recordationis Antiochi, quae certam quantitatem ante se relevatis possessionibus nomine canonis indixit, non imminui decernimus: id enim, quoniam in canonem cecidit et

14. On the basis of this constitution no innovation is to be made in the procedures defined for the purchase for the great city of Alexandria, but the sacred protocol shall prevail that has defined the procedures for the feeding of the reserve soldiers. 15. The greatest office of the viri illustres prefects, and the viri clarissimi provincial governors, along with the offices that obey them, the local defenders, and other public officials who violate the law themselves, allow it to be violated, or do not report right away and truthfully about those violating it shall be liable to a fine of 50 pounds of gold and face the loss of their rank and station.

[3][108] [The same Augustus] … pr. We decree that a purveyor of grain (sitónēs) … Whenever there is need in any city for a purveyor of grain, his appointment shall be made according to the judgment and choice of the bishop of the city and of the foremost landholders, not according to the opinion of those who nominate candidates nor from among the persons that they desire; but only members of the provincial staff (taxeotai) of the region, who are serving or have served, shall be elected purveyors by the aforementioned persons, inasmuch as they who are versed in public affairs by long service will more easily bear the burden of the office of purveyor. 1. The grain purchasers are to be free of any loss, and, fulfilling the aforementioned need they are to be fairly audited. For it is not fair that they should suffer a loss in exchange for such labors. They are to provide the grain in accordance with the market prices and nothing higher. 2. Whoever violates this law or permits it to be violated shall pay a fine of 30 pounds of gold.
(491–505).

[4][109] … has come … The officials on site carry out the purchase of grain under the care of the bishop.

Twenty-Eighth Title Payment of Taxes for Properties That Have Been Bestowed (by the Emperor), or Relieved (of Taxes), Transferred, or Commuted in Cash

[1][110] Emperors THEODOSIUS and VALENTINIAN Augusti to Hermocrates, Praetorian Prefect. pr. We determine that the assessment of Antiochus of most magnificent memory,[111] which imposed a fixed amount as tax on the properties that were relieved (relevatae) prior to him, not be diminished. For We do not [108] pr. and 2 = C. 1.4.17; the inscription is reconstructed. The text is restored from B. 56.9.6.

[109] Taken from Collectio Tripartita 1.3, Paratitlon 54.
[110] = Nov. Theod. 26, with much fuller wording, and where Hermocrates is Praetorian Prefect of the East; combine with C. 11.59.17. Seeck dates to November 29, 444.
[111] See C.Th. 11.20.6; Antiochus, as Praetorian Prefect, acted on imperial instructions in 430.

anniversaria debet pensitatione persolvi, nec in praeteritum nec in posterum patimur esse concessum. 1. Indulgentiam vero memoratae descriptionis et in anteactum et in posterum tempus non solum in relevatis, verum etiam in donatis adaeratis translatisque, seu quodlibet aliud nomen novae descriptionis excogitatum est, volumus observari nullamque super his umquam exactionis molestiam formidari, quibus non tantum reliqua praeteriti temporis relaxamus, sed nec in posterum quicquam innovationis aut oneris adiciendum esse censemus, nullique licere deinceps contra divalia statuta relevare suas possessiones. 2. Noverit tamen amplissimae tuae sedis officium, quod si aliquando nobis suggestio huic nostrae sanctioni contraria porrigatur, vel si sacris mandatis (si qua forte citra suggestionem his piis dispositionibus adversa manaverint) obsequatur et aliquos tamquam debitores ex huiusmodi titulo crediderit exponendos, ducentarum librarum auri se condemnatione multandum.

D. XII k. Dec. Constantinopoli Theodosio A. XVIII et Albino conss.

XXVIIII De Collatione Aeris

[1] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Hilario. Aeris pretia, quae a provincialibus postulantur, ita exigi volumus, ut pro viginti libris aeris solidus a possessore reddatur.

D. V k. Ian. Mediolani Arcadio IIII et Honorio III AA. conss.

XXX De Discussoribus

[1] Imppp. Valentinianus Valens et Gratianus AAA. ad Arthemium vicarium Hispaniarum. Quotiens in disceptatione constiterit inique discussionem fuisse confectam et fidem facti non poterit approbare allow this (amount) to be remitted either for the past or the future, since it has turned into a regular tax and also ought to be paid in an annual installment. 1. We wish that the indulgence of the aforementioned assessment be observed both for the past and the future not only for properties whose taxes have been lowered, but also for those whose taxes have been given, commuted, and transferred, or whatever other name for a new assessment has been thought of, and that no trouble concerning the exaction (of taxes) for these properties be feared, for which We not only relax the arrears of past time, but We decree that no innovation or burden be added for the future, and that no one be permitted henceforth to relieve the taxes on his own properties contrary to the divine statutes. 2. The Office of Your Most Magnificent See should know, however, if at any time an official query (suggestio) should be handed to Us contrary to Our ordinance, or if it should obey sacred orders – if any have been disseminated without a request contrary to these pious assessments – and has thought to set out some persons as if they were debtors from such an account, that this is to be punished with a condemnation of 200 pounds of gold.

Given November 20, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Theodosius Augustus, for the eighteenth time, and Abinus (444).[112]

Twenty-Ninth Title Payment of Bronze

[1][113] Emperors Arcadius and Honorius Augusti to Hilarius. We want the prices for bronze that are demanded from the provincials to be exacted in this way, that a solidus be returned for 20 pounds of bronze from the possessor.

Given December 28, at Milan, in the consulship of Arcadius, for the fourth time, and Honorius, for the third time, Augusti (396).

Thirtieth Title Auditors (Discussores)[114]

[1][115] Emperors Valentinian, Valens, and Gratian Augusti to Arthemius, Vicar of the Spains. Whenever it is established that in a dispute an audit has been carried out unfairly and the auditor (discussor) cannot demonstrate the 112 Nov. Theod. 26 adds "with the same copy to the vir illustris Theodorus, Praetorian Prefect of Illyricum."

113 = C.Th. 11.21.2 (which has "25 pounds of bronze"); combine with C.Th. 7.4.22.

114 Blume: "These officials were auditors; that is to say, examining accountants. They were employed as special agents of the imperial government to examine the status of the receipts of taxes, inquire into delinquencies and, it seems, collect arrears, they are not to be confounded with equalizers or adjusters of assessment rolls … They were also employed to audit the accounts in municipalities, noting the income and outlay and determining the delinquencies, if any. Law 4 of this title. Other similar duties were doubtless imposed on them from time to time. They were, as noted in law 3 of this title, of comparatively high rank, and were at times chosen to fulfill the duties as auditor against their wishes."

115 = C.Th. 11.26.1.

discussor, ipse in eodem titulo et in eodem modo ad solvendum protinus urgeatur, in quo alterum perperam fecerit debitorem.

D. prid. id. Mai. Valentiniano np. et Victore conss.

[2] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Messalae pp. Ne casu amissa securitate publica quaedam praeda nascatur collatoribus, decernimus, ut, quando securitates a discussoribus seu apparitoribus expositae ratiociniis publicis continentur, rursus per iniuriam non petantur.

D. v k. Dec. Mediolani Stilichone et Aureliano conss.

[3] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Apollonio pp. Per singulas provincias vel civitates honoratis usque ad comitivam consistorianam nec non etiam militantibus et suis obsequiis non adhaerentibus, advocatis quin etiam fori provincialis mandari discussionis iugorum sollicitudinem decernimus.

D. v k. Ian. Eudoxio et Dioscoro conss.

[4] [Αὐτοκράτωρ Ἰουστινιανὸς Α. Ἰουλιανῷ ἐπάρχῳ πραιτωρίων.] pr. Μηδεὶς γινέσθω λογοθέτης χωρὶς βασιλικῆς κελεύσεως ἰδικῶς μεμνημένης τῆς αὐτοῦ τοῦ λογοθέτου προσηγορίας· μήτε κατὰ κέλευσιν τῶν ἐπάρχων μήτε ἐκ προστάξεως ἄλλου οἱουδήποτε δικαστηρίου γινέσθω τις λογοθέτης ἐν ταῖς ἐπαρχίαις ἢ πολιτικῶν ἔργων ἢ σιτωνικῶν χρημάτων ἢ λιμενητικῶν ἢ τῶν περὶ τοὺς δημοσίους ὁλκοὺς τῶν πόλεων δαπανωμένων ἢ περὶ τειχοποιίαν ἢ περὶ ὁδοστρωσίαν ἢ γεφυρῶν ἢ μώλων κατασκευήν, ἀλλ' οὐδὲ τῶν λουτρωνικῶν χρημάτων ἢ ἄλλως ὁπωσοῦν εἰς πολιτικὴν ζήτησιν ἀναφερομένων, χωρὶς βασιλικοῦ τύπου. 1. Αὐτὸς γὰρ ὁ βασιλεύς, εἴτε ἐκ δημοσίου χρήματα ἐκπέμψῃ πρὸς τειχοποιίαν ἢ ἑτέρου παντὸς ἔργου κατασκευήν, εἴτε εὕρῃ παρ' ἑτέρου καταλελειμμένα χρήματα πόλεσι πρὸς ἅπαξ ἢ καὶ διηνεκῶς, ὅτε ἂν αὐτῷ παρασταίη, πέμπει τὸν λογοθέτην καὶ τὸ ἔργον ὀφείλοντα μετρῆσαι καὶ ἀκριβεῖς λογισμοὺς ποιήσασθαι καὶ εἰς τὸ θεῖον αὐτοῦ κράτος ἀναγαγεῖν, ἐφ' ᾧ τε γενομένης ὀρθῶς τῆς δαπάνης θείαν γενέσθαι παρ' αὐτοῦ τοῖς δεδαπανηκόσιν ἀμεριμνίαν καὶ μηκέτι δευτέραν ζήτησιν αὐτοὺς ὑπομένειν ἢ κληρονόμους αὐτῶν ἢ διαδόχους.

reliability of what he has done, he himself shall be pressed to pay immediately on the same account and in the same way in which he had wrongly made the other person a debtor.

Given May 14, in the consulship of Valentinian, Most Noble Boy, and Victor (369).

[2][116] Emperors ARCADIUS and HONORIUS Augusti to Messala, Praetorian Prefect. Lest, by chance, upon the loss of a receipt (for taxes paid), taxpayers experience some public pillaging, We determine that, when receipts issued by auditors or subordinate officials have been included in the public accounts, they (taxes) shall not be sought again unlawfully.

Given November 27, at Milan, in the consulship of Stilicho and Aurelianus (400).

[3] Emperors THEODOSIUS and VALENTINIAN Augusti to Apollonius, Praetorian Prefect. Throughout the individual provinces or cities We determine that the responsibility for auditing the land-tax assessments (iuga) be entrusted to office-holders up to the rank of the Count of the Imperial Consistory, as well as to those holding public office (militia) and those not bound by their obedience,[117] and even to advocates of the provincial court.

Given December 28, in the consulship of Eudoxius and Dioscorus (442).

[4][118] [Emperor JUSTINIAN Augustus to Julian, Praetorian Prefect.] pr. No one is to become an auditor without an imperial order that specifically mentions the title of an auditor. No one should become an auditor in the provinces in accordance with the order of the prefects or on the appointment by any court whatsoever either for public works, for funds for the purchase of grain, for harbor maintenance, or for the expenses connected with public aqueducts in the cities, for wall building, for paving roads, or for the construction of bridges or ramparts (μώλων), or for funds for the baths or for anything else connected in any way with a public purpose, without an imperial command. 1.[119] For the Emperor himself, whether he sends funds from the public treasury for wall building or the performance of any other work, or whether he finds from another source funds left to the cities, whether for a one-time or perpetual payment, whenever he (the Emperor) might decide (παρίστημι), he sends an auditor who is to measure the work and to provide exact calculations and report them to his Imperial Majesty, so that when the expenditure has been made correctly those who have spent the money have an imperial immunity from him and so that neither they nor their heirs or successors are liable to a [116] = C.Th. 11.26.2; combine with C. 2.14.1, 11.74.2, 12.5.18; C.Th. 8.5.59 (possibly), 10.3.5.

[117] According to Blume, this phrase refers to people not on active service.

[118] The address is restored from C. 1.4.26; combine with C. 3.2.4, 12.63.2. The text is restored from Bas. 56.10.5.

[119] Sections 1–2 = C. 1.4.26 pr.-1.

2. Εἰ δὲ καὶ ὁ λογοθέτης πεμπόμενος ἐπιτραπείη ποιῆσαι ἀμεριμνίαν τοῖς ὀρθῶς δεδαπανηκόσιν τὰ χρήματα καὶ μετὰ τῆς τῶν λόγων ἐρεύνης ἔκθηται αὐτῶν ἀμεριμνίαν τοῖς ὀρθῶς δεδαπανηκόσιν, ἔστω καὶ αὕτη κυρία, ὡς μήτε θείας ἀμεριμνίας δεῖσθαι τὸ λοιπὸν μήτε ἑτέρας ἀσφαλείας τὸν δαπανήσαντα ἢ τοὺς κληρονόμους αὐτοῦ ἢ διαδόχους, ἀλλ' ἀρκεῖσθαι τῇ τοῦ λογοθέτου ἀσφαλείᾳ.

3. Ἐπαγγέλλεται δὲ καὶ δαπάνας διδόναι τοῖς λογοθέταις ἡ διάταξις, ἐφ' ᾧ τε ἀζημίως αὐτοὺς ποιεῖσθαι τὴν λογοθεσίαν. 4. Ὁ δὲ οἴκοθεν δαπανῶν ἢ περὶ ἔργα τῆς πόλεως ἢ περὶ ἄλλην κοινωφελῆ χρείαν μηδενὶ ὑποκείσθω λογοθεσίῳ μήτε αὐτὸς μήτε κληρονόμος μήτε διάδοχος αὐτοῦ, μηδὲ ἐπιζητήσει δημοσίων λογισμῶν, οἷον ἐπὶ κερδῶν ἢ τῶν λεγομένων ἀγωγικῶν ἤτοι παραπομπικῶν ἢ τῶν δαπανωμένων περὶ τοὺς δημοσίους ὄνους ἢ ὀνηλάτας ἢ τῶν διωγμητικῶν καὶ τῶν ἄλλων, ἃ γενικῷ ὀνόματι καλεῖται sollemnia.

5. Μηδεὶς δὲ τῶν ἀρχόντων πεμπέτω λογοθέτην, ἀλλὰ ἀναφερέτω πρὸς βασιλέα, ἐφ' ᾧ τε παρ' αὐτοῦ πέμπεσθαι τὸν ἐπὶ τούτοις λογοθέτην, μηδὲ ἄχρις ἑνὸς ὀβολοῦ ὀφείλοντα κερδᾶναι, ἀλλὰ τῷ τε δημοσίῳ λόγῳ καὶ τοῖς ὑποτελέσι φυλάττειν τὸ δίκαιον. 6. Ἐὰν οὖν εὑρὼν παρά τισι χρήματα δημόσια ὁ λογοθέτης ἀνύσῃ αὐτὰ καὶ εἰς τὸ θεῖον ornamentum εἰσκομίσῃ, ἔξεστιν αὐτῷ καθ' ἑκάστην λίτραν ἓξ νομίσματα ὑπὲρ θεραπείας παρακατασχεῖν. 7. Εἰ δὲ παρὰ τῶν ὄντων ἐν ἐπαρχίαις ἢ ἑκόντων ἢ ἀκόντων ἄχρις ἑνὸς ὀβολοῦ λάβῃ, αὐτὸς μὲν τὸ λαμβανόμενον ἀποδιδότω, τετραπλάσιον ὀφείλων εἰσκομισθῆναι τοῖς δημοσίοις, καὶ ποινῆς βασιλικῆς πειράσθω ὡς τὸ δημόσιον προδεδωκὼς ἢ τοὺς συντελεστὰς ἀδικήσας· ὁ δὲ ἀνασχόμενος παρασχεῖν ὡς διὰ τοῦτο καθομολογῶν ὑπεύθυνον αὐτὸν εἶναι τοῖς δημοσίοις ἀπαιτηθήσεται πάλιν τὰ περὶ ὅσων ὑπέμεινε ζήτησιν ὀφείλοντα εἰσκομισθῆναι τῷ δημοσίῳ λόγῳ.

8. Καὶ ἐπὶ ταύτῃ τῇ τῶν sollemnium ζητήσει ὁ βασιλεὺς μανθάνων τὸ γενόμενον λογοθέσιον θείαν ἀμεριμνίαν ἐκτίθεται τοῖς λογοθετήσασι, μηκέτι δεύτερον εὐλαβουμένοις λογοθέσιον, αὐτῷ τῷ λογοθετοῦντι ἐπιτρέπων τοῖς λογοθετουμένοις ποιεῖν ἀμεριμνίαν, ἐφ' ᾧ τε τοὺς ταύτην λαμβάνοντας μηκέτι δευτέραν μένειν λογοθεσίαν. 9. Μήτε δὲ ὑπὲρ τῆς γενομένης ἀμεριμνίας λαμβανέτω τι παντελῶς ὁ λογοθέτης, ἀλλ' ἐὰν ὅλως ἐπιχειρήσῃ τι λαβεῖν, ἄδειαν ἐχέτωσαν οἱ κτήτορες καὶ πολῖται καὶ ἀπωθεῖσθαι τὸν ἐκβιβασμὸν αὐτοῦ καὶ δεήσεις ἐπιδιδόναι τῷ κατὰ καιρὸν βασιλεῖ, ὥστε πεμφθῆναί τινα κατὰ χώραν τὸν ὀφείλοντα ποινὴν εἰσπρᾶξαι τὸν ἐπιχειροῦντά τι ἀπαιτῆσαι.

second investigation. 2. If the auditor who has been sent should be entrusted to provide immunity to those who have correctly spent the funds and after the balancing of the accounts (ἐρεύνη) provides immunity for those who have spent money correctly, this immunity is to be valid, so that the person spending the money not require an imperial immunity any longer or another formal promise, or his heirs or successors, but the formal promise (asphalaeia, cautio) from the auditor be sufficient.

3. The constitution promises to provide expenses to the auditors so that they might conduct the auditing without a loss. 4. Anyone who makes expenditures from his own resources either for works of the city or for another common purpose should not be liable to any auditing, not himself, his heir, or his successor, nor (should he be liable) to an investigation of public accounts, as with profits, or the so-called accounts for transporting or convoying, or expenses connected with public donkeys or donkey-drivers, or the ones connected with prosecutions, or the others that are called by the generic name "customary" (sollemnia).

5. No provincial governor is to send an auditor, but he must refer it to the Emperor, so that the auditor for these matters be sent by him, and he (the auditor) is not to make a profit even of 1 obol, but instead is to guard the right of the public treasury and the taxpayers. 6. If the auditor, finding public funds in anyone's hands, exacts them and brings them to the divine Treasury (ornamentum), he may keep 6 solidi for each pound (of gold) for his service. 7. If he should take even an obol from the provincials, whether they are willing or unwilling, he must give back what he has taken, being required to provide a fourfold (penalty) to the public treasuries, and also be subject to a trial with imperial punishment for betraying the Treasury and wronging the taxpayers. But the one who allowed the payment, as if confessing by that act that he is liable to the public, must be required to pay to the Public Treasury the amount for which he was subject to an investigation.

8. Concerning this investigation of the customary expenses (sollemnia), the Emperor when he learns that the auditing has taken place, provides imperial immunity to those who have conducted the audit, so that they not be subject to a second auditing, (and) allowing the auditor to provide immunity to the ones being audited, so that the ones taking this task not undergo a second audit. 9. The auditor must not receive anything whatsoever for the immunity that has been granted, but if he should attempt to take anything at all, the landowners and the citizens are to be able to repel his exaction without fear and give their petitions to the Emperor at the time, so that someone may be sent to the region to exact a penalty from the one trying to demand something.

10. Εἰ δὲ καί τις ἄρχων μετὰ τὸν παρόντα νόμον χωρὶς θείας ἐγγράφου κελεύσεως πρὸς αὐτὸν πεμπομένης ἀποστείλῃ λογοθέτην ἐπὶ οἱονδήποτε τῶν εἰρημένων, ἔτι αὐτὸς μὲν ὁ ἄρχων εἴκοσι χρυσίου λίτρας πρόστιμον ὑποστήσεται, ἡ δὲ ταξις αὐτοῦ πέντε καὶ δέκα.

11. Μήτε προφάσει ἀνακαθάρσεως ὀχετῶν ἢ τῶν πρὸς τοῖς τείχεσιν οἰκοδομημάτων καὶ τῆς αὐτῶν καταλύσεως, ἢ τῶν ἐν ταῖς δημοσίαις στοαῖς γενομένων τῶν καλουμένων προδουλείων καὶ ἐρειπίων, ἢ τῶν ἐν ταῖς μεσοστύλοις τῆς πόλεως οἰκοδομουμένων, ὡς ὀφειλόντων ἀνατραπῆναι, ἢ περὶ εἰκόνων ἢ τοιουτοτρόπων ὅλως ἐπινοιῶν ἢ πολιτικῶν ζητήσεων ποιείσθω τινὰς προστάξεις. 12. Εἰ δὲ καὶ ποιήσει, ἄδειαν ἐχέτωσαν οἱ ἐν ταῖς πόλεσι τὸν ἐντεῦθεν ἐκβιβασμὸν ἀπωθεῖσθαι καὶ μηδεμίαν ἀπόκρισιν ποιεῖν ἐν ταῖς τοιαύταις πράξεσι, μετὰ τοῦ καὶ τοὺς ἄρχοντας τῶν ἐπαρχιῶν, εἰ τοῦτο τὸ γινόμενον σιωπήσοιεν, καὶ πᾶσαν πολιτικὴν καὶ δημοσίαν βοήθειαν τοῖς αὐτοῖς ὑποκεῖσθαι ἐπιτιμίοις, ἐξουσίαν ἐχόντων τῶν βουλομένων δεήσεις ἐπιδιδόναι βασιλεῖ καὶ δι' αὐτῶν διδάσκειν τὰ γινόμενα, ὡς ἂν ἐκ βασιλικῆς ἀγανακτήσεως ἐπακολουθήσῃ διόρθωσις· πρὸς τὸ καὶ τοὺς προστάξαντας ἄρχοντας γενέσθαι τι τοιοῦτο εἴκοσι χρυσίου λίτρας προστιμᾶσθαι καὶ μείζονα προσδοκᾶν βασιλικὴν ἀγανάκτησιν, τὰς δὲ πειθομένας αὐτοῖς τάξεις μετὰ τοῦ προστίμου τῶν πέντε καὶ δέκα τοῦ χρυσίου λιτρῶν καὶ τὴν ἐν σώματι τιμωρίαν ὑπομένειν. 13. Μόνον γὰρ ἔξεστι τῷ βασιλεῖ καὶ τὴν ἐπὶ τοῖς τοιούτοις ἐποψίαν ἐπιτρέπειν ἀνδρὶ καθαρῷ καὶ σὺν ἀληθείᾳ καὶ πρὸς ὠφέλειαν τῶν πόλεων τὰ τοιαῦτα ζητοῦντι καὶ μηδὲν παντελῶς ὑπὲρ αὐτῶν κομιζομένῳ.

14. Προνοείτωσαν δὲ οἱ τῶν πόλεων πατέρες καὶ οἱ τῶν κτητόρων εὐυπόληπτοι, ὥστε μηδένα πολιτικὸν τόπον ἢ δημόσιον ἢ πρὸς τὰ τείχη ἢ ἐν ταῖς δημοσίαις στοαῖς ἢ λατρείαις[III] ἢ ὁπουδήποτε κείμενον ὑπό τινων ἀλόγως κατέχεσθαι, καὶ μὴ ἐκδίδοσθαι τόπον πολιτικὸν χωρὶς θείου τύπου. τὰ γὰρ παρ' αὐτῶν μὴ ὀρθῶς ἐκδιδόμενα ἀνατρέπεται καὶ ζημιοῦνται οἱ ἐξειληφότες. 15. Προνοείτωσαν δὲ οἱ αὐτοί, ὥστε τοὺς ἐκ τύπου θείου ἔχοντας νομὴν ὕδατος μὴ πλεονεκτεῖν τοὺς ἑτέρους καὶ τὸν μὲν πλέον τὸν δὲ ἔλασσον λαμβάνειν.

16. Ἔργον δὲ ἔστω τοῦ μεγαλοπρεπεστάτου κόμητος τῶν θείων ἰδικῶν τοῦ βασιλέως καὶ τῶν ὑπηρετουμένων αὐτῷ παλατινῶν διερευνᾶν ταῦτα καὶ προσαγγέλλειν καὶ τὴν τῶν ἐπικειμένων προστίμων εἴσπραξιν ποιεῖσθαι, ἢ ἐὰν ῥᾳθυμήσειεν, εἴκοσι χρυσίου λίτρας προστιμᾶσθαι, τὴν δὲ τάξιν αὐτοῦ πέντε καὶ δέκα.

D. VIII k. Iul. Chalcedone Lampadio et Oreste vv. cc. conss.

[III] πλατείαις

10. If some governor after the present law should dispatch an auditor to any of the aforesaid persons without a written imperial order sent to him, the governor himself will be liable to a fine of 20 pounds of gold, and his office to a fine of 15.

11.[120] Moreover, he is not to make any assignments on the pretext of cleansing the drains or the buildings alongside the walls and their demolition, or the so-called servitudes that exist in the porticoes and the ruins, or the constructions within the public porticoes, so that they may be demolished, or concerning statues or any at all such fraud or public investigations. 12. If he does this, those in the cities shall have no fear in rejecting the execution from that side and in making no response in such matters; and both the provincial governors and their staffs, if they should keep silent when this transpires, along with their entire city and public staff shall be liable to the same penalties. Those who wish have the right to present petitions to the Emperor and through these to provide information about what has been done, so that correction ensue as a result of imperial indignation. In addition, governors who order some such thing to occur are fined 20 pounds of gold and await further imperial indignation, and the offices that obey them are subject to physical punishment along with the fine of 15 pounds of gold. 13. For only the Emperor may entrust the inspection of such matters to a pure man who is to investigate such matters with truthfulness and in the interest of the cities and who should taken nothing at all for this.

14.[121] The fathers (i.e., the councilors) of the cities and the landowners of good reputation must take care that no place belonging to the city or the public, situated either against the walls or in the public colonnades or streets or anywhere else should be occupied by anyone unlawfully, and that no place belonging to the city should be leased out without an imperial instruction (typos). Those that have been leased out incorrectly are returned and the persons who have taken them are fined. 15.[122] They must also take note that those holding possession over water in accordance with an imperial instruction should not defraud the others with one taking more and another less.

16. It shall be the job of the Most Magnificent Count of the Emperor's Privy Purse and the palace officials who serve him to inquire into these things thoroughly and to disclose them, and to perform the exaction of the fines that are established, or if they should neglect this, they are fined 20 pounds of gold and their office 15.

Given June 24, at Chalcedon, in the consulship of viri clarissimi Lampadius and Orestes (530).

[120] Sections 11 and the beginning of 12 = C. 1.4.26.8.
[121] Section 14 is largely C. 1.4.26.9.
[122] Section 15 = C. 1.4.26.10.

XXXI ...

XXXII De Decurionibus et Filiis Eorum et Qui Decuriones Habentur Quibus Modis a Fortuna Curiae Liberentur

[1] Impp. Valerianus et Gallienus AA. et Valerianus C. Caesoni. Si, cum te pater decurionem esse voluisset, illo in rebus humanis agente honor tibi iste delatus est, tenentur quidem etiam heredes eius rei publicae (nam in hac parte vice fideiussoris pater accipitur), sed non ante nisi tuis rebus excussis.

PP. v k. Dec. Aemiliano et Basso conss.

[2] Exemplum sacrarum litterarum Diocletiani et Maximiani AA. Observare magistratus oportebit, ut decurionibus sollemniter in curiam convocatis nominationem ad certa munera faciant eamque statim in notitiam eius qui fuerit nominatus per officialem publicum perferre curent, habituro appellandi, si voluerit, atque agendi facultatem apud praesidem causam suam iure consueto: quem si constiterit nominari minime debuisse, sumptus litis eidem a nominatore restitui oportebit.

Sine die et consule.

[3] Idem AA. Iulio. Cum decurionatus honorem sponte susceperis, albo eximi, licet annosum te esse dicis, non potes.

PP. id. Nov. Diocletiano A. II et Aristobulo conss.

[4] Idem AA. Cassiano. Cum adoptivum filium ex adoptantis dignitate decurionis filium effici nulla dubitatio est, pro atrocibus iniuriis eum,

Thirty-First Title[123]

Thirty-Second Title[124] In What Ways Decurions, Their Sons, and Those Who Are Considered Decurions Are Freed from the Condition of (Serving on) the City Council

[1] Emperors VALERIAN and GALLIENUS Augusti and VALERIAN Caesar to Caeso. If, since your father wanted you to be a decurion, that office has been conferred upon you while he was still participating in human affairs (i.e., alive), his heirs are also obligated to the municipality – for in this respect the father is taken as functioning as surety – but not before your property has been examined.

Posted November 27, in the consulship of Aemilianus and Bassus (259).

[2] Copy of the Sacred Letter of DIOCLETIAN and MAXIMIAN Augusti. It will be necessary for magistrates to observe that, when the decurions have been summoned into the council in accordance with the law, they make a nomination for (performing) specific services and take care to bring this immediately to the notice of the person nominated through a public official. He (the person nominated) will have an opportunity by customary right to plead his case before the governor. If it is established that he should not have been nominated, the expenses for the litigation will have to be restored to him by the nominator.

Without day and consul.

[3] The same Augusti to Julius. Since you have willingly undertaken the office of serving as decurion, you cannot be removed from the album,[125] although you say you are getting along in years.

Posted November 13, in the consulship of Diocletian Augustus, for the second time, and Aristobulus (285).

[4] The same Augusti to Cassianus. Since there is no doubt that an adoptive son is made the son of a decurion as a result of the rank of the adopter, the [123] A full title has fallen out.

[124] Many of constitutions in this and the following titles concern the obligations of members of city councils in the Roman Empire, or decurions, to perform services for their communities. These services, for which the Latin term is munera, are often called liturgies, and people of all ranks were called upon to perform them. Such services can be divided between those connected with the ownership of property, and those that were attached to specific persons, munera personalia. The latter category included services that involved physical labor, munera sordida, "base services," as well as ones involving the financial liability of the person performing the service. The most important such service that decurions performed in the later Empire involved collecting taxes. People performing these functions were financially liable, and, in addition, they might often be called upon to nominate a successor, for whose performance they would also bear financial liability. The services that decurions and others owed to their towns are to be distinguished from service performed for the emperor, militia. Service for the emperor resulted from an appointment and often brought an increase in one's social rank. For the sake of clarity, the phrase munera civilia, liturgies to be performed for one's town, is translated "civic services," whereas the translation for militia, when it is otherwise not clear, is "Imperial service."

[125] The album is a town's official list of its decurions.

quem ad vicem naturalis pignoris tibi adscribebas, a praeside provinciae illicitis corporis cruciatibus adfici non oportuit hocque congruenti poena coercebitur.

PP. XII k. Dec. Diocletiano A. II et Aristobulo conss.

[5] Idem AA. Alexandro. Filios in potestate patris positos ad munera seu honores non posse devocari falso tibi persuasum est. sane si ad nominationem filii consensum non accommodaveris, ob administrationem ipsius minime conveniri poteris.

PP. VI id. ... Maximo II et Aquilino conss.

[6] Idem AA. et CC. Leontio. Expertes litterarum decurionis munera peragere non prohibent iura.

D. VIII k. Mai. AA. conss.

[7] Idem AA. et CC. Diogeniano. Licet indivisa bona fratres habent, nihilo minus tamen singuli suo nomine civilibus tenentur muneribus.

PP. IIII id. Mai. Paulino[iv] ipsis AA. conss.

[8] Idem AA. et CC. Platoniano. Infamia, quae tibi abominanda est, non etiam amissionis oculorum casus quaesitum adimit honorem.

D. XVI k. Febr. Nicomediae CC. conss.

[9] Idem AA. et CC. Aurelio. In albo decurionum perscriptis patrem non habenti filios anteferri constitit.

[10] Idem AA. et CC. Aurelio. Si ultra septuagesimum annum aetatis patrem tuum esse praeses provinciae perspexerit, eum personalium munerum vacatione perfrui providebit.

[11] Idem AA. et CC. Maximo. Uxorem pro marito decurione conveniri non posse procul dubio est.

[iv] Hadrianopoli

person whom you wrote is the equal to a natural child to you should not have been treated by the provincial governor with unlawful physical tortures for his savage wrongdoings, and this conduct will be restrained with an appropriate punishment.

Posted November 20, in the consulship of Diocletian Augustus, for the second time, and Aristobulus (285).

[5][126] The same Augusti to Alexander. You have been falsely persuaded that sons placed in the power of the father cannot be summoned for services or offices. Certainly, if you have not given your consent to the nomination of your son, you will not be able to be sued for his administration.

Posted on the sixth day before the ides ... in the consulship of Maximus, for the second time, and Aquilinus (286).

[6] The same Augusti and the Caesars to Leontius. The laws do not prohibit the illiterate from performing the services of a decurion.

Given April 24, in the consulship of the Augusti (293).

[7] The same Augusti and Caesars to Diogenianus. Although the brothers hold their property undivided, nonetheless as individuals they are bound for civic services under their own name(s).

Posted May 10, at Adrianople, in the consulship of the Augusti themselves (293).

[8] The same Augusti and Caesars to Platonianus. It is infamy (infamia), which is an abomination to you, that ends the office you sought, not also the accident of losing your eyes.

Given January 17,[127] at Nicomedia, in the consulship of the Caesars (294).

[9] The same Augusti and Caesars to Aurelius. It is established that, among those listed in the album of decurions,[128] a father is ranked ahead of someone not having sons.

[10] The same Augusti and Caesars to Aurelius. If the provincial governor observes that your father is more than 70 years old, he will see to it that he enjoy a dispensation from personal services.

[11] The same Augusti and Caesars to Maximus. It is far from doubtful that a wife cannot be sued for her husband's service as decurion.

[126] Combine with 10.62.4.

[127] Krüger emends "November 16."

[128] Krüger reads in albo decurionum perscribendo, "in drawing up the album of decurions."

[12] Idem AA. et CC. Zotico. Nec infames immunitatem habere, cum hoc privilegii, non notae sit, convenit.

D. v k. Dec. AA. conss.

[13] Idem AA. et CC. Proto. A muneribus decurionatus nec sententia praesidis in perpetuum nec anni quinquaginta nec podagrae valitudo praestat excusationem.

[14] Imp. Constantinus A. ad Euagrium. Nemo iudex aliquem suo arbitrio de curia liberet. nam si quis fuerit eiusmodi infortunio depravatus, ut debeat sublevari, de eius nomine ad nostram scientiam referri oportet, ut certo temporis spatio civilium munerum ei vacatio porrigatur.

PP. id. Mart. Constantino A. III et Licinio III conss.

[15] Idem A. Hilariano correctori Lucaniae et Brittiorum. Universos decuriones volumus a tabellionum officiis temperare.

D. III k. Febr. Sabino et Rufino conss.

[16] Idem A. ad Hilarianum proconsulem Africae. Si quis decurio vel propriae rei causa vel rei publicae cogatur nostrum adire comitatum, is non ante discedat, quam insinuato iudici desiderio proficiscendi licentiam consequatur. quod si pro sua audacia parvi aliquis hanc fecerit iussionem, indignationem competentem sortiatur.

PP. VII id. Iul. Carthagine Crispo III et Constantino III conss.

[17] Idem A. ad Euagrium pp. Qui derelicta curia militaverit, revocetur ad curiam.

D. XVI k. Iun. Constantino A. VII et Constantio C. conss.

[12] The same Augusti and Caesars to Zoticus. It is established that the infamous[129] do not have immunity (from liturgies), since this results from a privilege, not from censure (nota).

Given November 27, in the consulship of the Augusti (293).[130]

[13] The same Augusti and Caesars to Protus. Neither a verdict by the governor granting perpetual exemption (sententia ... in perpetuum), nor being 50 years old, nor the illness of gout provides an excuse from the services of being a decurion.

[14][131] Emperor CONSTANTINE Augustus to Evagrius, Praetorian Prefect. No governor (iudex) shall free anyone from the council on his own judgment, for if someone is disfigured by such a calamity that he should be helped, there must be a report brought to Our knowledge about his name, so that a dispensation from civic services be extended to him for a certain period of time.

Posted March 15, in the consulship of Constantine Augustus, for the third time, and Licinius, for the third time (313).

[15][132] The same Augustus to Hilarianus, Governor (corrector) of Lucania and Bruttium. We want all decurions to refrain from the offices of the notaries.

Given January 30, in the consulship of Sabinus and Rufinus.

[16][133] The same Augustus to Hilarianus, Proconsul of Africa. If any decurion should be compelled to approach our retinue (comitatus) either for his own private business or for his municipality, he must not depart before he gains permission to set out, after making his desire known to the governor (iudex). But if anyone in his audacity should have little regard for this order, he shall encounter a suitable displeasure.

Posted July 9, at Carthage, in the consulship of Crispus, for the third time, and Constantine, for the third time (324).

[17][134] The same Augustus to Euagrius, Praetorian Prefect. Whoever has taken up imperial service (militia) after abandoning a council shall be recalled to it.

Given May 17, in the consulship of Constantine Augustus, for the seventh time, and Constantius Caesar (326).

[129] Infames were people who lost civic privileges as the result of being in a disgraced profession, such as being an actor or a pimp, or as a result of a criminal conviction, for example, for adultery.
[130] Mommsen emends to "the consulship of the Caesars" (294).
[131] = C.Th. 12.1.1, with fuller wording. Seeck dates to February 15, 326.
[132] = C.Th. 12.1.3, which has the addressee as Maecilius Hilarianus; combine with C. 9.22.21.
[133] = C.Th. 12.1.9, which has the penalty as "an outcome of deportation."
[134] = C.Th. 12.1.13, with fuller wording.

[18] Idem A. pr. Si ad magistratum nominati aufugerint, requirantur et, si pertinaci animo latere potuerint, his ipsorum bona permittantur, qui praesenti tempore in locum eorum ad duumviratus munera vocabuntur, ita ut, si postea reperti fuerint, biennio integro onera duumviratus cogantur agnoscere. 1. Omnes enim, qui obsequia publicorum munerum declinare temptaverint, simili condicione teneri oportet.

D. III k. Oct. Serdicae Constantino A. VIII et Constantio IIII conss.

[19] Idem A. ad Lucretium Paternum. Vacuatis rescriptis, per quae munerum civilium nonnullis est vacatio praestita, omnes civilibus necessitatibus adgregentur, ita ut nec consensu civium vel curiae praestita cuiquam immunitas valeat, sed omnes ad munerum societatem conveniantur.

D. VIII k. Nov. Heracleae Constantino A. VIII et Constantio IIII conss.

[20] Impp. Constantius et Constans AA. ordini civitatis Constantinae Cirtensium. Magistratus desertores ad eam gravitas tua faciat necessitatem condicionis urgeri, ut, quascumque pro his expensas civitas prorogavit, refundere protinus ac repraesentare cogantur.

D. XIIII k. Febr. Naisso Acindyno et Proculo conss.

[21] Idem AA. Nemesiano comiti. Curiales omnium civitatum nullam pro re privata nostra debent inquietudinem sustinere nec huiusmodi oneribus velut extraordinariis occupari, quoniam satis est, si civitatum munera per eos congrue compleantur.

D. prid. id. Aug. Bessae Acindyno et Proculo conss.

[22] Imp. Iulianus A. Iuliano comiti Orientis. Eos indulserunt veteres principes ex materno genere curialibus Antiochenis adscribi, quos patris condicio nullius vindicaret iuri civitatis.

D. V k. Sept. Antiochiae Mamertino et Nevitta conss.

[18][135] The same Augustus. pr. If people nominated for a magistracy have fled away, they shall be sought out, and, if in their stubbornness they succeed in remaining in hiding, their property shall be granted to those who at the present time are called in their place to the services of the duumvirate,[136] such that, if they are found afterwards, they are to be compelled to acknowledge the burdens of the duumvirate for an entire two-year period. 1. For all who try to duck out of obedience to public services must be bound by similar terms.

Given September 29, at Serdica, in the consulship of Constantine Augustus, for the eighth time, and Constantius, for the fourth time (329).

[19][137] The same Augustus to Lucretius Paternus. Since the rescripts are voided through which some have been provided a dispensation from civic services (munera civilia), everyone shall be enjoined for civic responsibilities in such a way that no immunity be valid that has been granted to anyone by the consensus of the citizens or council, but all be summoned to share in the services.

Given October 25, at Heraclea, in the consulship of Constantine Augustus, for the eighth time, and Constantius, for the fourth time (329).

[20][138] Emperors Constantius and Constans Augusti to the Council of the City of Constantina Cirta. Your Eminence should persuade those who abandon a magistracy about the necessity of their situation, so that they be compelled to pay for and restore whatever expenses the city has paid out for them.

Given January 19, at Naissus, in the consulship of Acindynus and Proculus (340).

[21][139] The same Augusti to Nemesianus, Count. Decurions in all cities should not sustain any worries concerning Our Privy Purse or be occupied by extraordinary burdens of this sort, since it is enough if services to cities are fulfilled appropriately through them.

Given August 12, at Bessa, in the consulship of Acindynus and Proculus (340).

[22][140] Emperor Julian to Julian, Count of the East. The old emperors granted that men be appointed to the decurions of Antioch on the basis of their maternal birth, provided they could not be claimed as citizens of a city from their father's rank.

Given August 28, at Antioch, in the consulship of Mamertinus and Nevitta (362).

[135] = C.Th. 12.1.16. Seeck dates to September 29, 319.
[136] Duovirs (duumviri) were the annual magistrates in Roman towns.
[137] = C.Th. 12.1.17.
[138] = C.Th. 12.1.29.
[139] = C.Th. 12.1.30; Seeck emends the place of promulgation to "Edessa."
[140] = C.Th. 12.1.51, with dignitas for condicio, translated as "rank." The earlier decrees do not survive.

[23] Idem A. Iuliano comiti Orientis. Providendum est eorum novitati decurionum, qui nuper nomen curiis addiderunt, ne praeteritis debitis susceptorum onerentur: sed conventis propter haec debita, qui ea praecedentibus delegationibus contraxerunt, nullam eos molestiam pro sarcina nominationis alienae sustinere patiaris.
PP. Beryto k. Nov. Mamertino et Nevitta conss.

[24] Idem A. Leontio consulari Palaestinae. Si quis decurio pater sit tredecim liberorum, honoratissimae munerum quieti donetur.
D. k. Mart. Antiochiae Iuliano A. IIII et Sallustio conss.

[25] Impp. Valentinianus et Valens AA. ad Byzacenos. Curiales ultra terminos propriae civitatis non iubeantur a moderatoribus provinciarum sui exhibere praesentiam, nisi publica necessitas exegerit.
D. prid. id. Sept. Aquileiae divo Ioviano et Varroniano conss.

[26] Idem AA. ad Modestum pp. pr. Quidam ignaviae sectatores desertis civitatum muneribus captant solitudines ac secreta et specie religionis cum coetibus monazonton congregantur. 1. Hos igitur atque huiusmodi deprehensos erui latebris consulta praeceptione mandamus atque ad munia patriarum subeunda revocari, aut pro tenore nostrae sanctionis[4] familiarium rerum carere illecebris, quas per eos censuimus vindicandas, qui publicarum essent subituri munera functionum.
PP. Beryto k. Ian. Valentiniano et Valente AA. conss.

[27] Idem AA. Mauris Sitifensibus. Privilegio militiae paternae se non vindicet, quem avitus curiae nexus adstringit. quod si militari avo et patre decurione nascetur, paternae erit succedaneus functioni.

[23][141] The same Augustus to Julian, Count of the East. Consideration must be made for the newness of those decurions who have recently added their name to the councils, so that they not be burdened with the past debts of tax collectors. But having pressed for payment of these debts from those who contracted them in past assessments (delegationes), you should not allow them (the new decurions) to sustain any trouble for the burden of someone else's nomination.

Posted at Beirut, November 1, in the consulship of Mamertinus and Nevitta (362).

[24][142] The same Augustus to Leontius, Consular Governor of Palestine. If any decurion shall be the father of thirteen children, he should be allowed a most honorable retirement from services.

Given March 1, at Antioch, in the consulship of Julian Augustus, for the fourth time, and Sallustius (363).

[25][143] Emperors VALENTINIAN and VALENS Augusti to the People of Byzacena. Decurions shall not be ordered by provincial governors to provide their presence beyond the boundaries of their own city, unless public necessity requires it.

Given September 12, at Aquileia, in the consulship of the deified Jovian and Varronianus (364).

[26][144] The same Augusti to Modestus, Praetorian Prefect. pr. Some followers of idleness, having abandoned the services (owed) to their cities, long for the deserts and out-of-the way places and, under the pretext of religion, join up with communities of monks. 1. Therefore, with a well-considered injunction, We order that they and their like be caught and rooted out from their hiding places and be called back to undergo the services of their home towns, or, in accordance with the provisions of Our sanction, that they be deprived of the enticements of their property, which We decree is to be claimed by those who would be about to undergo the services of public duties (functiones).

Posted at Beirut, January 1, in the consulship of Valentinian and Valens Augusti (373).

[27][145] The same Augusti to the People of Mauretania Sitifensis. The person whom a grandfather's bond ties to the council shall not claim for himself the privilege of his father's imperial office (privilegio paternae militiae). But if he will be born from a grandfather in imperial office and a father who is a decurion, he will succeed to his father's duties.

141 = C.Th. 12.1.54.
142 = C.Th. 12.1.55, with different wording.
143 = C.Th. 12.1.60, with reference also to the appointment of priests.
144 = C.Th. 12.1.63, with different wording and referring specifically to Egypt. Seeck dates to January 1, 370; Schmidt-Hofner, to January 1, 373.
145 = C.Th. 12.1.64; combine with C.Th. 7.1.6. Seeck gives April 23, 368; Schmidt-Hofner, April 28, 368, 370, or 373.

D. VIIII k. Mai. Treviris Valentiniano et Valente AA. conss.

[28] Idem AA. ad Volusianum pu. Nullus qualibet praerogativa fultus a debitis muneribus habeatur immunis.

D. IIII k. Iul. Mediolani Valentiniano et Valente AA. conss.

[29] Idem AA. Germaniano PP. Galliarum. Nati ex inquilinarum nostrae domus matrimonio et patre decurione non patrum suorum, verum matrum condicionem sequantur.

D. III id. Oct. Valentiniano et Valente AA. conss.

[30] Idem AA. ad Modestum pp. Procuratores rei publicae actionibus publicis debere uti non venit in dubium.

[31] Idem AA. et Gratianus A. ad Modestum pp. Ex omnibus domibus producti, qui origine sunt curiali, ad subeundam publicorum munerum functionem protrahantur, quippe cum occultatoribus talium praeter iacturam existimationis etiam rerum discrimen incumbat, si ulterius progressi utilitatem publicam privatis studiis et patrociniis postponant.

D. III id. Iul. Ancyrae Gratiano A. II et Probo conss.

[32] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. ad Neoterium pp. Fabricenses ordinibus restituantur, qui originem curialem et propriae munera declinaverint civitatis: reliqui ne levi quidem inquietudine pulsentur.

D. XVI k. April. Thessalonicae Gratiano V et Theodosio AA. conss.

[33] Idem AAA. Eutropio pp. pr. Omnes iudices provinciarumque rectores a consuetudine temerariae usurpationis abstineant sciantque neminem omnino principalium aut decurionum sub qualibet culpae Given April 23, at Trier, in the consulship of Valentinian and Valens Augusti (368 or 370).

[28][146] The same Augusti to Volusianus, City Prefect. No one, propped up by any prerogative, shall be considered immune from services that he owes.

Given June 28, at Milan, in the consulship of Valentinian and Valens Augusti (365).

[29] The same Augusti to Germanianus, Praetorian Prefect of the Gauls. Those who are born from a marriage between women who are resident tenants (inquilinae) of Our household and a father who is a decurion shall not follow the rank of their fathers, but rather that of their mothers.

Given October 13, in the consulship of Valentinian and Valens (365).

[30] The same Augusti to Modestus, Praetorian Prefect. There is no doubt that procurators of a municipality should have recourse to public actions.

(370–371).[147]

[31][148] The same Augusti and GRATIAN Augustus to Modestus, Praetorian Prefect. Those who are of decurion origin, having been brought forth from all households, should be dragged out to undergo the duty of public services, since, in addition to the loss of their rank, the danger (of losing) their property is incumbent upon those who hide such people, if they should continue further in neglecting public needs for private interests and patronage (patrocinium).

Given July 13, at Ankara, in the consulship of Gratian Augustus, for the second time, and Probus (371).

[32][149] Emperors GRATIAN, VALENTINIAN, and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Neoterius, Praetorian Prefect. Workers in state arms factories (fabricenses) who have declined their origin as decurions and the services of their own city shall be restored to the councils; the remaining (workers) should not be disturbed even with a trivial worry.

Given March 17, at Thessalonica, in the consulship of Gratian, for the fifth time, and Theodosius, Augusti (380).

[33][150] The same Augusti to Eutropius, Praetorian Prefect. pr. All judges (iudices) and provincial governors shall refrain from the custom of a rash [146] = C.Th. 12.1.67, which adds "with the exception of palace officials"; combine with C.Th. 6.4.18.

[147] Seeck dates to June 10, 371; Schmidt-Hofner, to between 370 and 375.
[148] = C.Th. 12.1.76.
[149] = C.Th. 12.1.81; combine with C.Th. 12.1.82.
[150] = C.Th. 12.1.85; combine with C.Th. 12.1.86.

aut erroris offensa cruciatibus esse subdendum. 1. Quod si quis forte iudicum in hanc pertinaciam illiciti furoris eruperit, quod audeat principalem ac decurionem et suae, si sic dici oportet, curiae senatorem tormentis subdere, viginti librarum auri illatione multatus et perpetua infamia inustus nec speciali quidem rescripto notam eluere mereatur: et officium quinquaginta librarum auri multam fisco nostro cogetur inferre, quoniam, ut pertinaciae iudicis sui resistat, liberam eidem contradicendi permittimus facultatem.

D. XII k. Aug. Heracleae Eucherio et Syagrio conss.

[34] Idem AAA. Floro pp. pr. Si quis procurationem facultatum suarum curiali crediderit esse mandandam, totius dignitatis exceptione depulsa gravissima poena plectetur. 1. Ille vero, qui immemor libertatis et generis infamissimam suscipiens vilitatem existimationem suam servili obsecundatione damnaverit, tradatur exsilio.

D. X k. Nov. Constantinopoli Antonio et Syagrio conss.

[35] Idem AAA. Postumiano pp. pr. In filiis decurionum retinendis priorum praeceptorum decreta sublimitas tua custodiat. 1. Eos quoque, qui advocationis obtentu curialia onera declinant, agere universa compellat, quae et si necessitas non exigit, tamen patria non remittit. 2. Ipsos quin etiam filios magistrorum, qui ex curiali stirpe descendunt, simili modo obnoxios esse decernat.

D. VIII id. April. Constantinopoli Merobaude II et Saturnino conss.

[36] Idem AAA. ad Basilium comitem sacrarum largitionum. Exemplo senatorii ordinis patris originem unusquisque sequatur, nec valeant specialiter delata rescripta, si quis se matris origine defendens a maiore curia ad minorem transferri fortasse promeruerit: neque ulla pro more provinciae referri sinatur exceptio.

usurpation and know that no chief civic magistrate (principalis) or decurion is to be subjected to torture regarding any offense resulting from fault or error. 1. But if any judge erupts into this stubbornness of unlawful madness, that he might dare to subject to torments a civic magistrate or a decurion and, if thus it must be said, a senator of his own council, having been fined with the payment of 20 pounds of gold and branded with perpetual infamy, he shall not merit escaping censure through a special rescript. And his office will be compelled to pay a fine of 50 pounds of gold to Our Treasury, since We permit this same person (the one subject to torture) the free right of contradicting so that he might resist the stubbornness of his own judge.

Given July 21, at Heraclea, in the consulship of Eucherius and Syagrius (381).

[34][151] The same Augusti to Florus, Praetorian Prefect. pr. If someone believes the management of his property is to be entrusted to a decurion, he should be struck with a most serious penalty, with any defense based on his entire rank removed. 1. But that person who, unmindful of his free status and birth, condemns his reputation through servile obsequiousness by taking up a (thing of) most disreputable baseness, shall be handed over for deportation.

Given October 23, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Antonius and Syagrius (382).

[35][152] The same Augusti to Postumianus, Praetorian Prefect. pr. Your Sublimity should observe the decrees of previous orders as to retaining the sons of decurions. 1. But (Your Sublimity) should compel those who decline the burdens of the council under the pretext of serving as advocate to perform them all, which, even if necessity does not demand them, the hometown does not remit. 2. Indeed (Your Sublimity) should decree that the sons themselves of teachers, who are descendants from a family of decurion rank, be bound in a similar manner.

Given April 6, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Merobaudes, for the second time, and Saturninus (383).

[36][153] The same Augusti to Basilius, Count of Imperial Finances. On the analogy of the senatorial order, each person shall follow the origin of his father, nor should rescripts provided for a specific case have any validity, if someone perhaps, defending himself by his mother's origin, obtains transfer from the higher council to a lower one. Nor may any exception be allowed to be recorded in accordance with the custom of a province.

[151] = C.Th. 12.1.92, with somewhat different wording.
[152] = C.Th. 12.1.98; combine with C.Th 9.42.10.
[153] = C.Th.12.1.101, which has "each townsperson" (municeps).

D. xvi k. Iul. Romae Merobaude ii et Saturnino conss.

[37] Idem AAA. Postumiano pp. Quotienscumque se ex rescriptis nostris aliquid impetrasse contendent ii, quos obnoxios curiae vel origo fecerit vel latum inter partes iudicium designaverit, nullam prorsus spem curias declinandi ex colore sacrae iussionis accipiant.

D. xiiii k. Aug. Constantinopoli Merobaude II et Saturnino conss.

[38] Idem AAA. ad Cynegium pp. pr. Ne quis officialium poenae specie atque aestimatione curiae dedatur, nisi si quis forte curiam diffugiens ob hoc coeperit militare, ne ingenitis fungatur officiis. 1. Omnes itaque omnino iudices tuae censurae subditos admonebis, ne quis eorum aestimet curiae loco supplicii quemquam deputandum, cum utique unumquemque criminosum non dignitas debeat, sed poena comitari.

D. viii id. Nov. Constantinopoli Ricomere et Clearcho conss.

[39] Idem et Arcadius AAAA. ad Eusignium pp. Curiales, qui sese privilegio domus nostrae defendi posse crediderint, ad curiam retrahantur et propriis functionibus mancipentur et publica damna sarciant.

D. viii k. Ian. Honorio np. et Euodio conss.

[40] Idem AAA. Cynegio pp. Quilibet principalium vel decurionum vel decoctor pecuniae publicae vel fraudulentus in adscriptionibus illicitis vel immoderatus in exactione fuerit inventus, iuxta pristinam consuetudinem non solum a vobis, quibus propter loci dignitatem rerum summa commissa est, verum a iudicibus ordinariis plumbatarum ictibus subiciatur.

Given June 16, at Rome,[154] in the consulship of Merobaudes, for the second time, and Saturninus (383).

[37][155] The same Augusti to Postumianus, Praetorian Prefect. Whenever those persons whom either their origin has made liable to (serving on) the council or a verdict made between the parties has appointed for this, contend that they have obtained something from Our rescripts, they shall not gain any hope of at all of declining (service on) the councils from the terms of a sacred order.

Given July 19, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Merobaudes, for the second time, and Saturninus (383).

[38][156] The same Augusti to Cynegius, Praetorian Prefect. pr. No official should be given over to (service on) a council under the appearance and the valuation of a penalty, unless perhaps, fleeing the council so that he not perform his inherited duties, he has begun to be in imperial service (militare). 1. And so you will admonish all governors (iudices) subordinate to your judgment, that none of them deem that anyone should be assigned to a council as a punishment, since the companion of every criminal should not be rank, but punishment.

Given November 6, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Richomer and Clearchus (384).

[39][157] The same Augusti and Arcadius Augustus to Eusignius, Praetorian Prefect. Decurions who think they can be protected by a privilege of Our household shall be dragged back to the council, be claimed for their public payments (functiones), and make good losses to the public.

Given December 25, in the consulship of Honorius, Most Noble Boy, and Euodius (386).

[40][158] The same Augusti to Cynegius, Praetorian Prefect. Whoever from among the civic magistrates or decurions has been found to be a spendthrift with public money, fraudulent in unlawful tax assessments, or excessive in exacting them shall be subjected, in accordance with ancient custom, to the blows of the leaded lash not just by you, to whom the supervision of affairs has been entrusted, but also by ordinary judges.

[154] Gothofredus emends the place to Verona, since C. 1.15.1 was issued there on the same date.
[155] = C.Th. 12.1.102; combine with C.Th. 7.2.1.
[156] = C.Th. 12.1.108. Gratian was deceased by this date.
[157] = C.Th. 12.1.114. According to Krüger, the emperors should be Valentinian, Theodosius, and Arcadius: see C. 11.59.7, 11.62.7, 12.21.1.
[158] = C.Th. 12.1.117 (March 31); combine with C.Th. 12.1.116, dated March 27.

D. die k. April. Constantinopoli Valentiniano A. III et Eutropio conss.

[41] Idem AAA. Cynegio pp. Decurio fortunam quam nascendo meruit suffragiis atque ambitione non mutet: et si vacare per senectutem potuerit, propter ordinationem, quae per plurimos cito definiri solet, curiam non relinquat.

D. prid. non. Iul. Constantinopoli Valentiniano A. III et Eutropio conss.

[42] Imppp. Theodosius Arcadius et Honorius AAA. Abundantio comiti et magistro utriusque militiae. pr. Militaribus viris nihil sit commune cum curiis: nihil sibi licitum sciant, quod suae non subiectum est potestati: nullum iniuria, nullum verbere, nullum gravi pulsatione tribunus, dux ille an comes sit, curialem principalemve contingat. 1. Si quis posthac temerario et inconsiderato ausu ullum ex principalibus viris usurpata attrectaverit iniuria, sciat se decem auri libris esse multandum.

D. prid. k. Aug. Constantinopoli Arcadio A. II et Rufino conss.

[43] Idem AAA. Rufino pp. Omnes, qui curiali obstricti sanguine diversis se officiorum privilegiis et actuum praeiudiciis adgregarunt, reddendos muniis esse non ambiges. sed nec rescripta aut adnotationes ad munerum fugam prodesse permittimus.

D. prid. id. April. Constantinopoli Theodosio A. III et Abundantio conss.

[44] Idem AAA. Rufino pp. Nullus solius materni sanguinis vinculis illigetur, quia mulierum infirmitas numquam huiusmodi functionibus reddit obnoxios, a quibus ipsa habetur immunis.

D. V id. Aug. Constantinopoli Theodosio A. III et Abundantio conss.

Given April 1, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Valentinian Augustus, for the third time, and Eutropius (387).

[41][159] The same Augusti to Cynegius, Praetorian Prefect. A decurion may not, through recommendations (suffragia) and corrupt solicitation, change the fortune that he acquired by birth.[160] And if he can have a dispensation from his duties because of old age, he shall not leave the council on account of a decree, which is customarily passed quickly by many people.

Given July 6, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Valentinian Augustus, for the third time, and Eutropius (387).

[42][161] Emperors THEODOSIUS, ARCADIUS, and HONORIUS Augusti to Abundantius, Count and Master of the Two Military Commands. pr. Military men should have nothing to do with councils. They should know that they are not allowed anything that is not subject to their power; whether one is a tribune, duke, or count, he shall not touch any decurion or imperial official with an injury, a lash, or a heavy beating. 1. If anyone henceforth, in a rash and ill-considered display of daring, handles any chief civic magistrate by inflicting an injury, he shall know that he is to be fined 10 pounds of gold.

Given July 31, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Arcadius Augustus, for the second time, and Rufinus (392).

[43][162] The same Augusti to Rufinus, Praetorian Prefect. You should not doubt that all those who, though bound by their descent from a decurion, have attached themselves to the diverse privileges of offices and the protections arising from their services (actuum praeiudiciis), must be returned to their duties (as decurions). But We do not permit that rescripts or the Emperor's responses to petitions (adnotationes) be of any use for escaping services.

Given April 12, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Theodosius Augustus, for the third time, and Abundantius (393).

[44][163] The same Augusti to Rufinus, Praetorian Prefect. No one should be tied by the bonds of maternal blood alone, since the infirmity of women never makes people liable to such services from which a woman herself is considered immune.

Given August 9, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Theodosius Augustus, for the third time, and Abundantius (393).

[159] = C.Th.12.1.118 pr.
[160] Recommendations (suffragia) could be obtained by payment; see C. 4.3.1.
[161] = C.Th. 12.1.128.
[162] = C.Th. 12.1.134; combine with C. 10.19.5. The second sentence is added from C.Th. 12.1.137 pr.
[163] = C.Th.12.1.137.1; combine with C. 9.7.1.

[45] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Ennodio proconsuli Africae. Nominationum forma vacillare non debet, si omnes qui albo curiae detinentur adesse non possunt, ne paucorum absentia sive necessaria sive fortuita debilitet, quod a maiore parte ordinis salubriter fuerit constitutum, cum duae partes ordinis in urbe positae totius curiae instar exhibeant.

D. XVII k. Iun. Mediolani Olybrio et Probino conss.

[46] Idem AA. Theodoro pp. Ad subeunda patriae munera dignissimi et meritis et facultatibus curiales eligantur, ne tales forte nominentur, qui functiones publicas implere non possint.

D. IIII k. Oct. Mediolani Olybrio et Probino conss.

[47] Idem AA. Caesario pp. pr. Curiales, qui honorariam adepti sunt comitivam, formidare debent eos, quorum sunt moderationi commissi, nec se existimare ideo meruisse dignitatem, ut iudicum praecepta despiciant. 1. Quod si in eadem culpa perseverent, quinque librarum auri multae obnoxius subiugetur, honore quoque quem prodidit spoliandus.

D. IIII k. Ian. Constantinopoli Olybrio et Probino conss.

[48] Idem AA. Florentino pu. In successione curialium decernimus, ut, etiam si patres decesserint, teneatur agnatio.

D. XII k. Ian. Mediolani Caesario et Attico conss.

[49] Idem AA. Theodoro pp. Omnes, qui quolibet curiae iure debentur, cuiuscumque superstitionis sint, ad implenda munia teneantur.

D. id. Febr. Mediolani Honorio A. IIII et Eutychiano conss.

[45][164] Emperors Arcadius and Honorius to Ennodius, Proconsul of Africa. The rule for nominations should not waver if all who are included in the album of the council cannot be present, lest the absence of a few, whether necessary or fortuitous, should invalidate what has usefully been decided by a majority, since two-thirds of the order (of decurions), when present in the city, provides the equivalent of the whole council.

Given May 16, at Milan, in the consulship of Olybrius and Probinus (395).

[46][165] The same Augusti to Theodorus, Praetorian Prefect. The most worthy decurions both in terms of their merits and wealth shall be chosen to undergo the services of the hometown, lest people by chance be nominated who cannot fulfill public responsibilities (functiones).

Given September 28, at Milan, in the consulship of Olybrius and Probinus (395).

[47][166] The same Augusti to Caesarius, Praetorian Prefect. pr. Decurions who have acquired the honorary rank of count (honoraria comitiva) ought to fear those to whose supervision they have been entrusted, and they should not fancy that they have received the rank so that they might despise the orders of the governors (iudices). 1. But if they should persevere in this same fault, he (the person doing so) shall be subjected to a fine of 5 pounds of gold, to be stripped also of the office that he has betrayed.

Given December 29, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Olybrius and Probinus (395).

[48][167] The same Augusti to Florentinus, City Prefect. In the succession to decurions We determine that, even if the fathers have died, agnatic relations are be held liable.

Given December 21, at Milan, in the consulship of Caesarius and Atticus (397).

[49][168] The same Augusti to Theodorus, Praetorian Prefect. All who are obligated to the council by any right, shall be liable to fulfill services, whatever religion (superstitio) they might belong to.

Given February 13, at Milan, in the consulship of Honorius Augustus, for the fourth time, and Eutychianus (398).

164 = C.Th. 12.1.142; combine with C. 7.62.27, and C.Th. 12.1.141, 143–145.

165 The text is like that of C.Th. 12.1.140 (but with somewhat different wording, including the omission of the word "decurions"); it is apparently preserved out of its original order. The date is restored from C.Th.12.1.148, also addressed to Theodorus, Praetorian Prefect; but Seeck prefers January 20, 399.

166 = C.Th. 12.1.150.

167 = C.Th. 8.7.19.1 (which refers to fathers fleeing). Combine with C. 3.23.1; C.Th. 6.14.2, 12.1.153–155.

168 = C.Th. 12.1.157; combine with C.Th. 12.1.158. Seeck dates to September 13, 398.

[50] Idem AA. Eutychiano pp. Omnes omnino curiales in originalibus ac debitis perpetuo curiis perseverent, et qui ex his ad provinciarum regimen atque administrationem qualibet fraude atque ambitione pervenerint, sciant se non solum in sua curia remansuros, sed etiam cunctis rursus ab exordio muneribus servituros.

D. VIII k. Nov. Constantinopoli Honorio A. IIII et Eutychiano conss.

[51] Idem AA. Messalae pp. pr. Quamvis provisum fuerat congruae emendationis occursu, quemadmodum curiales militiae nomine et honore suspenso officiis redderentur, tamen quia hoc callido consilio reppererunt, ut evitatis provinciae suae finibus, tamquam his eorum tantum interdictus fuisset accessus, peregrinos expeterent commeatus, ne diutius in perniciem curiarum latitandi spes et solacium eos impunitatis exacuat, horum cupiditatibus obviamus, ut ex eorum bonis, qui se vel prosecutioni vel muniis civitatum interdictae dudum ambitione militiae vel qualibet fraude subtrahere conati fuerint, curiis quas deseruerant consulatur. 1. Itaque si vocati edictis intra anni metas (ii tamen, qui manifestis curiae nexibus illigantur) latere potius quam redire maluerint, sciant post emensum annum interpellatis provinciarum moderatoribus ex facultatibus suis curiis quas destituerunt consulendum. neque enim de immaturo praeiudicio temporis possunt brevitatem causari.

D. XVII k. Sept. Theodoro vc. cons.

[52] Idem AA. Probino proconsuli Africae. Quis tam inveniri iniquus arbiter rerum potest, qui in urbibus magnifico statu praeditis ac votiva curialium numerositate locupletibus ad iterationem quempiam transacti oneris compellat, ut, cum alii necdum paene initiati curiae sacris fuerint, alios continuatio et repetitae saepe functiones adficiant?

D. XVI k. April. Mediolani Caesario et Attico conss.

[50][169] The same Augusti to Eutychianus, Praetorian Prefect. Absolutely all decurions should persevere in the councils that are theirs by origin and to which they are obligated in perpetuity, and those of them who have attained the governorship and administration of provinces by some fraud shall know that they will not only remain in their council, but that they will also fulfill all services again from the beginning.

Given October 25, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Honorius Augustus, for the fourth time, and Eutychianus (398).

[51][170] The same Augusti to Messala, Praetorian Prefect. pr. Although provision had been made, by interposing an appropriate correction, for the way in which decurions should be returned to their duties with the suspension of the name and honor of their imperial service (militia), nevertheless, since they have discovered, through their clever planning, that having evaded the territory of their province, as if access to these things (imperial positions) had been forbidden only within it, they hunt for journeys abroad: in order that the hope of hiding and the comfort of impunity no longer make them keen on the ruin of their municipal councils, We forestall their greed, so that provision be made, for the councils that they had abandoned, from the property of those individuals who have tried to withdraw themselves from prosecution or from the services for towns because of their ambition for long-forbidden service or by any fraud. 1. And so if, having been summoned by Our edicts within the period of a year, they – that is, those people who are manifestly tied to the bonds of a council – prefer to hide rather than to return, they should know that after the passage of a year, once the provincial governors are informed, provision is to be made from their property for the councils that they have forsaken. Nor can they allege shortness of notice as a reason for (their objecting to) a hasty preliminary judgment (de immaturo praeiudicio).

Given August 16, in the consulship of vir clarissimus Theodorus (399).

[52][171] The same Augusti to Probinus, Proconsul of Africa. Who can be found to be so unfair a judge of matters as to compel anyone to repeat a burden that has been completed in cities endowed with a great status and wealthy with longed-for numbers of decurions, so that, while some have barely been initiated into the sacred rites of the council, continuation and frequent repetition of services (functiones) afflict others?

Given March 17, at Milan, in the consulship of Caesarius and Atticus (397).

[169] = C.Th. 12.1.159, with different wording.
[170] = C.Th. 12.1.161, with additional wording in section 1. Combine with C. 1.54.6, 4.44.17, 9.41.17, dated August 21.
[171] = C.Th. 12.5.3; this title should be placed before 47.

[53] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Euchario proconsuli Africae. Duumvirum impune non liceat extollere potestatem fascium extra metas territorii propriae civitatis.

D. VI id. Mart. Ravennae Honorio VIIII et Theodosio V AA. conss.

[54] Idem AA. Palladio pp. Generali lege sancimus, ut, si quis suum decurionem curiae vindicare maluerit, si praesidis desit copia, eundem manus iniectione concessa sciat ad examen cognitoris resultantem esse deducendum, ita ut moderator provinciae, si quaestio fortasse fiducia defensionis ulla generatur, nisi intra tres menses causam originis competenti disceptatione cognoverit atque convictum cum poena restituerit debitis muneribus vel liberum ab inquietudine pronuntiaverit, decem librarum auri multam cogatur exsolvere, eius etiam officium pari damni inrogatione teneatur.

D. V non. Mai. Ravennae Theodosio A. VII et Palladio conss.

[55] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Isidoro pp. Si quis decurio aut subiectus curiae ausus fuerit ullam adfectare militiam, nulla praescriptione temporis muniatur, sed ad condicionem propriam retrahatur, ne ipse vel eius liberi post talem ipsius statum procreati quod patriae debetur valeant declinare.

D. III non. April. Constantinopoli Isidoro et Senatore conss.

[56] Idem AA. Isidoro pp. pr. Alexandrinis principalibus, etsi advocatione fungantur, nihilo minus peregrinationi incumbat, nec cura publica nisi in sua tantum civitate committatur. 1. Et primus curiae, cum muneribus universis expletis ad summum pervenerit gradum, comitivae primi ordinis fruatur post biennium dignitate praestita, in curialibus tamen permaneat.

D. prid. non. Iun. Constantinopoli Isidoro et Senatore conss.

[53][172] Emperors Honorius and Theodosius Augusti to Eucharius, Proconsul of Africa. A duumvir shall not be allowed with impunity to display the power of his rods (fasces, symbols of office) outside the boundaries of the territory of his own city.

Given March 10, at Ravenna, in the consulship of Honorius, for the ninth time, and Theodosius, for the fifth time, Augusti (412).

[54][173] The same Augusti to Palladius, Praetorian Prefect. We ordain in a general law that, if someone prefers to claim his decurion for the council, if the governor should not be available, he should know that, through the physical recovery (manus inectio) that has been permitted, the same person, if resisting (resultantem), is to be brought to an examination by a judge (cognitor) in such a way that the provincial governor, if perhaps any question is generated by the reliability of his defense, should be compelled to pay a fine of 10 pounds of gold, and his office shall be held by a payment of an equal loss, if within three months he has not tried the case of his origin at an appropriate hearing and (either) restored him if convicted with a penalty for the services he owed or pronounced him free from being troubled by any suits.

Given May 3, at Ravenna, in the consulship of Theodosius Augustus, for the seventh time, and Palladius (416).

[55][174] Emperors Theodosius and Valentinian Augusti to Isidorus, Praetorian Prefect. If any decurion or person subjected to the council dares to pretend to any imperial office (militia), he shall not be protected by any time prescription, but he must be dragged back to his own condition, so that neither he himself nor his children born after such a status has been decided for him be able to refuse what is owed to their hometown.

Given April 3, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Isidorus and Senator (436).

[56][175] The same Augusti to Isidorus, Praetorian Prefect. pr. The chief civic magistrates of Alexandria, even if they should be performing an advocacy, shall by no means be less liable for foreign service (peregrinatio),[176] nor shall a public responsibility be entrusted except in one's own city. 1. And the chief of the council, when, after completing all his services, he has reached the highest rank, shall enjoy the rank of count of the first order, which is bestowed after two years, but nevertheless should remain among the decurions.

Given June 4, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Isidorus and Senator (436).

172 = C.Th. 12.1.174.

173 = C.Th. 12.1.181, with somewhat different wording.

174 = C.Th. 12.1.188. Combine with C. 12.57.12; C.Th. 12.1.187.

175 = C.Th. 12.1.189, with somewhat different wording. Combine with sections 57–59 of this title, as well as C. 11.28.2, 11.29.1; and C.Th. 11.5.3.

176 This reading (from C. Th.) seems to contradict the next clause, and Mommsen emends to perigrinatio ne, "should not be liable for foreign service."

[57] Idem AA. Isidoro pp. Quinque summates ordinis Alexandrini corporalibus iniuriis immunes esse censemus, ut voce libera commoditates patriae defendant, cum possint, si quid egerint criminose, pecuniariis coerceri dispendiis. aestimabuntur autem praesente curia viri spectabilis Augustalis iudicio.

D. prid. non. Iun. Constantinopoli Isidoro et Senatore conss.

[58] Idem AA. Isidoro pp. Eum, qui triginta annos in Alexandrina civitate civilibus inhaeserit muneribus, corporalibus muniis, non pecuniariis excusari convenit: habita consideratione videlicet meritorum, ut hoc bene cogniti privilegium consequantur nec eo passim fruantur indigni.

D. prid. non. Iun. Constantinopoli Isidoro et Senatore conss.

[59] Idem AA. Isidoro pp. pr. Si quos spontaneos hypomnematographi munificos suis exhortationibus ad publicas nominaverint functiones, iubemus non expectandum esse consensum pro tempore viri spectabilis Augustalis, qui fit plerumque venalis, sed utriusque partis sufficere voluntatem, ut incipiat functio, quam nullus incusat: tunc ad memoratum iudicem tam nominati quam etiam creatores consona relatione currente.[v] 1. Quam si suscipere vel confirmare distulerit, sciat se viginti quinque auri librarum condemnatione plectendum.

D. prid. non. Aug. Constantinopoli Isidoro et Senatore conss.

[60] Idem AA. Thomae pp. pr. Nullus, qui nexu generis curiae tenetur obnoxius, per substitutam quamcumque personam curiales impleat functiones, sed ipse per se debitum patriae munus exsolvat, etsi spectabili dignitate decoratus sit, nisi hoc ei speciali beneficio sit concessum. 1. Ii vero, qui honorario titulo illustrem dignitatem consecuti sunt, per

[v] current

[57][177] The same Augusti to Isidorus, Praetorian Prefect. We decree that the five chief magistrates of the council in Alexandria be immune from physical injuries, so that they might defend the interests of their hometown with a free voice, since they can be coerced with monetary expenditures if they commit any criminal act. They will be judged, however, in the presence of the council, by the vir spectabilis Augustal Prefect (the Governor of Egypt).

Given June 4, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Isidorus and Senator (436).

[58][178] The same Augusti to Isidorus, Praetorian Prefect. It is established that the person who has been involved in civic services (i.e., performing services within the city as opposed to serving in the imperial administration) in the city of Alexandria for thirty years be excused from physical services (in the city), but not from ones involving money. Plainly, there is consideration taken of merits, so that those who have good reputations (bene cogniti) gain this privilege and unworthy people not enjoy it indiscriminately.

Given June 4, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Isidorus and Senator (436).

[59][179] The same Augusti to Isidorus, Praetorian Prefect. pr. If the memoranda writers by their own exhortations nominate any willing volunteers (munifici) to public functions, We order that the agreement of the temporary vir spectabilis Augustal prefect not be awaited, since it is often up for sale, but that the wish of each party suffice, so that the function, which no one is questioning, begin. At that time both the people nominated and their electors will run to the aforementioned governor with a suitable report. 1. But if he delays taking up (the report) or confirming it, he shall know that he is to be punished with a condemnation of 25 pounds of gold.

Given August 4,[180] at Constantinople, in the consulship of Isidorus and Senator (436).

[60][181] The same Augusti to Thomas, Praetorian Prefect. pr. No one who is held liable to the council by a tie of birth shall fulfill his functions connected with the council through any substitute, but he must by himself pay the service owed to his hometown, even if he has been decorated with the rank of spectabilis, unless this has been granted to him as a specific benefit. 1. But those who have attained

[177] = C.Th. 12.1.190; see also the note at the beginning of C. 10.32.56.

[178] = C.Th. 12.1.191; see also the note at the beginning of C. 10.32.56.

[179] = C.Th. 12.1.192; see also the note at the beginning of C. 10.32.56. The hypomnematographi, "memoranda writers," or "registrars," were important city officials in late Roman Egypt.

[180] The laws with which this law is to be combined have June 4.

[181] Section 1 = C. 1.3.21, with different wording; see also C.Th. 12.1.187, which this law amends.

substitutos periculo suarum facultatum curiae muneribus satisfacere non vetentur.

D. v k. Mart. Constantinopoli Eudoxio et Dioscoro conss.

[61] Imp. Leo A. Viviano pp. pr. Neque Dorotheum virum illustrem et totam eius substantiam neque Irenaeum virum spectabilem tribunum et notarium, etsi ante paternas illustres dignitates natus est, ullam inquietudinem pro curiali genere et condicione sustinere decernimus: liberos quoque eorum, vel qui iam sunt vel futuri, eorumque posteros, quotienscumque continuata temporum et successionum perpetuitate nascentur, a curiali condicione et functione esse liberos: lege divae memoriae Iuliani, quae de materno curialium Antiochenae civitatis genere promulgata est, nihil in persona viri illustris Dorothei vel viri spectabilis Irenaei vel adversus facultates eorum vel adversus liberos eorundem, qui iam vel nati sunt vel postmodum quoquo tempore nascentur, vel adversus substantias eorum roboris habitura. 1. Circa alias sane universas personas de materno genere ad memoratae Antiochenae civitatis tantummodo curiam pertinentes eandem legem praecipimus obtinere propriam firmitatem.

[62] Idem A. Constantino pp. pr. Si ille, qui ex filia decurionis Antiochenae splendidissimae civitatis et patre, qui nullius alterius civitatis muniis debeatur, procreatus est, sub examine provincialis iudicis vel sponte confessus vel certe convictus fuerit, quod ex filia sit curialis progenitus et albo decurionum adscriptus fuerit, nullam sibi superesse facultatem negandae vel evitandae condicionis existimet et curialem non adspernari fortunam avi materni sui pertemptet nec dubitet se muniis curialibus subiacere. 1. Quod si quem curia, de qua praesens sanctio loquitur, natum ex filia curialis minime secundum praestitutam ordinationem sibi sociandum curaverit, prolem eius pulsare nullo modo penitus poterit: nec enim patimur conventionem eiusmodi praetermisso filio, quem filia curialis ediderat, a nepote vel pronepote vel ulterius incipere.

the rank "Illustrious" (vir illustris) by honorary title shall not be prohibited, at the peril of their own property, from performing their curial duties through substitutes.

Given February 25, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Eudoxius and Dioscorus (442).

[61] Emperor Leo Augustus to Vivianus, Praetorian Prefect. pr. We determine that neither the vir illustris Dorotheus and his entire property, nor the vir spectabilis Irenaeus, tribune and notary, even if he was (i.e., they were) born before his father (their fathers) gained the rank of illustris, should sustain any worry over his (their) birth and condition as a decurion; (and We determine that) their children, both those who already exist and future ones, and their descendants, however often ones will be born in the uninterrupted duration of times and successions, be free from the condition and function of decurions. The law of Julian of blessed memory, which was promulgated about the maternal descent of decurions in the city of Antioch,[182] will not have any force in the person of the vir illustris Dorotheus, or the vir spectabilis Irenaeus, either in reference to their resources or in reference to the same persons' children who have now been born or who will be born later at any time, or in reference to their wealth. 1. We instruct that the same law obtain its appropriate firmness in connection with all other persons belonging only by maternal descent to the council of the aforementioned city of Antioch.

(457–465).

[62] The same Augustus to Constantine, Praetorian Prefect. pr. If that man, who was born from a daughter of a decurion in the most splendid city of Antioch and from a father who is obligated to the services of no other city, has, under questioning by the provincial governor, either confessed or certainly been convicted of having been born from the daughter of a decurion, and has (then) been listed in the album of decurions, he should not fancy that he has any right left to deny or avoid his condition, and he should not try to scorn the fortune of his maternal grandfather or doubt that he is liable to services of the council. 1. But if the council about which the present ordinance speaks does not cause someone born from the daughter of a decurion to be associated with itself in accordance with the prescribed regulation, it will in absolutely no way be able to disturb his offspring. Nor do We allow a suit of this type to begin with a grandson or a great-grandson or later, when the son whom the daughter of a decurion had produced has been passed over.

(457–465).[183]

[182] = 22 of this title.

[183] Seeck gives August 7, 471.

[63] Idem A. ad senatum. Docticii viri clarissimi iuvenis fortuna super curiali condicione nullo modo inquietanda nec facultatibus eius, sed eo, qui huiusmodi conamen inierit, sacrilegii poenam luituro omnes, qui post peractam illustrem administrationem vel adhuc in ea posito patri suo gignuntur, a curialium intentione defendantur una cum paternis sine dubio substantiis, quas cum persona patris a curiali nexu liberas esse nemo dissimulet.

[64] Imp. Zeno A. Sebastiano pp. pr. Neminem ex his, qui obnoxii curiae constituti ab initio felicissimi nostrae pietatis imperii comitum privatarum nostrae vel Augustae partis, seu comit*is* largitionum vel comitis domesticorum, quaestoris vel magistri officiorum ad actum administrationis gerendum provecti sunt vel in posterum provehentur, ob hoc curialium munerum laqueos volumus evitare: sed obligatos cum liberis suis quandocumque progenitis et facultatibus suis post administrationem depositam curiae commoditatibus inservire, nisi forte aliis privilegiis super hoc legibus cognitis muniantur. nam alia universa legitima vel ex constitutionibus data privilegia integra volumus illibataque observari. 1. Ne tamen indulti honor*is* inane nomen retinere videantur, dignitatum titulis potiantur, per substitutos suarum periculo facultatum curialibus muneribus respondentes habeant integra illibataque privilegia dignitatis. 2. Eos vero, qui vel praefatas dignitates ante initium nostri imperii consecuti sunt, cum facultatibus suis et post eam dignitatem progenitis filiis a curialibus nexibus vel onere decernimus liberari. 3. Hos autem, qui quocumque tempore patricii vel consules aut consulares facti sunt aut in posterum fuerint, aut magistri militum vel praefecti praetorio Orientis vel Illyrici vel urbis administrationem in actu positi quandoque gesserunt aut postea gesserint, omnimodo cum facultatibus suis et post eam dignitatem progenitis filiis a curiarum nexibus vel onere decernimus liberari.

[63] The same Augustus to the Senate. Since neither the rank (fortuna) nor the resources of the young vir clarissimus Docticius is in any way to be troubled concerning his condition as decurion, but (rather) the person who enters upon such an endeavor will pay the penalty for sacrilege, all who are born after the completion of his father's illustrious administration or when the father is still active in this shall be defended against nomination by the decurions, together with, beyond doubt, the father's property, the freedom of which from the bond of a decurion, along with the person of the father, no one should conceal.[184]

[64] Emperor ZENO Augustus to Sebastianus, Praetorian Prefect. pr. We do not want anyone on this account to avoid the snares of services of the council from among those persons who, though established as liable to the council from the beginning of the most prosperous rule of Our Piety, have advanced or in the future will advance to performing the administration (ad actum administrationis gerendum) of the Counts of the Privy Purse on Our part or that of the Augusta, or of the Count of Imperial Finances, the Count of the Household, the Quaestor or Master of Offices. But (We wish) them to be obligated with their children, whenever born, and their resources, to serve the interests of the council after they have set aside their administration, unless perhaps they should be protected by other privileges in laws that have been decided over this matter. For We wish that all other privileges resulting from laws or given in constitutions to be observed wholly and without impairment. 1. Lest, however, they be seen to retain the empty name of an honor that has been bestowed, they shall gain the titles of their ranks, and, answering to their services as decurions through substitutes at the risk of their property, they shall have the privileges of rank in their entirety and without impairment. 2. But We determine that those persons who have gained the aforementioned ranks before the beginning of Our rule are to be freed from the bonds or burden of the council along with their resources and their children born after (they have gained) their rank. 3. We determine, however, that those who have at any time or will in the future become patricians, consuls, or senators with the rank of Consul (consulares), or having been placed in the post have at any time or in the future will have performed the administration of the Master of Soldiers or the Praetorian Prefect of the East or Illyricum, are freed from the bonds or burden of the council completely along with their property and their children born after (they have attained) their rank.
(476–480?).[185]

[184] Seeck gives 471–474.
[185] Lounghis et al. date to between December, 476, and May 1, 480.

[65] [Ὁ αὐτὸς βασιλεύς.] ...

[66] Imp. Anastasius A. Polycarpo pp. pr. Divae memoriae Zenonis sacratissimam constitutionem, quae de curialibus post certas excelsas administrationes seu dignitates condicionis nexu liberandis lata est, in hac tantummodo parte duximus corrigendam, qua cavetur eos etiam, qui ante eandem constitutionem, ab initio tamen eiusdem divae recordationis Zenonis imperii, comitis privatarum nostrae vel piissimae Augustae partis, seu comitis largitionum vel comitis domesticorum, quaestoris aut magistri officiorum licet ad actum administrationis gerendum provecti sunt, minime curialium munerum laqueos ob hoc evitare, sed obligatos cum liberis suis quandocumque progenitis et facultatibus suis post administrationem depositam curiae commoditatibus inservire, nisi forte aliis privilegiis super hoc legibus cognitis muniantur. 1. His etenim, qui memoratas administrationes vel unam ex his peregerunt, nec non liberis et rebus eorum beneficium, quod ante per illustrem administrationem peractam eis adquisitum est, intactum illibatumque iubemus servari, ut relaxatione condicionis et munerum curialium per anteriores principales dispositiones sibi concessa tam ipsi quam liberi eorum post huiusmodi administrationem adeptam procreati una cum propriis substantiis potiantur, etsi contigit eos post divae memoriae Zenonis constitutionem sive per se sive per substitutos suos curiae competentia munera subisse: eadem videlicet constitutione divae memoriae Zenonis ex die quo promulgata est suas vires obtinente, cum conveniat leges futuris regulas imponere, non praeteritis calumnias excitare.

[67] Imp. Iustinianus A. Demostheni pp. pr. Curialibus consortiis consulentes censemus, ut nemo sibi blandiatur et non certis modis sese liberum esse existimet, sed pro nostra forma tantummodo sciat posse libertatem sibi curialis competere condicionis: omnibus anterioribus modis, quos non comprehendit praesens sanctio, ex praesenti die antiquandis. 1. Si quis igitur vel summum patriciatus honorem fuerit consecutus, sive infulis consulatus honorarii aut ordinarii fuerit ampliatus, ut vel consul vel consularis efficiatur, seu praefectorum praetorio infulas susceperit gubernandas, vel urbicariam (in ipso tamen actu) meruerit

[65][186] [The same Augustus ...]

[66] Emperor ANASTASIUS Augustus to Polycarp, Praetorian Prefect. pr. We have deemed that the most sacred constitution[187] of Zeno of blessed memory, which was promulgated concerning the freeing of decurions from the bond of their condition after they obtained certain lofty administrative posts or ranks, to require correction in just the part in which provision is made also for those who, before the same constitution, but from the beginning of the reign of the same Zeno of blessed memory, although they were promoted to performing the administration of the Count of the Privy Purse on Our part or that of the Most Pious Augusta, of the Count of Imperial Finances or of the Household, or of the Quaestor or the Master of Offices, do not avoid the snares of decurions on account of this, but, obligated along with their children, whenever born, and with their property, serve the interests of the council after setting aside their administration, unless by chance they should be protected by other privileges concerning this decided by the laws. 1. We order that the benefit that was previously acquired for them by completing the administration of an illustrious office be maintained in its entirety and without impairment for those who have completed the administration of these aforementioned offices or one of them, along with their children and property, so that both they themselves and their children born after they take up of an administrative post of this type, along with their own property, gain the dispensation from the condition and the services of the council granted them through previous imperial dispositions, even if it happens that they have performed services appropriate to the council after the constitution of Zeno of blessed memory, either themselves or through their substitutes. The same constitution of Zeno of blessed memory gains its validity from the day on which it was promulgated, since it is fitting that laws impose rules for the future and not provoke calumny for the past.

(497–499).[188]

[67] Emperor JUSTINIAN Augustus to Demosthenes, Praetorian Prefect. pr. In order to take consideration for the interests (consortia) of the councils, We decree that no one should fancy and judge himself to be free in certain ways, but should know that only in accordance with our rule can he be granted liberty from the condition of a decurion; all previous ways (of acquiring this freedom) that the present ordinance does not encompass are to be rescinded from the present day. 1. Therefore if someone has gained the highest honor of the patriciate (patriciatus), or is increased by the distinctions of an honorary or ordinary consulate, so that he be made Consul or have consular rank, or if he undertakes governing the office of the Praetorian Prefects, or gains the City

186 A Greek constitution has fallen out.

187 64 above.

188 Lounghis et al. suggest 498.

praefecturam, nec non magistri militum officium gerendum susceperit, is gaudeat se huiusmodi condicionis esse exsortem et liberum cum suis facultatibus suaque posteritate, quam postquam meruit dignitatem vel actum gess*it* ediderit, anterioribus filiis in condicione pristina remansuris. 2. Tam praefecturae quaestoris quam viri eloquentissimi fisci patroni tam praefecturae, quae Orientalibus et Illyricianis praesidet sedibus, quam urbicariae nexibus curiae liberantur, cum ad fisci patronatum pervenerint, una cum substantiis et liberis suis, quos vel ante habuerint vel postquam ad eundem gradum provecti sunt.

3. Viri etiam clarissimi principes agentium in rebus curiae libertatem ex antiquis legibus consecuti sunt, et viri spectabiles proximi sacri scrinii memoriae et sacrarum epistularum nec non sacri scrinii libellorum sacrarumque cognitionum et dispositionum cum substantiis suis et liberis, quos post emensa stipendia susceperant. 4. Hoc etiam nos corroborantes intuitu laborum, quos multos longo prolixoque tempore pertulerunt, intactum illibatumque conservamus, ut ii omnes fortuna curiali liberentur cum sua substantia suaque subole secundum ea quae praediximus. 5. Ex aevo autem sequente progenitos antea nullius futuri fisci patroni liberos concedimus liberandos, ut ne, quod summis apicibus dignitatum non est concessum, hoc alii sibi audeant vindicare: sed progeniti filii ante, quam ad fisci patronatum pervenerint, in condicione pristina remaneant. 6. Aliis autem modis, quam his, quos singillatim enumeravimus, sive legibus antiquis comprehensi sunt (qualis erat is, quem ex tribus maribus concessum ante fuerat patri maximo senatui sociare) sive comprehensi anterioribus scitis non fuerant, liberationem competere cuidam curialis fortunae nullo patimur modo: sed sive pragmatica sanctio super hoc processit sive sententia eminentissimae praefecturae, sive alius quicumque modus excogitatus est, omnia ea penitus vacuari et pro infectis haberi, et curialia corpora suis reddi civitatibus et substantias eorum subiacere nulla excusatione eis penitus competente.

[68] [Ὁ αὐτὸς βασιλεύς.] …

Prefecture – albeit in the actual administration of it – not to mention if he takes up the office of the Master of Soldiers, he should rejoice that he has no part and is free of this condition, along with his property and his posterity which he will have produced after he has gained the rank or performed the administration, while his previous sons will remain in their original condition. 2.[189] The most eloquent patrons of the Treasury in the court of the (Praetorian) Prefecture and that of the Quaestor (of the Sacred Palace), in the Prefecture that presides over the Eastern and Illyrican territories, as well as in the City Prefecture, are freed from the ties of the (city) council when they achieve being a patron of the Treasury, together with their property and their children whether born before or after they were promoted to this same rank.

3. The viri clarissimi chiefs (principes) of the couriers (agentes in rebus) have gained freedom from the council by ancient laws, as have the viri spectabiles subordinates (proximi) of the imperial bureau of Memory (for secretarial work on decisions), the Imperial Correspondence, as well as the imperial bureau of Petitions, and imperial Trials and Dispositions, together with their property and children whom they have raised after completing their service. 4. To affirm this out of regard for the many labors that they have endured for a long and extended time, We maintain it wholly and without impairment, so that all of these might be freed, along with their property and offspring, from the lot of a decurion, in accordance with what We have proclaimed. 5. However, for the future, We do not concede that children of any future patron of the Treasury should be freed if born previously, lest others dare to claim for themselves what has not been conceded to the very highest ranks; but the sons born before they achieved being patron of the Treasury shall remain in their original condition. 6. We absolutely do not allow anyone to gain liberation from the lot of a decurion in any other ways than these that We have enumerated individually, whether they are included in ancient laws – like the person whom, out of three male children, it was allowed to the father to make a member of the greatest senate[190] – or have not been included in ancient statutes. But whether a pragmatic sanction has come forth about this or a verdict of the Most Eminent Prefecture, or whether any other method has been invented, all of these things are completely invalid and are considered as if they were never done, and the persons (corpora) of the decurions are returned to their cities and their property is liable, and no possibility of being excused at all is available to them.

(529).[191]

[68][192] [The same Augustus …]

[189] Section 2 seems to be corrupt, and this is a suggested translation.
[190] C.Th. 12.1.132 (393).
[191] Lounghis et al. date to between September 17 and October 30, 529.
[192] A constitution, possibly a repetition of C. 1.3.52.1, has fallen out.

XXXIII Si Libertus aut Servus ad Decurionatum Adspiraverit

[1] Impp. Diocletianus et Maximianus AA. Saturnino. Si libertus vel ius aureorum anulorum adeptus non est vel natalibus suis non restitutus, praeses provinciae non tantum curiae participare non permittet, sed iuxta legis severitatem congruenti poena ulciscetur.

[2] Idem AA. Orcinae. Praeses provinciae, si eum qui aedilitate fungitur servum tuum esse cognoverit, si quidem non ignarum condicionis suae ad aedilitatem adspirasse perspexerit, ob violatam servili macula curiae dignitatem congruenti poena adficiet: si vero, cum opinione publica mater eius pro libera haberetur, ex decurione procreatus ad capessendum honorem errore lapsus processit, dominio tuo eum subiugabit.

XXXIIII De Praediis Curialium sine Decreto Non Alienandis

[1] Imppp. Valentinianus Theodosius et Arcadius AAA. Cynegio pp. pr. Si quis decurionum vel rustica praedia vel urbana venditor necessitate coactus addicit, interpellet iudicem competentem omnesque causas singillatim quibus strangulatur exponat et ita demum distrahendae possessionis facultatem accipiat, si alienationis necessitatem probaverit. infirma enim erit venditio, si haec fuerit forma neglecta. 1. Ita enim fiet, ut nec immoderatus venditor nec emptor, cuiuscumque sit condicionis, inveniatur iniustus. denique nihil erit postmodum, quo venditor vel circumventum se insidiis vel oppressum potentia comparatoris queri debeat, quandoquidem sub fide actorum et de necessitate distrahentis et de voluntate patuerit comparantis. 2. Quod si quis contra vetitum occultis molitionibus per suppositas fraude personas cuiuslibet loci, quem tamen decurio distrahat, comparator extiterit, sciat se pretio quod dedit esse privandum et locum quem comparavit cum fructibus esse restituendum.

D. VIII k. Dec. Constantinopoli Honorio np. et Euodio conss.

Thirty-Third Title If a Freedman or Slave Aspires to Be a Decurion

[1] Emperors DIOCLETIAN and MAXIMIAN Augusti to Saturninus. If a freedman has not obtained the right of (wearing) golden rings (i.e., the right to be an equestrian) or has not been restored to his (free) birth, the provincial governor will not only not allow him to take part in the council, but will, in accordance with the severity of the law, take vengeance with an appropriate punishment.

[2] The same Augusti to Orcina. The provincial governor, if he learns that the person who is serving as Aedile is your slave, if he perceives that he (the slave) aspired to the aedileship while not ignorant of his condition, will visit on him an appropriate punishment for violating the dignity of the council with a servile blemish. If indeed, since his mother was considered free by public opinion, he, having been born from a decurion, has proceeded to seeking office out of error, he will subject him to your ownership.

Thirty-Fourth Title Properties of Decurions Are Not to Be Alienated without a Decree

[1][193] Emperors VALENTINIAN, THEODOSIUS, and ARCADIUS Augusti to Cynegius, Praetorian Prefect. pr. If any decurion, compelled out of necessity to become a seller, puts up for sale any urban or rustic properties,[194] he shall approach a competent judge and explain individually all the reasons through which he is being tormented, and only then receive the right to sell his property if he proves the need for alienating it. For a sale will be invalid if this rule is neglected. 1. For in this way it will come about that the seller will not be seen to be rash nor the buyer unjust, whatever his condition. Finally, there will be no reason why afterwards the seller ought to complain that he was tricked by a trap or was oppressed by the buyer's power, when, on the basis of the faith of the records, it is clear concerning the necessity imposed on the one selling and the willingness of the purchaser. 2. But if anyone, contrary to what has been forbidden, turns out, by means of secret trickery through persons fraudulently substituted for him, to be a buyer of any place that a decurion might sell, he shall know that he is to be deprived of the price that he gave and that the place that he purchased is to be restored along with its fruits.

Given November 24, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Honorius, Most Noble Boy, and Euodius (386).

[193] = C.Th. 12.3.1, with some phrases from C.Th. 12.3.2. Combine with C. 10.72.9.
[194] C.Th. 12.3.1 adds "or any slaves."

[2] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Florentio pp. pr. Nec venditio rei hereditariae curiae adquisitae aut debitoris hereditarii qui solverit liberatio aliter admittenda est, nisi apud acta totius vel maioris partis ordinis intercedente decreto ineundi contractus vel dissolvendae obligationis causa probetur. 1. Ita enim id quod ex ea redigitur ad praediorum iubemus comparationem expendi, quorum reditus omnes, sicut dictum est, eiusdem curiae publicis muneribus, quae solacio egere constiterit, iustissime servabuntur: ex consensu omnium et maxime ditiorum, vel idonea fideiussione oblata conductoribus eligendis.

D. v id. Iun. Constantinopoli Felice et Tauro conss.

[3] Imp. Zeno A. Sebastiano pp. pr. Curiales vendere quidem res immobiles vel mancipia rustica prohibemus sine interpositione decreti: donationes vero vel permutationes vel quoslibet alios etiam sine decreto permittimus celebrare contractus, quoniam et sacrae constitutiones, quae super hoc a retro principibus latae sunt, in plurimis suis partibus de pretio non redhibendo locutae sunt, ut ex hoc apertissime detur intellegi solum emptionis decurionibus sine decreto interdictum fuisse contractum. 1. Cum tamen venditione intercedente, ut dictum est, decretum agitur, nihil eos vel qui ab his comparant dispendium, cuiuscumque personae vel causae vel theatralis liberalitatis nomine, quod frequenter fieri dicitur, sustinere decernimus, nec ex tabella decretum recitari, sed curialium vel maioris partis curiae relatione currente sine ulla malignitate referentium vel damno contrahentium ad confirmandam emptionem competentis iudicis proferri sententiam.

[4] [Αὐτοκράτωρ Ἰουστινιανὸς Α.] ...

[5] [Ὁ αὐτὸς βασιλεύς.] ...

[2][195] Emperors THEODOSIUS and VALENTINIAN Augusti to Florentius, Praetorian Prefect. pr. Neither the sale of inherited property that is acquired for the council, nor the liberation of a debtor to the estate who has paid, is to be admitted in any other way except that the case be recorded as approved, through passage of a decree by the whole council or a majority, for entry into the contract or dissolution of the obligation. 1. And so We order that what is realized from this be expended for the purchase of properties (praedia), all the revenues from which, as has been said, will be most justly preserved for the public services of the same council, which clearly requires support. Lessees are to be chosen on the basis of the consensus of all and especially the wealthier, or when a suitable suretyship has been offered.

Given June 9, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Felix and Taurus (428).

[3] Emperor ZENO Augustus to Sebastianus, Praetorian Prefect. pr. We forbid decurions from selling immovable property or rural slaves without introducing a decree. But we permit entering into gifts or exchanges or any other contracts without a decree, since even the sacred constitutions, which have been issued on this matter by the Emperors in the past, have spoken in many places about not returning the price, so that from this it is quite clearly given to understand that decurions have only been forbidden the contract of purchase without a decree. 1. When, however, a decree is being enacted as a sale is proceeding, as has been said, We determine that those persons (sellers) or those who are purchasing from them sustain no expense on account of any person or cause or theatrical generosity, which is said to happen often, and that the decree not be recited from a written tablet, but that the verdict of a competent judge be brought forward to confirm the purchase upon a continuing motion of the decurions or a majority of the council, without any malice on the part of those making the motion or loss for the parties to the contract.

(476–480 or 484?).[196]

[4][197] [Emperor JUSTINIAN Augustus ...]

[5] [The same Augustus ...]

[195] Combine with C. 10.35.1; C.Th. 12.4.1.
[196] Lounghis et al. date to between December, 476, and May, 480.
[197] Two Greek constitutions have apparently fallen out here. Lounghis et al. date the first between 527 and 534, and the second between 528 and 531.

XXXV Quando et Quibus Debetur Quarta Pars ex Bonis Decurionum et de Modo Distributionis Eorum

[1] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Florentio pp. Si decurionum consortio sit alienus qui curiali successit, competentis eidem iuris (sive ex asse sive ex parte heres sit bonorumve possessor) partem quartam iure optimo a curia peti decernimus.

D. v id. Iun. Constantinopoli Felice et Tauro conss.

[2] Idem AA. Apollonio pp. pr. Meminimus nuper emissa lege divali portionem quartam de facultatibus curialium fati munus implentium, ex qualibet novissima voluntate vel ab intestato etiam ad quemcumque praeterquam si ad filios curiales deferantur, curiarum deputasse corporibus. sed multi tamquam corrumpendi totius patrimonii occasione captata uniuscuiusque rei sibi particulam vindicando adeo totas dilacerant facultates, ut, dum participibus relictarum opum nocere cupiant, sua quoque iura praecipitent. 1. Quorum nimiam licentiam provida dispositione frenantes ipsis quidem curialibus occupandi sua auctoritate res mortui copiam denegamus: heres autem, ad quem ab intestato vel ex postrema voluntate directis vel fideicommissariis verbis decurrit hereditas, omne patrimonium quod relictum est in partes quattuor dividi procuret, ut rebus totis in sortitum casumque deductis vel curiae quadrantis vel heredi vel fideicommissario per universitatem dodrantis electio ex sortis felicitate contingat. 1a. Ita scilicet et praefati successores et curia promiscui rerum dominii liberabuntur incommodo. naturale quippe vitium est neglegi, quod communiter possidetur, utque se nihil habere, qui non totum habeat, arbitretur, denique suam quoque partem corrumpi patiatur, dum invidet alienae.

Thirty-Fifth Title When and to Whom the Fourth Part of the Goods of Decurions Is Owed, and the Method of Their Distribution

[1][198] Emperors THEODOSIUS and VALENTINIAN Augusti to Florentius, Praetorian Prefect. If the person who has succeeded a decurion (as heir) is unsuited to sharing the burdens of decurions, We determine that it is appropriate law that the council seek from the same person a fourth part (of the property of the deceased decurion) under the best law (optimo iure; i.e., unencumbered) – whether he should be sole heir or in part, or possessor of the estate (bonorum possessor).[199]

Given June 9, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Felix and Taurus (428).

[2][200] The same Augusti to Apollonius, Praetorian Prefect. pr. We remember that, in the divine law recently promulgated, We have assigned the fourth portion from the resources of decurions passing away to the corporations of the councils (corpora curiarum), when they have gone to anyone, other than the sons of decurions, in accordance with any final wish or even from an intestate person. But many people, as if taking the opportunity for corrupting the whole patrimony, so tear to pieces the resources by claiming a small part of every single thing for themselves that, while they desire to harm those sharing in the wealth left behind, they hurl their own rights to ruin as well. 1. To rein in the excessive license of such people by means of a prescient disposition, We deny decurions themselves the right to seize the property of a dead person on their own authority. The heir, however, to whom the inheritance has passed either from an intestate person or in accordance with a final wish, whether in direct words or as a trust, shall take care that the entire patrimony that has been left be divided into four parts, so that from all the property that has been assigned to a choice by lot or chance, the council gain the choice of a fourth or the heir or trustee to the whole estate gain the choice of three-fourths by the luck of the draw. 1a. In this way, to be sure, both the aforementioned successors and the council will be freed from the inconvenience of a mixed ownership of the property. For it is a natural flaw for what is communally possessed to be neglected, so that the person who does not have something in its entirety thinks that he does not have anything, and finally allows even his own share to be ruined while he is jealous about the other person's.

198 Combine with C. 10.34.2; C.Th. 12.4.1.

199 The bonorum possessor was the person granted succession rights on intestacy in accordance with Praetorian law.

200 = Nov. Theod. 22.2, with somewhat different wording. Combine with C. 10.36.1, both dated one day later. As stated in the principium, this law builds on the previous one.

2. Sed ubi quarta pars bonorum mortui curiae debet offerri, immobiles quidem res, quae nec latere facile possunt nec quicquam si divulgentur officiunt, sub adspectu etiam curialium aestimari dividique concedimus: mobiles autem res vel se moventes vel instrumenta, vel si quid etiam in huiusmodi iure consistat, in medium proferri divulgarique non patimur, sed iuratis successoribus, cum apud se diligenter aestimaverint, quae quantique sint pretii facultates, credi oportere decernimus. quid enim tam durum tamque inhumanum est, quam publicatione pompaque rerum familiarium et paupertatis detegi vilitatem et invidiae patere divitias?

3. In exigendis vero debitis, si pretium, quod pro quarta parte actionum curiae competit, successores praestare noluerint, cautionibus iurata fide prolatis in medium unusquisque a debitoribus convenientem sibi exigat portionem: eque diverso aes alienum, si cui defunctus fuerat obligatus, tam idem successores quam curia pro sua sorte restituere compellentur.

4. Quod si saepe dicti successores sacramentum sibi crediderint excusandum, tum vero ad similitudinem rerum immobilium diligentior curialibus omnium rerum indago praebebitur, scilicet ut universis mortui facultatibus in aperto propositis vel aestimatio rerum vel divisio sub praesentia curialium celebretur. 5. In omnibus autem casibus, ubi quarta pars curiae competit, transactiones interpositas firmas illibatasque manere decernimus.

6. Ad filiorum vero curialium vel nepotum ac pronepotum, scilicet decurionum, similitudinem, ad quos integras opes pervenire censuimus, filiam quin etiam neptem proneptemve principali eiusdem civitatis, unde pater avus vel proavus oritur, nuptam rerum vel ab intestato vel ex dispositione ultimae voluntatis quaesitarum integrum nullaque parte minutum dominium habere sancimus. 7. Quod si post parentum obitum inveniantur innuptae vel viduae, in impuberibus quidem post transactam pubertatem, in aliis vero, quae pubertatem excesserint, vel etiam in viduis post mortem parentis triennium dumtaxat volumus expectari, ut interim quarta portio suspensa aut apud eam, si in matrimonio curialis eiusdem civitatis fuerit collocata, perpetuo iure permaneat vel, si intra id temporis alienum eadem curia sortiatur maritum

2. But when the fourth part of the property of the deceased ought to be offered to the council, We grant that the immovable properties, which cannot easily be hidden and do not cause any harm when they are divulged, be appraised and divided in the view of the decurions as well. But We do not permit that movable property, whether self-moving (animals or slaves) or documents (instrumenta), or if something in addition consists in such a right, be brought out into the open (in medium, in public) and divulged, but We determine that the successors, under oath, must be believed when they have diligently estimated by themselves what the property is and what price it is worth. For what is so harsh and inhuman as when, amid public disclosure and display of financial affairs, the meanness of one's poverty be unveiled and wealth be subject to jealousy?

3. But in exacting debts, if the successors are unwilling to offer the price that is available to the council for the fourth part of rights of actions (i.e., against the debtors), each person, after making public promises under the faith of an oath, should exact the portion due him from the debtors. On the other hand, both the same successors and the council in accordance with its share will be compelled to restore any debt for which the deceased had been obligated.

4. But if the often mentioned successors believe that they should be excused from swearing an oath, then indeed a more exacting investigation of all the property will be provided for the decurions in much the same way as with the immovable property, that is to say, with all of the resources of the deceased placed out in the open, an appraisal or division of the property shall be carried out in the presence of the decurions. 5. In all cases, however, when a fourth part is due to the council, We determine that the settlements that have been reached remain firm and undiminished.

6. In much the same way as with the sons of councilors, or their grandsons or great-grandsons, that is to say, decurions (themselves), whom We have decreed their riches in their entirety should reach, We ordain that the daughter or even the granddaughter or great-granddaughter married to a chief civic magistrate of the same city from which her father, grandfather, or great-grandfather comes, have ownership that is full and in no part diminished over the property acquired either from an intestate person or in accordance with the disposition of a final wish. 7. But if after the death of the parents they should be found to be unmarried or widowed, (then) in the case of underage women after puberty has been reached, but for others who have passed puberty, or widows after the death of their parents, We want a three-year period to be observed, so that, in the interim, the fourth portion remain suspended under perpetual right either with that woman, if she has been placed in matrimony to a decurion of the same city, or, if within that time she should penitusve nupta non fuerit, memorata pars totius substantiae curiae cum triennii tam urbanorum quam rusticorum praediorum dumtaxat fructibus addicatur: ita tamen, ut sacramenti tam de quantitate quam de aestimatione rerum mobilium deque actionibus inferendis excipiendisve, sicut in extraneis personis dictum est, ratio conservetur. 8. Sed et si mater mortui vel avia tempore, quo filius neposve moritur, in coniugio eiusdem civitatis curialis inventa fuerit, ne ipsas quidem patimur quartae portionis subire iacturam. 9. Extraneum quin etiam heredem propinquitatis quidem iure discretum, curiae tamen eiusdem civitatis obnoxium supra dictae portionis dispendio liberamus.

D. VIII id. Mart. Constantinopoli post consulatum Dioscori et Eudoxii vv. cc.

[3] Imp. Iustinianus A. Menae pp. pr. Si quis curialibus muniis obnoxius, uno forte vel pluribus filiis vel filiabus derelictis, filio quidem vel filiis suae substantiae partem minimam dereliquerit, eam tamen, quae excludere eos de inofficiosi querella potest, aliis autem suam substantiam dereliquit, ut ex hac patrimonii distributione ad filium quidem vel filios curiales minima pars substantiae remaneat, totum autem curiale munus masculis immineat, sive filii sive nepotes sint vel pronepotes, curiali tamen condicioni obnoxii: sancimus huiusmodi iniquitatem resecari et non minus quarta portione in masculos posse testatorem transmittere, sive unus est filius sive plures, nulla deminutione ex permixtione sororum eis facienda, ut non solum corporibus, sed etiam substantiis laborantes possint curiales habere consortium.

1. Ad hoc sancimus, si quis curialis filiabus pluribus derelictis ab hac luce fuerit subtractus, quarum una curiali eiusdem nupserit civitatis, aliis filiabus, quae ad huiusmodi vota non migraverint, vel extraneis in reliquam partem heredibus derelictis, non videri curiae ex sententia legis Theodosianae[1] ad Apollonium scriptae satisfieri: sed omnino quartam partem patrimonii curia consequatur, sive uni filiae, quae curialibus nuptiis copulata sit, deputanda sive ex aliis heredibus colligenda, filia procul dubio quae curiali nupsit immuni ab huiusmodi quartae datione servanda, cum per maritum eius quantum ad ipsius personam curiae sit gain a husband not a member of the same council or has not at all been married, the aforementioned fourth part of the entire property shall be assigned to the council together with the fruits for a three-year period of both urban and rustic properties. (But this is to occur) in such a way that the procedure be maintained of swearing an oath both about the amount and the appraisal of the movable property and about bringing and defending against lawsuits, just as has been said in connection with non-related successors (extranei). 8. But if the mother of the deceased or his grandmother is found to be in a marriage to a decurion of the same city at the time when her son or grandson dies, We do not allow these very women to undergo the loss of the fourth part. 9. Indeed, We free an external heir, separated (from the deceased) in the law of relationships, but liable to the council of the same city, from the payment of the portion mentioned above.

Given March 8, at Constantinople, in the post-consulate of the viri clarissimi Dioscorus and Eudoxius (443).

[3][201] Emperor JUSTINIAN Augustus to Menas, Praetorian Prefect. pr. If anyone liable to services to the council, leaving behind perhaps one or several sons or daughters, has left a very small portion of his property to his son or children, but an amount that can exclude them from the complaint of an undutiful will, (and) leaves to others his property in such a way that from this distribution of the patrimony a very small part remains for the son or sons who are decurions, but the entire service to the council looms over the males, whether they are sons, grandsons, or great-grandsons, but liable to the status of decurion, We ordain that such an inequity be cut off and that the testator not be able to transmit less than a fourth portion to the males, whether there is one son or several, and no diminution is to be caused for them by mixing in sisters, so that as decurions laboring not only with their bodies but also their property they can share in the burdens (consortium, i.e., with the council).

1. In addition to this, We ordain, if some decurion is withdrawn from this life leaving behind several daughters, one of whom marries a decurion of the same city, with other daughters who have not entered such marriages (ad huiusmodi vota non migraverint), or external persons as heirs for the remaining part, this does not seem to satisfy the council in accordance with the opinion of the law of Theodosius written to Apollonius.[202] But the council should by all means gain the fourth part, whether it is to be assigned to the one daughter who has been joined in a marriage to a decurion, or whether it is to be collected from the other heirs, with the daughter who married a decurion to be kept beyond doubt immune from such a provision of the fourth part, since the satisfactum: et hoc observari non solum si ultimo elogio condito testator curialis decesserit, sed etiam si intestato diem suum obierit.

[201] Combine with C. 5.27.8–9, and possibly 10.44.4.
[202] Above, 2 in this Title.

2. Sed si quid minus fuerit vel minime derelictum, hoc modis omnibus filio curiali vel filiae, quae nupta est eiusdem civitatis decurioni, ex substantia patris curialis vel deputari vel adimpleri: nullo obstaculo curiae opponendo, si secundum praedictam legem filius nepos pronepos pater avus proavus curiali morienti fuerint derelicti, qui nexibus curialibus ex quacumque vel dignitate vel occasione fuerint absoluti: in hoc etenim Theodosianae legi apertissime volumus esse derogatum. 3. Et generaliter definimus ex omni causa neque masculos liberos neque filias copulatas matrimonio curialis minus quarta parentis substantiae habere, vel non extantibus filiis vel filiabus, sed aliis heredibus ipsam curiam secundum anteriores leges quartae curialis morientis habere solacium.

D. k. Iun. Constantinopoli Iustiniano A. II cons.

[4] [Ὁ αὐτὸς βασιλεύς.] ...

[5] [Ὁ αὐτὸς βασιλεύς.] ...

XXXVI De Imponenda Lucrativis Descriptione

[1] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Apollonio pp. pr. Descriptionis onere siliquarum quattuor, quas ex lucrativis iugationibus tantum, non humanis vel animalium censibus neque mobilibus rebus iubemus indici, etsi curiales non sint, maiores ac posteros liberamus, ut, si pater avus vel proavus filio nepoti pronepotive, vel filiae nepti proneptive (nec interest, nuptae sint curialibus nec ne) postrema voluntate vel inter vivos etiam donatione quicquam de suis opibus largiatur, memoratae descriptionis cesset indictio: eque diverso ut, si posteriores ad maiores praedicta sibi consanguinitate devinctos council is satisfied through her husband for what pertains to her person. And this is to be observed not only if the decurion dies as a testator with a final will, but also if he meets his last day intestate.

2. But if anything less is left or nothing at all, this by all means is to be either assigned to or supplemented for the decurion son or the daughter who is married to a decurion of the same city from the property of the decurion father. No obstacle is to be placed in the way of the council if, in accordance with the aforementioned law, a son, grandson, great-grandson, father, grandfather, or great-grandfather have been left behind (as heir) by a dying decurion, and they have been released from the bonds to the council as a result of either any rank or opportunity; in this situation We want most openly for the Theodosian law to have been modified. 3. And We define generally in every case that neither male children nor daughters joined in a marriage to a decurion are to have less than a fourth of the property of a parent, or if there are no sons or daughters, but other heirs, the council itself shall have the solace of a fourth (of the property) of the dying decurion in accordance with previous laws.

Given June 1, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Justinian Augustus, for the second time (528).

[4][203] [The same Augustus …]
(528–531).

[5] [The same Augustus …]

Thirty-Sixth Title Imposing a Tax Assessment on Gainful Acquisitions[204]

[1][205] Emperors Theodosius and Valentinian Augusti to Apollonius, Praetorian Prefect. pr. We free ascendants and descendants, even if they should not be decurions, from the burden of the assessment of four siliquae, which We order to be imposed only on gainful taxable property in land (lucrativae iugationes), and not on the census for persons or animals or 203 Two constitutions have fallen out.

204 Res lucrativae were sources of wealth, such as legacies and trusts, that a person received without having to pay for them, in contrast to wages or rents. As Blume (who translates res lucrativae as "gifts") mentions, Theodosius I imposed an annual tax on property belonging to decurions that passed into the ownership of non-decurions: C.Th. 12.1.107 (384), 12.1.123.2 (391). In 428, Theodosius II (C.Th. 12.4.1) set the tax as four siliquae (one-sixth of a solidus) for each taxing unit (iuga and capita) of such property.

205 = Nov. Theod. 22.2. Combine with C. 5.27.8–9, 10.3.5.2.

praefatis titulis suas conferant facultates, nullius accessione gravaminis huiusmodi liberalitas oneretur: ita enim necessariis sibi coniunctisque personis sub liberalitatis appellatione debitum naturale persolvitur. 1. Cuius auctoritatem iuris pariter valere sancimus, et si ab intestato succedant praefiniti sibi generis ordine sociati: ex his enim successionibus maxime debiti potius solutio quam muneris oblatio comprobatur, quae non largientibus etiam dominis ipsa propinquitatis serie deferuntur. 2. Ceteri vero, licet quadam inter se cognatione iungantur, numquam tamen curiale praedium sine praedicto onere lucrabuntur, nisi is forte, cui lucro res cesserit, eiusdem civitatis ordini sit obstrictus, qui, licet inter extraneos numeretur, vacuum tamen ea functione quod datum est consequatur: nam cum personae condicio non mutetur, nec rei quidem statum convenit immutari.

3. Lucrativas vero res eas tantum volumus appellari atque praedictae descriptionis gravamen excipere, quae hereditatis legati fideicommissi iure mortis causa donatione vel cuiuslibet postremae voluntatis arbitrio ad quempiam delabuntur. 4. Inter vivos etiam donatio simplici liberalitate confecta lucrativae merebitur et nomen et sarcinam. si vero vel socer futurus filii nepotis vel pronepotis sponsae adfinitatis coeundae causa donaverit, vel parens etiam filiam neptem vel proneptem curiali seu extraneo nubentem dotaverit, licet casus eventu res eius cui data est vertatur ad lucrum, nec inter lucrativas numerabitur nec descriptionis oneri subiacebit. nec enim iuris optimi est matrimonium, cum tot tantisque suis difficultatibus opprimatur, adventiciis etiam cumulare ponderibus.

5. Res vero, quae memoratis causis lucrativae semel nomen exordiumque sortita est, licet ab eo qui susceperit ad alterum emptionis vel cuiuscumque contractus iure migraverit, cum praedicto descriptionis gravamine procul dubio transferetur, ut vel sciens sibi imputet, on movable property, so that, if a father, grandfather, or great-grandfather should bestow anything from his riches on a son, grandson, or great-grandson, or on a daughter, granddaughter, or great-granddaughter – it does not make any difference whether or not they are married to decurions – by a final wish or as a gift between living persons, the imposition of the aforementioned assessment will be voided. On the other hand, if descendants should confer their property (facultates) on ascendants linked to them by the relationships named above under the aforementioned categories, such generosity will not be burdened by the addition of any charge; for thus is a natural debt discharged to persons who are related (necessarii) and conjoined to one another under the title of generosity. 1. We ordain that the authority of this law have equal validity even if the people defined above, associated in order of birth, should succeed an intestate person; from these successions the payment of a debt is acknowledged much more than the offering of a gift, since they are provided by the very chain of relationships even when the owners themselves do not bestow them. 2. But the remaining people, although they might be joined among themselves by some kinship, will nevertheless never acquire an estate (praedium) belonging to a decurion without the aforementioned burden, unless perhaps the person to whose profit the property has passed should be bound to the council of the same city, and who, although he might be counted among the external heirs, shall nonetheless gain what has been given free from that obligation (functio). For since the condition of the person is not changed, it is proper that the status of the property also not change.

3. We want only those things to be called gainful acquisitions (res lucrativae), and to be liable to the charge of the aforementioned assessment, that pass to someone by right of inheritance, legacy, or trust, or by a gift in contemplation of death or by the decision of any final wish. 4. A gift made between living persons out of simple generosity will also gain both the title and charge of a gainful acquisition. But if a future father-in-law gives a gift to the fiancée of his son, grandson, or great-grandson to form their relationship, or a parent (parens) has provided a dowry for a daughter, granddaughter, or great-granddaughter marrying a decurion or an external person (extraneus, i.e., not a decurion), although by chance the property should turn out to be gainful for the person to whom it was given, it will not be counted among gainful acquisitions and will not be subject to the burden of the tax assessment. For it is not appropriate to the best law also to pile burdens from third parties (adventiciis ponderibus) on marriage, since it is oppressed by its many and great difficulties.

5. But property that for the stated reasons has once been allotted the designation and original status (exordium) of a gainful acquisition, although it has passed from the person who took it up to another by right of sale or any contract, qui accepit oneratam, vel, si ignoraverit, quod interest consequatur: contraque si cuiuslibet contractus exordio lucrativae nomen evaserit, etsi postea lucri titulo in dominatum alicuius ceciderit, sarcinam memoratae descriptionis effugiet. 6. Nulla enim in huiuscemodi causis confusionis intercedit occasio, si ad primordium tituli posterior quoque formetur eventus, nisi forte res decurionis, quae ad eum cuiuslibet mercimonii iure pervenerit, ad alterum fuerit postrema eius voluntate vel ab intestato vel inter vivos donatione translata: tunc enim, quia semel in personam cecidit principalis, veterum titulorum nequaquam ratione perspecta condicionem et onus merebitur lucrativae.

D. VII id. Mart. Constantinopoli post consulatum Dioscori et Eudoxii vv. cc.

XXXVII De Praebendo Salario

[1] Imp. Constantinus A. ad Marcellinum comitem Orientis. Nulli salarium tribuatur ex viribus rei publicae nisi ei, qui iubentibus nobis specialiter fuerit consecutus.

D. V non. Oct. Constantinopoli Limenio et Catullino conss.

XXXVIII Si Curialis Relicta Civitate Rus Habitare Maluerit

[1] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Eutychiano pp. Curiales omnes iubemus interminatione moneri, ne civitates fugiant aut deserant rus habitandi causa, fundum, quem civitati praetulerint, scientes fisco esse sociandum eoque rure esse carituros, cuius causa impios se patriam vitando demonstraverint.

D. XVIII k. Ian. Constantinopoli Arcadio IIII et Honorio III AA. conss.

will without doubt be transferred with the aforesaid burden of the tax assessment, so that if the person who received it did so knowingly he will count it to his cost, or, if he did not know, he will gain his interest (sc., in not having the charge on the land). On the other hand, if from the original status under any contract the name of gainful acquisition is omitted, even if later it passes to the ownership of someone under the title of gainful acquisition (lucri titulo), it will escape the burden of the aforementioned tax assessment. 6. For in such cases no opportunity arises for confusion (about its origins), if a later outcome should be fashioned in accordance with the terms of the title, unless perhaps the property of a decurion, which has come to him by right of any commerce, is transferred to another by his final wish or on intestacy or as a gift between the living; for in that circumstance, since once it has passed into the person of a decurion (principalis, in the sense of chief magistrate), without examining at all the reasons for its previous titles, it will gain the condition and burden of a gainful acquisition.

Given March 9, at Constantinople, in the post-consulate of the viri clarissimi Dioscorus and Eudoxius (442).[206]

Thirty-Seventh Title Offering an Honorarium (Salarium)

[1][207] Emperor CONSTANTINE Augustus to Marcellinus, Count of the East. No one shall be offered an honorarium from the resources of a municipality except a person who has gained it by Our specific order.

Given October 3, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Limenius and Catullinus (349).

Thirty-Eighth Title If a Decurion Leaves the City and Prefers to Dwell in the Country

[1][208] Emperors ARCADIUS and HONORIUS Augusti to Eutychianus, Praetorian Prefect. We order all decurions to be duly warned not to flee or desert their cities in order to live in the country, knowing that the farm, which they prefer over the city, is to be joined to the Treasury (i.e., confiscated) and that they will do without that country estate for the sake of which they have demonstrated themselves to be disloyal by avoiding their hometown.

Given December 15, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Arcadius, for the fourth time, and Honorius, for the third time, Augusti (396).

[206] Seeck dates this constitution to March 9, 443.
[207] = C.Th. 12.2.1. Combine with C. 8.11.2. The emperors should be Constantius and Constans Augusti, as in C. 8.11.2.
[208] = C.Th. 12.18.2.

XXXVIIII De Municipibus et Originariis

[1] Imp. Antoninus A. Silvano. Cum te Byblium origine, incolam autem apud Berytios esse proponis, merito apud utrasque civitates muneribus fungi compelleris.

[2] Imp. Gordianus A. Frontoni. Si, ut proponis, ea, quae ex causa fideicommissi te manumisit, ab ea libertatem iustam fuerit consecuta, quae originem ex provincia Aquitania ducebat, tu quoque eius condicionis eiusque civitatis ius obtines, unde quae te manumisit fuit. eorum enim condicionem sequi ex causa fideicommissi manumissos pridem placuit, qui libertatem praestiterunt, non qui rogaverunt.

[3] Imp. Philippus A. Patroclo. Filios apud originem patris, non in materna civitate, etsi ibi nati sunt, si modo non domiciliis retineantur, ad honores seu munera posse compelli explorati iuris est.

[4] Impp. Diocletianus et Maximianus AA. Secundo. Origine propria neminem posse voluntate sua eximi manifestum est.

[5] Imp. Constantinus A. ad Maximum vicarium Orientis. Si quis vel ex maiore vel ex minore civitate originem ducit, si eandem evitare studens ad alienam se civitatem incolatus occasione contulerit et super hoc vel preces dare temptaverit vel qualibet fraude niti, ut originem propriae civitatis eludat, duarum civitatum decurionatus onera sustineat, in una voluntatis, in una originis gratia.

PP. VIII k. Ian. Paulino et Iuliano conss.

XXXX De Incolis et Ubi Quis Domicilium Habere Videtur et de His Qui Studiorum Causa in Alia Civitate Degunt

[1] Imp. Antoninus A. Paulino. Non tibi obest, si, cum incola esses, aliquod munus suscepisti, modo si ante, quam ad alios honores vocareris, domicilium transtulisti.

Thirty-Ninth Title Townsmen and Natives (Originarii)[209]

[1] Emperor ANTONINUS Augustus to Silvanus. Since you state that you are from Byblos by birth, but are a resident (incola) in Beirut, you will rightly be compelled to perform services in both cities.

[2] Emperor GORDIAN Augustus to Fronto. If, as you state, the woman who manumitted you in accordance with a trust gained lawful liberty from a woman who derived her origin from the province of Aquitania, you also obtain the right both of that condition and of that city from which the one who manumitted you came. It has long been decided that those manumitted in accordance with a trust follow the conditions of those who provided liberty, not of those who asked for this (through a fideicommissum).

[3] Emperor PHILIP Augustus to Patroclus. It is established law that sons can be compelled to offices or services in the place of origin (origo) of their father, not in the mother's city even if they were born there, as long as they are not retained (there) by (having) domiciles.

[4] Emperors DIOCLETIAN and MAXIMIAN Augusti to Secundus. It is manifest that no one can be excluded by his own wish from his own place of origin.

[5][210] Emperor CONSTANTINE Augustus to Maximus, Vicar of the East. If anyone derives his origin from either a larger or smaller city, if, while eager to avoid it, he transfers to a different city, taking advantage of residency, and, in addition to this, either attempts to present a petition or to strive by any fraud to elude his origin in his own town, he shall sustain the burdens of being a decurion in two cities, in one because of his wish and in the other because of his origin.

Given December 25, in the consulship of Paulinus and Julian (325).

Fortieth Title Residents and Where Someone Appears to Have His Domicile, and Those Who Live in Another City for the Sake of Studies[211]

[1] Emperor ANTONINUS Augustus to Paulinus. There is no prejudice to you, if, when you were a resident (i.e., living in a town not as a citizen; incola), you undertook some service, as long as you transferred your domicile (domicilium) before being called to other offices.

[209] See D. 50.1.
[210] = C.Th. 12.1.12.
[211] See D. 50.1.

[2] Imp. Alexander A. Crispo. pr. Nec ipsi, qui studiorum causa aliquo loci morantur, domicilium ibi habere creduntur, nisi decem annis transactis eo loci sedes sibi constituerunt, secundum epistulam divi Hadriani, nec pater, qui propter filium studentem frequentius ad eum commeat. 1. Sed si aliis rationibus domicilium in splendidissima civitate Laodicenorum habere probatus fueris, mendacium, quo minus muneribus fungaris, non proderit.

[3] Impp. Diocletianus et Maximianus AA. Alexandro. Est verum eos, qui in territorio alicuius civitatis commorantur, velut incolas ad subeunda munera vel capiendos honores non adstringi.

[4] Idem AA. Alexandro. Cum neque originales neque incolas vos esse memoratis, ob solam domus sive possessionis, licet ex substantia decurionis adquisita sit, causam publici iuris auctoritas muneribus subiugari vos non sinet.

[5] Idem AA. Maximo. Si in patria uxoris tuae vel in qualibet alia domicilium defixisti, incolatus iure ultro te eiusdem civitatis muneribus obligasti.

[6] Idem AA. et CC. Marcello. Privilegio speciali civitatis non interveniente tantum originis ratione ac domicilii voluntate ad munera civilia quemque vocari certissimum est.

[7] Idem AA. et CC. Aurelio. pr. Cives quidem origo manumissio adlectio adoptio, incolas vero, sicut et divus Hadrianus edicto suo manifestissime declaravit, domicilium facit. 1. Et in eodem loco singulos habere domicilium non ambigitur, ubi quis larem rerumque ac fortunarum suarum summam constituit, unde rursus non sit discessurus, si nihil avocet, unde cum profectus est, peregrinari videtur, quo si rediit, peregrinari iam destitit.

[8] Imppp. Valentinianus Theodosius et Arcadius AAA. ... praefecto Augustali. Senatores in sacratissima urbe domicilium dignitatis habere videntur.

[2] Emperor ALEXANDER Augustus to Crispus. pr. Those very people who stay in some place for the sake of studies (studiorum causa) are not believed to have a domicile there unless they have established an abode for themselves in that place for a period of ten years, in accordance with a letter of the deified Hadrian; nor does a father who rather frequently travels there because of a son who is studying. 1. But if for other reasons you are proved to have a domicile in the most splendid city of Laodicea, a lie to keep you from performing services will be of no avail.

[3] Emperors DIOCLETIAN and MAXIMIAN Augusti to Alexander. It is true that those persons who sojourn in the territory of some city are not bound to undergo services or take offices like residents.

[4] The same Augusti to Alexander. Since you mention that you (pl.) are neither natives (originales) nor residents, the authority of public law will not allow you to be subject to services for the sole reason that you possess a house, even if it has been acquired from the property of a decurion.

[5] The same Augusti to Maximus. If you have established a domicile in your wife's home town or in any other city, under the law of residency you have of your own doing obligated yourself to services for the same city.

[6] The same Augusti and the Caesars to Marcellus. It is quite certain that each person is called to public services just on the basis of origin and wish for domicile, without a special privilege of the city intervening.

[7][212] The same Augusti and Caesars to Aurelius. pr. Origin, manumission, adlection,[213] and adoption make citizens, whereas, just as the deified Hadrian declared most clearly in his edict, domicile (only) makes residents. 1. And there is no doubt that individual people have a domicile in the same place where someone has established a household (lar) and the bulk (summa) of his property and fortune, from which place he would not again depart if nothing should call him away, from which place when he has set out he is seen to be abroad, and to which place if he returns, he has now ceased to be abroad.

[8] Emperors VALENTINIAN, THEODOSIUS, and ARCADIUS Augusti to …, Augustal Prefect.[214] Senators are deemed to have the domicile of their rank in the most sacred city (of Constantinople).

212 Possibly combine with C. 7.62.11.
213 Adlection here refers to the admission of new citizens into a town.
214 C.Th. 13.5.18, a different law dated February 18, 390, is addressed to Alexander, Augustal Prefect (of Egypt).

D. k. Mart. Valentiniano A. et Neoterio conss.

[9] Idem AAA. Martiniano comiti Orientis. pr. Mulieres honore maritorum erigimus et genere nobilitamus et forum ex eorum persona statuimus et domicilia mutamus. 1. Sin autem minoris ordinis virum postea sortitae fuerint, priore dignitate privatae posterioris mariti sequantur condicionem.

D. IIII id. Nov. Constantinopoli Arcadio A. II et Rufino conss.

XXXXI De Honoribus et Muneribus Non Continuandis inter Patrem et Filium et de Intervallis

[1] Impp. Severus et Antoninus AA. Septimio Zenoni. pr. Sicut honores et munera, cum pater et filius decuriones sunt, in eadem domo continuari non oportet, ita vacationum concessa tempora non aliis prodesse possunt, quam qui ad eosdem vel alios honores eademque vel alia munera denuo vocantur. 1. Pro infante vero filio, quem decurionem esse voluisti, quamquam fidem tuam in posterum adstrinxeris, tamen onera sustinere non cogeris, cum ad ea quae mandari possunt voluntatem dedisse videaris.

[2] Imp. Gordianus A. Cyrillo. Ab honoribus ad eosdem honores quinquennii datur vacatio, triennii vero ad alios. legatione autem perfunctis biennii vacatio concessa est.

[3] Impp. Diocletianus et Maximianus AA. et CC. Niciae. pr. Intervalla temporum, quae in unius persona locum habent, fratribus, licet communia possideant bona, minime prodesse frequenter constitutum est. 1. Sane his missis, qui necdum functi muneribus ad haec idonei constituti vocari debent, vos, si ad obsequium civilium munerum reppererit paruisse, ne iterum interpellemini, praeses provinciae providebit.

Given March 1, in the consulship of Valentinian Augustus and Neoterius (390).

[9][215] The same Augusti to Martinianus, Count of the East. pr. We elevate women through the honor of their husbands; through the family (of their husbands) We ennoble them; on the basis of the legal status (persona) of their husbands We determine their (proper) legal forum and change their domicile. 1. If, however, they later acquire a husband of a lesser station, they shall be deprived of their previous rank and follow the rank of their later husband.

Given November 10, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Arcadius Augustus, for the second time, and Rufinus (392).

Forty-First Title Offices and Services Not to be Continued between Father and Son, and Intervals (between Such Duties)

[1][216] Emperors Severus and Antoninus Augusti to Septimius Zeno. pr. Just as offices and services, when a father and son are (both) decurions, do not have to be continued in the same household, so periods of time granted for leaves cannot benefit others besides those who are called anew to the same or other offices and the same or other services. 1. Nevertheless you are not compelled to sustain the burdens for an infant son whom you have wanted to be a decurion, although you have bound your faith for the future, since you are deemed to have given your willingness for those things that can be commanded.

[2] Emperor Gordian Augustus to Cyrillus. A leave of five years is given for repeating the same offices, and of three years for taking up others. However, for those who have performed an embassy a leave of two years has been granted.[217]

[3] Emperors Diocletian and Maximian Augusti and the Caesars to Nicias. pr. It has been decided frequently in imperial constitutions that the intervals of time that apply to one person do not benefit brothers, although they possess property in common. 1. Certainly, if he has excused those persons who ought to be called when they have not yet performed services but are deemed suitable for these, the provincial governor, if he finds that you have complied obediently in (performing) public services, will see to it that you not be importuned again.

[215] = C.Th. 2.1.7; combine with C.Th. 3.15.1.
[216] Par. 1 = D. 50.1.21.6, which includes Septimius in the name of the addressee.
[217] Diocletian and Maximian, C. 10.65.3, establish that the leave of two years was for overseas embassies, as Blume points out.

XXXXII De Muneribus Patrimoniorum

[1] Imp. Antoninus A. Philocyrio. Civilia munera per ordinem pro modo fortunarum sustinenda sunt.

[2] Idem A. Materno. Munera, quae patrimoniis publicae utilitatis gratia indicuntur, ab omnibus subeunda sunt.

[3] Imp. Alexander A. Atilio. Qui immunitatem munerum publicorum consecuti sunt, onera patrimoniorum sustinere debent. in quibus causis et hospites recipiendi sunt.

[4] Impp. Valerianus et Gallienus AA. Neroni. Non videtur abhorrere ratione sententia, qua praeses provinciae equos curiales alere non personarum, sed patrimonii esse decrevit. et tamen si iniqua esset, omisso a te appellationis auxilio necessario permanet.

[5] Imppp. Carus Carinus et Numerianus AAA. Antepisto. Neque tempore aetatis neque numero liberorum a muneribus quae patrimoniorum sunt excusationem quis habere potest.

[6] Impp. Diocletianus et Maximianus AA. Polymnesto. Professio et desiderium tuum inter se discrepant. nam cum philosophum te esse proponas, vinceris avaritiae caecitate et onera quae patrimonio tuo iniunguntur solus recusare conaris. quod frustra te facere ceterorum exemplo poteris edoceri.

[7] Idem AA. Alexandro. Etiam minores aetate patrimoniorum muneribus subiugari solent. unde intellegis te frustra plenam immunitatem desiderare, cum munera quae impensas exigunt subire te necesse sit.

[8] Idem AA. et CC. Longino. Nec protostasiae vel sacerdotii vel decaprotiae munera corporalia sunt, sed tantum patrimonii esse non ambigitur.

[9] Idem AA. et CC. Marciae. Patrimoniorum munera mulieres etiam sustinere debent.

Forty-Second Title Services Associated with Personal Fortunes (Patrimonia)

[1] Emperor Antoninus Augustus to Philocyrius. Public services are to be sustained by the council (ordo) in proportion to their (the decurions') fortunes.

[2] The same Augustus to Maternus. Everyone most undergo services that are imposed on patrimonies for the sake of public utility.

[3] Emperor Alexander Augustus to Atilius. Those who have gained immunity from public services should sustain the burdens imposed on their patrimonies. The quartering of soldiers (hospites) is to be included in these categories.

[4] Emperors Valerian and Gallienus to Nero. The verdict by which the provincial governor decreed that feeding chariot horses (curules) is a service not of persons, but of patrimonies does not seem alien to reason. However, even if it were unfair, it remains yours since the necessary recourse of (lodging) an appeal has been omitted by you.

[5] Emperors Carus, Carinus, and Numerian Augusti to Antepistus. No one can have a dispensation from services that are based on patrimonies because of their time of life or the number of children.

[6] Emperors Diocletian and Maximian Augusti to Polymnestus. Your census declaration (professio) and your desire contradict one another. For although you state that you are a philosopher, you are conquered by the blindness of avarice, and you alone try to refuse the burdens that are enjoined upon your patrimony. That you are wasting your time doing this you will be able to be taught by the example of others.

[7] The same Augusti to Alexander. Even minors are customarily subject to services based on patrimonies. Thus you understand that you desire complete immunity in vain, since it is necessary for you to undergo services that require expenditures.

[8] The same Augusti and the Caesars to Longinus. There is no doubt that the services of the chief tax collector,[218] or of a priesthood, or of the chief civic magistrates (decaprotia = principales) are not physical ones (corporalia) but only involve the patrimony.

[9] The same Augusti and Caesars to Marcia. Women too ought to sustain the services that involve patrimonies.

[218] Protostasia, also in C. 10.62.3.

[10] Exemplum sacrarum litterarum eorundem AA. et CC. ad praefectos. Quantum ad extraordinarias indictiones pertinet, praesidibus significamus, ut omnes possessores ceterosque sciant conveniri debere, quandoquidem ea patrimonii munera esse constet meritoque ab omnibus agnosci debeant, quo facilius obsequiis publicis pareatur.

XXXXIII Quemadmodum Civilia Munera Indicuntur

[1] Imppp. Carus Carinus et Numerianus AAA. Feliciano. Cum te curatorem ad cogendas angarias creatum appellationem interposuisse proponas, praeses provinciae, si alterius curiae te esse animadverterit, ad alieni corporis munera vocari non sinet, quia eius partis oneribus respondere debes, cui te attributum esse commemoras.

[2] Impp. Diocletianus et Maximianus AA. Dionysio. Maioribus honoribus functos ad minores devocari non oportere rationis est.

[3] Idem AA. Eutychiano. Cum te omnibus muneribus functum esse adseveras, ad eadem munera, si aliorum civium copia est, qui obsequiis civilibus fungi possunt, praeses provinciae devocari te non permittet.

[4] Idem AA. et CC. Regino. Ultra modum sumptuum te muneribus civilibus gravari levatis aliis praeses provinciae non patietur, sed aequalitatem tam iuris quam censurae memor circa ordinem custodiet.

XXXXIIII De His Qui Sponte Munera Susceperunt

[1] Imp. Alexander A. Feliciano. Veterani, qui, cum possent se tueri immunitate his concessa, decuriones se fieri in patria sua maluerunt, redire ad excusationem quam reliquerunt non possunt, nisi certa lege et pacto servandae immunitatis vel partem eius oneris agnoverunt.

[10] Copy of a Sacred Letter of the same Augusti and Caesars to the Prefects. As far as extraordinary tax assessments are concerned, We indicate to the governors that they should know that all landowners and others shall be pressed (conveniri) when it is clear that the services involve patrimonies and that they should be acknowledged by everyone, so that public duties (obsequia) more easily be complied with.

Forty-Third Title How Public Services Are Assigned

[1] Emperors CARUS, CARINUS, and NUMERIAN Augusti to Felicianus. Since you state that you have submitted an appeal about your election to enforce requisition of draft animals (angariae), the provincial governor, if he ascertains that you belong to a different council, will not allow you to be called to the services of an order (corpus) that is not your own, because you ought to respond to the burdens of that party to which you say you have been assigned.

[2] Emperors DIOCLETIAN and MAXIMIAN Augusti to Dionysius. It is reasonable that those who have performed greater offices must not be summoned to lesser ones.

[3] The same Augusti to Eutychianus. Since you assert that you have performed all of the services, the provincial governor will not permit you to be summoned to the same ones if there is a supply of other citizens who can perform civic duties.

[4][219] The same Augusti and the Caesars to Reginus. For public services the provincial governor will not allow you to be burdened beyond the measure of the costs (involved) when the share for others is lightened, but, mindful of both the law and censure, he will protect equality in regards to the council.

Forty-Fourth Title Those Who Have Taken Up Services of Their Own Accord

[1] Emperor ALEXANDER Augustus to Felicianus. Veterans who, when they could protect themselves through the immunity conceded to them, have preferred to become decurions in their hometown, cannot return to the dispensation that they have relinquished, unless by a specific agreement and [219] Possibly combine with C. 10.51.4, which has the same addressee. Lounghis et al. date this constitution to between June 1, 528, and April 7, 529.

[2] Impp. Diocletianus et Maximianus AA. Valerio. Qui publici muneris vacationem habet, si aliquem honorem excepto decurionatu sponte susceperit, ob id, quod patriae suae utilitatibus cesserit vel gloriae cupiditate paulisper ius publicum relaxaverit, competens privilegium non amittit.

[3] Imp. Leo A. Pusaeo pp. pr. Qui condicioni non obnoxius curiali quemlibet honorem vel munus voluntate propria in quacumque gesserit civitate, nullum praeiudicium circa fortunam suam statumque sustineat: sed tam ipse quam liberi eius et qui ex his in posterum procreandi sunt ab omni huiusmodi nexu cum suis facultatibus liberi alienique permaneant, ita tamen ut, si aliqua functio volentibus eis fuerit iniuncta, ex qua necesse sit aliquid eos accipere, quod ex data sibi pecunia in reliquis apud eos mansisse constiterit, solventes sine ulla molestia vel condicionis suae formidine discedant. 1. Si quis vero ex his omnia decurionum munera vel functiones vel honores nulla imminente necessitate, sed sua sponte peregerit, eum pro sua liberalitate patrem civitatis, in qua voluntarius municeps apparebit, si hoc ei libuerit, fieri constituique hac lege decernimus.

D. v id. Nov. Constantinopoli Basilisco et Herminerico conss.

[4] Imp. Iustinianus A. Menae pp. pr. Eos, qui liberi fortuna curiali constituti postea se curiae cuiuscumque civitatis obtulerint, confidere volumus, quod posteritas eorum non solum iam procreata, sed etiam post talem deditionem procreanda huiusmodi fortuna libera manebit, sive specialiter sub hac lege curiae se obtulerint, ut ab his descendentes tali fortuna liberi maneant, sive nullam huiusmodi fecerint mentionem, nullo audente dicere, quod nati vel concepti post talem deditionem sequi paternam condicionem debeant: hoc enim speciali beneficio alacriores omnes ad conferendam civitatibus huiusmodi opitulationem constituere properavimus: ita tamen, ut nec occasione quartae portionis bonorum huiusmodi decurionis quicumque successores eius aliquam inquietudinem patiantur, utpote libera eius substantia omni curiali pact for maintaining their immunity they have acknowledged just a portion of that burden.

[2] Emperors Diocletian and Maximian Augusti to Valerius. Anyone who has a dispensation from a public service, if of his own accord he takes up an office except for the decurionate, does not lose the privilege available to him for the reason that he has yielded to the interests of his hometown or in a desire for glory has relaxed public law for a short time.

[3][220] Emperor Leo Augustus to Pusaeus, Praetorian Prefect. pr. A person who, although not liable to the condition of being a decurion, has performed some office or service in any city of his own free will shall not sustain any prejudice concerning his fortune or status. Rather, both he himself and his children, as well as those who in the future are to be procreated from them, shall remain along with their property free and exempt from such a bond, but under the condition that, if any function is enjoined upon them willingly, from which it is necessary for them to receive something, by paying what is established to have remained as arrears with them from the money they have been given, they may depart (from their office) without any vexation or fear about their condition. 1. But if one of these persons performs all the services, payments (functiones), or offices of the decurions without any imminent necessity, but of his own accord, We determine by this law that for his generosity, if he desires this, he become and be established father of the city in which he will appear as a voluntary townsman (municeps).

Given November 9, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Basiliscus and Herminericus (465).

[4][221] Emperor Justinian Augustus to Menas, Praetorian Prefect. pr. We want those who, though having been established as free from the fortune of the council, afterwards offer themselves to the council of any city, to be confident that their posterity, not only what has already been procreated, but also what is to be procreated after such a concession, will remain free from this sort of fortune, whether they offer themselves to the council specifically under the condition that their descendants remain free of such a fortune, or whether they make no such mention. No one will dare to say that those born or conceived after such a concession ought to follow the father's condition. For by this specific benefit We have hastened to make everyone quicker to confer such assistance

[220] Possibly combine with C. 1.36.1, from which the subscription was probably restored.

[221] Combine with C. 5.27.8–9, and possibly 10.35.3, which have a subscription dating them to June 1 (C. 5.27.8, by Krüger's emendation), at Constantinople, in the second consulship of Justinian (528).

gravamine conservanda. 1. Et si quid defunctus vel ex administratione curialium munerum vel ex quarta portione ad eandem curiam semel vel saepius devoluta vel ex alia quacumque causa eidem curiae debuisse probetur, hoc idem successores curialibus reddere minime dubitent. 2. Illis scilicet, quae super naturalibus filiis, quos naturalis pater sub hac lege curiae dedit vel postea dederit, ut legitimos tam ex testamento quam ab intestato successores habeat, non solum veteribus legibus[1], sed etiam nostris sanctionibus disposita sunt, praesenti lege excipiendis, ut non ipsi tantum filii naturales, sed etiam ex his procreandi mares paternam sequantur fortunam, vel maribus liberis minime subsistentibus pars quarta substantiae mortui curiae deputetur.

XXXXV De His Qui a Principe Vacationem Acceperunt

[1] Imppp. Theodosius Arcadius et Honorius AAA. Rufino pp. Nullus vacationem temporariam curialis accipiat, nisi id forte veris ac probatis causis adnotatio nostra concesserit.

D. prid. non. Iun. Constantinopoli Theodosio A. III et Abundantio conss.

XXXXVI De Vacatione Muneris

[1] Imp. Gordianus A. Ianuario. Muneris publici vacationem ea continere, quae non lege, non senatus consulto, non constitutionibus principum iniunguntur, merito responsum est. ad quam formam iuris pertinens si coeperis ad munera extraordinaria a magistratibus devocari, appellatione interposita poteris apud praesidem iuris rationibus protegi.

to their cities, under the condition that any successors of such a decurion suffer no disturbance in connection with the fourth portion of the goods, since his property is to be maintained free from every burden of the council.[222] 1. And if the deceased should be proved to have owed anything to the same council either from the administration of his services to the council or from the fourth part that has devolved once or repeatedly to the same council or for any other reason, his successors shall not hesitate to restore this same amount to the decurions (curiales). 2. Thus those things are to be excepted in the present law that have been provided for both in the old laws as well as in Our ordinances[223] concerning natural sons whom a natural father has given or afterwards will give to the council under the condition that he have legitimate successors both in accordance with his will and on intestacy, so that not only the natural sons themselves but also males to be procreated from them follow the father's fortune, or when there are no surviving male children the fourth part of the deceased's property be assigned to the council.

Forty-Fifth Title Those Who Have Received a Dispensation from the Emperor

[1][224] Emperors Theodosius, Arcadius, and Honorius Augusti to Rufinus, Praetorian Prefect. No decurion should receive a temporary dispensation (vacatio), unless perhaps Our response to a petition (adnotatio) has granted it for reasons true and proved.

Given June 4, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Theodosius Augustus, for the third time, and Abundantius (393).

Forty-Sixth Title Dispensation from Service[225]

[1] Emperor Gordian Augustus to Januarius. It has been appropriately responded (to a petition) that a dispensation from a public service includes those things that are not enjoined by law, a decree of the Senate, or the constitutions of the Emperors. If in keeping with this rule of the law you begin to be called by the magistrates to extraordinary services, upon making an appeal you will be able to be protected before the provincial governor by reasons of law.

[222] For the obligation of the fourth part of the decurion's property, see above. C. 10.35.
[223] See C. 10.35.3.
[224] = C.Th. 12.1.135.
[225] See D. 50.5.

XXXXVII De Decretis Decurionum Super Immunitate Quibusdam Concedenda

[1] Impp. Diocletianus et Maximianus AA. Ursino. Exceptis qui liberalium studiorum antistites sunt et qui medendi cura funguntur, decreto decurionum immunitas nemini tribui potest.

[2] Idem AA. et CC. Cassio. Ordinis ambitiosa decreta sacris constitutionibus reprobantur.

XXXXVIII De Excusationibus Munerum

[1] Imppp. Carus Carinus et Numerianus AAA. Demetrio. Etiam ii, qui nostra procurasse monstrantur, muneribus civilibus quae dignitati eorum congruunt fungi debent.

[2] Pars actorum Diocletiani et Maximiani AA. id. Febr. ... Inductis Firmino et Apollinario et ceteris principalibus Antiochensium adstantibus Sabinus dixit: ... Diocletianus: Certis dignitatibus data a nobis indulgentia est munerum civilium et personalium, id est his, qui aut ex protectoribus sunt aut ex praepositis. ii ergo ad munera personalia aut civilia non vocabuntur.

[3] Idem AA. Marino. Tutelae sollicitudo a muneribus civilibus non excusat, utpote nec tres simul iniunctae diversarum domuum eiusmodi beneficium praestent.

[4] Idem AA. Attalo. Hydraulae munerum civilium immunitatem sibi iure concessam probare minime possunt.

[5] Idem AA. et CC. Marcellino. Procuratores absentium rei publicae causa munerum civilium vacationem non habent.

Forty-Seventh Title Decrees of the Decurions about Granting Certain People Immunity

[1] Emperors DIOCLETIAN and MAXIMIAN Augusti to Ursinus. No one can be granted immunity by a decree of the decurions except for those who are adept (antistites) in the liberal arts and those who discharge medical care.

[2] The same Augusti and the Caesars to Cassius. Presumptuous decrees of the council are condemned by the sacred constitutions.

Forty-Eighth Title Excuses (Excusationes) from (Civic) Services[226]

[1] Emperors CARUS, CARINUS, and NUMERIAN Augusti to Demetrius. Even those who are shown to have administered (as procurators) ones for Us should perform public services that are appropriate to their rank.

[2] Part of the record of DIOCLETIAN and MAXIMIAN Augusti on February 13 … After Firminus and Apollinarius had been led in, and with the chief civic magistrates of Antioch standing by, Sabinus said …[227] Diocletian: Indulgence for public and personal services has been granted by Us to specific ranks, that is, to those persons who are from among the protectors (protectores) or the chiefs (praepositi).[228] Therefore those persons will not be called to personal or civic services (for municipalities).

[3] The same Augusti to Marinus. The care of tutelage (tutela) does not excuse someone from civic services, inasmuch as three assignments (of tutelage) at the same time for different households shall not provide such a benefit.

[4] The same Augusti to Attalus. Water-organ players cannot prove that they have been lawfully granted immunity from civic services.

[5] The same Augusti and the Caesars to Marcellinus. Procurators for those who are absent on public business do not have a dispensation from civic services.

[226] See D. 50.6.
[227] Corrupt traces of a Greek text in the manuscripts cannot be understood.
[228] The protectores were a military group that accompanied the emperor; whereas the term praepositi seems to refer to chiefs of imperial bureaus, perhaps, as Blume suggests following Cujacius, the people in charge of the emperor's military standards.

[6] Idem AA. et CC. Gaio. Venatoribus immunitas ob hanc professionem solam nullo iure concessa probari potest.

[7] Imp. Constantius A. ad Catulinum vicarium. Negotiantes vestiarios linteones purpurarios et parthicarios, qui devotioni nostrae deserviunt, visum est secundum veterem consuetudinem ab omni munere immunes esse.

[8] Idem A. ad Taurum pp. pr. Placet nullum omnino iudicem de cetero provincialibus inferendum aliquid indicere, ut ea tantum sedulo cunctorum studio pensitentur, quae canonis instituti forma complectitur vel nostra clementia decernit inferenda vel delegatione sollemniter sanciente vel epistulis praecedentibus. 1. Sed si quid urguere forsitan coeperit, referri ad celsitudinem tuam statuimus et auctore te fieri et eo persoluto referri ad scientiam nostram, ut nobis iubentibus roboretur. 2. Si quis autem usurpatoria temeritate amplius aliquid fuerit conatus exigere, obnoxius quadrupli repetitione teneatur. 3. Quae severitas iussionis ad ordinariorum iudicum officiorumque terrorem debebit excurrere, ut, si eorum vel gratiosa conventia vel ignobili dissimulatione temeritas admiserit curialis, eos quoque damni simplicis poena castiget.

D. k. April. Mediolani Constantio A. VIIII et Iuliano C. II conss.

[9] Imppp. Valentinianus Valens et Gratianus AAA. ad Claudium proconsulem Africae. Illud convenit praecaveri, ne quis hanc, quae personalis est functio, pretio putet esse taxandam.

D. k. Dec. Triveris Valentiniano et Valente AA. conss.

[10] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. ad Hypatium pp. Privatae rei nostrae privilegiis permanentibus nihil extra ordinem

[6] The same Augusti and Caesars to Gaius. It can be proved that immunity has not been granted by any right to hunters based on this declaration alone.

[7][229] Emperor CONSTANTIUS Augustus to Catulinus, Vicar. It has been decided, in accordance with ancient custom, that merchants dealing in clothing, linen, purple dye, and Parthian animal skins, who (all) serve Our Devotion, are immune from every service.

[8][230] The same Augustus to Taurus, Praetorian Prefect. pr. It is decided that henceforth no governor impose the payment of anything on the provincials, so that, through the diligent zeal of everyone, just those things be paid that the rule of the established tax (canon) embraces or that Our Clemency determines must be paid, either when a tax assessment ordains it according to custom or when letters (from the Emperor) precede. 1. But if perhaps some matter begins to be pressing, We establish that it be reported to Your Highness, that it happen on your authority, and when it is paid be reported to Our knowledge, so that it might be confirmed at Our behest. 2.[231] However, if out of presumptuous temerity someone tries to exact anything more, he shall be held liable to a fourfold restitution. 3. This severity of the order should issue forth to terrorize the ordinary governors and the offices, so that if by their obliging connivance or their ignoble dissimulation the heedlessness of a decurion allows something, a penalty of the loss alone punish them too.

Given April 1, at Milan, in the consulship of Constantius Augustus, for the ninth time, and Julian Caesar, for the second time (357).

[9][232] Emperors VALENTINIAN, VALENS, and GRATIAN Augusti to Claudius, Proconsul of Africa. It is appropriate that this precaution be taken, that no one think that what is a personal service is reckoned at a price.[233]

Given December 1, at Trier, in the consulship of Valentinian and Valens Augusti (370).

[10][234] Emperors GRATIAN, VALENTINIAN, and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Hypatius, Praetorian Prefect. With the privileges of Our Privy Purse enduring, estates (praedia) that have been assigned under perpetual right shall endure no extraordinary charge (nihil extra ordinem), nor shall they be affected by [229] Possibly combine with C. 8.11.1 = C.Th. 15.1.5 (July 27, at Sirmium, 338, so under the Emperor Constans). Seeck dates to July 27, 338.

[230] Pr.-1 = C.Th.11.16.8. Seeck dates to April 1, 356.
[231] Par. 2–3 = C.Th.11.16.11 (Valentinian and Valens to Secundus, Praetorian Prefect, March 19, at Constantinople, 365/368/370).
[232] = C.Th. 14.3.12, with much fuller wording.
[233] Blume refers to Paul, D. 50.4.16 pr., for the same rule.
[234] = C.Th. 11.16.13.

praedia iure perpetuo consignata sustineant, neque adiectis saepius ac praeter primum delegationis canonem postulatis adficiantur impendiis, quandoquidem neque aurario canoni sub privilegiis aestimato aliquid ex ea iubentibus nobis praebitionum diversitate decutitur, et pari cum ceteris aestimari sorte non convenit, quos praeter annonarias functiones aestimata perpetuo pensitationum praerogativa nexuerint.

PP. Karthagine id. April. post consulatum Syagrii et Eucherii.

[11] Idem AAA. ad Syagrium pp. pr. Eos, qui cum honore comitum nomine magistrorum memoriae praefuerint vel epistulis vel libellis, item eos, qui ibidem peragendis signandisque responsis nostrae mansuetudini obsecundant, omnium civilium munerum fieri iubemus exsortes. 1. Igitur qui ex eo gradu palatio nostro abscesserint, adesse sibi competentia privilegia glorientur: qui vero superioribus dignitatibus creverint, nihilo minus huius loci privilegia praesto sibi fuisse laetentur.

Lecta III k. Sept. Capuae Antonio et Syagrio conss.

[12] Idem AAA. ad Hypatium pp. pr. Maximarum culmina dignitatum, consistoriani quoque comites, notarii etiam nostri et cubicularii omnes atque ex cubiculariis ab omnibus sordidis muneribus vindicentur. 1. Ceteros autem, palatina vel militari intra palatium praerogativa munitos ita demum privilegium simile contineat, si prioribus statutis se ad eiusmodi exceptionem docuerint pertinere, ut non singulis indulta personis, sed in commune dignitati vel corpori huiusmodi beneficia doceantur fuisse concessa: circa rhetores atque grammaticos eruditionis utriusque vetusto more durante. 2. Sordidorum vero munerum talis exceptio sit, ut patrimoniis dignitatum superius digestarum nec conficiendi pollinis cura mandetur aut panis excoctio aut obsequium pistrini, nec paraveredorum huiusmodi viris aut parangariarum praebitio mandetur, exceptis his, quibus ex more Raeticus limes includitur, vel expenditures that have been demanded again and again and added over and above the initial tax (canon) of the assessment, seeing that nothing is struck off from the tax in gold (aurarius canon) assessed in view of (these) privileges as a result of the difference in payments resulting from Our orders, and it is not consistent for those persons to be assessed in an equal class with others whom, in addition to the payments for the tax in kind (annonarias functiones), the estimated prerogatives (i.e., the tax in gold) have bound perpetually.

Posted at Carthage, April 13, in the post-consulate of Syagrius and Eucherius (382).

[11][235] The same Augusti to Syagrius, Praetorian Prefect. pr. We order to be discharged from all civic services[236] those who, with the office of Counts or the title of Masters, have been in charge of [the Office of] Memory or Letters or Petitions, as well as those who obey Our Clemency in completing and signing responses. 1. Therefore those from that rank who have departed Our palace should pride themselves that appropriate privileges are available to them. But those who have grown (in standing) through higher ranks should rejoice that the privileges of this place will be no less available to them.[237]

Read August 30, at Capua, in the consulship of Antonius and Syagrius (382).

[12][238] The same Augusti to Hypatius, Praetorian Prefect. pr. The highest levels of the greatest ranks, as well as the Counts of the Consistory, and Our Notaries and all Chamberlains and former Chamberlains shall be freed from base services (munera sordida). 1. But a similar privilege shall include the others, that is those fortified with a civilian or military prerogative within the Palace, only if they show they reach such an exemption by previous statutes, so that such benefits are shown not to have been conceded to individual persons, but to have been granted in common to a rank or an association (corpus); the ancient custom will remain in force concerning rhetoricians and grammarians of each erudition (i.e., of Greek and Latin). 2. The exemption from base services is to be of such a kind that the care of making flour (conficiendi pollinis) not be imposed upon the patrimonies of the ranks listed above, nor the baking of bread, nor the duty to serve as a baker (obsequium pistrini), nor shall the provision of post-horses[239] or of extra transport (parangiariae) be ordered for such men, except for those by whom the Rhaetian frontier is protected or the utility

[235] = C.Th. 11.16.14, with fuller wording.

[236] C.Th. 11.16.14 has "base services," and then goes on to list examples.

[237] Blume refers to Theodosius II and Valentinian III, C. 12.9.1 (444) for the privileges granted to the heads of imperial bureaus.

[238] = C.Th. 11.16.15.

[239] For post-horses, paraveredi, see also Constantine, C. 12.50.2 (326), Arcadius, Honorius, C. 12.50.19 (403).

expeditionis Illyricae pro necessitate vel tempore utilitas adiuvatur. 3. Operarum atque artificum diversorum, excoquendae etiam calcis obsequia nulla de talibus adiumenta poscantur: materiam lignorum atque tabulata exceptorum virorum patrimonia non praebeant: carbonis quoque nisi eum, quem moneta sollemniter vel fabricatio secundum veterem morem poscit armorum, ab huiusmodi viris praebitio desistat: publicis vel sacris aedibus construendis atque reparandis, capituli atque temonis necessitas nulla mandetur: legatis atque adlectis sumptus possessio huiusmodi privilegiis munita non conferat. 4. Hoc tamen his patrimoniis prosit, quae dignitatem proprio videntur nomine possidere. 5. Etiam eos, qui simili honore functi sunt, generali praerogativa a praebitione sordidorum munerum vindicamus.

D. v id. Dec. Antonio et Syagrio conss.

[13] Idem AAA. et Arcadius A. ad Neoterium pp. Sordidorum munerum excusatio delata personis ad heredem successoremve transire non potest. neque enim potest esse perpetuum, quod non rebus, sed personis contemplatione dignitatis atque militiae indulsisse nos constat.

D. XVIII k. Mai. Mediolani Arcadio A. et Bautone conss.

[14] Imppp. Valentinianus Theodosius et Arcadius AAA. Tatiano pp. Eam legem, quam de extraordinariis sordidisque muneribus expressis vocabulis functionum et insignibus dignitatum sine ulla ambage praescripsimus, ita circa eos, in quos nostra munera redundarunt, servandam esse praecipimus, ut isdem beneficiis non quamdiu militaverint, sed quamdiu vixerint perfruantur.

D. XI k. April. Mediolani Tatiano et Symmacho conss.

[15] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. ad Messianum comitem rerum privatarum. pr. Evidenter atque absolute iubemus, ne fundi ad patrimonium nostrum pertinentes, seu conductionis titulo seu perpetuo iure teneantur, aliquid praeter ordinem superindicti vel pretii petiti of the expedition in Illyricum is aided in accordance with need or time. 3. No assistance with days of labor or diverse artisans or even duties to cook lime should be demanded from such persons; the patrimonies of the men excepted should not provide wood for fuel or building boards; the provision of charcoal also should cease for such men, except for the one from whom coining money customarily demands it or the manufacture of arms in accordance with ancient practice. No requirement to construct and repair public or sacred buildings or to pay for the raising of recruits (capituli atque temonis) is to be ordered; a property (possessio) protected by privileges of this type should not provide expenses for ambassadors and people chosen for this service (legatis atque adlectis). 4. But this shall benefit those patrimonies that are held to possess a rank under their own name. 5. By a general prerogative We also exempt from the provision of base services those who have performed a similar office.

Given December 9, in the consulship of Antonius and Syagrius (382).

[13][240] The same Augusti and ARCADIUS Augustus to Neoterius, Praetorian Prefect. The exemption from base services offered to persons cannot pass to an heir or a successor. For what We have manifestly granted, not for property but for persons in contemplation of rank and service, cannot be perpetual.

Given April 14, at Milan, in the consulship of Arcadius Augustus and Bauto (385).

[14][241] Emperors VALENTINIAN, THEODOSIUS, and ARCADIUS Augusti to Tatianus, Praetorian Prefect. We instruct that that law,[242] which We prescribed concerning extraordinary and base services with specific names for the functions and titles of ranks without any ambiguity, be maintained in connection with those persons upon whom Our gifts have redounded, so that they enjoy the same benefits not for as long as they will have been in service, but for as long as they will have lived.

Given March 22, at Milan, in the consulship of Tatianus and Symmachus (391).

[15][243] Emperors ARCADIUS and HONORIUS Augusti to Messianus, Count of the Privy Purse. pr. We order clearly and firmly that the farms belonging to Our Patrimony, whether they should be held under title of lease or under perpetual right, not recognize anything out of order in the name of an extraordinary [240] = C.Th. 11.16.16, which correctly has the emperors as Valentinian, Theodosius, and Arcadius Augusti.

[241] = C.Th. 11.16.19, which adds that Tatianus is Praetorian Prefect of the East.
[242] C.Th. 11.16.18 (390).
[243] = C.Th. 11.16.20. Seeck dates to June 14, 389.

nomine vel de sordidis quibuscumque muneribus agnoscant. nam hoc et a divis principibus impetratum est et a nostra serenitate reparatum. 1. Quisquis igitur iudicum contra fecerit, quinque pondo auri de facultatibus, alia de officiis suis, totidem et curialibus, qui exsequi male iussa festinant, noverit eruenda.

D. XVII k. Iul. Mediolani Olybrio et Probino conss.

[16] Idem AA. et Theodosius A. Melitio pp. Ab illustribus personis sordida munera et extraordinariae necessitatis damna removemus.

D. XV k. Mart. Ravennae Honorio VIIII et Theodosio V AA. conss.

XXXXVIIII De Quibus Muneribus vel Praestationibus Nemini Liceat Se Excusare

[1] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Herculio pp. pr. Comparationi transvectionique specierum universi sine ullo privilegio coartentur ad necessitates Illyricianas: nam in his dumtaxat titulis nullum sub quodam cessare privilegii velamento censemus. 1. Sed sub hac condicione, cum tempus exegerit, huiusmodi collationi succumbant, ut non tantum requiratur idoneus, verum universi pro portione suae possessionis iugationisque ad haec munia coartentur, et a summis sarcina ad infimos usque decurrat.

D. III id. April. Constantinopoli Basso et Philippo conss.

[2] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. ad Taurum pp. Cum ad felicissimam expeditionem numinis nostri omnium provincialium per loca, qua iter adripimus, debeant nobis ministeria exhiberi, neminem charge (superindicti) or price demanded (sc., as commutation for a tax), or concerning any base services whatsoever. For this has both been established by the deified emperors and has been restored by Our Serenity. 1. Therefore whichever governor (iudex) acts to the contrary shall know that 5 pounds of gold are to be paid from his property, another 5 pounds from his offices, and an equal amount from the decurions who hasten to carry out what has been badly ordered.

Given June 15, at Milan, in the consulship of Olybrius and Probinus (395).

[16][244] Emperors Honorius and Theodosius Augusti to Melitius, Praetorian Prefect. We remove base services and the losses for extraordinary requirements (i.e., extraordinary tax charges) from persons with the rank of illustris.

Given February 16, at Ravenna, in the consulship of Honorius, for the ninth time, and Theodosius, for the fifth time, Augusti (412).

Forty-Ninth Title Services and Payments from Which No One May Excuse Himself

[1][245] Emperors Honorius and Theodosius Augusti to Herculius, Praetorian Prefect. pr. Everyone shall be pressed for the purchase and transport of supplies for the needs in Illyricum, without any privilege: for in precisely these categories We decree that no one be exempt under the cover of any privilege. 1. But they are to be liable to such a payment under this condition, that when the occasion demands, not only should a suitable (idoneus, i.e., solvent) person be sought out, but that everyone be pressed for these duties in proportion to his property and his tax liability for land (iugatio), and that the burden run from the loftiest persons to the lowest.

Given April 11, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Bassus and Philippus (408).

[2][246] Emperors Theodosius and Valentinian Augusti to Taurus, Praetorian Prefect. Since services ought to be provided for Us for the most felicitous expedition of Our Divine Majesty throughout the places of all the provincials where [244] = C.Th. 11.16.23, where the emperors are Arcadius, Honorius, and Theodosius; combine with C.Th. 11.18.1, which correctly gives the emperors as Honorius and Theodosius, but has the date as the consulship of Honorius, for the eighth time, and Theodosius, for the third time, Augusti (409).

[245] = C.Th. 11.17.4, with somewhat different wording; combine with C.Th. 15.1.49, which has Herculius as Praetorian Prefect of Illyricum, and the subscription as "Given April 9, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Our Lords Honorius, for the ninth time, and Theodosius, for the fifth time, Augusti (412)." Seeck dates this constitution to April 9, 407.

[246] = C. 1.2.11 (in part).

ab angariis vel parangariis vel plaustris vel quolibet munere penitus excusari praecipimus, sed omnes, sive ad divinam nostram domum sive ad venerabilis Augustae vel ad sacrosanctas ecclesias vel quaslibet illustres domos pertinent, nec lege pragmatica nec divina adnotatione sacrove oraculo excusatos indictionibus magnificae tuae sedis tempore nostrae expeditionis oboedire decernimus.

D. XIII k. Mart. Constantinopoli Valentiniano A. VI et Nomo conss.

[3] Imp. Leo A. Dioscoro pp. Hac providentissima lege statuimus omni excusatione cessante nullaque persona vel dignitate penitus excepta, in quibuscumque locis administrationi sublimitatis tuae commissis opus exegerit, murorum constructionem seu comparationem frumenti aliarumque specierum sine ullo impedimento, prout commodum atque necessarium magnitudo tua perspexerit, fieri.

L Qui Aetate Se Excusant

[1] Impp. Diocletianus et Maximianus AA. Severino et ceteris scholasticis Arabiis. Cum vos adfirmetis liberalibus studiis operam dare, maxime circa professionem iuris, consistendo in civitate Berytorum provinciae Phoenices, providendum utilitati publicae et spei vestrae decernimus, ut singuli usque ad vicesimum quintum annum aetatis suae studiis non avocentur.

[2] Idem AA. Theodoro. Cum filios tuos patria potestate liberatos adhuc minores legitima aetate esse dicas, merito postulas, ut liberalibus studiis non avocentur. et ideo muneribus personalibus quae ad patrimonium non pertinent non adstringentur, si civium non est inopia.

[3] Idem AA. Protelao. pr. Manifesti iuris est maiores quinquaginta quinque annis invitos ad munera personalia vocari non posse. 1. Cum

We hasten in Our march, We order that no one be excused from providing post-wagons or supplementary post-wagons (angariae, parangariae), from providing carts, or from any liturgy whatsoever, but We determine that everyone, whether they belong to Our divine household or that of the venerable Augusta or to the sacrosanct churches or to any illustrious households, (if) not excused by a general law (lege pragmatica) or by a Divine response to a petition (adnotatio) or a sacred imperial enactment (oraculum), obey the assessment (indictio) of Your magnificent office during the time of Our expedition.

Given February 16, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Valentinian Augustus, for the sixth time, and Nomus (445).

[3] Emperor Leo Augustus to Dioscorus, Praetorian Prefect. By this most provident law We establish that, with every excuse nullified and no person or rank whatsoever excepted, in whatever places entrusted to the administration of Your Sublimity a work demands it, the construction of walls or the purchase of grain or other supplies take place without any impediment, as Your Greatness considers advantageous and necessary.

(472?).[247]

Fiftieth Title Those Who Excuse Themselves on the Basis of Age

[1] Emperors Diocletian and Maximian Augusti to Severinus and the other Arabian legal scholars. Since you affirm that you devote your attention to liberal studies, especially concerning the profession of law, by remaining in the city of Beirut in the province of Phoenice, We determine that provision must be made for the public interest and your aspiration so that individuals not be called away from their studies up to the twenty-fifth year of their life.

[2] The same Augusti to Theodorus. Since you say that your sons were freed from their father's power but are still younger than the legal age, you rightly ask that they not be called away from their liberal studies. And for that reason they will not be bound to personal services that do not pertain to the patrimony, if there is not a shortage of citizens.

[3] The same Augusti to Protelaus.[248] pr. It is manifest law that persons older than 55 years[249] cannot be called unwillingly to personal services. 1. Thus, since you profess that you are older than 70, if after being nominated you have itaque septuagenario maiorem te esse profitearis, si nominatione facta appellationis auxilium interposuisti, tueri te notione praesidis provinciae potes iure concesso.

[247] Seeck dates to 472–474.
[248] Krüger writes "Protesilaus."
[249] The age mentioned in the text is textually sound, but it contradicts the age limit of 70 stated later in the text and mentioned in the Digest (e.g., Ulp. D. 50.2.2.8, 50.6.4).

LI Qui Morbo

[1] Imp. Gordianus A. Cassiano. Si ea caecitate pater tuus oppressus est, ut utriusque oculi aciem prorsus amiserit, levamentum personalium munerum sentiet.

[2] Impp. Diocletianus et Maximianus AA. Iuliano. Cum articulari morbo debilitatum te esse dicas, iuxta iuris publici auctoritatem a personalibus muneribus vacationem habebis.

[3] Idem AA. et CC. Celeri. Podagrae quidem valitudo nec personalium munerum prodest ad excusationem: verum cum ita te valitudine pedum adflictum dicas, ut rebus propriis intercessum commodare non possis, adi rectorem provinciae, qui si adlegationibus tuis fidem adesse perspexerit, ad corporalia munera vocari te non patietur.

[4] Idem AA. et CC. Regino. Casus patris corporis munerum personalium filio iure non praestat excusationem.

LII De His Qui Numero Liberorum vel Paupertate Excusationem Meruerunt

[1] Imp. Alexander A. Verecundo. Numerus liberorum ab honoribus non excusat.

[2] Imp. Philippus A. et Philippus C. Severino. Filium ab hostibus captum ac necdum reversum ad excusationem munerum personalium patri proficere non posse magis placuit.

[3] Idem A. et C. Nonno. pr. Nepotes in locum parentum succedentes vice eorum prodesse consueverunt. 1. Et ideo si quinque numerus liberorum ex amissorum filiorum nepotibus suppletur, a muneribus personalibus is, quem patrem tuum esse dicis, iuxta constituta excusatur.

interposed the aid of an appeal, you can protect yourself when the right is granted after an investigation by the governor.

Fifty-First Title Those Who (Excuse Themselves) Because of Disease

[1] Emperor GORDIAN Augustus to Cassianus. If your father has been oppressed by that type of blindness whereby he has completely lost the sight of each eye, he will perceive an alleviation from his personal services.

[2] Emperors DIOCLETIAN and MAXIMIAN Augusti to Julian. Since you say that you are debilitated by a disease of the joints, you will have a dispensation from personal services in accordance with the authority of public law.

[3] The same Augusti and the Caesars to Celer. The illness of gout is of no use for being excused from personal services; but since you say that you are so afflicted by an illness of the feet that you cannot provide attention to your own affairs, approach the provincial governor who, if he ascertains that there is trustworthiness in your allegations, will not allow you to be called to physical services.

[4][250] The same Augusti and Caesars to Reginus. A father's physical decay does not provide a legal exemption from personal services for his son.

Fifty-Second Title Those Who Have Merited a Dispensation Because of the Number of Children or Poverty

[1] Emperor ALEXANDER Augustus to Verecundus. The number of children does not provide a discharge from (the duty to hold) offices.

[2] Emperors PHILIP Augustus and PHILIP Caesar to Severinus. It has rather been determined that a son who was captured by the enemy but not yet returned cannot help a father obtain a discharge from personal services.

[3] The same Augustus and Caesar to Nonnus. pr. Grandchildren succeeding in the place of their parents have customarily served (to gain a discharge from services) in their place. 1. And for that reason if the number of five children is replenished from grandchildren by lost sons, the person who you say is your father is excused from personal services in accordance with the (imperial) constitutions.

[250] Possibly combine with C. 10.43.4.

[4] Impp. Diocletianus et Maximianus AA. Domno. Cum facultates tuas in filium tuum contulisse te nec quicquam habere proponas, respectu eius patrimonii quod tuum esse desiit muneribus civilibus non adstringeris.

[5] Idem AA. et CC. Marciae. De personalibus muneribus, quae feminis pro sexus condicione indicuntur, exemplo marium quinque superstitum numero liberorum eas excusari divi parentes nostri constituerunt.

[6] Imp. Constantinus A. Dalmatio. pr. Eos, qui cuiuscumque sexus liberos quinque habeant, impetrata semel vacatione potiri convenit, ita ut, si in hoc numero filius legitimae aetatis inveniatur, obeundis statim pro suo patre muneribus applicetur, patribus, qui filios vel filias quinque habuerint, promissa legibus immunitate servanda. 1. Quod si quis propter censum tenuiorem vacationem meruerit atque hoc probaverit, beneficio potiatur, si propter rerum angustias ad personalia vocatur obsequia.

D. XIIII k. Febr. Sirmio Crispo III et Constantino II conss.

LIII De Professoribus et Medicis

[1] Imp. Antoninus A. Numisio. Cum te medicum legionis secundae adiutricis esse dicas, munera civilia, quamdiu rei publicae causa afueris, suscipere non cogeris: cum autem abesse desieris, post finitam eo iure vacationem, si in eorum numero eris, qui ad beneficia medicis concessa pertinent, ea immunitate uteris.

[2] Imp. Gordianus A. Heracliano. Grammaticos seu oratores decreto ordinis probatos, si non se utiles studentibus praebeant, denuo ab eodem ordine reprobari posse incognitum non est.

[3] Imp. Philippus A. et Philippus C. Ulpiano. Poetae nulla immunitatis praerogativa iuvantur.

[4] Emperors DIOCLETIAN and MAXIMIAN Augusti to Domnus. Since you state that you have transferred your resources to your son and that you do not have anything in consideration for that patrimony that has ceased to be yours, you are not bound to civic services.

[5] The same Augusti and the Caesars to Marcia. Concerning personal services, which are imposed on women in accordance with the condition of their sex, Our deified predecessors have ruled that they (i.e., the women) are discharged on the example of males with five surviving children.

[6][251] Emperor CONSTANTINE Augustus to Dalmatius. pr. It is appropriate that those persons of either sex who have five children receive a discharge once it has been granted, such that, if a son of legal age should be found in this number, he be assigned immediately to undergo services in place of his father, while the immunity promised by the laws be maintained for fathers who have five sons or daughters. 1. But if someone gains a discharge on account of a rather modest census and proves this, he shall possess the benefit if on account of a lack of property he is called to comply with personal services (personalia obsequia).

Given January 19, at Sirmium, in the consulship of Crispus, for the third time, and Constantine, for the second time.[252]

Fifty-Third Title Professors and Doctors

[1] Emperor ANTONINUS Augustus to Numisius. Since you say that you are a doctor with the Second Legion Adiutrix, you will not be compelled to undertake civic services as long as you are absent on public business. When, however, you cease being absent (on public business), after the end of the dispensation from that right, if you will be in the number of those persons who are included in the benefits conceded to (non-military) doctors, you will take advantage of this immunity.

[2] Emperor GORDIAN Augustus to Heraclianus. It is not unknown that grammarians or orators who have been approved by a decree of the decurions, if they should not show themselves to be useful to students, can be rejected again by the same council (ordo).

[3] Emperor PHILIP Augustus and PHILIP Caesar to Ulpianus. Poets are not aided by any privilege of immunity.

[251] = C.Th. 12.17.1, with fuller wording in the preface.

[252] The date is either 321, when Crispus and Constantine were both Consuls for the second time, or 324, when they both held the consulship for the third time, as Krüger points out.

[4] Impp. Diocletianus et Maximianus AA. Malcho. Oratione divi Pii liberalium studiorum professores, non etiam calculatores continentur.

[5] Idem AA. et CC. Concedemoni. Nec intra numerum praestitutum ordine invito medicos immunitatem habere saepe constitutum est, cum oportet eis decreto decurionum immunitatem tribui.

[6] Imp. Constantinus A. ad populum. pr. Medicos et maxime archiatros vel ex archiatris, grammaticos et professores alios litterarum una cum uxoribus et filiis nec non etiam rebus, quas in civitatibus suis possident, ab omni functione et ab omnibus muneribus civilibus vel publicis immunes esse praecipimus neque in provinciis hospites recipere nec ullo fungi munere nec ad iudicium deduci vel exhiberi vel iniuriam pati, ut, si quis eos vexaverit, poena arbitrio iudicis plectetur. 1. Mercedes etiam eorum et salaria reddi iubemus, quo facilius liberalibus studiis et memoratis artibus multos instituant.

PP. v k. Oct. Constantinopoli Dalmatio et Zenophilo conss.

[7] Imp. Iulianus A. pr. Magistros studiorum doctoresque excellere oportet moribus primum, deinde facundia. 1. Sed quia singulis civitatibus adesse ipse non possum, iubeo, quisquis docere vult, non repente nec temere prosiliat ad hoc munus, sed iudicio ordinis probatus decretum curialium mereatur, optimorum conspirante consensu.

D. xv k. Iul. acc. IIII k. Aug. Spoletio Mamertino et Nevitta conss.

[8] Imppp. Valentinianus Valens et Gratianus AAA. ad Probum pp. Reddatur unusquisque patriae suae, qui habitum philosophiae indebite et insolenter usurpare cognoscitur, exceptis his, qui a probatissimis approbati ab hac debent colluvione secerni. turpe enim est, ut patriae functiones ferre non possit, qui etiam fortunae vim se ferre profitetur.

[4] Emperors DIOCLETIAN and MAXIMIAN Augusti to Malchus. Professor of liberal studies, but not also teachers of arithmetic (calculatores), are included in the legislative proposal (oratio) of the deified Pius.

[5] The same Augustus and Caesars to Concedemon.[253] It has often been established in constitutions that doctors do not have immunity within the established number against the will of the council, since they must be granted immunity by a decree of the decurions.

[6][254] Emperor CONSTANTINE Augustus to the people. pr. We instruct that doctors and especially chief physicians and former chief physicians, grammarians and other professors of literature, along with their wives and children as well as their property that they have in their cities, be immune from every payment (functio) and from all civic or public services, and that in the provinces they not receive guests (i.e., billeted soldiers) or perform any service, or be summoned to or produced in court or suffer an injury, so that, if anyone bothers them, he will be punished with a penalty at the discretion of the governor. 1. We order that their compensation and salaries be given to them, so that they might more easily instruct many in liberal studies and the aforementioned arts.

Posted September 27, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Dalmatius and Zenophilus (333).

[7][255] Emperor JULIAN Augustus. pr. Teachers and professors of studies must first excel in their character, then in their eloquence. 1. But since I am not able to be present in individual cities, I order that whoever wishes to teach should not suddenly and rashly jump into this service, but should gain a decree of the decurions after being approved by the judgment of the order, with the harmonious consensus of the best people.

Given June 17 and accepted July 29, at Spoleto, in the consulship of Mamertinus and Nevitta (362).

[8][256] Emperors VALENTINIAN, VALENS, and GRATIAN Augusti to Probus, Praetorian Prefect. Each and every person who is known to usurp the posture of philosophy undeservedly and insolently shall be returned to his hometown (patria), with the exception of those who, having been approved by the most esteemed people, ought to be separated from this collection of filth. For it is disgraceful that the person who proclaims that he can endure the power of fortune not be able to endure services (functiones) to his hometown.

253 The name may be corrupt; perhaps Cedemo.
254 Composed from C.Th. 13.3.1–3, with differences in wording.
255 = C.Th. 13.3.5.
256 = C.Th. 13.3.7

D. XIIII k. Febr. Sirmio Valentiniano np. et Victore conss.

[9] Idem AAA. ad Praetextatum pu. pr. Archiatri scientes annonaria sibi commoda a populi commodis ministrari honeste obsequi tenuioribus malint quam turpiter servire divitibus. 1. Quos etiam ea patimur accipere, quae sani offerunt pro obsequiis, non ea, quae periclitantes pro salute promittunt.

D. III k. Febr. Triveris Valentiniano et Valente III AA. conss.

[10] Idem AAA. ad Olybrium pu. Si quis in archiatri defuncti est locum promotionis meritis adgregandus, non ante eorum particeps fiat, quam primis qui in ordine reperientur septem vel eo amplius iudicantibus idoneus approbetur: ita tamen ut, quicumque fuerit admissus, non in priorem numerum statim veniat, sed eum ordinem consequatur, qui ceteris ad priora subvectis ultimus poterit inveniri.

D. VI id. Mart. Valentiniano et Valente III AA. conss.

[11] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Monaxio pp. pr. Grammaticos oratores atque philosophiae praeceptores nec non etiam medicos praeter haec, quae retro latarum sanctionum auctoritate consecuti sunt privilegia immunitatesque, frui hac praerogativa praecipimus, ut universi, qui in sacro palatio inter archiatros militarunt, cum comitivam primi ordinis vel secundi adepti fuerint aut maioris gradum dignitatis adscenderint, nulla municipali, nulla curialium conventione vexentur, seu indepta administratione seu accepta testimoniali meruerint missionem: sint ab omni functione omnibusque muneribus publicis immunes, nec eorum domus ubicumque positae militem seu iudicem suscipiant hospitandum. 1. Quae omnia filiis etiam eorum et coniugibus illibata praecipimus custodiri. 2. Haec autem et professoribus memoratis eorumque liberis deferenda mandamus.

D. prid. k. Dec. Constantinopoli Constantio et Constante conss.

Given January 19, at Sirmium, in the consulship of Valentinian, Most Noble Boy, and Victor (369).

[9][257] The same Augusti to Praetextatus, City Prefect. pr. Chief physicians who know that food resources are provided them from the people's resources should prefer to accommodate (obsequi) the less well-off honorably than to serve the wealthy disgracefully. 1. Also, We allow them to receive what healthy people offer for services (obsequia), not what people in peril promise in return for their health.

Given January 30, at Trier, in the consulship of Valentinian and Valens, for the third time,[258] Augusti (370).

[10][259] The same Augusti to Olybrius, City Prefect. If someone is to be included in the place of a deceased chief physician based on the merits of a promotion, he shall not become a participant in these things before he is approved as suitable on the judgment of the seven or more first members who are found in the order (of physicians); but only on the condition that whoever is admitted should not come into the number of the first members of the order, but gain that rank that can be located as the last after the others have been advanced to higher stations.

Given March 10, in the consulship of Valentinian and Valens, for the third time, Augusti (370).

[11][260] Emperors HONORIUS and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Monaxius, Praetorian Prefect. pr. We instruct that grammarians, orators, and instructors of philosophy, as well as doctors, enjoy this prerogative in addition to those privileges and immunities that they previously have gained by the authority of the ordinances that have been passed, so that all those who have served in the sacred palace among the chief physicians, since they have gained the rank of count of the first or second order or have ascended to a rank of a higher dignity, not be vexed by any summons (conventio, to perform a service) on the part of the town or the council, whether they have gained a discharge either after taking up administration (in the palace) or receiving a testimonial (i.e., a letter in support); they shall be immune from every duty and all public services, nor shall their households wherever they are situated undertake the billeting of a soldier or governor. 1. We instruct that all these privileges be maintained undiminished for their children and wives. 2. We also command that this be conferred upon the aforementioned professors and their children.

Given November 30, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Constantius and Constantine (414).

257 = C.Th. 13.3.8 pr.-1, with somewhat different wording.
258 Gothofredus suggests Valens' second consulship (368). Seeck dates to January 30, 368.
259 = C.Th. 10.3.9.
260 = C.Th. 13.3.16.

LIIII De Athletis

[1] Impp. Diocletianus et Maximianus AA. et CC. Hermogeni. Athletis ita demum, si per omnem aetatem certasse, coronis quoque non minus tribus certaminis sacri, in quibus vel semel Romae seu antiquae Graeciae, merito coronati non aemulis corruptis ac redemptis probentur, civilium munerum tribui solet vacatio.

LV De His Qui Non Impletis Stipendiis Sacramento Soluti Sunt

[1] Imp. Antoninus A. Verino. Ignominiae causa sacramento liberati honoribus abstinere debent, a muneribus autem civilibus excusati non sunt.

[2] Impp. Diocletianus et Maximianus AA. Caro veterano. pr. Cum ob provectae aetatis senium sis dimissus, honestam missionem consecutum te esse ambigi non potest. 1. Habebis itaque a civilibus muneribus nec non etiam honoribus vacationem. non tamen ea privilegia, quae his competunt qui pleno stipendiorum numero funguntur, usurpare te ius permittit, quando non perfecto statuto militiae tempore nec omnibus stipendiis decursis sacramento solutum te esse etiam ipse confitearis.

[3] Idem AA. Philopatori. pr. Veteranis ita demum honorum et munerum personalium vacatio iure conceditur, si post vicesimum annum militiae, quam in legione vel vexillatione militaverunt, honestam vel causariam missionem consecuti esse ostendantur. 1. Unde cum te in cohorte militasse commemoras, intellegis supervacuo vacationem tibi velle flagitare.

Fifty-Fourth Title Athletes

[1] Emperors DIOCLETIAN and MAXIMIAN Augusti and the Caesars to Hermogenes. Dispensation from civic services is customarily granted to athletes only if they should be proved to have competed through their whole life, having been deservedly awarded, without corrupting or purchasing their rivals, with no less than three crowns for a sacred competition, including at least once in one held at Rome or in old Greece.[261]

Fifty-Fifth Title Those Who Have Been Released from Their (Military) Oath Without Completing Their Service

[1] Emperor ANTONINUS Augusti to Verinus. Those who have been released from their (military) oath (sacramentum) because of ignominy should abstain from offices, but they are not excused from civic services.

[2] Emperors DIOCLETIAN and MAXIMIAN Augusti to Carus, a veteran. pr. Since you have been dismissed because of the feebleness resulting from your advanced age, it cannot be doubted that you have gained an honorable discharge (honesta missio). 1. Therefore you will have a dispensation from civic services as well as offices. However, the law does not permit you to claim those privileges that are available to those who perform the full number of their years of service, since you yourself admit that you were released from your oath without completing the established time for military service and without the passage of all the years of service.

[3] The same Augusti to Philopator. pr. A dispensation from offices and personal services is lawfully granted to veterans only if, after the twentieth year that they have served in a legion or a detachment (vexillatio), they should be shown to have gained an honorable discharge or one based on disability (causaria). 1. Therefore since you mention that you have served in a cohort,[262] you understand that you are uselessly wishing to demand a dispensation for yourself.

[261] P. Lips. I 44 (= Chart.Lat.Ant. XII 526), where the rescript is addressed ad Synodum Xysticorum et Thymelicorum et ividem, has a longer, differently worded, version of this constitution. The old Greek games are the Olympian, Isthmian, Nemean, and Pythian games.

[262] The distinction seems to be between veterans of the legions, who were granted dispensations, and those of auxiliary or other forces, who were not. But Blume takes this as referring to service in a civil capacity.

LVI Quibus Muneribus Excusantur Ii, Qui Post Impletam Militiam vel Advocationem per Provincias Suis Commodis Vacantes Commorantur et de Privilegiis Eorum

[1] pr. Οἱ πληρώσαντες στρατείαν ἢ συνηγορίαν πρὸς τοῖς ὑπάρχουσιν αὐτοῖς προνομίοις μήτε σιτωνίαν ἢ ἐλαιωνίαν ἢ ἐποψίαν ἔργων ἢ λογοθέσιον ἢ ἐκδικίαν ἢ πατερίαν ἢ λογιστίαν ἢ ἀγορανομίαν ποιείτωσαν. 1. Ἀλλ' ἔνθα ἂν οἰκῆσαι βουληθῶσι, μήτε ὑπαντᾶν ἀναγκαζέσθωσαν τοῖς ἄρχουσι περαιτέρω πυλῶν μήτε εἰς συλλόγους ἄκοντες καλείσθωσαν μήτε ὀνομαζέσθωσαν ἢ ὀνομαζέτωσαν μήτε διαγραφὰς παρεχέτωσαν προφάσει συνηθειῶν ἢ θεωρητικῶν. 2. Ἐχέτωσαν δὲ καὶ μίαν οἰκίαν ἐλευθέραν μητάτων τῶν ἐπιδημούντων στρατιωτῶν καὶ τῶν ἐν τοῖς τόποις διατριβόντων, δηλονότι τῶν ἐχόντων ἀξίας τινὰς τὴν ἰδίαν ἀτέλειαν κεκτημένων· ἡ γὰρ διάταξις αὕτη προστίθησι ταῖς προτέραις εὐεργεσίαις καὶ οὐκ ἀφαιρεῖται ἐξ αὐτῶν. 3. Παρεχέτωσαν δὲ τὰ δημόσια καὶ τιμάτωσαν τοὺς ἄρχοντας καὶ τιμάσθωσαν παρ' αὐτῶν. 4. Ὁ δέ τι τῶν ἐν τῇ διατάξει παραβαίνων ἢ παραβαθῆναι συγχωρῶν πεντήκοντα λίτρας χρυσοῦ προστιμηθήσεται.

LVII De Conductoribus Vectigalium Fisci

[1] Impp. Diocletianus et Maximianus AA. Punico. Non alios a muneribus et honoribus vacationem habere, quam qui mancipatum suo nomine vectigal a fisco conducunt, certum est. quare eos, qui ab his quaedam exercenda accipiunt, nullis privilegiis esse munitos haud dubii iuris est.

LVIII De Libertinis

[1] Impp. Diocletianus et Maximianus AA. et CC. Lucillo. Condicio libertinitatis de muneribus civilibus tribuere non potest excusationem nec in ea quidem civitate, ubi domicilium libertinus habet.

Fifty-Sixth Title The Civic Services from Which Those Are Excused Who, After Completing Service or an Advocacy, Remain in the Provinces Without Their Benefits, and Their Privileges

[1][263] pr. Those who have completed service or an advocacy, in addition to their existing privileges, are not to perform the purchasing of grain or of olive oil, or the inspection of construction work, or an accounting, or a defense, or service as father of the city or curator or aedile. 1. But wherever they should wish to live, they shall not be compelled to meet the governors outside of the gates, nor be called unwillingly to assemblies, or be nominated (for offices) or have to nominate, or provide the tax assessments under the title of customs or spectacles. 2. They shall have one house free from the billeting of soldiers temporarily located or residing there, that is, those who have certain ranks having obtained their own immunity. For this constitution adds to the previous benefits and does not subtract from them. 3. They are to pay public taxes and honor the governors and be honored by them. 4. Whoever violates any of the measures in the constitution or allows it to be violated will be fined 50 pounds of gold.

Fifty-Seventh Title Lessees (Conductores) of Treasury Imposts

[1] Emperors Diocletian and Maximian Augusti and Caesars to Punicus. It is certain that no persons, other than those who are leasing an impost (vectigal) from the Treasury contracted in their own name, have a dispensation from services and offices. Therefore the law is hardly doubtful that those persons who receive from them the exercise of certain tasks are not protected by any privileges.

Fifty-Eighth Title Persons of Freed Status

[1] Emperors Diocletian and Maximian Augusti and the Caesars to Lucillus. The condition of being freed cannot provide a dispensation from civic services, not even in the city in which the freedperson has domicile.

[263] Restored from Bas. 54.7.33.

LVIIII De Infamibus

[1] Impp. Diocletianus et Maximianus AA. Charitoni. Infames personae, licet nullis honoribus, qui integrae dignitatis hominibus deferri solent, uti possunt, curialium tamen vel civilium munerum vacationem non habent: sed et sollemnibus indictionibus ob tutelam publicam eos satisfacere necesse est.

LX De Reis Postulatis

[1] Imp. Alexander A. Niciae. Reos criminis postulatos novos honores appetere non debere, antequam purgarent innocentiam suam, et a divis parentibus nostris et a me saepe rescriptum est.

LXI De His Qui in Exsilium Dati vel Ordine Moti Sunt

[1] Pars edicti imperatoris Antonini A. propositi Romae V id. Iul. duobus Aspris conss. Quibus posthac ordine suo vel advocationibus ad tempus interdicetur, post impletum temporis spatium non prorogabitur infamia.

[2] Imp. Gordianus A. Ulpio. Ad tempus exsulare decurio iussus et impleto tempore regressus pristinam quidem dignitatem recipit, ad novos vero honores non admittitur, nisi tanto tempore his abstinuerit quanto per fugam afuit.

LXII De Filiis Familias et Quemadmodum Pater pro His Teneatur

[1] Impp. Severus et Antoninus AA. Eutycho. Patrem emancipato filio consentientem ad decurionatum non teneri dubii iuris non est: tunc enim consentiendo pater ad decurionatum obligatur, si filium in potestate habeat. consentire autem etiam is videtur, qui non testificatur dissentire nominationi.

Fifty-Ninth Title Infamous Persons

[1] Emperors DIOCLETIAN and MAXIMIAN to Chariton. Infamous persons (infames),[264] although they cannot share in any offices that are customarily offered to people of uncompromised rank, nevertheless do not have a dispensation from the services of decurions or from civic ones. Rather, for the public protection they must satisfy the regular public charges (indictiones).

Sixtieth Title Indicted Defendants

[1] Emperor ALEXANDER Augustus to Nicias. Rescripts have often been issued both by Our deified parents and by myself that defendants indicted for a crime cannot seek new offices before they make clear their own innocence.[265]

Sixty-First Title Those Sent into Exile or Removed from the Council

[1] Part of an Edict of Emperor ANTONINUS Augustus, Posted at Rome, July 11, in the consulship of the two Aspri. Infamy will not be extended for those who henceforth are banned temporarily from their council or advocacies after the completion of their term.[266]

(212).

[2] Emperor GORDIAN Augustus to Ulpius. A decurion who was ordered into exile for a time and returns when the time is completed regains his earlier rank, but he is not admitted to new offices unless he has abstained from these for a time at least as long as he was absent because of exile.

Sixty-Second Title Sons in Power and How a Father Is Held Liable for Them

[1] Emperors SEVERUS and ANTONINUS Augusti to Eutychus. The law is not doubtful that a father is not held liable for service as a decurion when he consents on behalf of an emancipated son. A father is obligated by consent for service as a decurion if he should have the son in his power. However, someone is seen as consenting who does not assert that he disagrees with the nomination.

[264] The term infamis designates persons involved in disgraced professions, as well as people who have suffered legal disabilities as a result of criminal convictions and certain civil suits. The following phrase is taken from C. 12.35.2.

[265] C. 2.12.6 (223) is a comparable rescript from Alexander Severus.

[266] For the edict referred to, see Ulpian, D. 50.2.3.1.

[2] Imp. Aurelianus A. Aspasio. Cum appellasse te dicas, ostendis causam ad te pertinere: potueras enim nominato filio tantum contestari et non consentire honori ei delato.

[3] Impp. Diocletianus et Maximianus AA. Crispino. pr. Si ii, qui cum patre ad protostasiae munus vocati sunt, etiam nunc in patria potestate constituti sunt, ab huiusmodi necessitatibus liberentur, cum ex eadem familia ac domo duos ad ista obsequia destinari periniquum videatur. 1. Sane eos, quos emancipatos esse atque ex familia exisse manifestum est, sine cunctatione retinere debebis.

[4] Idem AA. Alexandro. pr. Sine periculo tuo magistratus filium tuum curatorem constituit nec appellandi tibi necessitas incumbebat. 1. Sane nominator, qui filium in potestate positum non consentiente patre ad munus devocavit, si tamen ex voluntate tua antea filius decurio factus non erat, detrimento muneris obligabitur.

LXIII De Periculo Successorum Parentis

[1] Imp. Alexander A. Claudiano. Si de proprio suo patrimonio muneris editionem tuo nomine pater tuus repromisit ideoque etiam sacerdotem te creari impetravit, onus erogationis commune omnium heredum eius esse praeses provinciae non ignorabit.

LXIIII De Mulieribus in Quo Loco Munera Sexui Congruentia et Honores Agnoscant

[1] Imp. Philippus A. Claudio. Malchaeam, quae aliunde oriunda alibi nupta est, si non in urbe Roma maritus eius consistat, non apud originem suam, sed apud incolatum mariti ad honores seu munera, quae personis cohaerent quorumque is sexus capax esse potest, compelli posse saepe rescriptum est. patrimonii vero munera necesse est mulieres in his locis in quibus possident sustinere.

[2] Emperor AURELIAN Augustus to Aspasius. Since you say that you have appealed, you show that the case applies to you (and hence you are liable). For you could have just made a declaration when your son was nominated and not consented to the office conferred on him.

[3] Emperors DIOCLETIAN and MAXIMIAN Augusti to Crispinus. pr. If those who have been called along with their father to serve as the chief tax collector[267] are even now established in their father's power, they shall be freed from such obligations, since it seems quite unjust that two persons from the same family and household be nominated for these duties. 1. Certainly, you will be obliged to retain without hesitation those who have manifestly been emancipated and have left the family.

[4][268] The same Augusti to Alexander. pr. The magistrate appointed your son as curator without your risk, and (so) the necessity of appealing was not incumbent upon you. 1. Certainly the nominator, who without the father's consent summoned a son placed in (his father's) power to a service, will be obligated for any loss from the service only if the son had not previously been made decurion in accordance with your wish.

Sixty-Third Title The Risk of the Parent's Successors

[1] Emperor ALEXANDER Augustus to Claudianus. If your father promised from his own patrimony the performance of games in your name and for that reason brought about your also being made a priest, the provincial governor will not ignore that the burden of the expense is shared by all of his heirs.

Sixty-Fourth Title In What Place Women Should Acknowledge Services and Offices Appropriate to Their Sex

[1] Emperor PHILIP Augustus to Claudius. Rescripts have often been issued that (a woman such as) Malchaea, who though born in one place was married in another, if her husband should not be present in the city of Rome, can be compelled to the offices or services that adhere to persons and of which that sex can be capable, not in her city of origin, but where her husband lives. But women must sustain patrimonial services in those places in which they possess property.

[267] Protostasia, also in C. 10.42.8.
[268] Combine with C. 10.32.5 (286).

LXV De Legationibus

[1] Impp. Valerianus et Gallienus AA. Achillino. Pater trium incolumium liberorum legationibus publicis liberatur.

[2] Idem AA. et Valerianus C. Marco. pr. Cum vos proprio nomine sumptus ob defensionem publicam susceperitis, id, quod ad proprias erogationes collega vester acceperat, non vobis reddere heredes eius, sed si in ea causa est, ut restitui omnino oporteat, rei publicae debent potius inferre. 1. Sane si honorariis advocatorum erat ea quantitas destinata, restitui illud vobis, qui haec praestaturi estis, non iniuria postulatis. 2. Eum autem collegam vestrum, quem defensione patriae destitisse dicitis, apud provinciae praesidem desertae adlegationis arguere potestis.

[3] Impp. Diocletianus et Maximianus AA. Muciano. Transmarina legatione apud nos perfunctos constitutum est biennii vacationem munerum civilium et honorum habere, non eos, qui de proximo obsequium rei publicae videntur exhibuisse.

[4] Imp. Constantius A. ad Titianum. pr. Universi omnino ex comitibus vel ex praesidibus, qui suffragio perceperint dignitates, civilibus oneribus muneribusque teneantur adstricti, ne commoda publica cum umbratili suffragiorum pactione lacerentur. 1. Eos tamen a praedictis oneribus excipi oportebit, qui in legationibus publicis versati sunt.

D. prid. k. Iul. Triveris Placido et Romulo conss.

[5] Imppp. Theodosius Arcadius et Honorius AAA. Apodemio pp. Illyrici. pr. Si quod extraordinarium concilium postulatur, cum vel ad nos est mittenda legatio vel vestrae sedi aliquid intimandum, id, quod inter omnes communi consilio tractatuque convenerit, minime in examen cognitoris ordinarii referatur. 1. Provincialium enim desideria, quibus necessaria saepe fortuitis remedia deposcuntur, vobis agnoscere atque

Sixty-Fifth Title Embassies[269]

[1] Emperors Valerian and Gallienus Augusti to Achillinus. A father of three living children is freed from public embassies (legationes).

[2] The same Augusti and Valerian Caesar to Marcus. pr. Since you (plural) have undertaken expenses in your own name for defending the interests of your town (defensio publica), your colleague's heirs do not have to pay back to you what he had received for his own expenditures, but, if it is of such a nature that it must be returned to begin with, they should rather pay it to the municipality. 1. Certainly if that amount had been assigned for advocates' honoraria, you do not wrongfully request that it be restored to yourselves, since you are going to provide these (expenses). 2. But before the provincial governor you can accuse that colleague of yours, who you say failed in the defense of his hometown, of deserting the embassy.

[3] Emperors Diocletian and Maximian Augusti to Mucianus. It has been established in a constitution that those who have performed an overseas embassy with Us have a dispensation for two years from civic services and offices, not those who are seen to have displayed obedience to a municipality at a short distance.

[4][270] Emperor Constantius Augustus to Titianus. pr. All former Counts and governors who have gained their rank by recommendations[271] shall be held bound to civic (civilibus) burdens and services, lest the public interests be torn to shreds by a private agreement for recommendations. 1. Those persons, however, who have been involved in public embassies must be excepted from the aforesaid burdens.

Given June 30, at Trier, on the consulship of Placidus and Romulus (343).

[5][272] Emperors Theodosius, Arcadius, and Honorius Augusti to Apodemius, Praetorian Prefect for Illyricum. pr. If any extraordinary council is requested, when, for example, an embassy has to be sent to Us, or something has to be communicated to your office, what has been agreed upon among all by a common plan and consideration should not be referred for examination by an ordinary investigator. 1. For We permit you to acknowledge and explore the fortuitous desires of the provincials, for which necessary remedies are often

269 See. D. 50.7.
270 = C.Th. 12.1.36, with fuller wording, and the additional provision that those mentioned be liable to capitation tax.
271 On recommendations to gain a privilege or title, see C. 4.3.
272 = C.Th. 12.12.12, with some differences in wording; the second half of 1, from "but" on, is restored from this source.

explorare permittimus, ut sit examinis tui, quae ex his auxilio tuo protinus implenda sunt, et quae clementiae nostrae auribus intimanda videantur. 2. In loco autem publico de communi utilitate provincialium sententia proferatur, atque id, quod maioris partis probaverit adsensus, sollemnis firmet auctoritas.

D. v k. Aug. Constantinopoli Arcadio A. II et Rufino conss.

[6] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Monaxio pp. Quotiens ab Alexandrina civitate legatio destinatur, universos curiales praecipimus, qui intra urbem consistunt, si non aegritudine vel alia inexcusabili necessitate impediuntur, in locum curiae convenire et decreta sua propria subscriptione firmata viro spectabili praefecto Augustali insinuare, ut eius relatione comitati tuis virtutibus suas petitiones intiment et sub examine tuo perpensa legatione res ordinetur.

D. III non. Oct. Constantinopoli Theodosio A. VII et Palladio vc. conss.

LXVI De Excusationibus Artificum

[1] Imp. Constantinus A. ad Maximum pp. Artifices artium brevi subdito comprehensarum per singulas civitates morantes ab universis muneribus vacare praecipimus, si quidem ediscendis artibus otium sit accommodandum, quo magis cupiant et ipsi peritiores fieri et suos filios erudire.

D. IIII non. Aug. Feliciano et Titiano conss.

Et est notitia ista: architecti medici mulomedici pictores statuarii marmorarii lectarii seu laccarii clavicarii quadrigarii quadratarii (quos Graeco vocabulo λιθοθήκτας appellant) structores (id est aedificatores) sculptores ligni musarii deauratores albini (quos Graeci κονιάτας appellant) argentarii barbaricarii diatretarii aerarii fusores signarii fabri bracarii aquae libratores figuli (qui Graece κεραμεῖς dicuntur) aurifices vitrearii plumarii specularii eborarii pelliones fullones carpentarii sculptores dealbatores cusores linarii tignarii blattearii (id est πεταλουργοί).

demanded, but in such a way that it be your decision as to which of these are to be fulfilled with your help and which it might seem have to be communicated to the ears of Our Clemency. 2. However, the verdict (sententia) concerning the common utility of the provincials shall be produced in a public place, and the established authority shall affirm what the agreement of the majority has approved.

Given July 28, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Arcadius Augustus, for the second time, and Rufinus (392).

[6][273] Emperors HONORIUS and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Monaxius, Praetorian Prefect. Whenever an embassy from the city of Alexandria is appointed, We instruct all decurions who live within the city, if they are not impeded by illness or another ineluctable necessity, to meet in the place of the council and to affix on the decrees their own signature affirmed by the vir spectabilis Augustal Prefect, so that, accompanied by his report, they might communicate their petitions to Your Virtues and the matter might be ordered upon the consideration of the embassy under your examination.

Given October 5, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Theodosius Augustus, for the seventh time, and vir clarissimus Palladius (416).

Sixty-Sixth Title Excusing of Artisans

[1][274] Emperor CONSTANTINE Augustus to Maximus, Praetorian Prefect. We instruct that artisans of the crafts included in the submitted brief, living in individual cities, have a dispensation from all services, if indeed their free time is devoted to learning their skills, so that they more desire both to become more skilled themselves and to teach their sons.

Given August 2, in the consulship of Felicianus and Titianus (337).

And there is this notice: architects, doctors, mule veterinarians, painters, statue makers, marble masons, couch makers or cistern-keepers, locksmiths, chariot racers, stone cutters whom they call by the Greek term lithothektai, masons – that is, builders – wood engravers, mosaic workers, gilders, stucco workers whom the Greeks call koniatai, silver smiths, gold embroiderers, filigree workers, bronze smiths, metal founders, sculptors, trouser makers, water levelers, potters who in Greek are called kerameis, goldsmiths, glassblowers, feather embroiders,[275] mirror makers, ivory workers, furriers, fullers, wagon makers, engravers, whitewashers, coin makers, linen weavers, beam makers, purple dye workers – that is, petalourgoi.

[273] = C.Th. 12.12.15, with much fuller wording but omitting mention of Alexandria. The last clause is restored from the C.Th.

[274] = C.Th. 13.4.2.

[275] C.Th. has plumbarii, lead workers, for plumarii.

[2] Idem AA. ad Leontium pp. Mechanicos et geometras et architectos, qui divisiones partium omnium incisionesque servant mensurisque et institutis operam fabricationibus stringunt, et eos, qui aquarum inventos ductus et modos docili libratione ostendunt, in par studium docendi atque discendi nostro sermone compellimus. itaque immunitatibus gaudeant et suscipiant docendos, qui docere sufficiunt.

D. prid. non. Iul. Leontio et Sallustio conss.

LXVII De Potioribus ad Munera Nominandis

[1] Imp. Antoninus A. Basilidae. Si ipse vocatus ad munera civilia potiorem alium nominandum putaveris, age causam tuam.

LXVIII Si Propter Inimicitias Creatio Facta Sit

[1] Imp. Alexander A. Aniceto. Si propter inimicitias ad munera civilia creatus es, hanc tibi nominationem non nocere praesidis aequitas faciet, cum et publicae utilitatis intersit non ex inimicitia creationes fieri debere, sed existimatione vera et commodo rei publicae.

LXVIIII De Sumptuum Recuperatione

[1] Imp. Gordianus A. Dionysio. Muneribus civilibus non fungeris, quae personis mandantur, si quinque filios incolumes habeas. at si contra id privilegium ad munus fatigandi tui causa quidam te devocaverint tuque appellatione interposita securitatem reportaveris, a nominatoribus sumptus quos in litem feceris recuperabis.

[2][276] The same Augusti to Leontius, Praetorian Prefect. By Our speech We compel into an equal zeal for teaching and learning: mechanics, surveyors, and architects, who maintain the divisions and sections of all parts and stick strictly to measurements and construction plans, as well as those who find and show the directions and amounts of water (aqueducts) with skillful leveling. Thus, those who are capable of teaching should rejoice in immunities and take up pupils to teach.

Given July 6, in the consulship of Leontius and Sallustius (344).

Sixty-Seventh Title Nominating More Qualified People for Services

[1] Emperor ANTONINUS Augustus to Basilides. If you yourself, after being called to public services, think another more qualified person should be nominated, pursue your case.

Sixty-Eighth Title If an Appointment Has Been Made on Account of Enmity

[1] Emperor ALEXANDER Augustus to Anicetus. If you have been appointed to civic services on account of enmity, the fairness of the governor will bring about that this nomination not harm you, since it matters also for the public interest that appointments take place not on the basis of enmity, but on the basis of a true evaluation and the interest of the municipality.

Sixty-Ninth Title The Recuperation of Expenses

[1] Emperor GORDIAN Augustus to Dionysius. You do not perform civic services that are mandated to persons if you have five living children. But if some persons contrary to this privilege have summoned you to a service in order to wear you out, and you, after making an appeal, have obtained an exemption, you will recover from the nominators the expenses you have made for the lawsuit.

[276] = C.Th. 13.4.3, which correctly has the emperors as Constantius and Constans.

LXX Si Post Creationem Quis Decesserit

[1] Imp. Gordianus A. Asiatico. Si ante diem subeundi honoris atque muneris pater tuus defunctus est, conveniri eo nomine heredes eius non oportere praeses provinciae minime ambigit.

LXXI De Tabulariis Scribis Logographis et Censualibus

[1] Imp. Constantius A. ad Catullinum pp. Nullus omnino ex tabulariis vel scribis vel logographis eorumque filiis in quocumque officio militet, sed ex omnibus officiis, nec non et si intra nostrum palatium militant, necdum impleto quinquennio reperti et retracti protinus officiis municipalibus reddantur.

D. VIII k. Iul. Lauriaco Marcellino et Probino conss.

[2] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. Quicumque decurionum sponte se censuali ministerio manciparit, condicionem habeat, quam ipse delegit, depositurus sui ordinis penitus dignitatem, si eum necessitas quaestioni subdendum invenerit.

D. XV k. Oct. Constantinopoli Ricomere et Clearcho conss.

[3] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Hadriano pp. pr. Generali lege sancimus, ut, sive solidis provinciis sive singulis civitatibus necessarii fuerint tabularii, liberi homines ordinentur neque ulli deinceps ad hoc officium patescat aditus, qui sit obnoxius servituti. 1. Sed et si quis dominorum servum suum sive colonum chartas publicas agere permiserit (consensum enim, non ignorantiam volumus obligari), ipsum quidem, in quantum interfuerit publicae utilitati, pro ratiociniis, quae servo sive colono agente tractata sunt, obnoxium attineri, servum autem competentibus

Seventieth Title If Someone Dies after His Appointment

[1] Emperor Gordian Augustus to Asiaticus. If your father died before the day for undergoing his office and service, the provincial governor does not at all doubt that his heirs must not be sued on that account.

Seventy-First Title Tax Officials, Scribes, Bookkeepers, and Assessors[277]

[1][278] Emperor Constantius Augustus to Catullinus, Praetorian Prefect. No one at all from among the tax officials (tabularii), scribes, or bookkeepers (logographi)[279] or their sons are to serve in any (imperial) office, but having been discovered and removed from all offices, even if they serve within Our palace, before the completion of a five-year period, they shall be restored straightaway to municipal offices.

Given June 24, at Lauriacum (Lorch), in the consulship of Marcellinus and Probinus (341).

[2][280] Emperors Gratian, Valentinian, and Theodosius Augusti. Whoever of the decurions delivers himself over to service as an assessor (censualis) shall have the condition that he has himself chosen, but will give up completely the rank of his order, if necessity finds that he must undergo interrogation.[281]

Given September 17, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Richomer and Clearchus (384).

[3][282] Emperors Arcadius and Honorius Augusti to Hadrian, Praetorian Prefect. pr. We ordain by a general law that if tax officials become necessary either for entire provinces or individual cities, free men be appointed, and that no entry to this office be available to anyone who is liable to slavery. 1. But if any owner permits his slave or bound tenant to manage public documents – for We want his consent, not his ignorance, to be obligated – he himself, as much as this is in the public interest, is held liable for the accounts that have been handled under the management of the slave or bound tenant, while the slave, having been subjected to an appropriate lashing, is assigned to the [277] "Assessors" is a translation for the term censuales, who were subordinate to the City Prefect in Rome and Constantinople and oversaw the taxation of senators, among other responsibilities.

[278] = C.Th.8.2.1, 12.1.31, the latter of which has the emperors correctly as Constantius and Constans.

[279] The C.Th. version has decurions, and it also has the people concerned restored to "municipal councils and offices."

[280] = C.Th. 8.2.4.

[281] As Blume points out, decurions could not be subjected to torture.

[282] = C.Th. 8.2.5.

adfectum verberibus fisco addici. dominorum enim interfuit ab initio providere, ne publicis actibus privata servitia immiscerentur.

D. VIII k. April. Mediolani Vincentio et Fravito conss.

[4] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Cyro pp. Boëthos logistarum demogrammateos logographos diastoleos, quae vocabula publicis dicuntur subiacere necessitatibus, sive quolibet alio nomine nuncupentur, non honore aut alicuius privilegii colore subnixos pro definitione legum inexorabilium suam fortunam subire compelli, quatenus nec publicis quicquam noceatur aut minuatur utilitatibus, et suis corporibus illi reddantur, quos vel patris vel maiorum obligatio vel sua constringit.

LXXII De Susceptoribus Praepositis et Arcariis

[1] Imp. Constantinus A. ad Euphrasium rationalem trium provinciarum. pr. Susceptores publicos absque omni mora aurum suscipere censemus, ne quis per hanc occasionem sumptus facere compellatur. 1. Nam si solvere volens a suscipiente fuerit contemptus, testibus adhibitis contestationem debebit proponere, ut hoc probato et ipse securitatem debitam commissi nexu liberatus cum emolumentis accipiat et, qui suscipere neglexerit, eius ponderis quod debebatur in duplum fisci rationibus per vigorem officii praesidis inferre cogatur. 2. Quod autem susceptores iudice cuius interest neglegente violaverint, ex ipsius iudicis facultatibus sarcietur.

D. XIIII k. Aug. Paulino et Iuliano conss.

[2] Impp. Valentinianus et Valens AA. ad Secundum pp. Iuxta inveteratas leges nominatores susceptorum et eorum, qui ad praeposituram horreorum et pagorum creantur, teneantur obnoxii, si minus idonei sint, qui ab isdem fuerint nominati, nec quicquam ex eorum substantia celebrata per interpositam personam emptione mercentur.

Treasury. For it was in the interest of owners to make sure from the outset that private slaves not be involved in public business.

Given March 25, at Milan, in the consulship of Vincentius and Fravitus (401).

[4] Emperors Theodosius and Valentinian Augusti to Cyrus, Praetorian Prefect. Assistants of city curators (logistae), public scribes, bookkeepers (logographi), and auditors – titles that are said to be subordinate to public necessities – or by whatever other name they might be called, supported by neither an office nor the pretext of any privilege, are compelled to undergo their fortune in accordance with the prescription of the inexorable laws, insofar as the public interests are neither harmed not diminished; and those whom either an obligation of their father or ancestors or of their own binds shall be returned to their corporations (corpora).

(440–441).[283]

Seventy-Second Title Tax Collectors, Bureau Chiefs, and Bookkeepers

[1][284] Emperor Constantine Augustus to Euphrasius, Comptroller of the Three Provinces (Sardinia, Sicily, and Corsica). pr. We decree that the public tax collectors (susceptores) exact gold without any delay, lest anyone be compelled to bear expenses as a result of this pretext. 1. For if someone willing to pay has been scorned by the collector, he will be obliged to provide his testimony after summoning witnesses, so that, having proved this, he himself receive the receipt he is owed along with his expenses (emolumenta), having been freed from the bond of confiscation, and the one who neglected to collect be compelled by the vigor of the governor's office to pay to the accounts of the Treasury double the weight of what was owed. 2. If the governor (iudex) responsible for it neglects any violation that the tax collectors have committed, it will be made good from the resources of the governor himself.

Given July 19, in the consulship of Paulinus and Julian (325).

[2][285] Emperors Valentinian and Valens Augusti to Secundus, Praetorian Prefect. In accordance with laws of long standing, nominators of tax collectors or of those who are elected to head granaries and districts (pagi), shall be held liable if the ones nominated by these same people should not be suitable, nor are they to acquire anything from their property by purchase completed through an intermediary.

[283] Seeck dates to August 18, 441.
[284] = C.Th. 12.6.2, with substantially different wording. Combine with C. 10.73.1.
[285] = C.Th. 12.6.8.

D. III k. Aug. Constantinopoli Valentiniano et Valente AA. conss.

[3] Idem AA. ad Mamertinum pp. Susceptores novi non modo praesentis anni debita, verum etiam species, quas ex reliquis inferunt, quia novae sunt ac recentes, suscipiant.

D. prid. k. Nov. Romae Valentiniano et Valente AA. conss.

[4] Idem AA. ad Florentium comitem sacrarum largitionum. pr. Neminem susceptionis munere functum ad idem munus adstringi, nisi prius se vinculo sollicitudinis superioris absolverit. nam neque eos qui placuerint gravare iusti est, neque illos qui displicuerint tenere prudentis. 1. Integro igitur singuli anniversario anno transcurso cogantur exponere, quibus titulis suscepta disperserint, ut facilius, si quis in furto fuerit deprehensus, recentem queat redintegrare iacturam. 2. Non perpetui autem exactores teneantur in continuata vexandorum provincialium potestate, veluti concussionum dominatione, sed per annos singulos iudiciaria sedulitate mutentur, nisi aut consuetudo civitatis aut raritas ordinis eos per biennium esse compellat.

D. XV k. Oct. Mantebri Gratiano nob. puero et Dagalaifo conss.

[5] Idem AA. ad Germanianum comitem sacrarum largitionum. Quotienscumque certa summa solidorum pro tituli qualitate debetur et auri massa transmittitur, in septuaginta duos solidos libra feratur accepta.

D. VI id. Ian. Romae Lupicino et Iovino conss.

[6] Idem AA. et Gratianus A. ad Chilonem. Frumenta, quae horreis inferuntur, pro illationis modo ilico apocharum cautionibus Given July 30,[286] at Constantinople, in the consulship of Valentinian and Valens Augusti (365).

[3][287] The same Augusti to Mamertinus, Praetorian Prefect. New tax collectors should receive not only what is owed for the present year, but also taxes in kind that they (the taxpayers) pay on the basis of arrears, since they (the taxes in kind) are new and fresh.

Given October 31, at Rome, in the consulship of Valentinian and Valens Augusti (365).

[4][288] The same Augusti to Florentius, Count of Imperial Finances. pr. No one who has performed the task of tax collecting is to be bound to the same service unless he has first absolved himself from the fetter of his previous care. For it is not the mark of a just person to burden those who have performed satisfactory service, nor of a prudent person to hold those who have been unsatisfactory. 1. Therefore after the passage of an entire year they shall be compelled individually to set out the accounts in which they have paid what they have received, so that, if anyone has been caught in theft, he more easily be able to restore a recent loss. 2. For tax collectors shall not be held perpetually in a continuing power to vex the provincials, as if in domination resulting from extortion, but they must be changed for individual years by the diligence of the governor, unless either the custom of the city of the lack of candidates in the council (ordo) should compel them to serve for a two-year period.

Given September 17, at Mantebrum, in the consulship of Gratian, Most Noble Boy, and Dagalaifus (366).

[5][289] The same Augusti to Germanianus, Count of Imperial Finances. Whenever a certain sum of solidi is owed in accordance with the nature of the account and a lump of gold is transferred, a pound (of gold) shall be considered accepted as the equivalent of 72 solidi.

Given January 8, at Rome, in the consulship of Lupicinus and Jovinus (367).

[6][290] The same Augusti and Gratian Augustus to Chilo. Grain that is paid into the granaries should immediately be noted with written receipts (apocharum

[286] Since the date of C.Th. 12.6.7 is August 4, 365, Krüger suggests amending this date to August 11 (iii id. Aug.).
[287] = C.Th. 12.6.10, which has "are paid." Krüger points out that Mamertinus had already been succeeded as Praetorian Prefect by July 22, 365. Seeck dates to October 31, 364.
[288] Pr.-1 = C.Th. 12.6.11. Section 2 = C.Th. 12.6.22 (November 30, 386). Seeck dates to September 17, 365; Schmidt-Hofner, to from March, 364, until July, 365.
[289] = C.Th. 12.6.13.1. Combine with C. 11.7.2, and possibly 11.11.1. "At Rome" is an emendation for "at Reims" here and at C. 11.7.2.
[290] = C.Th. 12.6.16.

adnotentur. non autem oportet in horreis fiscalibus nisi fiscalia frumenta constitui.

D. v id. April. Treviris post consulatum Gratiani A. III et Equitii vc.

[7] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. have Hypati carissime nobis. Minime diu penes ipsos susceptores maneat facta collatio, sed statim quodcumque a provincialibus fuerit exsolutum sacris thesauris inferatur.

D. III k. Mai. Constantinopoli post consulatum Antonii et Syagrii.

[8] Imppp. Valentinianus Theodosius et Arcadius AAA. Cynegio pp. Exactores vel susceptores in celeberrimo coetu curiae consensu et iudicio omnium sub actorum testificatione firmentur, provinciarumque rectoribus eorum nomina, qui ad publici munus officii editi atque obligati fuerint, innotescant. et animadvertant, quicumque nominaverint, ad discrimen suum universa quae illi gesserint redundare.

D. VI k. Nov. Constantinopoli Honorio np. et Euodio conss.

[9] Idem AAA. Cynegio pp. pr. Modios aeneos atque lapideos cum sextariis atque ponderibus per mansiones singulasque civitates iussimus collocari, ut unusquisque tributarius sub oculis constitutis rerum omnium modis sciat, quid debeat susceptoribus dare: ita ut, si quis susceptorum conditorum modiorum sextariorumque vel ponderum normam putaverit excedendam, poenam se sciat competentem esse subiturum. 1. Et submotis, quae contra utilitatem populorum omnium hactenus gesta sunt, frumenti quinquagesimas, hordei quadragesimas, vini et laridi vicesimas susceptoribus dari praecipimus. 2. Humanitatis autem necessitate commoti in Armeniae susceptionibus longinquitatis causa frumenti et hordei quadragesimas, vini et laridi quintas decimas dari praecipimus.

D. IIII k. Dec. Constantinopoli Honorio np. et Euodio vc. conss.

cautionibus) in accordance with the amount of the payment. But no grain should be deposited in granaries belonging to the Treasury except for Treasury grain.

Given April 9, at Trier, in the post-consulate of Gratian Augustus, for the third time, and the vir clarissimus Equitius (375).

[7] Emperors GRATIAN, VALENTINIAN, and THEODOSIUS Augusti: Hail Hypatius, most dear to Us. A payment when made should not remain for long at all with the tax collectors themselves, but whatever has been paid by the provincials should at once be delivered into the sacred Treasuries.

Given April 29, at Constantinople, in the post-consulate of Antonius and Syagrius (383).

[8][291] Emperors VALENTINIAN, THEODOSIUS, and ARCADIUS Augusti to Cynegius, Praetorian Prefect. Tax exactors or collectors shall be approved in the fullest meeting of the council by the consensus and judgment of everyone under the testimony of the written record, and the names of those who have been nominated and obligated for the service of public office are to be made known to the governors of the provinces. And those who have nominated candidates should be aware that everything that they (the nominees) do redounds to their own risk.

Given October 27, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Honorius, Most Noble Boy, and Euodius (386).

[9][292] The same Augusti to Cynegius, Praetorian Prefect. pr. We have ordered that bronze and stone modius measures along with sextarii (one-sixteenth of a modius) and weights be provided at the way stations and individual towns, so that each and every taxpayer should know by his own eyes, with the measures established for all things, what he ought to give to the tax collectors, under this (further) condition, that if any tax collector thinks the norm of the established modius and sextarius measures or the weights should be exceeded, he shall know that he will undergo a suitable punishment. 1. And removing those practices that have up to now been contrary to the interest of all peoples, We instruct that the tax collectors be given one-fiftieth of the grain, one-fortieth of the barley, and one-twentieth of wine and bacon. 2. However, moved by the necessity of kindness, We instruct that, in the cases of tax collections in Armenia, because of the long distances, they be given one-fortieth of grain and barley, and one-fifteenth of wine and bacon.

Given November 28, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Honorius, Most Noble Boy, and the vir clarissimus Euodius (386).

[291] = C.Th. 12.6.20.
[292] = C.Th. 12.6.21. A modius is roughly 1 peck, the standard Roman dry measure.

[10] Idem AAA. Cynegio pp. Susceptores praesentibus defensoribus et modum iugationis possessorum et species singulas vel earum numerum quantitatemque perscribant.

D. IIII k. Dec. Constantinopoli Timasio et Promoto conss.

[11] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Benigno vicario urbis Romae. Securitates semel publicatas et gestis lectas vini susceptoribus imputari et coeptam arcae discussionem volumus in apertum quaesita ratione deduci et omnes publicas securitates quae gestis tenentur a susceptoribus accepto ferri.

D. VI id. Iun. Mediolani Stilichone et Aureliano conss.

[12] Idem AA. Pompeiano suo salutem. Si aliquid a susceptore vel tabulario fraudis admissum esse possessor deprehendat, nemo eorum semel in interversione convictus id rursus officium gerat, in quo ante decoxit, etsi rescriptum nostrum elicitum clandestina supplicatione tulerit.

D. prid. k. Ian. Mediolani Stilichone et Aureliano conss.

[13] Idem AA. Lucio comiti sacrarum largitionum. pr. Duos tabularios seu numerarios et susceptores totidem per universas provincias oportere constitui clementia nostra praecepit. 1. Scire autem volumus praetorianam amplissimam praefecturam eos, qui aurum largitionale susceperunt, nihil cum arcae ratiociniis habere commune, iudices autem provinciarum quinque libris auri multandos et primates officiorum capitali poena plectendos, si hoc non fuerit custoditum.

[10][293] The same Augusti to Cynegius, Praetorian Prefect. Tax collectors shall write down both the amount of the landowners' tax liability for land (iugatio) and their individual taxes in kind (species), or the number and quantity of these, in the presence of defenders (defensores, community advocates in tax matters).

Given November 28, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Timasius and Promotus (389).

[11][294] Emperors Arcadius and Honorius Augusti to Benignus, Vicar of Rome. We wish that receipts, once published and read into the records, be reckoned for the collectors of wine and that the audit of the accounts of the treasury (arca) once begun be brought out in the open with precise calculation and that all public receipts that are contained in the records be carried as received by the tax collectors.

Given June 8, at Milan, in the consulship of Stilicho and Aurelianus (400).

[12][295] The same Augusti send greetings to their Pompeianus. If a landowner should discover that any fraud has been committed by a tax collector or official of the tax office (tabularius), no one of them, once convicted for pilfering, shall ever again hold the office in which he previously rifled property, even if he brings Our rescript elicited by a furtive supplication.

Given December 31, at Milan, in the consulship of Stilicho and Aurelianus (400).

[13] The same Augusti[296] to Lucius, Count of Imperial Finances. pr. Our Clemency has instructed that two tax officials (tabularii) or auditors (numerarii) and an equal number of tax collectors must be appointed through all the provinces. 1. However, We want the most magnificent Praetorian Prefecture to know that those who have collected gold belonging to the imperial Treasury (aurum largitionale) have nothing to do with the reckonings of the (Prefecture's) treasury (arca); the provincial governors are to be fined 5 pounds of gold, and the chiefs (primates) of the offices visited with capital punishment, if this (separation) is not maintained.[297]

[293] = C.Th. 12.6.23. Seeck dates to November 28, 386.

[294] = C.Th. 12.6.26.

[295] = C.Th. 12.6.27.. Combine with C. 9.26.1, 12.61.3; C.Th. 1.12.8, 11.1.28.

[296] Krüger, based on C.Th. 12.6.29, adds Theodosius as an Augustus.

[297] Blume: "The meaning of 'arcae,' just as the term 'fiscalis arcae' in C. 12.49.4, is not beyond all doubt. It has sometimes been accepted as referring to a fund, or chest, of the Crown Domain, under the immediate control of the governor, and the ultimate control of the Comptroller and Count of the Crown Domain ... But the term was frequently used to designate the chest of the praetorian prefect. That was true particularly in Justinian's time." As Blume notes, other constitutions, including C. 10.75.3 (= C. 11.65.5.1), show "the constant encroachment by the praetorian prefect on the other funds and the fact that the emperors by this legislation attempted to prohibit that."

D. VI k. Febr. Basso et Philippo conss.

[14] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Euchario suo salutem. pr. Humilioribus officiis aut extraordinariis oneribus occupari curiales non patimur, ne publica vacillet utilitas. 1. Susceptionem itaque vestium aequius est ab officio proconsulari vel ab his qui in eodem meruerunt sollemniter procurari. horum namque interest huiusmodi explorare rationem et quaerere qualitatem eorum, quorum ad contuendum cura commodior est. neque enim aequum est, ut ad officium lucra, ad curialem susceptionis tantum damna pertineant. 2. Hanc igitur ab ordinibus iniuriam submovemus, exceptis his, si qui curialium in officio memorato aut militasse aut militare fuerit deprehensus.

D. prid. k. Mart. Ravennae Honorio VIIII et Theodosio V AA. conss.

[15] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Volusiano pp. pr. Aurum sive argentum quodcumque a possessore confertur, arcarius vel susceptor accipiat, ita ut provinciae moderator eiusque officium ad crimen suum noverit pertinere, si possessoribus ullum fuerit ex aliqua ponderum iniquitate illatum dispendium. 1. Et quidquid ex provinciis ad nostrum dirigetur aerarium, id ad illustres viros aerarii nostri comites relatione deferatur.

D. III k. Mart. Ravennae post consulatum Felicis et Tauri vv. cc.

LXXIII De Ponderatoribus et Auri Illatione

[1] Imp. Constantinus A. ad Euphrasium rationalem trium provinciarum. Aurum, quod infertur a collatoribus, si quis vel solidos voluerit vel materiam appendere, aequa lance et libramentis paribus suscipiatur.

PP. XIIII k. Aug. Paulino et Iuliano conss.

Given January 27, in the consulship of Bassus and Philippus (408).

[14][298] Emperors HONORIUS and THEODOSIUS Augusti send greetings to Eucharius. pr. We do not allow decurions to be occupied with more humble offices or with extraordinary burdens, lest the public utility totter. 1. Thus it is fairer that the collection of clothing[299] be customarily managed by the office of the Proconsul or by those who have served in it. For it is in their interest to explore this method and to investigate the quality of those persons. Moreover, it is not fair that profits accrue to the office, but only losses for the collection to the decurion. 2. Therefore We remove this injustice from the town councils, with the exception of those cases in which any of the decurions has been discovered to have served or to be serving in the aforementioned office.

Given February 29, at Ravenna, in the consulship of Honorius, for the ninth time, and Theodosius, for the fifth time, Augusti (412).

[15][300] Emperors THEODOSIUS and VALENTINIAN Augusti to Volusianus, Praetorian Prefect. pr. A bookkeeper (arcarius) or tax collector should receive any gold or silver that is paid by a landowner, under the condition that the provincial governor and his office know that they face criminal liability if any expenditure has been paid by the landowners as a result of any iniquity in the weights. 1. And whatever will be directed from the provinces to Our Treasury should be presented in a report to the viri illustres Counts of Our Treasury.

Given February 27, at Ravenna, in the post-consulate of the viri clarissimi Felix and Taurus (429).

Seventy-Third Title Weighers (Ponderatores) and the Payment of Gold

[1][301] Emperor CONSTANTINE Augustus to Euphrasius, Comptroller of the Three Provinces (Sardinia, Sicily, and Corsica). Gold that is paid by taxpayers shall be received with a fair balance and weights, if anyone wants to weigh out solidi or bullion.

Posted July 19, in the consulship of Paulinus and Julian (325).

[298] = C.Th. 12.6.31. Combine with C.Th. 6.29.9, 8.4.23, 11.1.32, 11.7.19–21, in which texts Eucharius is addressed as "Proconsul of Africa."

[299] The vestis militaris was a tax to provide clothing for soldiers.

[300] = C.Th. 12.6.32 pr. Combine with C. 12.60.5; C.Th. 11.1.35 (February 14, 429).

[301] = C.Th. 12.7.1 with fuller wording. Combine with C. 10.72.1 ("Given July 19").

[2] Imp. Iulianus A. ad Mamertinum pp. Quotiens de qualitate solidorum orta fuerit dubitatio, placet quem sermo Graecus appellat per singulas civitates constitutum zygostaten, qui pro sua fide atque industria neque fallat neque fallatur, contentionem dirimere.

D. VIIII k. Mai. Salonae Iuliano A. IIII et Sallustio conss.

LXXIIII De Auri Publici Prosecutoribus

[1] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Anthemio pp. pr. Auri prosecutores partim nulla praemissa, ut adsolet, prosecutoria aurum praesumunt, partim diutius retentant, quod statim fuerat adsignandum. 1. Ideoque censemus, ne quis absque praecepto viri illustris comitis sacrarum largitionum vel coquendum aurum sumat vel capiat deinceps retinendum.

D. XIII k. Aug. Honorio VIII et Theodosio III AA. conss.

LXXV De His Quae ex Publica Collatione Illata Sunt Non Usurpandis

[1] Imp. Constantinus A. Nullus iudicum id, quod a re publica ex collatione susceperit, mutui interventione opposita vel invadat vel conetur invadere.

D. prid. non. Mart. Treviris Paulino et Iuliano conss.

[2] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. Palladio. Nullus penitus ex eo, quod refertur in conditis vel in arca continetur, ad quemlibet titulum usurpet, nisi forte praesumendi facultatem sublimium potestatum iussione perceperit.

D. III id. April. Constantinopoli Antonio et Syagrio conss.

[2][302] Emperor JULIAN Augustus to Mamertinus, Praetorian Prefect. Whenever doubt has risen about the quality of solidi, it is decided that a person whom the Greek language calls a zygostates (weigher), appointed in individual cities, resolve the controversy, who in accordance with his faith and industry neither deceives nor is deceived.

Given April 23, at Salona, in the consulship of Julian Augustus, for the fourth time, and Sallustius (363).

Seventy-Fourth Title Conveyers (Prosecutores) of Public Gold

[1][303] Emperors HONORIUS and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Anthemius, Praetorian Prefect. pr. The conveyers of gold sometimes take the gold when no order for conveyance has been provided, as is customary, and sometimes they hold on to it for a rather long time when it should have been signed over at once. 1. For that reason We decree that no one, without an order of the vir illustris Count of Imperial Finances, either take up gold to be melted[304] or collect gold then to be retained.

Given July 20, in the consulship of Honorius, for the eighth time, and Theodosius, for the third time, Augusti (409).

Seventy-Fifth Title Not Usurping What Is Provided from Public Tax Payments

[1][305] Emperor CONSTANTINE Augustus. No governor (iudex) shall lay hold of or try to lay hold of what he has received from a municipality as a tax payment after providing security for a loan.

Given March 6, at Trier, in the consulship of Paulinus and Julian (325).

[2][306] Emperors GRATIAN, VALENTINIAN, and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Palladius. Absolutely no one shall appropriate for any purpose what is received in storehouses or contained in the treasury (arca), unless by chance he has received the right to take this by an order of the sublime powers.

Given April 11, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Antonius and Syagrius (382).

[302] = C.Th. 12.7.2, with different wording.
[303] = C.Th. 12.8.1. Combine with C.1.45.2, 11.2.5.
[304] Blume, following Gothofredus' emendation of cogendum for coquendum, translates this as "to be delivered."
[305] = C.Th. 12.9.1.
[306] = C.Th. 12.9.2. addressed, however, to Lampadius.

[3] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Messalae pp. Sciant iudices nihil sibi ex privatae rei canone vel ex eo, quod ex isdem titulis exegerint, ad necessitates alias transferre licere, nisi malint gravissima severitate suam licentiam coerceri.

D. xvi k. Iun. Mediolani Theodoro cons.

LXXVI De Auro Coronario

[1] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. Cynegio pp. Ad collationem auri coronarii placuit neminem absque consuetudine esse cogendum.

D. xv k. Febr. Constantinopoli Ricomere et Clearcho conss.

LXXVII De Irenarchis

[1] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Anthemio pp. Irenarchae, qui ad provinciarum tutelam quietis ac pacis per singula territoria faciunt stare concordiam, a decurionibus iudicio praesidum provinciarum idonei nominentur.

D. viii k. Ian. Constantinopoli Honorio viii et Theodosio iii AA. conss.

LXXVIII De Argenti Pretio Quod Thesauris Infertur

[1] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Eutychiano pp. Iubemus, ut pro argenti summa, quam quis thesauris fuerat illaturus, inferendi auri accipiat facultatem, ita ut pro singulis libris argenti quinos solidos inferat.

D. xi k. Mart. Constantinopoli Caesario et Attico conss.

[3][307] Emperors Arcadius and Honorius Augusti to Messala, Praetorian Prefect. Governors should know that they are not permitted to transfer to other needs anything from the tax (canon) for the Privy Purse (res privata) or from what they have derived from the same sources, unless they prefer that their lack of responsibility be curbed with the gravest severity.

Given May 17, at Milan, in the consulship of Theodorus (399).

Seventy-Sixth Title Crown Gold[308]

[1][309] Emperors Gratian, Valentinian, and Theodosius Augusti to Cynegius, Praetorian Prefect. It has been decided that no one is to be forced into paying crown gold beyond what is customary.

Given January 18, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Richomer and Clearchus (384).

Seventy-Seventh Title Peace Officers (Irenarchae)[310]

[1][311] Emperors Honorius and Theodosius Augusti to Anthemius, Praetorian Prefect. Peace officers, who, to maintain the quiet and peace of the provinces, cause concord to prevail in individual territories, shall be nominated as suitable by the decurions on the judgment of the provincial governors.

Given December 25, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Honorius, for the eighth time, and Theodosius, for the third time, Augusti (409).

Seventy-Eighth Title The Price of Silver That Is Paid into the Treasuries

[1][312] Emperors Arcadius and Honorius Augusti to Eutychianus, Praetorian Prefect. We order that, in accordance with the amount of silver that someone was going to pay to the treasuries, he receive the right to pay gold, so that he pay 5 solidi for each pound of silver.

Given February 19, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Caesarius and Atticus (397).

[307] = C. 11.65.5.1, with minor differences in wording, and C.Th. 12.9.3.
[308] The term aurum coronarium refers to a payment in gold occasionally levied from provincial communities at the beginning of an emperor's reign.
[309] = C.Th. 12.13.5. Combine with C. 8.11.7.
[310] Irenarchae were civic officials charged with maintaining public order.
[311] = C.Th. 12.14.1, with a quite different sense. It assails peace officers for abusing the towns they are supposed to protect and so calls for their abolition, and the Praetorian Prefect is to find other means to assure the peace in the provinces by assigning the task to wealthier people.
[312] = C.Th. 13.2.1.

Liber Undecimus

I De Tollenda Lustralis Auri Collatione

[1] [Αὐτοκράτωρ Ἀναστάσιος Α.] pr. Συγχωρεῖ πᾶσιν εἰς τέλειον τὴν συντέλειαν τὴν τοῦ χρυσαργύρου, ἐξῃρημένων τῶν πόλεων ἢ κωμῶν τῶν λαβουσῶν τι κατὰ τελευταίαν βούλησιν ὑπὲρ τοῦ συντελεῖν τοῦτο, ἤγουν ἐὰν ἀπὸ τοῦ δημοσίου δίδοταί τι ὑπὲρ τοῦ συντελεῖν τοῦτο. 1. Οἱ δὲ τὸ τέλος τοῦτο παρέχοντες ἄδειαν ἐχέτωσαν εἴτε ἐν Κωνσταντινουπόλει εἴτε ἐν τῇ ἐπαρχίᾳ καταβαλεῖν αὐτὸ εἴτε τὸν τέταρτον κατ' ἐνιαυτὸν εἴτε ὑπὲρ τετραετίαν, δίχα μέντοι ζημίας καὶ διαστροφῆς. 2. Εἰ δέ τι ἐκ περιττοῦ ᾖ μετὰ τὸ τοιοῦτο τέλος, ἀναλισκέσθω εἰς ἀναγκαίας χρείας τῆς πόλεως, οἷον ἔργα ἢ σιτωνείαν ἢ φῶτα ἢ τὰ ὅμοια. 3. Ἑκατὸν δὲ λίτρας ὁρίζει πρόστιμον τῇ σχολῇ τῶν παλατινῶν καὶ τοῖς ἄρχουσι καὶ τῇ τάξει καὶ τοῖς πολίταις, εἰ ταῦτα παραβαθεῖέν ποτε.

2. Μηδεὶς διαγραφέσθω εἰς θεωρητικὰ ἢ ἄλλα τινὰ προφάσει τοῦ κουφισθῆναι τὴν συντέλειαν τοῦ χρυσαργύρου, ἐπεὶ ἡ προειρημένη ποινὴ ἐπικείσεται.

II De Naviculariis seu Naucleris Publicas Species Transportantibus

[1] Imp. Constantius A. et Iulianus C. Olybrio pu. Nullam vim oportet navicularios sustinere delegatas species annonarias transferentes nec concussiones perpeti nec aliquod genus incommodi, sed venientes

Eleventh Book

edited by Dennis P. Kehoe

First Title Eliminating the Merchants Tax

[1][1] (Emperor Anastasius Augustus …) pr. It (the constitution) remits for everyone completely the payment of the merchants tax (chrysargyron), with the exception of those cities and villages that have taken something for its payment in accordance with a final will or if something has been given from public funds concerning its payment. 1. Those who are paying this impost shall have the freedom to pay it in Constantinople or in the province, whether a fourth of the amount each year or (the whole amount) after a four-year period, without a penalty or distortion (of the amount owed, diastrophe). 2. If there should be anything left over after this payment, it shall be used for necessary expenditures of the city, such as public works, the provision of grain, lights, or similar things. 3. It establishes a fine of 100 pounds (of gold) for the Palatine Corps, the magistrates, the office (taxis), and the citizens, if these measures should ever be violated.

[2][2] No one shall be assessed for spectacles or other such things on the pretext that his payment of the merchants' tax (chrysargyron) has been lightened, since the aforementioned penalty will (then) loom (over the assessor).

Second Title Shipowners and Shipmasters Transporting Public Supplies

[1][3] Emperor C*ONSTANTIUS Augustus and* J*ULIAN Caesar to Olybrius, City Prefect.* Shipowners (navicularii) should not endure any force when transporting supplies for the food supply (species annonarias) assigned to them, nor

[1] Taken from Bas. 56.12.1, summarizing the original constitution. Zonaras 14.3.2 and Evagrius, Schol. Hist. Eccl. 3.39–41 report that Anastasius remitted this tax. Lounghis et al. date this constitution to May 498.

[2] From Bas. 56.12.2; Cuiacus conjectures that this constitution is also from Anastasius. Lounghis et al. date it to May 498.

[3] = C.Th. 13.5.9. Seeck gives June 1, 370; Schmidt-Hofner, June 1, 357.

ac remeantes omni securitate potiri: decem auri librarum multa proponenda his, qui eos inquietare temptaverint.

D. k. Iun. Romae Constantio VIIII et Iuliano C. II conss.

[2] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Eusebio pp. Comperimus naucleros susceptas species in negotiationis emolumenta convertere. Ideoque decernimus, ut intra annum quas susceperint inferant species et securitates reportent, quae etiam diem illationis edoceant, ut intra alterum annum eis reddantur, a quibus species praestitae sunt.

D. X k. Ian. Mediolani Arcadio IIII et Honorio III AA. conss.

[3] Idem AA. Flaviano pu. Ab his, qui in naucleros praedas egerunt, volumus eorum commodis satisfieri. Et ideo ne crescat in posterum eorum audacia, sancimus, ut, quicumque in rapinis fuerit deprehensus, poena quadrupli teneatur.

PP. Romae in foro Aproniani VIIII k. Febr. Stilichone et Aureliano conss.

[4] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Anthemio pp. Cum nauarchorum coetus circiter provincias Orientis inopia navium titubaret et investigandae classis obtentu insularum secessus obiret et navigandi opportunitate transacta iudiciorum indignatio sine transvectionis expectaretur effectu, merito celsitudo tua praefecto Augustali et insularum praeside conventis Alexandrinae et Carpathiae classis summates et nonnullos alios naucleros eo professionis adduxit, ut onus frumentarii commeatus, qui per Orientales nauarchos ex Alexandrinae civitatis conditis consueverat ad sacratissimam urbem transferri, in suam fidem susceptum ad eadem augustissimae urbis horrea comportarent, solaciis pro mercedula praestitis ex tributariae pensitationis immunitate vel ex eo, should they suffer any extortion or any type of inconvenience, but they should enjoy complete security in coming and going; a fine of 10 pounds of gold is to be set for those who try to disturb them.

Given June 1, at Rome, in the consulship of Constantius, for the eighth time, and Julian Caesar, for the second time (357).

[2][4] Emperors ARCADIUS and HONORIUS Augusti to Eusebius, Praetorian Prefect. We have learned that shipowners (naucleri) have received supplies and turned them to profits for (their private) business. For that reason We decree that within a year they deliver the supplies that they have received and bring back receipts that also indicate the day of delivery, so that within a second year they be returned to the people by whom the supplies have been provided.

Given December 23, at Milan, in the consulship of Arcadius, for the fourth time, and Honorius, for the second time, Augusti (396).

[3][5] The same Augusti to Flavianus, City Prefect. We want shipowners' profits to be reimbursed by those who have robbed them. And for that reason, so that their audacity not increase in the future, We ordain that whoever has been caught in theft be subject to a fourfold penalty.

Posted at Rome in the Forum of Apronianus, January 24, in the consulship of Stilicho and Aurelianus (400).

[4][6] Emperors HONORIUS and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Anthemius, Praetorian Prefect. Since the guild (coetus) of the shipmasters in the provinces of the East was in danger because of a shortage of ships and it went around the hidden places in the islands under the guise of finding a fleet, and the indignation of the courts (indignatio iudiciorum) after the opportunity for sailing had been finished was expected to be without any effect on transportation, Your Highness, having convened the Augustal Prefect and the Governor of the islands at Alexandria, has rightly induced the chiefs of the fleet of Carpathus and some other shipowners to promise that they would accept on their own faith the burden of shipping the grain, which had customarily been transported to the Most Sacred City by shipmasters from the East from the supply stored at the city of Alexandria, and (to promise) to bring it to the same storehouses of the Most August City, with compensation provided for their commerce by immunity from the payment of tribute or from the tax called the "benevolence"

[4] = C.Th. 13.5.26, which omits the final "so that" clause.
[5] = C.Th. 13.5.29.
[6] = C.Th. 13.5.32; possibly combine with C. 11.6.6, 11.28.1.

quod vocatur φιλικόν, nec non etiam aliis, quae tuae cognitionis limavit examen.

D. XIIII k. Febr. Honorio VIII et Theodosio III AA. conss.

[5] Idem AA. Anthemio pp. Qui fiscales species suscepit deportandas, si recta navigatione contempta litora devia sectatus eas avertendo distraxerit, capitali poena plectetur.

D. XIIII k. Aug. Constantinopoli Honorio VIII et Theodosio III AA. conss.

[6] Idem AA. Faustino pp. pr. Iudices, qui in portibus dioeceseos suae onusta navigia, cum prosperior flatus invitat, sub praetextu hiemis immorari permiserint, una cum municipibus et corporatis eiusdem loci fortunarum propriarum feriantur dispendiis. 1. Naucleri praeterea poenam deportationis excipiant, si aliquid fraudis eos admisisse fuerit revelatum.

D. XVIII k. Sept. Ravennae Varane vc. cons.

III De Praediis Naviculariorum

[1] Impp. Valentinianus et Valens AA. Aureliano praefecto annonae. Domum etiam mansuetudinis nostrae in his, quae naviculario nomine obnoxia sunt, agnoscere praecipimus debitam functionem.

D. III k. Oct. Lupicino et Iovino conss.

[2] Idem AA. et Gratianus A. Chiloni proconsuli Africae. pr. In his, quae navicularii vendunt, quoniam intercipere contractum emendi vendendique fas prohibet, emptor navicularii functionem pro modo portionis comparatae subeat: res enim oneri addicta est, non persona mercatoris. 1. Neque navicularium iubemus fieri eum, qui aliquid comparavit, sed eam partem quae empta est pro suo modo ac ratione esse (philikon; a harbor tax), and also from other charges, as the verdict of your inquiry has determined.

Given January 19, in the consulship of Honorius, for the eighth time, and Theodosius, for the third time, Augusti (409).[7]

[5][8] The same Augusti to Anthemius, Praetorian Prefect. Anyone who has received supplies for the Treasury to transport, if, with contempt for the direct sailing route and following out of the way shores, he has diverted them and sold them, is to be struck with capital punishment.

Given July 19, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Honorius, for the eighth time, and Theodosius, for the third time (409).

[6][9] The same Augusti to Faustinus, Praetorian Prefect. pr. Governors (iudices) who, under the pretext of winter, have permitted laden ships to delay in the ports of their diocese when a quite favorable wind invites them (to set sail), shall be punished along with the members of the town councils (municipes) and the members of the guilds (corpora) of the same place with the loss of their own fortunes. 1. In addition, shipowners shall receive the punishment of deportation if it has been revealed that they have committed any fraud.

Given August 15, at Ravenna, in the consulship of the vir clarissimus Varanes (410).

Third Title Properties of Shipowners

[1][10] Emperors VALENTINIAN and VALENS Augusti to Aurelianus, Prefect of the Food Supply. We instruct that the House of Our Clemency acknowledge the public charges (functio) it owes also in these properties that are subject to supporting shipping.

Given September 29, in the consulship of Lupicinus and Jovinus (367).

[2][11] The same Augusti and GRATIAN Augustus to Chilo, Proconsul of Africa. pr. In the properties that shipowners sell, since right prohibits forbidding a contract of buying and selling, the buyer shall be liable for the public charge of a shipowner in proportion to the amount he has purchased; for it is property, not the person of the merchant, that is assigned the burden. 1. We do not order that the person who has purchased something become a shipowner, but rather that the share that has been bought be obliged (munifica) in accordance with its amount

[7] C. 11.28.1 has the date January 28, 412.
[8] = C.Th. 13.5.33. Combine with C. 1.45.2, 10.74.1.
[9] = C.Th. 13.5.34, from which the phrase "in the ports" is restored; possibly combine with C. 4.40.4.
[10] = C.Th. 13.6.5.
[11] = C.Th. 13.6.7.

munificam: nec enim totum patrimonium ad functionem naviculariam occupandum erit, quod habuerit qui rei exiguae mercator accessit, sed illa portio, quae ab initio navicularii fuit, ad pensionem huiusmodi functionis sola tenenda est, residuo patrimonio, quod ab hoc vinculo liberum est, otioso et immuni servando. 2. Domus vero, quarum cultu decus urbium potius quam fructus adquiritur, ubi a naviculariis veneunt, pro tanto modo ad hanc pensionem obligari placet, quantum habebant emolumentum, cum pecunia mutuarentur. 3. Ubi vero spatia loci et exiguitas nullam habuit pensionem aut extructio, cuius est ardua difficilisque molitio, aut decus sumptuosum, aut, ut est plerumque liberale institutum, habitationem quis suam ornamento urbis adiecit, nolumus munificentiam quae postea addita est improbam licitationem aestimationis excipere: sed vetusta potius loci species et pensio cogitetur quam cultus hodiernus, qui per industriam hominis animosi accessit.

D. III non. Aug. post consulatum Gratiani A. III et Equitii vc.

[3] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Messalae pp. Hi, qui fundos naviculariae functioni adscriptos a naviculariis acceperunt quolibet ad se titulo transeuntes, secundum agri opinionem, quae antiquitus habetur adscripta, naviculariam functionem suscipere cogantur neque eas condiciones sibi aestiment profuturas, quas venditor minus idoneus in se recipit impositas ementis arbitrio: hac tamen ratione servata, ut, si ad minus idoneum fuerit translata possessio, etiam auctores transscripti praedii teneantur obnoxii, sitque hoc in promptu, ut damnis fiscalibus primitus ab idoneis consulatur.

D. XIIII k. Mart. Mediolani Theodoro vc. cons.

IIII De Navibus Non Excusandis

[1] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Longiniano pp. pr. Multi naves suas diversorum nominibus et titulis tuentur. Cui fraudi obviantes and computation; for the entire patrimony of a person who has been a purchaser of a small amount is not to be seized for the shipping charge, but that portion that belonged to the shipowner from the beginning is alone to be held for the payment of such a charge, while the rest of the (buyer's) patrimony, which is free from this bond, is to be maintained as undisturbed and immune. 2. But as for houses, by whose maintenance beauty rather than profits is acquired for cities, when they are sold by shipowners, it is decided that they be obligated for the payment only to the extent that they had a gain when they were lent[12] (rented) for money (mutuarentur). 3. But when the space of the place and its small size did not result in any payment, or (when no income resulted from) a building whose construction is arduous and difficult or whose upkeep is expensive, or (when), as generally has been practiced freely,[13] someone has provided his dwelling as a decoration for the city,. We do not wish the generosity that has been later added to be subject to an unfair bidding to determine its value. But the previous appearance of the place and its payment should be thought of rather than its current decoration, which has been added through the work of a generous person.

Given August 3, after the consulship of Gratian Augustus, for the third time, and the vir clarissimus Equitius (375).

[3][14] Emperors Arcadius and Honorius Augusti to Messala, Praetorian Prefect. Those persons who have received farms registered for the shipping charge passing from shipowners to themselves under any title shall be compelled to undertake the shipping charge in accordance with the assessment of the land that was held to have been registered before, nor should they think that those conditions will benefit them that a less suitable (i.e., insolvent) seller has accepted when imposed on himself at the determination of a buyer. However, this rule is maintained that, if the possession has been transferred to a less suitable person, the authors (the sellers or donors) of the transfer of the property shall also be held liable, and this should be observed above all, that consideration for losses to the Treasury be taken first from suitable (solvent) persons.

Given February 16, at Milan, in the consulship of the vir clarissimus Theodorus (399).

Fourth Title Ships Not to Be Exempted

[1][15] Emperors Arcadius and Honorius Augusti to Longinianus, Praetorian Prefect. pr. Many maintain their ships under the names and titles of diverse [12] The reading "mutuarentur" is restored from the C.Th. version.

[13] Blume, "in a praiseworthy spirit" for libere.
[14] = C.Th. 13.6.8; combine with C.Th. 13.5.28.
[15] = C.Th. 13.7.2.

praecipimus, ut, si quis ad evitationem publicae necessitatis titulum crediderit apponendum, sciat navem esse fisco sociandam. 1. Nam ut privatos quoque non prohibemus habere navigia, ita fraudi locum esse non sinimus, cum omnes in commune, si necessitas exegerit, conveniat utilitatibus publicis oboedire et subvectionem sine dignitatis privilegio celebrare.

D. III id. Ian. Ravennae Arcadio A. VI et Probo conss.

[2] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Florentio pp. pr. Iubemus nullam navem ultra duorum milium modiorum capacem ante felicem embolam vel publicarum specierum transvectionem aut privilegio dignitatis aut religionis intuitu aut praerogativa personae publicis utilitatibus excusari posse subtractam: nec si caeleste contra proferatur oraculum, sive adnotatio sit sive divina pragmatica, providentissimae legis regulas oppugnare debebit. 1. Quod etiam in omnibus causis cupimus observari, ut generaliter, si quid huiusmodi contra ius vel utilitatem publicam in quolibet negotio proferatur, non valeat. Quidquid enim in fraudem istius legis quolibet modo fuerit attemptatum, id navigii quod excusatur publicatione corrigimus.

D. VII id. April. Constantinopoli Theodosio A. XVII et Festo conss.

V Ne Quid Oneri Publico Imponatur

[1] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Rufino pp. Oneri publico sarcinam privatam ne quis imponat nec audeat portitores frumenti ad suscipiendum onus aliqua necessitate compellere. Hoc enim facto atque commisso non in dispendium solum atque naufragii damnum tenebitur obligatus, verum etiam publicae coercitionis experietur vigorem.

D. V id. Ian. Constantinopoli Olybrio et Probino conss.

persons.[16] To block this fraud We instruct that if anyone supposes to affix a placard (on his property to show that another is the owner) in order to avoid a public obligation, he shall know that his ship is to be forfeited to the Treasury. 1. For just as We do not prohibit even private individuals from having ships, so too do We not allow a place for fraud, since it is fitting that everyone comply in common with the public interest, if necessity demands, and provide transport without privilege of rank.

Given January 11, at Ravenna, in the consulship of Arcadius Augustus, for the sixth time, and Probus (406).

[2][17] Emperors Theodosius and Valentinian Augusti to Florentius, Praetorian Prefect. pr. We order that no ship of a capacity greater than 2,000 modii may be exempted and withdrawn from public duties before the Felicitous Embarkment[18] or the shipment of public goods (publicae species), whether by reason of privilege of rank, by observance of religion, or by personal prerogative. Not even if the divine oracle[19] itself is adduced, whether in the form of an annotation (adnotatio) or pragmatic sanction, should it override the rules of this most providential law. 1. We desire this to be observed in all cases: thus generally, if any such document is produced in any case against the law or public good, it shall be void. For We reprove any attempt to circumvent this law, whatever the means, by confiscation of the ship exempted.

Given April 7, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Theodosius Augustus, for the seventeenth time, and Festus (439).

Fifth Title That Nothing Be Added to a Public Cargo

[1][20] Emperors Arcadius and Honorius Augusti to Rufinus, Praetorian Prefect. No one shall add a private load to a public cargo, nor by any compulsion shall he force the stevedores of the grain to take up a cargo. If this is done and committed not only will he be held obligated for the expense and the loss of his ship, but he will also experience the vigor of public coercion.

Given January 9,[21] at Constantinople, in the consulship of Olybrius and Probinus (395).

[16] Blume: "patrons."
[17] = C. 1.2.10; Nov. Theod. 8.1
[18] The "Felicitous Embarkment" (felix embola) of the grain fleet that served Constantinople. Two thousand modii is about 13.5 metric tons of grain (or about 17,000 liters in dry measure).
[19] That is, a document procured from the imperial chancellery.
[20] = C.Th. 13.8.1
[21] Gothofredus emends the date to June 9 (Iun. for Ian.), since Theodosius died on January 17, 395.

VI De Naufragiis

[1] Imp. Antoninus A. Maximo. Si quando naufragio navis expulsa fuerit ad litus vel si quando reliquam terram attigerit, ad dominos pertineat: fiscus meus sese non interponat. quod enim ius habet fiscus in aliena calamitate, ut de re tam luctuosa compendium sectetur?

[2] Imppp. Valentinianus Valens et Gratianus AAA. ad Modestum pp. Si quis navicularius naufragium sustinuisse adfirmat, provinciae iudicem, eius videlicet, in qua res agitur, adire festinet ac probet apud eum testibus eventum, relatioque ad sublimissimam referatur praefecturam, ita ut intra anni spatium veritate revelata competens dispositio procedat. quod si per neglegentiam praefinitum anni spatium fortasse claudatur, supervacuas serasque interpellationes emenso anno placuit non admitti.

D. pp. Bersti[1] non. Iun. Modesto et Arintheo conss.

[3] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. navicularis Afris salutem. pr. Quotiens obruta vel submersa fluctibus navi examen adhibetur competentis iudicis, duorum vel trium nautarum quaestione habita ceteri ab huiusmodi nexu liberentur. quid est enim, quod non abunde intra praefinitum numerum sollers quaesitor inveniat? 1. Circa magistros navium, quibus est scientia plenior, immoretur: qui si fatali sorte defuerint, in alios inquisitio transferatur. 2. Sane si universos violentia tempestatis obruerit, ne veritas lateat, a liberis nautarum sive magistrorum intra iudicia constitutis super eorum quaeratur interitu, quos navicularius naufragio perisse contendit. 3. Susceptionis autem necessitas ex kalendis Aprilibus in diem kalendarum Octobrium mansura servabitur.

D. VIII id. Febr. Triveris Gratiano V et Theodosio AA. conss.

[1] Beryti

Sixth Title Shipwrecks

[1] Emperor ANTONINUS Augustus to Maximus. If at any time a ship has been pushed to the shore by a shipwreck, or if at any time it reaches the land left behind,[22] it shall belong to the owners; My Treasury must not interpose itself. For what right does the Treasury have in another's calamity, that it gain a profit from so grievous a situation?

[2][23] Emperors VALENTINIAN, VALENS, and GRATIAN Augusti to Modestus, Praetorian Prefect. If any shipowner affirms that he has sustained a shipwreck, he should hasten to approach the provincial governor, that is, of the province in which the matter is being dealt with, and prove the event before him with witnesses. A report shall also be brought to the Most Sublime Prefecture, so that an appropriate disposition may proceed within the period of a year after the truth has been revealed.[24] But if through negligence the defined period of a year should by chance be closed, it has been decided that, after the passage of a year, superfluous and late actions (interpellationes) may not be admitted.

Given and posted at Beirut,[25] June 5, in the consulship of Modestus and Arintheus (372).

[3][26] Emperors GRATIAN, VALENTINIAN, and THEODOSIUS Augusti to the African shipowners, greetings. pr. Whenever an examination by a competent judge[27] is performed after a ship is overwhelmed or submerged by the waves, after the questioning of two or three of the sailors has been conducted, the remaining ones shall be freed from such a bond. For what is there that a skilful investigator might not find within the defined number? 1. He may take time with the masters of the ships, who have more complete knowledge; if they are missing because of their passing away, the inquiry should be transferred onto others. 2. Certainly if the violence of a storm has overwhelmed everyone, lest the truth be hidden, the children of the sailors or the masters of the ships, after being brought into court, shall be questioned about the deaths of those people, who, so the shipowner contends, perished in the shipwreck. 3. However, the necessity of taking up the cargo will be maintained in effect from April 1 until October 1.

Given February 6, at Trier, in the consulship of Gratian, for the fifth time, and Theodosius, Augusti (380).

[22] Salmasius emends the sentence to reliqua terram attigerit: "if what is left of the ship reaches land."
[23] = C.Th. 13.9.1.
[24] The C.Th. version has "that when the truth is reported he may gain a remedy from an indulgence (abatement of dues)."
[25] An emendation for Bersti in the manuscripts.
[26] = C.Th. 13.9.3, with different wording; combine with C.Th. 13.5.16.
[27] The C.Th. version has the "Prefect of the Food Supply." Blume notes that the "questioning" would be under torture.

[4] Impp. Valentinianus Theodosius et Arcadius AAA. Tatiano pp. Pro his, quae semel a collatoribus illata naufragiis perierunt, nolumus nobis aliquam cum possessoribus, sive senatores sive privati sint, esse communionem vel aliquid periculi ad eos redundare.

D. xv k. Aug. Constantinopoli Tatiano et Symmacho conss.

[5] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. navicularis per Africam. pr. De submersis navibus decernimus, ut levato velo istae causae cognoscantur. Et si quisquam de talibus negotiis aliquid accepisse detegitur, iudex, apud quem constiterit, his conquerentibus qui nudantur pro qualitatibus personarum multandi removendi proscribendi habeat potestatem. 1. Si vero causarum talium cognitores, libelli datione vel planaria interpellatione commoniti intra biennium has causas audire neglexerint, et hoc fuerit tempus elapsum, praeiudicium noceat eatenus cognitori, ut naviculario propter vitium iudicis absoluto mediam oneris eius partem, propter cuius probandam amissionem legitimo dumtaxat tempore cognitio petebatur, iudex cogatur inferre, residuam vero officium eius exsolvat.

D. xvi k. April. Ravennae Honorio viiii et Theodosio v AA. conss.

[6] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Anthemio pp. Super naufragiorum quae contigerint casibus usitato more habita quaestione si quis calculus modiationis dicatur tempestate maris deperisse, sub tuae sedis auditione nequaquam feratur acceptus, sed haec dispendii iactura in omne naviculariorum concilium, pro rata scilicet contingentis muneris, deferatur.

D. xiiii k. Febr. Honorio viii et Theodosio iii AA. conss.

[4][28] Emperors VALENTINIAN, THEODOSIUS, and ARCADIUS Augusti to Tatianus, Praetorian Prefect. For those things that, once they were provided by the tax payers (collatores), have perished in shipwrecks, We do not wish to share the burden with the possessors (i.e., to charge those whose lands were assigned to support ships), whether they are senators or private individuals, and We do not wish any risk to revert back to them.

Given July 18, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Tatianus and Symmachus (391).

[5][29] Emperors THEODOSIUS and HONORIUS Augusti to the shipowners in Africa. pr. Concerning sunken ships, We determine that these cases shall be heard "with the curtain raised."[30] And if someone is revealed to have received something in connection with such business, the judge, before whom this has been established to be true, shall have the power to fine, remove, or proscribe him upon the complaint of the ones who are despoiled, in accordance with the qualities of the persons. 1. But if the judges (cognitores) of these cases, having been informed by the filing of a petition or an informal complaint (interpellatio planaria), neglect to hear them within a two-year period, and this time has passed, the damage[31] is to harm the judge to the extent that, after the shipowner has been absolved on account of the fault of the judge, the judge shall be compelled to pay a half share of the burden, to prove the loss of which a hearing was sought certainly within the lawful time, but his office shall pay the rest.

Given March 17, at Ravenna, in the consulship of Honorius, for the eighth time, and Theodosius, for the third time, Augusti (412).

[6][32] The same Augusti to Anthemius, Praetorian Prefect. Concerning the cases of shipwrecks that have happened, when an investigation has been undertaken in the usual fashion, if some amount of grain shall be said to have been lost as a result of a storm at sea, the amount should not at all be entered, under a hearing of Your Seat, as "received," but this loss of expense is to be divided among the entire council of shipowners, in proportion to the duty that falls upon them.

Given January 19, in the consulship of Honorius, for the eighth time, and Theodosius, for the third time, Augusti (409).

[28] = C.Th. 13.9.4.

[29] = C.Th. 13.9.6; join with C.Th. 13.5.36–37.

[30] Blume: "The hall in which the judge gave a hearing to the parties was called auditorium or secretarium, because it was closed by a railing and curtain (velum), and free entrance thereto was granted only to the apparitors and certain persons of rank. Only the judge, the persons mentioned and the parties and their attorneys were permitted into this room during a trial, although the curtain might be removed and the public be permitted to witness the proceedings, which, however, seems to have been done in the later time only occasionally." See C. 7.45.6.

[31] Praeiudicium, which Blume translates as "preliminary judicial proceeding." The judge's failure to act causes loss to the plaintiff.

[32] = C.Th. 13.5.32; possibly join with C. 11.2.4, 11.28.1 (issued January 28, at Constantinople, in 412).

VII De Metallariis et Metallis et Procuratoribus Metallorum

[1] Impp. Valentinianus et Valens AA. ad Cresconium comitem metallorum. pr. Perpensa deliberatione duximus sanciendum, ut, quicumque exercitium metallorum vellet adfluere, is labore proprio et sibi et rei publicae commoda compararet. 1. Itaque si qui sponte confluxerint, eos laudabilitas tua octonos scripulos in balluca, quae Graece χρύσαμμος appellatur, cogat exsolvere. 2. Quidquid autem amplius colligere potuerint, fisco potissimum distrahant, a quo competentia ex largitionibus nostris pretia suscipiant.

D. IIII id. Dec. Parisiis Valentiniano et Valente AA. conss.

[2] Idem AA. ad Germanianum comitem sacrarum largitionum. Ob metallicum canonem, in quo propria consuetudo retinenda est, quattuordecim uncias ballucae pro singulis libris constat inferri.

D. VI id. Ian. Romae Lupicino et Iovino conss.

[3] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. Floro pp. Cuncti, qui per privatorum loca saxorum venam laboriosis effossionibus persequuntur, decimas fisco, decimas etiam domino repraesentent, cetero modo suis desideriis vindicando.

D. IIII k. Sept. Constantinopoli Antonio et Syagrio conss.

[4] Idem AAA. Eusignio pp. Cum procuratores metallorum intra Macedoniam Daciam mediterraneam Moesiam seu Dardaniam soliti ex curialibus ordinari, per quos sollemnis profligatur exactio, simulato hostili metu huic se necessitati subtraxerint, ad implendum munus retrahantur, et nulli deinceps licentia laxetur prius indebitas expetere dignitates, quam subeundam procurationem fideli sollertique exactione compleverint.

D. IIII k. Aug. Mediolani Honorio np. et Euodio conss.

Seventh Title Miners, Mines, and the Procurators of Mines

[1][33] Emperors Valentinian and Valens Augusti to Cresconius, Count of the Mines. pr. After careful consideration We have decided to ordain that whoever wants to hasten to exploit mines should, by his own labor, provide benefits both to himself and to the republic (i.e., should be allowed to do this). 1. Thus, if any have come forward of their own accord, Your Praiseworthiness shall compel them to pay the 8-scruples tax in gold dust (octonos scripulos in balluca), which is called in Greek chrusammos (gold sand). 2. But anything more they can collect they shall certainly sell to the Treasury, from which they are to receive the appropriate prices established by Our (Imperial) Finances (ex largitionibus nostris).

Given December 10, at Paris, in the consulship of Valentinian and Valens (365).

[2][34] The same Augusti to Germanianus, Count of Imperial Finances. For the tax (canon) on metals, for which the existing custom is to be retained, it is established that 14 ounces of gold dust be paid per pound.

Given January 10, at Rome, in the consulship of Lupicinus and Jovinus (367).

[3][35] Emperors Gratian, Valentinian, and Theodosius Augusti to Florus, Praetorian Prefect. All who follow a vein of rocks by laborious digging through properties belonging to private persons shall pay one-tenth to the Treasury and another tenth to the owner, but the rest is to be claimed for their own desires.

Given August 29, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Antonius and Syagrius (382).

[4][36] The same Augusti to Eusignius, Praetorian Prefect. Since the procurators of the mines in Macedonia, Dacia, and inland Moesia or Dardania, ordinarily nominated from the decurions (curiales), by whom the customary exaction is completed, have feigned fear of the enemy and withdrawn themselves from this necessity (of carrying out their duties), they are to be dragged back to fulfill their service, and hereafter no permission shall be offered for anyone to seek undeserved ranks before they have completed the office they are supposed to have undertaken with faithful and careful diligence.

Given July 29, at Milan, in the consulship of Honorius, Most Noble Boy, and Euodius (386).

[33] = C.Th. 10.19.3.
[34] = C.Th. 10.19.4; possibly join with C. 10.72.5, 11.11.1. "At Rome" is an emendation for "at Reims" here and at C. 10.72.5.
[35] = C.Th. 10.19.10.
[36] = C.Th. 1.32.5.

[5] Imppp. Valentinianus Theodosius et Arcadius AAA. Romulo comitem sacrarum largitionum. Per annos singulos septeni per hominem scripuli largitionibus inferantur ab aurilegulis, non solum in Pontica dioecesi, verum etiam in Asiana.

D. XI k. Mart. Constantinopoli Arcadio A. II et Rufino conss.

[6] Idem AAA. Paterno. Quosdam operta humo esse saxa dicentes id agere cognovimus, ut defossis in altum cuniculis alienarum aedium fundamenta labefactent. qua de re, si quando huiusmodi marmora sub aedificiis latere dicantur, perquirendi eadem copia denegetur.

D. XVII k. April. Constantinopoli Theodosio A. III et Abundantio conss.

[7] Imp. Theodosius A. Maximino comiti sacrarum largitionum. Metallarii sive metallariae, qui quaeve ea regione deserta, ex qua videntur oriundi vel oriundae, ad externa migraverint, indubitanter sine ulla temporis praescriptione ad propriae originis stirpem laremque una cum sua subole revocentur, et quos domus nostrae secreta retineant. sciant autem nullum exinde praeiudicium fisco esse generandum, etiamsi is, quem metallicum esse constiterit, privatis censibus suum nomen indiderit.

D. V id. Iul. Constantinopoli Victore vc. cons.

VIII De Murilegulis et Gynaeciariis et Procuratoribus Gynaecii et de Monetariis et Bastagariis

[1] Imp. Constantinus A. ad Bithynos. Monetarios in sua semper durare condicione oportet nec dignitatis cuiuscumque privilegio ab huiusmodi condicione liberari.

D. XII k. Aug. Gallicano et Basso conss.

[2] Idem A. ad Felicem. Procuratores rei privatae baphii et gynaecii, per quos et privata nostra substantia tenuatur et species in gynaeciis confectae corrumpuntur, in baphiis etiam admixta temeratio naevum

[5][37] Emperors VALENTINIAN, THEODOSIUS, and ARCADIUS Augusti to Romulus, Count of Imperial Finances. Seven scruples per man shall be paid to the Finances every year by gold miners, not only in the Pontic diocese, but also in the Asian one.

Given February 19, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Arcadius Augustus, for the second time, and Rufinus (392).

[6][38] The same Augusti to Paternus. We have learned that some people, saying that there are rocks covered in the earth, follow this practice, that after digging underground tunnels, they undermine the foundations of other people's buildings. For this reason, if ever marble of this type is said to be hidden under buildings, the right (copia) to seek it is to be denied.

Given March 16, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Theodosius Augustus, for the third time, and Abundantius (393).

[7][39] Emperor THEODOSIUS Augustus to Maximinus, Count of Imperial Finances. Male or female miners, who have migrated to other places from that deserted region from which they seem to have originated, should undoubtedly be called back along with their offspring, without any prescription of time, to the household and hearth (stirpem laremque) of their own place of origin, and (the same applies to) those whom the hiding places in Our Household retain. They should know, however, that no prejudice is to be created for the Treasury as a result, even if the person who it is agreed is a miner has placed his own name in the private census records.

Given July 11, at Constantinople, in the consulship of the vir clarissimus Victor (424).

Eighth Title Purple Dye Collectors, Weavers, Procurators of Weaving, Moneyers, and Transport Workers

[1][40] Emperor Constantine Augustus to the Bithynians. Moneyers (monetarii) must always remain in their status and are not to be freed from such a status by the privilege of any rank.

Given July 21, in the consulship of Gallicanus and Bassus (317).

[2][41] The same Augustus to Felix. Since because of them Our private property is attenuated and products made in the weaving workshops are ruined, and in the dye works the mixing in polluted dye (admixta temeratio) produces a blemish

[37] = C.Th. 10.19.12.
[38] = C.Th. 10.19.14.
[39] = C.Th. 10.19.15, from which the phrase at the end of the second sentence is added.
[40] = C.Th. 10.20.1. Seeck dates to June 21, 317.
[41] = C.Th. 1.32.1 (which adds the in before gynaeciis and correctly gives Aquae, not Aquileia, as the place of origin).

adducit inquinatae adluvionis, suffragiis abstineant, per quae memoratas administrationes adipiscuntur, vel, si contra hoc fecerint, gladio feriantur.

D. ... k. Nov. Aquil. Dalmatio et Zenophilo conss.

[3] Impp. Valentinianus et Valens AA. ad Germanum consularem. Ingenuae mulieres, quae se gynaeciariis sociaverint, si conventae denuntiatione sollemni splendorem generis contuberniorum vilitati praeferre noluerint, suorum maritorum condicione teneantur.

D. IIII k. Iul. Mediolani Valentiniano et Valente AA. conss.

[4] Idem AA. ad Auxonium pp. Quod ad praesens remedium pertinet, quintum animal bastagariis pro reparatione praebeatur.

D. id. Dec. Marcianopoli Valentiniano et Valente AA. conss.

[5] Idem AA. et Gratianus A. ad Philematium comitem sacrarum largitionum. Qui aliquem ex familiis gynaecii in latebris habere comperti sunt, quinque librarum auri damno subicientur.

D. XII k. Sept. Ciliciae Modesto et Arintheo conss.

[6] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. ad Eucherium. Qui textrini nostri mancipia occultatione celaverit, ternis libris auri pro singulorum hominum suppressione plectetur.

PP. Karthagine III k. Mart. post consulatum Ausonii et Olybrii.

[7] Idem AAA. ad Hesperium pp. pr. Edicimus, ne qua mulier splendidioris gradus monetarii adhaerens consortio decus nativae libertatis of a fouled inundation, procurators of the dying and weaving workshops belonging to the Privy Purse shall refrain from seeking recommendations through which they gain the positions mentioned, or, if they do otherwise, they shall be struck with a sword.[42]

Given October ..., at Aquae, in the consulship of Dalmatius and Zenophilus (333).

[3][43] Emperors VALENTINIAN and VALENS Augusti to Germanus, Consular Governor.[44] Free-born women who have associated themselves with weavers, if, after being notified by formal warning, they are unwilling to prefer the splendor of their birth to the baseness of their unions (contubernia, i.e., legally invalid marriages with slaves), shall be held in the status of their husbands.

Given June 28, at Milan, in the consulship of Valentinian and Valens Augusti (365).

[4][45] The same Augusti to Auxonius, Praetorian Prefect. As to an immediate remedy, every fifth animal (i.e., one of every five) shall be offered to the transport workers as compensation (pro reparatione).

Given December 13, at Marcianopolis, in the consulship of Valentinian and Valens Augusti (368).

[5][46] The same Augusti and GRATIAN Augustus to Philematius, Count of Imperial Finances. Those who have been discovered holding in hiding places anyone from the slave staffs of the weaving workshop will be subject to a loss of 5 pounds of gold.

Given Augusti 21, at Cilicia,[47] in the consulship of Modestus and Arintheus (372).

[6][48] Emperors GRATIAN, VALENTINIAN, and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Eucherius. Whoever has hidden slaves of Our weaving workshop shall be fined 3 pounds of gold for each individual person suppressed.

Posted at Carthage, February 27, after the consulship of Ausonius and Olybrius (380).

[7][49] The same Augusti to Hesperius, Praetorian Prefect. pr. We pronounce that no woman of a more splendid rank lose the honor of her native liberty

[42] C.Th. 1.32.1 adds "having been removed from the number of Roman citizens."
[43] = C.Th. 10.20.3.
[44] Gothofredus has "Germanianus, Count of Imperial Finances."
[45] = C.Th. 10.20.4 (which has "the tenth animal"). On the bastagarii, see C.Th. 10.20.11 (384).
[46] = C.Th. 10.20.7.
[47] The place name is corrupt.
[48] = C.Th. 10.20.9.
[49] = C.Th. 10.20.10.

amittat. Quod si quam ab hac praeceptione statutum nostrae perennitatis abduxerit, ea vel legitima admonita conventione discedat vel, si complexui monetarii putaverit inhaerendum, non ambigat se et liberis praeiudicaturam et eius condicioni esse nectendam. 1. Si qua vero originaria seu colonaria possessionis alienae ignaro domino seu sciente monetario adsociabitur, ii conventi mox iuri agrorum debitas personas retrahere festinent vel de cetero sciant repetendi facultatem silentii sui coniventia perdidisse. 2. Sed ut monetario nullam extraneam necti volumus, ita et monetario patre susceptas prohibemus extraneis copulari.

D. prid. id. Mart. Aquileiae post consulatum Ausonii et Olybrii.

[8] Idem AAA. Trifolio comiti sacrarum largitionum. Aeternam fiximus legem, ne umquam bastagariis militiam vel suam deserere liceat vel aliam, antequam eam impleverint, subreptiva impetratione temptare.

D. VIIII k. Aug. Heracleae Ricomere et Clearcho conss.

[9] Idem AAA. et Arcadius A. ad Principium pp. Si quis naviculam functioni muricis et legendis conchyliis deputatam ausus fuerit usurpare, duarum librarum auri illatione teneatur.

D. VI k. Oct. Aquileiae Arcadio A. et Bautone conss.

[10] Imppp. Arcadius Honorius et Theodosius AAA. Philometori comiti sacrarum largitionum. Lotas in posterum sericoblattae et metaxae huiusmodi species inferri praecipimus: viginti librarum auri condemnatione proposita his, qui scrinium canonum tractant, prioribus etiam cuiuscumque officii, si statuta caelestia a quodam passi fuerint temerari.

D. V k. Iul. Constantinopoli Arcadio A. VI et Probo conss.

by clinging to a union with a moneyer. But if the ordinance of Our Eternity leads someone away from this notion, this woman[50] should either leave (her union) after being warned by lawful notice, or, if she thinks she should cling to the embrace of a moneyer, she should not doubt that she will prejudice her children and she is to be bound to his status. 1. But if any woman bound to her place of origin (originaria) or of bound tenant status (colonaria) in another's possession will be joined to a moneyer, whether (her) owner knows it or not, they (owners) when notified shall hasten to drag back to the right of their lands the persons owed, or (else) in the future know that they have lost the right to seek them back as a result of the connivance of their own silence. 2. But just as We do not want any outside woman to be joined with a moneyer, so too do We also prohibit women raised from a father who is a moneyer to be mated with outsiders.

Given March 14, at Aquileia, after the consulship of Ausonius and Olybrius (380).

[8][51] The same Augusti to Trifolius, Count of Imperial Finances. We have established an eternal law that it never be permitted for transport workers either to desert their own service (militia) or by a surreptitious appointment to attempt another before they have completed it.

Given July 24, at Heraclea, in the consulship of Ricomer and Clearcuhus (384).

[9][52] The same Augusti and ARCADIUS Augustus to Principius, Praetorian Prefect. If anyone has dared to commandeer a boat designated for the service of (collecting) dye and gathering shells, he shall be bound by a fine of 2 pounds of gold.

Given September 26, at Aquileia, in the consulship of Arcadius Augustus and Bauto (385).

[10][53] Emperors ARCADIUS, HONORIUS, and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Philometor, Count of Imperial Finances. We instruct that, in the future, products (species) of dyed purple silk (sericoblatta) and raw silk (metaxa) be delivered washed; a punishment of 20 pounds of gold is established for those who manage the bureau of taxes (scrinium canonum) as well as the heads (priores) of any[54] office if they have allowed the Heavenly Statutes to be violated by anyone.

Given June 27, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Arcadius Augustus, for the sixth time, and Probus (406).

[50] C.Th. 10.20.10 includes "in accordance with the authority of the SC Claudianum."
[51] = C.Th. 10.20.11, which omits the phrase "before they have completed it."
[52] = C.Th. 10.20.12.
[53] = C.Th. 10.20.13. As Blume points out, the importing of silk was under the exclusive control of the Count of External Trade (comes commerciorum; C. 4.40.2).
[54] C.Th. 10.20.13 has "that office."

[11] Imp. Theodosius A. et Valentinianus C. Maximino comiti sacrarum largitionum. pr. Murileguli, qui relicto atque despecto propriae condicionis officio vetitis se infulis dignitatum et cingulis penitus denegatis munisse dicuntur, ad propriae artis et originis vincula revocentur. 1. Ab illis autem, qui rebus eorum videntur inhiasse, quos in sua origine permanere et sollemnibus ministeriis inservire manifestum est, omnia quaecumque constiterit ex quocumque titulo possessa antiquis possessoribus restituantur. 2. Quod si alienigenae detentatores oneribus condicionis externae maluerint subiacere quam restituere facultates, et futura deinceps agnoscant munia sibi esse subeunda et de praeterito, si qua ipsis possidentibus reliqua colliguntur, a semet ipsis sciant sine aliqua excusatione solvenda.

D. XVII k. Nov. Constantinopoli Victore cons.

[12] Idem A. et C. Maximino comiti sacrarum largitionum. Ii, qui ex filiabus murilegulorum et alienae originis patribus sunt vel fuerint procreati, iura maternae condicionis agnoscant.

D. VIIII k. Iun. Theodosio A. XI et Valentiniano C. conss.

[13] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Acacio comiti sacrarum largitionum. Si quis ex corpore gynaeciariorum vel linteariorum vel linyphariorum monetariorumve aut murilegulorum vel aliorum similium ad divinas largitiones nexu sanguinis pertinentium voluerit posthac de suo collegio liberari, non quoscumque nec facile in locum proprium, freti dextrae triumphalis absolutione, substituant, sed eos, quos omnibus idoneos modis sub ipsis quodammodo amplissimae tuae sedis obtutibus approbaverint: ita tamen, ut is, qui ab huiusmodi condicione iuxta formam caelitus datam beneficio principali fuerit absolutus, universi generis sui prosapiam in functione memorati corporis permanentem cum omnibus eius qui absolvitur rebus obnoxiam largitionibus sacris futuram esse non dubitet.

D. VII k. Mart. Constantinopoli Theodosio XII et Valentiniano II AA. conss.

[11][55] Emperors Theodosius Augustus and Valentinian Caesar to Maximinus, Count of Imperial Finances. pr. Purple dye gatherers, who, after leaving and despising the duty of their own status, are said to have equipped themselves with forbidden marks of offices (infulae dignitatum) and with ranks altogether denied to them, shall be recalled to the bonds of their own skill and origin. 1. From those, however, who are seen to have gazed longingly at the property of people who it is clear remain in their origin and serve their customary ministries, everything that is possessed under any title must be restored to the original possessors. 2. But if the holders of this wealth, when born to another station (alienigenae), prefer to be liable to the burdens of a status not their own rather than to restore it, then they shall acknowledge that they have to perform the future duties and shall also know that, for the past, if any arrears are collected from when they themselves were possessors, they must pay these themselves without any excuse.

Given October 16, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Victor (424).

[12][56] The same Augustus and Caesar to Maximinus, Count of Imperial Finances. Those who have or will have been procreated from daughters of purple dye gatherers and fathers of other origin shall acknowledge the laws of the maternal status of their mothers.

Given May 24, in the consulship of Theodosius Augustus, for the eleventh time, and Valentinian Caesar (425).

[13][57] Emperors Theodosius and Valentinian Augusti to Acacius, Count of Imperial Finances. If anyone from the association of (silk) weavers (corpus gynaeciariorum), weavers of linen thread (lintearii) or cloth (linypharii), moneyers, or purple dye gatherers, or other similar professions belonging to the Imperial Finances by the bond of birth (nexu sanguinis) wants henceforth to be freed from his guild (collegium), they should not, buoyed the absolution of a triumphal right hand (i.e., by an imperial rescript), readily substitute just anyone into their own place, but (only) those whom they have deemed as suitable in every way under the very approval of Your Magnificent Seat. However, the person who, by the favor of the Emperor, has been absolved from such a status in accordance with the heaven-sent procedure should not doubt that the stock of the entire family, remaining responsible for the duty (functio) to the aforementioned association, will be liable to the Imperial Finances with all of the property of the person who is absolved.

Given February 23, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Theodosius, for the twelfth time, and Valentinian, for the second time, Augusti (426).

[55] = C.Th. 10.20.14; according to Gothofredus, this is to be combined with C. 11.9.4 (January 16).
[56] = C.Th. 10.20.15.
[57] = C.Th. 10.20.16.

[14] Idem AA. Acacio comiti sacrarum largitionum. Privatae vel linteae vestis magistri, thesaurorum praepositi vel baphiorum ac textrinorum procuratores ceterique, quibus huiusmodi sollicitudo committitur, non ante ad rem sacri aerarii procurandam permittantur accedere, quam satisdationibus dignis eorum administratio roboretur: scituri nec prosecutorias quidem sacras posthac sibimet postulandas.

[15] Idem AA. Valerio comiti sacrarum largitionum. Qui aut patre conchyliolegulo geniti probabuntur aut matre, memoratae adscriptioni obnoxios se esse non ambigant.

D. x k. April. Constantinopoli Hierio et Ardabure conss.

[16] pr. Μηδείς, ὡς ἔτυχεν, τοῖς δημοσίοις σωματείοις ἐγγραφέσθω, εἰ μὴ κατὰ τὸ ἀναγκαῖον καὶ ἐκ γένους ὢν τοιούτου καὶ ἡλικίας καὶ τέχνης ἐστὶν ἐπιτήδειος, πράξεως γινομένης ἐπὶ τούτῳ παρὰ τῷ ἄρχοντι τῆς ἐπαρχίας καὶ κατατιθεμένου τοῦ σωματείου, ὅτι ἐπιτήδειός ἐστι· καὶ τὰ πραττόμενα εἰς ἡμᾶς ἀναφερέσθω, ὥστε ἡμᾶς πάλιν ἐπικυρῶσαι διὰ θείων συλλαβῶν τάξιν προβατορίας λαμβανουσῶν. 1. Εἰ δὲ παραβαίη ταῦτά τις, οὔτε τὰς παραμυθίας λήψεται τὰς ἐντεῦθεν οὔτε κοινωνήσει τῷ συματείῳ, ἀλλὰ βασανισθεὶς ἐξορισθήσεται διηνεκῶς ἐκ τῆς ἐπαρχίας, καὶ πᾶς δὲ συνεργήσας τοῖς αὐτοῖς ἐπιτιμίοις ὑποκείσεται, καὶ μάλιστα ὁ πραιπόσιτος.

VIIII De Vestibus holoveris et Auratis et de Intinctione Sacri Muricis

[1] Imppp. Valentinianus Valens et Gratianus AAA. Archelao comiti sacrarum largitionum. Auratas ac sericas paragaudas auro intextas viriles privatis usibus contexere conficereque prohibemus et a gynaeciariis tantum nostris fieri praecipimus.

D. v non. Iul. Nebiodumi. acc. xv k. Aug. Marcianopoli Valentiniano np. et Victore conss.

[14][58] The same Augusti to Acacius, Count of Imperial Benefactions. Masters of imperial (privatae) or linen clothing, superintendents of storehouses, or procurators of dyeing or weaving workshops and others, to whom such a care is entrusted, shall not be permitted to approach managing the property of the Imperial Treasury (sacrum aerarium) before their administration is strengthened by worthy sureties. They will know that henceforth they are not to ask for sacred letters of recommendation.[59]

(426).

[15][60] The same Augusti to Valerius, Count of Imperial Finances. Those who will be proved to be born from a father or mother who is a purple shell gatherer should not doubt that they (as well) are liable to the aforementioned status (adscriptio).

Given March 23, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Hierius and Ardabur (427).

[16][61] pr. No one, as has happened, is to be registered with the public associations, unless it is necessary and he belongs to it by birth and is suitable both in age and in skill, after a record of this matter has been made with the provincial governor and the association has attested that he is suitable. And the record shall be reported to Us, so that We might again confirm through Divine Letters that serve as proof. 1. If anyone should violate these enactments, he will not gain the compensation that accrues from this nor will he participate in the association, but upon questioning he will be relegated from the province forever, and everyone who has helped him will be subject to the same penalties, especially the superintendent (praepositus).

Ninth Title Clothing Entirely of Purple and Embroidered with Gold, and Dyeing with Sacred Purple

[1][62] Emperors Valentinian, Valens, and Gratian Augusti to Archelaus, Count of Imperial Finances. We prohibit the weaving and manufacture, for private use, of men's (clothing with) borders (paragaudae) that are gold-embroidered and silk interwoven with gold, and We instruct that they only be made by Our weaving workshops.

Given July 3, at Nebiodunum, and received July 18, at Marcianopolis, in the consulship of Valentinian, Most Noble Boy, and Victor (369).

[58] Join with C.Th. 8.7.23, whose subscription reads "Given July 1, at Nicomedia, in the consulship of Theodosius, for the twelfth time, and Valentinian, for the second time, Augusti" (426). Seeck uses this date.

[59] Blume: "to excuse them from service."

[60] = C.Th. 10.20.17.

[61] From Bas. 54.16.16.

[62] = C.Th. 10.21.1 (also including women's garments); combine with C. 10.2.4 ("July 5, at Noviodunum"), in which Archelaus is Count of the East.

[2] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. Floro pp. Nemo vir auratas habeat aut in tunicis aut in lineis paragaudas, nisi ii tantummodo, quibus hoc propter imperiale ministerium concessum est. non enim levi animadversione plectetur, quisquis vetito se et indebito non abdicaverit indumento.

D. III k. April. Constantinopoli Antonio et Syagrio conss.

[3] Imppp. Theodosius Arcadius et Honorius AAA. Vellera adulterino colore fucata in speciem sacri muricis tingere non sinimus nec tinctum cum rhodino prius sericum alio postea colore fucari, cum de albo omnium colorum tingendi copia non negetur: nam capitalem poenam illicita temptantes suscipient.

[4] Imp. Theodosius A. Maximino comiti sacrarum largitionum. pr. Temperent universi, cuiuscumque sint sexus dignitatis artis professionis et generis, ab huiusmodi speciei possessione, quae soli principi eiusque domui dedicatur. 1. Nec pallia tunicasque domi quis sericas contexat aut faciat, quae tincta conchylio nullius alterius permixtione subtexta sunt. 2. Proferantur ex aedibus tradanturque tunicae et pallia ex omni parte texturae cruore infecta conchylii. nulla stamina subtexantur tincta conchylio, nec eiusdem infectionis arguto pectine solidanda fila decurrant. reddenda aerario holovera vestimenta virilia protinus offerantur. 3. Nec est, ut quisquam de abiurato pretio conqueratur, quia sufficit calcatae legis impunitas. 4. Ne quis vero nunc huiusmodi suppressione in laqueos novae constitutionis incurrat: alioquin ad similitudinem laesae maiestatis periculum sustinebit.

D. XVII k. Febr. Constantinopoli Victore vc. cons.

[5] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Apollonio comiti sacrarum largitionum. Purpurae nundinas, licet innumeris sint constitutionibus prohibitae, recenti quoque interminatione vetamus. et ideo septimum de scrinio exceptorum, sextum de scrinio canonum, quintum

[2][63] Emperors Gratian, Valentinian, and Theodosius Augusti to Florus, Praetorian Prefect. No man should have gold-embroidered purple borders (paragaudae) either on tunics or on linen garments, except for those alone to whom this has been granted on account of imperial service. Whoever does not renounce a forbidden and undeserved raiment shall be struck with a punishment that is not light.

Given March 30, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Antonius and Syagrius (382).

[3]Emperors Theodosius, Arcadius, and Honorius Augusti. We do not allow the dyeing of woolen cloth (vellera) darkened with counterfeit color to look like sacred purple dye, nor silk to be dyed pink and afterward to be darkened with another color, since the right (copia) of dyeing in all colors from white is not denied; for those who attempt what is not allowed will receive capital punishment.[64]

[4][65] Emperor Theodosius Augustus to Maximinus, Count of Imperial Finances. pr. All persons, of any gender, rank, skill, profession, and family, shall refrain from the possession of any product that is dedicated to the Emperor alone and His Household. 1. No one shall weave or make at home silken cloaks and tunics, which, when dyed with purple, have been woven without the admixture of another color. 2. Tunics and cloaks that have been dyed with the blood of the conch from every part of their weave should be brought out of buildings and handed over. No warps are to be woven after being dyed with purple, nor should supporting (solidanda) threads run with a bright comb (pecten) of the same dyeing (infectio). Men's[66] clothing entirely of purple must be exhibited straightaway to be returned to the Treasury. 3. Nor is there any reason why anyone should complain about a foresworn price, since impunity for trampling the law suffices.[67] 4. But let no one now run into the snares of the new constitution by concealment of this kind; otherwise he will sustain a penalty like that for treason (laesa maiestas).

Given January 16, at Constantinople, in the consulship of the vir clarissimus Victor (424).

[5][68] Emperors Theodosius and Valentinian Augusti to Apollonius, Count of Imperial Finances. We forbid the sale of purple dye (purpurae nundinae), although it has been forbidden in innumerable constitutions, also with a fresh [63] = C.Th. 10.21.2 (which begins "No one").

[64] Seeck gives September 392.
[65] = C.Th. 10.21.3.
[66] "Men's" is omitted in the C.Th. version.
[67] C.Th. has "that one does not have time to worry about profit whose safety should not be in the price."
[68] = C.Th. 10.20.18.

de scrinio tabulariorum ad baphia Phoenices per certum tempus mitti praecipimus, ut fraus omnis eorum prohibeatur sollertia timentium, ne quaesitis longo sudore stipendiis careant: etiam viginti librarum auri condemnatione proposita.

D. VIII id. Mart. Constantinopoli Isidoro et Senatore conss.

X De Fabricensibus

[1] Imppp. Valentinianus Theodosius et Arcadius AAA. Tatiano pp. Omnibus fabricis non pecunias pro speciebus, sed ipsas species sine dilatione inferri praecipimus, ut venae nobilis et quae facile deducatur ignibus seu liquescat ferri materies praebeatur, quo promptius adempta fraudibus facultate commodo publico consulatur.

D. XV k. Nov. Theodosio A. II et Cynegio conss.

[2] Idem AAA. Rufino magistro officiorum. Primicerium fabricae post biennium non solum vacatione, verum etiam honore donari praecipimus, ita ut inter protectores eiusdem fabricae per biennium adoraturus aeternitatem nostram suo quisque tempore dirigatur.

D. VIII id. Mart. Mediolani Valentiniano A. IIII et Neoterio conss.

[3] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Osio magistro officiorum. Stigmata, hoc est nota publica, fabricensium brachiis ad imitationem tironum infligatur, ut hoc modo saltem possint latitantes agnosci (his, qui eos susceperint vel eorum liberos, sine dubio fabricae vindicandis) et qui subreptione quadam declinandi operis ad publicae cuiuslibet sacramenta militiae transierunt.

D. XVIII k. Ian. Constantinopoli Honorio A. IIII et Eutychiano conss.

sanction (interminatio). And for that reason We instruct that a seventh person from the bureau (scrinium) of scribes (exceptores), a sixth from the bureau of taxes (canones), and a fifth from the bureau of tax archivists (tabularii) be sent for a certain time to the dye works of Phoenicia, so that all fraud be prohibited by their cleverness as they fear losing the emoluments (stipendia) sought by long sweat; in addition, a condemnation of 20 pounds of gold is established.

Given March 8, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Isidore and Senator (436).

Tenth Title Arms Makers (Fabricenses)

[1][69] Emperors VALENTINIAN, THEODOSIUS, and ARCADIUS Augusti to Tatianus, Praetorian Prefect. We instruct that all arms factories (fabricae) not be paid in money instead of materials (species), but in the materials themselves without delay, so that the iron ore that comes from a noble vein and that can easily be shaped by fire or melts might be provided. In this way the public interest may more readily be served, with the ease of committing fraud removed.

Given October 18, in the consulship of Theodosius Augustus, for the second time, and Cynegius (388).

[2][70] The same Augusti to Rufinus, Master of the Offices. We instruct that the chief (primicerius) of an arms factory after a two-year period be rewarded not only with a leave from duties (vacatio), but also honor, so that each one in his own time might be enrolled (dirigatur) among the protectors of the same arms factory for a two-year period to adore Our Eternity.

Given March 8, at Milan, in the consulship of Valentinian Augustus, for the fourth time, and Neoterius (390).

[3][71] Emperors ARCADIUS and HONORIUS Augusti to Hosius, Master of the Offices. Brands, that is, a public marking, shall be inflicted on the arms of arms makers in imitation of recruits, so that in this way they may at least be recognized when hiding – since those who have taken them or their children up without doubt must be claimed for the arms factory – and when they by some trick to avoid work have gone over to the oath of some public service.

Given December 15, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Honorius Augustus, for the fourth time, and Eutychianus (398).

[69] = C.Th. 10.22.2.
[70] = C.Th. 10.22.3 (omitting "of the same arms factory for a two-year period"). The protectores were special guards of the emperor; Blume refers to the constitutions in C. 12.17.
[71] = C.Th. 10.22.4.

[4] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Anthemio pp. pr. Si quis consortium fabricensium crediderit eligendum, in ea urbe, qua natus est vel in qua domicilium collocavit, his quorum interest convocatis primitus acta conficiat, sese doceat non avo non patre curiali progenitum, nihil ordini civitatis debere, nulli se civico muneri obnoxium, atque ita demum gestis confectis vel apud moderatorem provinciae vel si is absit apud defensorem civitatis, ad militiam quam optaverit suscipiatur. 1. Quod si absque hac cautione quispiam ad fabricensium consortium obrepserit, sciat se ad ordinis cui debetur patriaeque suae munera esse reducendum, ita ut nulla eum nec temporis nec stipendiorum praerogativa defendat.

D. XV k. Iun. Constantinopoli Honorio VIIII et Theodosio V AA. conss.

[5] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Aureliano comiti rerum privatarum. pr. Iure provisum est fabricenses artibus propriis inservire, ut exhaustis laboribus immorentur cum subole professioni, cui nati sunt. 1. Denique quod ab uno committitur, totius delinquitur periculo numeri, ut constricti nominationibus suis sociorum actibus quandam speculam gerant, et unius damnum ad omnium transit dispendium. 2. Universi itaque, velut in corpore unius formae, unius decoctionis, si ita res tulerit, respondere cogentur.

D. prid. non. Nov. Constantinopoli Theodosio A. XVII et Festo conss.

[6] Impp. Leo et Anthemius AA. Euphemio magistro officiorum. Eos, qui inter fabricenses sacrae fabricae sociati sunt, vel eorum uxores aut filios, qui itidem inter fabricenses militare dicuntur, non alibi pulsare volentibus respondere praecipimus, nisi in iudicio tuae sublimitatis, ad cuius iurisdictionem potestatemque pertinent: nec eos post stipendiorum1 finem militiae super civilibus vel curialibus muneribus, quibus nullo modo subiacere monstrantur, a viris clarissimis rectoribus provinciarum vel eorum officiis praeter licitum inquietari.

[4][72] Emperors Honorius and Theodosius Augusti to Anthemius, Praetorian Prefect. pr. If anyone has believed to choose the guild of the arms makers (consortium fabricensium), in the city in which he was born or in which he has established his domicile, having summoned those who are affected he shall first complete his declaration (acta), and he shall show that he is not born from a grandfather or a father who was a decurion, that he owes nothing to the city council (ordo civitatis), and that he is not liable for any public service for his city; and when his declaration is completed either before the provincial governor or, if he should be absent, before the defender of the city, only then is he to be taken up for the service (militia) that he has chosen. 1. But if, without this written promise (cautio), someone has stolen his way into the guild of the arms makers, he should know that he is to be returned to the public services of the council (ordo) to which he is owed and of his home town, in such a way that no prerogative of time or service (stipendia) will defend him.

Given May 18, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Honorius, for the ninth time, and Theodosius, for the fifth time, Augusti (412).

[5][73] Emperors Theodosius and Valentinian Augusti to Aurelianus Count of the Privy Purse. pr. It has been provided by law that arms makers serve their own skills, so that when their labors are exhausted they remain liable with their offspring to the profession into which they have been born. 1. Finally what is committed by one is a transgression (that occurs) at the risk of the entire number, so that bound by their own nominations they practice a certain watchfulness (specula) for the acts of their partners (socii), and the loss caused by one person passes to the expense of all. 2. Thus all of them, as if in a body of one form, or one mixture, if the matter so requires, will be compelled to respond.

Given November 4, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Theodosius Augustus, for the seventeenth time, and Festus (439).

[6] Emperors Leo and Anthemius Augusti to Euphemius, Master of the Offices. We instruct that those who are associated with the arms makers of the Sacred Arms Factory or their wives or children, who are also said to serve among the arms makers, not respond to others wishing to sue (pulsare, "to strike") them in any place other than in the court of Your Sublimity, to whose jurisdiction and power they belong. After the completion of the terms of their service (post stipendiorum finem militiae) they are not to be bothered concerning civil or curial (i.e., connected with a town council) public services, to which they are shown to be in no measure liable, beyond what it permitted, by provincial governors with the rank of viri clarissimi or by their offices.[74]

[72] = C.Th. 10.22.6; possibly combine with C.Th. 12.1.175 (same date, but with a different addressee). For the prohibition on decurions from becoming arms makers, Blume refers to C. 10.32.32.

[73] = Nov. Theod. 6 (differently worded); combine with C. 6.62.5. Seeck gives November 4, 438.

[74] Seeck dates this constitution and the next to 467–472.

[7] Idem AA. Euphemio magistro officiorum. pr. Nullus fabricensium conductioni vel administrationi vel agriculturae alienarum rerum se posthac immiscere conetur: dominis quidem, si qui contra haec statuta meae pietatis venire ausi fuerint, res vel praedia, quae scientes quod fabricenses sunt isdem fabricensibus ministranda commiserint, amissuris, fabricensibus vero gravissime coercitis post facultatum suarum amissionem perpetua exilii poena et animadversione retinendis. 1. Quotiens sane in translatione armorum angariae necessariae fuerint, sublimitas tua litteras ad eminentissimam iubeat dirigi praefecturam et numerum ei armorum et ex quo loco transferenda sunt indicare, ut continuo super praebendis angariis pro numero eorum quae transferuntur armorum praeceptione sua viros clarissimos provinciae moderatores conveniat, ut secundum missam a sublimitate tua notitiam naves vel angariae confestim de publico praebeantur. 2. Quod si aliqua tarditas vel neglegentia post datas a sublimitate tua ad eminentissimam praefecturam litteras in destinandis auctoritatibus amplissimae sedis intercesserit et ex hoc armorum transvectio fuerit impedita, quinquaginta libris auri tam numerarium pro tempore officii eiusdem amplissimae sedis quam alios quorum interest condemnari praecipimus eamque auri quantitatem protinus exactam fisci viribus adgregari: multa praeterea triginta librarum auri proposita tam viris clarissimis qui provincias regunt quam eorum apparitionibus, si coniventibus his armorum subvectio tarditate aliqua fuerit praepedita.

XI De Veteris Numismatis Potestate

[1] Impp. Valentinianus et Valens AA. Germano pp. Solidos veterum principum veneratione formatos ita tradi ac suscipi ab ementibus et distrahentibus iubemus, ut nihil omnino refragationis oriatur, modo ut debiti ponderis sint et speciei probae: scituris universis, qui aliter fecerint, haud leviter in se vindicandum.

[2] Idem AA. et Gratianus A. ad Iulianum pp. Pro imminutione, quae in aestimatione solidi forte tractatur, omnium quoque specierum pretia decrescere oportet.

[7] The same Augusti to Euphemius, Master of the Offices. pr. No one of the arms makers shall try henceforth to involve himself in the lease, administration, or cultivation of others' property. Owners, if any have dared to violate these statutes of My Piety, will lose the property or lands (praedia) that they, knowing that they are arms makers, have entrusted to the same arms makers to be managed, but the arms makers, having been coerced very severely, are to be retained under penalty and punishment with perpetual exile after the loss of their property. 1. Whenever, however, in the transferring of arms the requisition of transport (angiariae) is necessary, Your Sublimity shall order that a letter be directed to the Most Eminent Prefecture and indicate to him the number of the arms that are being transferred and the place from which they are to be transferred, so that he immediately inform (convenire) by his instruction the provincial governors of the rank of viri clarissimi concerning the provision of requisitioned transport in accordance with the number of arms that are being transferred, so that in accordance with the notification sent by Your Sublimity ships or transport be offered at public expense. 2. But if any lateness or negligence has occurred in assigning the authorities of the Most Magnificent Seat (amplissima sedes) after the letter has been given by Your Sublimity to the Most Eminent Prefecture and the transport of arms has been impeded as a result of this, We instruct that both the temporary accountant (numerarius) of the same office of the Most Magnificent Seat as well as others who have an interest be fined 50 pounds of gold and that this amount of gold, having been exacted immediately, be added to the resources of the Treasury. In addition, a fine of 30 pounds of gold has been established both for the viri clarissimi who rule the provinces as well as their assistants (apparitores), if at their connivance the transportation of arms has been hindered by any slowness.

Eleventh Title The Value of Old Coinage

[1][75] Emperors Valentinian and Valens Augusti to Germanus, Praetorian Prefect. We order that the solidi minted out of veneration for the old emperors be handed over and received by buyers and sellers in such a way that no objection (refragatio) might arise, as long as they are of the weight owed and proven type (species); everyone who acts differently will know that a punishment not at all light is to exacted from them.

[2] The same Augusti and Gratian Augustus to Julianus, Praetorian Prefect. In proportion to the reduction that may be applied in valuing a solidus, the prices of all products (species) must also decrease.[76]

[75] Probably combine with C. 10.72.5 and 11.7.2; the subscription for the latter dates to January 9, 367. Seeck dates to January 8, 367; Schmidt-Hofner, 368–371. Gothofredus gives the addressee as "Germanianus, Count of Imperial Finances."

[76] Seeck gives 371–373.

[3] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. Arintheo pp. Universos auctoritas tua proposito edicto commoneat obryziacorum omnium solidorum uniforme pretium postulare, scilicet capitali supplicio puniendo, qui vel iussa nostrae maiestatis avaritiae caecitate contempserit, vel aeternales vultus, dum fraudibus studet, duxerit viliores.

XII Nulli Licere in Frenis et Equestribus Sellis et in Balteis Margaritas et Smaragdos et Hyacinthos Aptare et de Artificibus Palatinis

[1] Imp. Leo A. Leontico. pr. Nulli prorsus liceat in frenis et equestribus sellis vel in balteis suis margaritas et smaragdos et hyacinthos aptare posthac vel inserere. aliis autem gemmis frena et equestres sellas et balteos suos privatos exornare permittimus. de curcumis vero omnem prorsus qualiumcumque gemmarum habitum praecipimus submoveri. fibulis quoque in chlamydibus his utantur, quae solo auro et arte pretiosae sunt. si quis autem contra interdictum pietatis meae fecerit, sciat se continuo quinquaginta libris auri esse multandum. 1. Nulli praeterea privatorum liceat (exceptis scilicet ornamentis matronalibus et tam muliebrium quam virilium anulorum habitu) aliquid ex auro et gemmis quod ad cultum et ornatum imperatorium pertinet facere neque illud sub hoc colore et praetextu praeparare, quod velit clementiae principali velut aliquod munus offerre: pietas enim mea huiusmodi dona non expetit neque regium sibi offerri a privatis cultum requirit. 2. Sane si quis posthac aliquid contra vetitum huiusmodi sanctionis effecerit et offerenda clementiae meae ornamenta, quae usibus regiis deputata sunt, gemmis auroque decorata ausus fuerit praeparare, centum librarum auri condemnatione sciat se esse feriendum, capitali quoque subdendum esse supplicio: ornamenta enim regia intra aulam meam fieri a palatinis artificibus debent, non passim in privatis domibus vel officiis parari. 3. Unde summa severitate sancimus, ut quod in cultu ornatuque nostro sacrum et adoptabile est, id facere temeritas privata non audeat. 4. Si quis sane contra vetitum tranquillitatis meae aliquid fecerit, definitam superius multam ab his per officia palatinorum exigi et sacris largitionibus nostris iubemus inferri.

[3] Emperors GRATIAN, VALENTINIAN, and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Arintheus, Praetorian Prefect. Your Authority (auctoritas tua) shall admonish by a published edict everyone to demand a uniform price for all standard gold (obryziaci) solidi; but anyone is to suffer capital punishment who either scorns the orders of Our Majesty out of blind greed or who, as he pursues fraud, regards as cheaper the eternal countenances (on the coins).[77]

Twelfth Title No One Is Allowed to Fasten Pearls, Emeralds, and Sapphires on Bridles, Saddles, and Belts, and Palace Artisans

[1] Emperor LEO Augustus to Leonticus. pr. No one at all shall be allowed henceforth to fasten or insert pearls, emeralds, and sapphires (hyacinthi) on their bridles, saddles, and belts. We permit private individuals to decorate bridles, saddles, and belts with other gems. But with horse muzzles We instruct that all wearing of gems of any type be removed. They should use these kinds of clasps on robes that are precious only because of gold and the skill (in making them). If anyone acts against the interdict of My Piety, he should know that he is immediately to be fined 50 pounds of gold. 1. In addition, no private individual shall be allowed to make anything from gold and gems that belongs to imperial dress and decoration – except, of course, for matronly decorations and the wearing of both women's and men's rings – nor to prepare, under this guise and pretext, that he wishes to offer some type of gift as it were to the Emperor's Clemency (clementia principalis): My Piety does not seek such gifts nor does it ask that royal haberdashery be offered by private people. 2. Certainly, if someone henceforth does anything against what is forbidden by such a ordinance and dares to prepare ornaments decorated with gems and gold, which have been reserved for royal uses, for them to be offered to My Clemency, he shall know that he is to be struck with a fine of 100 pounds of gold and that he also must undergo capital punishment; for royal ornaments ought to be made within My court by palace artisans, and not be prepared everywhere in private houses or offices. 3. Therefore We ordain with the utmost severity that private temerity should not dare to make what is sacred and worthy of adoption[78] in Our dress and ornamentation. 4. Certainly, if anyone does anything contrary to the interdict of My Tranquility, We order that the fine defined above be exacted from them through the offices of the palace officials and that it be paid into Our Imperial Finances.[79]

[77] Seeck dates c. 379.
[78] For adoptabile, perhaps adorabile, "worthy of adoration."
[79] Seeck dates to 457–474.

XIII De Classicis

[1] Impp. Valentinianus et Valens AA. Auxonio pp. Classem Seleucenam aliasque universas ad officium, quod magnitudini tuae obsequitur, volumus pertinere, ut classicorum numerus ex incensitis vel adcrescentibus compleatur et Seleucena ad auxilium purgandi Orontis aliasque necessitates Orientis comiti deputetur.

Data indictione XII.

XIIII De Decuriis Urbis Romae

[1] Imppp. Valentinianus Theodosius et Arcadius AAA. ad Trifolium pp. Si quis decurialem de auferendis privilegiis putaverit lite pulsandum, intellegat se decuriae interpellare debere iudicem.

D. XIIII k. Febr. Mediolani Timasio et Promoto conss.

[2] Imppp. Arcadius Honorius et Theodosius AAA. Exsuperantio Iulio et ceteris decurialibus. pr. Leges tam a superioribus principibus quam a divo parente nostro conditas nostra auctoritate firmamus. 1. Singulos itaque iudices scire volumus, ne quis huic collegio iniuriis corporalibus temptet notam atterere neque ab his commodis, quae rationibus approbantur, audeat separare. huic enim collegio volumus antiquam privilegiorum praerogativam servari.

D. VIII id. Iul. Romae Honorio A. VI et Aristaeneto conss.

XV De Privilegiis Corporatorum Urbis Romae

[1] Imppp. Valentinianus Theodosius et Arcadius AAA. ad Alypium pu. pr. Nulli sit liberum, nulli permissum, ut novum aliquid urbis incolae in urbe sustineant, sed in honorem aeternae urbis corporatis indulta

Thirteenth Title Marines

[1][80] Emperors VALENTINIAN and VALENS Augusti to Auxonius, Praetorian Prefect. We want the fleet at Seleucia and all the other ones to belong to the office that obeys Your Greatness (magnitudo tua), so that the number of marines (classici) be completed from those not registered in the census or from reserves and that the fleet at Seleucia be assigned to the Count of the East to aid in cleansing the Orontes and for other purposes.

Given in the twelfth year of the Indiction (369–70).

Fourteenth Title Associations[81] of the City of Rome

[1][82] Emperors VALENTINIAN, THEODOSIUS, and ARCADIUS Augusti to Trifolius, Praetorian Prefect. If anyone has thought of suing a member of an association (decuria) to remove his privileges, he shall understand that he ought to bring the action before the judge of the association.

Given January 19, at Milan, in the consulship of Timasius and Promotus (389).

[2][83] Emperors ARCADIUS, HONORIUS, and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Julius Exsuperantius and other members of the association. pr. We affirm by Our Authority the laws established both by previous emperors and by Our Deified Parent. 1. Thus, we want individual judges to know that no one should try to rub a mark of dishonor (nota) onto this guild with physical injuries or to dare to deprive (the members) of those benefits that are approved by careful reasoning.[84] For We wish that the ancient prerogative of privileges be preserved for this guild.

Given July 8, at Rome, in the consulship of Honorius Augustus, for the sixth time, and Aristaenetus (404).

Fifteenth Title Privileges of the Members of Associations of the City of Rome

[1][85] Emperors VALENTINIAN, THEODOSIUS, and ARCADIUS Augusti to Alypius, City Prefect. pr. No one should be free or permitted (to cause) that the residents of the city sustain anything new in the city, but We instruct that, for [80] = C.Th. 10.23.1. Seeck dates to early 369; Schmidt-Hofner, to between September 1, 369, and April 1, 370.

[81] This title, "de decuriis," is taken from the C.Th.; some manuscripts have "de curialibus," "concerning decuriones."
[82] = C.Th. 14.1.3.
[83] = C.Th. 14.1.4.
[84] "rationibus," which Blume translates as "by law."
[85] This is composed from C.Th. 14.2.2–4.

suffragia valere praecipimus. 1. Cura autem rectorum provinciarum corporati urbis Romae, qui in peregrina transgressi sunt, redire cogantur, ut servire possint functionibus, quas imposuit antiqua sollemnitas.

D. prid. id. Iul. Aquileiae Tatiano et Symmacho conss.

XVI De Pistoribus

[1] Imp. Leo A. Viviano pp. pr. Quicumque ex mancipibus comitis horreorum dignitatem et officium vel ambitione vel gratia vel pecunia seu quolibet alio modo posthac fuerit adsecutus, exutus dignitate, quam contra interdictum nostrae serenitatis adeptus est, multatus etiam viginti libris auri ad mancipum denuo consortium collegiumque revocetur. 1. Omne etiam speciale beneficium, quocumque modo contra hanc sanctionem fuerit impetratum, penitus conquiescat.

XVII De Suariis et Susceptoribus Vini et Ceteris Corporatis

[1] Imppp. Valentinianus Theodosius et Arcadius AAA. ad Albinum pu. Porcinarii urbis aeternae cum pervigilem laborem populi Romani commodis exhibeant, sordidis semper muneribus liberentur.

D. VIII k. Sept. Romae Timasio et Promoto conss.

[2] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Florentino pu. Quicumque ex corporibus suariorum sive excipiendae necessitate litis adstrictus seu inferendae voluntate spontanea provocatus iudicium voluerit experiri, fori urbani auditorium praestoletur.

the honor of the eternal city, the privileges (suffragia) granted to members of associations (corporati) be valid. 1. Members of associations of the city of Rome who have committed some offense abroad should be compelled to return by the care of the provincial governors, so that they can serve the functions (functiones) that ancient solemnity has imposed.

Given July 14, at Aquileia, in the consulship of Tatianus and Symmachus (391).

Sixteenth Title Bakers

[1] Emperor LEO Augustus to Vivianus, Praetorian Prefect. pr. Whoever henceforth from among the baking contractors (mancipes) has gained the rank and office of Count of the Granaries (horrea), either by solicitation, influence, money, or any other means, shall be stripped of the rank that he gained in violation of the interdict of Our Serenity, be fined 20 pounds of gold, and be recalled anew to his partnership with the contractors and to his guild (collegium). 1. In addition, every special benefit that has been gained in any way against this ordinance shall be completely idle.

(457–465).

Seventeenth Title Swine Dealers, Wine Contractors, and Other Members of Associations[86]

[1][87] Emperors VALENTINIAN, THEODOSIUS, and ARCADIUS Augusti to Albinus, City Prefect. Since the pork dealers of the Eternal City provide tireless labor for the benefit of the Roman people, they shall always be freed from ignoble compulsory services (munera sordida).[88]

Given August 25, at Rome, in the consulship of Timasius and Promotus (389).

[2] Emperors ARCADIUS and HONORIUS Augusti to Florentinus, City Prefect.[89] Whoever from the associations (corpora) of the swine dealers wishes to use a court, either bound by the necessity of defending against a lawsuit or provoked by a spontaneous wish to bring one, he should await a hearing in the city forum (i.e., before the City Prefect).

(395–397).

86 Pecuarii, "livestock dealers," are included in C.Th. 14.4, but omitted in Bas. 54.20.

87 = C.Th.14.4.6.

88 Munera sordida were obligatory public services that involved physical labor, as opposed to administrative or financial responsibility.

89 Name restored from C.Th. 14.4.7; the manuscripts have "Florentius, Praetorian Prefect." Some reference to wine collectors and other corporations may have fallen out. Seeck dates to February 15, 397.

XVIII De Collegiatis et Chartopratis et Nummulariis

[1] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Cyro pu. pr. Qui sub praetextu decanorum seu collegiatorum, cum id munus non impleant, aliis se muneribus conantur subtrahere, eorum fraudibus credidimus obviandum, ne quis sub specie muneris, quod minus exsequitur, alterius muneris oneribus relevetur, ne argentariorum vel nummulariorum munera declinentur ab his, qui dici tantum collegiati vel decani festinant. 1. Ideoque si quis eorum sub nudae appellationis velamine collegiatum se seu decanum appellat, sciat pro se alium subrogandum, qui praedicto muneri sufficiens approbatur, subrogatione videlicet memoratorum vel eorum qui moriuntur primatum eius qui subrogatur admisso iudicio. 2. Quod autem supra numerum, qui encautis brevibus continetur, nemo se quolibet patrocinio vel cuiuslibet adsumpta potentia debeat excusare, hoc nostrae est serenitatis censere, tuae sublimitatis tuique officii cautius observare.

3. Hoc inter omnes aequa lance servari praecipimus, nullo divinae domus patrocinio nullo sacrosanctarum ecclesiarum reverentia nullo qualibet vel cuiuslibet se potentia excusante. 4. Sed ne tantum circa munera relevanda supplicibus consuluisse noscamur, illud etiam dicendum observandumque esse censemus, ut chartae venditio, quae de provinciis ad corporatos supplicum per innovationem translata est, primae constitutionis terminis concludatur, hoc est, quod initio dispositionis constitutum est, id in posterum nulla addita novatione servetur.

D. x k. April. Theodosio XVII et Festo conss.

[2] …

XVIIII De Studiis Liberalibus Urbis Romae et Constantinopolitanae

[1] Imp. Theodosius A. et Valentinianus C. Constantio pu. pr. Universos, qui usurpantes sibi nomina magistrorum in publicis magistrationibus

Eighteenth Title Members of the Guild (of Firefighters), Sellers of Papyrus, and Money Changers

[1][90] Emperors THEODOSIUS and VALENTINIAN Augusti to Cyrus, City Prefect. pr. We have believed that we must oppose the fraud of those who, under the pretext of being corpse bearers (decani) or members of the guild (sc. of firemen),[91] when (in fact) they do not fulfill this service, endeavor to withdraw themselves from other compulsory services, lest anyone, under the pretext of one compulsory service that he does not carry out be relieved of the burdens of another, so that the duties of the bankers (argentarii) and the money changers (nummularii) not be refused by those who hasten to be merely called members of the guild or burial men. 1. If anyone, therefore, calls himself, under cover of a mere title, fireman or burial man, he should know that someone else, who is certified as suitable for the aforementioned liturgy, must be enrolled in his place – that is to say, when, for substitution of the aforementioned persons or of those who die, a trial has been initiated by the superiors of the one who is substituted.

2. That, however, no one should excuse himself over the number, which is included in the ink-written (encauti) lists, by any patronage or by assuming anyone's power, this is for Our Serenity to decree, and for Your Sublimity and Your Office to observe carefully.

3. We instruct that this be observed with an equal balance among everyone, with no patronage on the part of the Divine Household, no reverence for the sacrosanct churches, and no one excusing himself by any or anyone's power. 4. But lest We be known only to have considered petitioners over relief from their duties, We decree that this must be said and observed, that the sale of papyrus, which has been transferred from the provinces to the members of the association by the petitioners' innovation, is to be governed by the terms of the initial constitution, that is, that what was established at the outset of the disposition (of the association), shall be maintained for the future with no additional innovation.

Given March 23, in the consulship of Theodosius, for the seventeenth time, and Festus (439).[92]

Nineteenth Title Liberal Studies of the City of Rome and Constantinople

[1][93] Emperor THEODOSIUS Augustus and VALENTINIAN Caesar to Constantius, City Prefect. pr. We instruct that all be removed from vulgar ostentation who,

[90] Pr.-1 = C. 1.2.9, with some differences in wording.

[91] The guild referred to here is that of the firemen of Constantinople; see C. 4.63.5 and note ad loc. Blume identifies the decani as people in charge of burials; cf. C. 1.2.4, 9.

[92] A constitution of Anastasius, referred to in Nov. 59 pr., may have fallen out here. The constitution increased the number of the decani at Constantinople by 150. See C. 1.2.18, which may refer to part of the same constitution.

[93] = C.Th. 14.9.3. Combine with C.Th. 15.1.53.

cellulisque collectos undecumque discipulos circumferre consuerunt, ab ostentatione vulgari praecipimus amoveri, ita ut, si qui eorum post emissos divinae sanctionis adfatus quae prohibemus atque damnamus iterum forte temptaverit, non solum eius quam meretur infamiae notam subeat, verum etiam pellendum se ex ipsa ubi versatur illicite urbe cognoscat.

1. Illos vero, qui intra plurimorum domus eadem exercere privatim studia consueverunt, si ipsis tantummodo discipulis vacare maluerint, quos intra parietes domesticos docent, nulla huiusmodi interminatione prohibemus: sin autem ex eorum numero fuerint, qui videntur intra Capitolii auditorium constituti, ii omnibus modis privatarum aedium studia sibi interdicta esse cognoscant, scituri, quod, si adversus caelestia statuta facientes fuerint deprehensi, nihil penitus ex illis privilegiis consequantur, quae his, qui in Capitolio tantum docere praecepti sunt, merito deferuntur.

2. Habeat igitur auditorium specialiter nostrum in his primum, quos Romanae eloquentiae doctrina commendat, oratores quidem tres numero, decem vero grammaticos: in his etiam, qui facundia Graecitatis pollere noscuntur, quinque numero sint sophistae et grammatici aeque decem. 3. Et quoniam non his artibus tantum adulescentiam gloriosam optamus institui, profundioris quoque scientiae atque doctrinae memoratis magistris sociamus auctores. 4. Unum igitur adiungi ceteris volumus, qui philosophiae arcana rimetur, duo quoque, qui iuris ac legum voluntates pandant, ita ut unicuique loca specialiter deputata adsignari faciat tua sublimitas, ne discipuli sibi invicem possint obstrepere vel magistri, neve linguarum confusio permixta vel vocum aures quorundam aut mentes a studio litterarum avertat.

D. III k. Mart. Constantinopoli Theodosio A. XI et Valentiniano conss.

XX De Honoratorum Vehiculis

[1] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. Nebridio pu. Omnes honorati seu civilium seu militarium vehiculis dignitatis suae, id est carrucis, intra urbem sacratissimi nominis semper utantur.

D. III k. Febr. Constantinopoli Honorio np. et Euodio conss.

usurping for themselves the name of professors (magistri), have been accustomed to take around pupils collected from everywhere in the public schools (magistrationes) and rooms, so that, if any of them by chance, after the publication of the pronouncement of the Divine Ordinance, attempts again what We prohibit and condemn, he shall not only sustain the mark of the infamy that he deserves, but also know that he is to be expelled from the very city where he acts illegally.

1. But we do not prohibit with any such threat of punishment those who have been accustomed to pursue the same studies privately within the households of all sorts of people, if they prefer to make themselves available only for the pupils themselves whom they teach within private walls. But if they are from the number of those who are seen as established within the auditorium of the Capitol, they should understand that they are altogether forbidden study within private houses; and they will know that if they are caught acting against the heavenly statutes, they are not to gain anything at all from those privileges that are deservedly provided only for those who have been instructed to teach alone in the Capitol.

2. Therefore Our auditorium should specifically have, first, among those whom their learning in Roman eloquence commends, three orators, and ten grammarians; among these also, who are known to excel (pollere) in the eloquence of their Greek (facundia Graecitatis), there should be five rhetoricians (sophistae) and likewise ten grammarians. 3. And since We wish that the glorious youth be taught not just in these arts, We add teachers (auctores) of a more profound knowledge and learning to the professors mentioned. 4. Therefore We wish one to be joined to the others who ferrets out the secrets of philosophy, and also two who explain the intentions of the law and statutes (iuris ac legum voluntates), so that Your Sublimity should have assigned to each one places designated specifically, lest the pupils or professors be able to drown one another out in turn, or lest the jumbled confusion of languages and voices distract the ears or minds of some from the study of literature.

Given February 27, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Theodosius Augustus, for the eleventh time, and Valentinian (425).

Twentieth Title The Vehicles of Persons of Official Rank

[1][94] Emperors Gratian, Valentinian, and Theodosius Augusti to Nebridius, City Prefect. All persons of official rank (honorati), whether civil or military, shall always use the vehicles appropriate to their status, that is, four-wheeled coaches, within the city of most sacred name.

Given January 30, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Honorius, Most Noble Boy, and Euodius (386).

[94] = C.Th. 14.12.1.

XXI De Privilegiis Urbis Constantinopolitanae

[1] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Philippo pp. Illyrici. Urbs Constantinopolitana non solum iuris Italici, sed etiam ipsius Romae veteris praerogativa laetetur.

D. prid. id. Iul. Eustathio et Agricola conss.

XXII De Metropoli Beryto

[1] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Hormisdae pp. Propter multas iustasque causas metropolitano nomine ac dignitate Berytum decernimus exornandam iam suis virtutibus coronatam. igitur haec quoque metropolitanam habeat dignitatem. Tyro nihil de iure suo derogatur. sit illa mater provinciae maiorum nostrorum beneficio, haec nostro, et utraque dignitate simili perfruatur.

XXIII De Canone Frumentario Urbis Romae

[1] Impp. Valentinianus et Valens AA. ad Iulianum praefectum annonae. Nautici apud praesidum vel magistratuum acta confiteantur incorruptas species suscepisse, eorumque, apud quos deponitur ista testatio, praesens adspectus probet nihil in his esse vitii. quod eo tempore, quo ad sacrae urbis portum pervenit, praefecturam iugiter observare praeceptum est.

D. xviii k. Iul. Remis Gratiano A. et Dagalaifo conss.

[2] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. ad senatum et populum. Si quid frumenti vel olei urbicarii canonis remissione indultum est speciali beneficio, contra commodum publicum elicita non valeant.

D. xvii k. Mai. Mediolani Caesario et Attico conss.

Twenty-First Title Privileges of the City of Constantinople

[1][95] Emperors Honorius and Theodosius Augusti to Philippus, Praetorian Prefect for Illyricum. The city of Constantinople should enjoy not only Italic right (ius Italicum), but also the prerogative of ancient Rome herself.

Given July 14, in the consulship of Eustathius and Agricola (421).

Twenty-Second Title The Metropolis of Beirut

[1] Emperors Theodosius and Valentinian Augusti to Hormisdas, Praetorian Prefect. For many and just reasons We decree that Beirut, already crowned by her virtues, be honored with the name and rank of a metropolis. Therefore, she shall also have the rank of a metropolis. Nothing is removed from Tyre's right. Let the latter be the mother of the province by the benefit of Our ancestors, and the former by Our benefit, and let each one enjoy a similar rank.

(448–450).

Twenty-Third Title The Grain Tax of the City of Rome

[1][96] Emperors Valentinian and Valens Augusti to Julian, Prefect of the Food Supply. Shippers (nautici) shall announce in the records of the governors or magistrates that they have received unspoiled supplies, and the first-hand inspection of those with whom this declaration is deposited should prove that there is no flaw in them. The Prefecture (of the Food Supply) has been instructed also to observe this at that time, when they (the supplies) have arrived at the port of the sacred city.

Given June 14, at Reims, in the consulship of Gratian Augustus and Dagalaifus (366).

[2][97] Emperors Arcadius and Honorius Augusti to the Senate and People. If any grain or oil of the tax (canon) for the city has been forgiven by a special benefit, favors elicited against the public interest shall not be valid.

Given April 15, at Milan, in the consulship of Caesarius and Atticus (397).

[95] Combine with C. 1.2.6.
[96] = C.Th. 14.15.2.
[97] = C.Th. 14.15.3. Combine with C. 4.40.3; C.Th. 6.2.17–18, 6.4.31, 12.6.24, 13.5.27, 13.9.5.

[3] Idem AA. Messalae pp. pr. Neminem patimur in mutando canone urbis Romae nostrae clementiae beneficium postulare: sed etiam ea rescripta, quae quoquo modo potuerint impetrari, suscipi non sinimus. eos vero, qui contra haec fecerint, in duplum retinendos esse decernimus. 1. Vicarios quin etiam ceterosque iudices, nisi deinceps ab usurpatione urbicarii canonis abstineant, deportationis poena detineri, primates officiorum capitali supplicio subiugari perpetua auctoritate sancimus.

D. prid. non. Sept. Altino Theodoro vc. cons.

XXIIII De Frumento Urbis Constantinopolitanae

[1] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Urso pu. Nulli, ne divinae quidem domui nostrae frumentum de horreis publicis pro annona penitus praebeatur, sed integer canon mancipibus consignetur, annona in pane cocto domibus exhibenda. ita enim debet canon ab inclitae memoriae Constantino praestitus nec non a divo pietatis meae avo Theodosio auctus expendi, quoniam crescit inopia, si frumenta, quae pro annona tribuuntur, ad usus alios deputata cogentur sibi de publico emere, quae aliis vendere potuissent.

D. x k. Aug. Constantinopoli Theodosio A. VII et Palladio conss.

[2] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Leontio pu. pr. Auri statuta quantitas ad coemptionem frumentariam sit perpetuo dedicata, nec liceat cuiquam postea administratione urbicariae potestatis percepta aliquid ex eadem summa minuere vel ad quoscumque alios usus convertere: sed sub gestorum testificatione certum fiat, et quod mancipibus mutui nomine datum est et quod ab isdem sit excepta omni concussione

[3][98] The same Augusti to Messala, Praertorian Prefect. pr. We suffer no one to request the benefit of Our Clemency in changing the tax of the city of Rome; but We do not even allow the reception of those rescripts that have been able to be gained in any way. Still, We decree that those who have acted against these measures are to be liable for double the amount. 1. Indeed, We ordain by Our perpetual authority that Vicars (vicarii) and other governors (iudices), unless they henceforth refrain from usurping the tax for the city, be bound by the penalty of deportation, and the chiefs (primates) of the official staffs be subject to capital punishment.

Given September 4, at Altinum, in the consulship of the vir clarissimus Theodorus (399).

Twenty-Fourth Title The Grain for the City of Constantinople

[1][99] Emperors Honorius and Theodosius Augusti to Ursus, City Prefect. No one, not even Our Divine Household, shall be furnished grain from the public granaries instead of the food supply (annona, that is, bread), but the tax shall be signed over to the baking contractors (mancipes) in its entirety, and the food supply is to be provided in (the form of) cooked bread for the houses. For the grain tax (canon) established by Constantine of illustrious memory and also increased by the deified Grandfather of My Piety, Theodosius,[100] should be distributed in this way, since scarcity would increase if they (the bakers) should be compelled to purchase for themselves at public expense the grain that is provided for the food supply but assigned to other uses, which they could have sold to others.[101]

Given July 23, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Theodosius Augustus, for the seventh time, and Palladius (416).

[2][102] Emperors Theodosius and Valentinian Augusti to Leontius, City Prefect. pr. A set quantity of gold shall be dedicated in perpetuity for the purchase of grain, nor shall anyone be allowed henceforth, after taking over the administration of power within the city, to withdraw anything from the same sum or to convert it to any other uses; but it should become certain by a sworn declaration about the transactions (gestorum testificatio) both what has been

[98] Pr. = C.Th. 14.15.5.
[99] = C.Th. 14.16.2.
[100] See C. 11.25.2.
[101] The wording is obscure. In Blume's interpretation the people who are forced to buy are not the bakers, but the public at large. Similarly, the Pharr translation of C.Th. 14.16.2 runs: "since want increases if the grain assigned to the annona is put to other uses, and the people are forced to buy for themselves from the public supplies that which they would have been able to sell to others."
[102] = C.Th. 14.16.3 (which has 611 pounds of gold in the principium).

solvendum. 1. Eum autem, qui hanc formam ausus fuerit inquinare, quantitatem, in qua suam calliditatem exercuerit, in duplum redhibere iubemus, et quidquid ex praedicta ratione adcreverit, ad cumulum eiusdem auri quantitatis et frumentarii tituli fomitem redundare, legisque huius tenorem aeneis tabulis incidi.

D. v k. Dec. Constantinopoli Areobindo et Aspare conss.

XXV De Annonis Civilibus

[1] Imppp. Theodosius Arcadius et Honorius AAA. Proculo pu. pr. Annonas publicas non tam titulis dignitatum quam singulorum viritim meritis attributas divi Constantini liberalitate sat claruit. 1. Ideoque nihil ex his scholarum nomine vindicetur, sed pro uniuscuiusque merito quae sunt concessa serventur, ut, quicumque perceptarum annonarum emolumenta vel in heredes proprios iure sanguinis transfuderunt vel in extraneos distractionis titulo transscripserunt, maneat, quod gestum est vel hereditatis merito vel alienationis arbitrio.

D. VII k. Iul. Constantinopoli Arcadio A. II et Rufino conss.

[2] Imppp. Theodosius Arcadius et Honorius AAA. Tatiano pp. pr. Centum viginti quinque modios frumenti praeter solitum canonem per singulos dies de praesenti sexta indictione ex die kalendarum Ianuariarum nomine parapeteumatis de horreis publicis huius almae urbis insita nostrae pietatis liberalitate tribuimus, datis sacris apicibus ad sublimissimam quoque per Orientem praefecturam, quibus possit et modum nostrae donationis agnoscere et incunctanter praebere quae iussimus. 1. Quam modiationem iugiter et in perpetuum civibus nostris debere conferri valitura in aevum hac lege sancimus.

given as a loan to the baking contractors and what is to be paid by the same people with all extortion removed. 1. However, We order that the person who has dared to befoul this procedure restore double the amount in which he practiced his cleverness, and that whatever increase has come from the account mentioned above accrue to the total of the amount of gold and the support of the grain account, and also that the text of this law be inscribed on bronze tablets.

Given November 27, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Areobindus and Aspar (434).

Twenty-Fifth Title City Food Supplies

[1][103] Emperors Theodosius, Arcadius, and Honorius Augusti to Proculus, City Prefect. pr. It has been made quite clear by the generosity of the Deified Constantine that public food supplies (annonae publicae) are distributed not so much on the basis of ranks as on the merits of individuals on a per person basis. 1. For this reason nothing shall be claimed by these persons by virtue of their corps (scholae), but the grants that have been made for the merit of each and every one are to be maintained, so that those who have transferred by the right of blood relationship to their own heirs the emoluments of the food supplies they have received or who have ascribed them to outsiders under a sale, what has been done either by the merit of inheritance or by the decision to alienate shall remain valid.

Given June 25, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Arcadius Augustus, for the second time, and Rufinus (392).

[2] Emperors Theodosius, Arcadius, and Honorius Augusti to Tatianus, Praetorian Prefect.[104] pr. We grant 125 modii of grain for distribution (nomine parapeteumatis) beyond the customary grain tax (canon) each day from the present January 1 in the sixth indiction from the public granaries of this dear city by the customary generosity of Our Piety, having given sacred letters to the Most Sublime Prefecture of the East, by which it will be possible both to acknowledge the amount of Our gift and to offer without hesitation what We have ordered. 1. We ordain that this amount of grain ought to be conferred on our citizens immediately and in perpetuity, with this law remaining in effect for the ages.

(392).

[103] = C.Th. 14.17.10.
[104] The names of the issuing emperors are restored on the basis of C. 11.24.1 and C.Th. 14.17.14. Seeck gives early September 392.

XXVI De Mendicantibus Validis

[1] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. ad Severum pu. Cunctis adfatim, quos in publicum quaestum incerta mendicitas vocabit, inspectis exploretur in singulis et integritas corporum et robur annorum, atque inertibus et absque ulla debilitate miserandis necessitas inferatur, ut eorum quidem, quos tenet condicio servilis, proditor studiosus et diligens dominium consequatur, eorum vero, quos natalium sola libertas prosequatur, colonatu perpetuo fulciatur, quisquis huiusmodi lenitudinem prodiderit ac probaverit: salva dominis actione in eos, qui vel latebram forte fugitivis vel mendicitatis subeundae consilium praestiterunt.

D. XII k. Iul. Patavi Antonio et Syagrio conss.

XXVII De Nautis Tiberinis

[1] Impp. Valentinianus et Valens AA. ad Symmachum pu. Qui navem Tiberinam habere fuerit ostensus, onus rei publicae necessarium agnoscat. Quaecumque igitur navigia in alveo Tiberis inveniuntur, competentibus et solitis obsequiis mancipentur, ita ut nullius dignitas aut privilegium ab hoc officio vindicetur.

D. VIII id. Oct. Altino divo Ioviano et Varroniano conss.

XXVIII De Frumento Alexandrino

[1] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Anthemio pp. pr. In aestimatione frumenti, quod ad civitatem Alexandrinam convehitur, quidquid de crithologia et zygostasii munere et pro naucleriorum tuenda substantia eminentia tua disposuit, roboramus. 1. Atque ut curialibus praedae auferatur occasio, iubemus eos ad huiusmodi sollicitudinem adfectandam numquam accedere, sed designata officia tuis provisionibus examinata sollicitudinem praedictam implere.

D. V k. Febr. Constantinopoli Honorio VIIII et Theodosio V AA. conss.

Twenty-Sixth Title Able-bodied Beggars

[1][105] Emperors Gratian, Valentinian, and Theodosius Augusti to Severus, City Prefect. For all those indeed whom an uncertain career in begging will summon to profit at public expense, both the soundness of their bodies and the strength of their years shall be investigated on the basis of individual inspections, and compulsion applied to the lazy and those who are not to be pitied for any disability, so that the one who eagerly and diligently reveals them gain ownership of the ones whom a servile condition holds, but whoever reveals and proves such laziness (lenitudo) for those who are accompanied only by the liberty of their birth is to be supported by the perpetual right of the colonate (colonatus perpetuus). Owners retain a right of action against those who have offered by chance either a hiding place for fugitives or encouragement to undertake begging.

Given June 20, at Padua (Patavium), in the consulship of Antonius and Syagrius (382).

Twenty-Seventh Title Tiber Sailors

[1][106] Emperors Valentinian and Valens Augusti to Symmachus, City Prefect. Whoever has been shown to have a ship on the Tiber must acknowledge a burden necessary for the state (res publica). Therefore whatever boats are found in the Tiber's channel should be claimed for the appropriate and customary services (obsequia), in such a way that no one's rank or privilege be made immune from this duty.

Given October 8, at Altinum, in the consulship of the deified Jovian and Varronianus (364).

Twenty-Eighth Title Grain for Alexandria

[1][107] Emperors Honorius and Theodosius Augusti to Anthemius, Praetorian Prefect. pr. In estimating the grain that is conveyed to the city of Alexandria, We affirm whatever Your Eminence has disposed concerning the barley collecting (crithologia) and the mandatory service (munus) of the weights and measures (zygostasium) and for maintaining the property of the shippers. 1. And so that the opportunity for plunder be removed from the decurions, We order that they never accede to claiming such a duty (sollicitudo), but that the designated offices, examined by Your supervision, fulfill the aforementioned duty.

Given January 28, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Honorius, for the ninth time, and Theodosius, for the fifth time, Augusti (412).

105 = C.Th. 14.18.1
106 = C.Th. 14.21.1. Combine with C.Th. 11.36.16, 14.3.7 (issued at Milan, and addressed to Viventius, City Prefect).
107 = C.Th. 14.26.1. Possibly combine with C. 11.2.4, 11.6.6.

[2] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Isidoro pp. Diurnos centum et decem modios alimoniis Alexandrinae civitatis addi decernimus, ut nemo privetur eo, quod nunc usque percepit, et perissochoregiae nomen penitus amputetur et tesserae designentur et nostrae pietatis nomine censeantur.

D. prid. non. Iun. Constantinopoli Isidoro et Senatore conss.

XXVIIII De Alexandriae Primatibus

[1] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Isidoro pp. Corporatos civitatis Alexandrinae repurgandi fluminis onere liberamus et pro tenore et dispositione tua quadringentos solidos ex dinummio vectigali memoratae civitatis praecommodari decernimus, ita ut ex titulo navium omnibus modis repensetur.

D. prid. non. Iun. Constantinopoli Isidoro et Senatore conss.

XXX De Iure Rei Publicae

[1] Imp. Antoninus A. Dionysio. Si quid adversus rem publicam indefensam in ea specie, in qua neque defensores creati fuerint neque ut crearentur placuerit, statutum est, actionibus eius nihil est praeiudicatum.

[2] Idem A. Aphrodisio. An res publica, in cuius locum vos successistis eo, quod satisfecisse debito proponitis, ius pignoris in eo fundo habeat, apud suum iudicem quaeritur. Si enim neque beneficio sibi concesso id ius nacta est neque specialiter in obligatione pignoris sibi prospexit, causa eius non separatur a ceteris creditoribus, qui habent personalem actionem.

[3] Imp. Alexander A. Saturnino. Rem publicam ut pupillam extra ordinem iuvari moris est.

[4] Impp. Diocletianus et Maximianus AA. Urbano. Si secundum legem civitatis res publica, cuius meministi, ruina collapsis aedificiis tuis distraxit aream, nihil contra huius legis tenorem rector provinciae fieri patietur.

[2][108] Emperors THEODOSIUS and VALENTINIAN Augusti to Isidorus, Praetorian Prefect. We determine that 110 modii be added every day to the food supply of the city of Alexandria, so that no one be deprived of what he has received up to now, and that the title of the provision of surplus (perissochoregia) be abolished completely, that tokens (tesserae, for receiving bread) be designated and be valued in the name of Our Piety.[109]

Given June 4, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Isidorus and Senator (436).

Twenty-Ninth Title The Chiefs (Primates) of Alexandria

[1][110] Emperors THEODOSIUS and VALENTINIAN Augusti to Isidorus, Praetorian Prefect. We free the members of associations (corporati) of the city of Alexandria of the burden of dredging (repurgandi) the river, and We determine that 400,000 solidi be provided from the two-coin impost (binummium vectigal) of the aforementioned city in keeping with your policy (tenor) and disposition, so that compensation be made in every way for the ships (used for dredging).

Given June 4, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Isidorus and Senator (436).

Thirtieth Title The Right of a Municipality

[1] Emperor ANTONINUS Augustus to Dionysius. If any decision has been rendered against a municipality (res publica) undefended in this respect, that defenders (defensores) have not been elected and it was not decided that they be elected, its rights of action have not been prejudiced at all.

[2] The same Augustus to Aphrodisius. Whether the municipality, into whose place (as creditor) you (plural) have succeeded for the reason that, as you state, you have satisfied a debt (owed by a third-party debtor), has the right of pledge over the farm, is investigated before its own judge. For if it has not acquired that right for itself by the concession of a benefit and it has not provided this for itself specifically in obligating the pledge, its case is not separated from the other creditors, who have an action in personam.

[3] Emperor ALEXANDER Augustus to Saturninus. It is customary that a municipality, like a ward, be aided by extraordinary procedure (extra ordinem).

[4] Emperors DIOCLETIAN and MAXIMIAN Augusti to Urbanus. If in accordance with a law of the city the municipality that you have mentioned sold a lot after your buildings had collapsed in ruin, the provincial governor will not allow anything to happen against the provisions of this law.

[108] = C.Th. 14.26.2. Combine with C. 10.32.56–59, 11.29.1.
[109] Blume translates "bear the name of Our Piety."
[110] = C.Th. 14.27.2; see note on C. 11.28.2.

XXXI De Administratione Rerum Publicarum

[1] Imp. Philippus A. Crescentiae. Fundum vectigalem, si suis quibusque temporibus debitae quantitates inferantur, invito possessore auferri non posse manifestum est.

[2] Impp. Diocletianus et Maximianus AA. et CC. Iulio et Zenodoro. Contra eos, qui rem publicam administrantes per officii necessitatem sub condicione relicti fideicommissi satis accipere debuerunt, quanti rei publicae interest satis non esse acceptum, dirigendam actionem perspicitis.

PP. VII k. Dec. CC. conss.

XXXII De Vendendis Rebus Civitatis

[1] Impp. Severus et Antoninus AA. Herculiano. Si sine ulla condicione praedia vendente re publica comparasti, perfecta venditione nulla ratione vereris, ne adiectione facta auferri tibi dominium possit. Tempora enim adiectionibus praestituta ad causas fisci pertinent, nisi si qua civitas propriam legem habeat.

[2] Imp. Antoninus A. Quamvis incrementum conductioni factae publici praedii videtur offerri, non tamen additamenti specie oportet fidem locationis infringi, praesertim cum tantum iam temporis ex contractu decessisse proponas.

[3] Imp. Leo A. Erythrio pp. pr. Si qua hereditatis vel legati seu fideicommissi aut donationis titulo domus aut annonae civiles aut quaelibet aedificia vel mancipia ad ius inclitae urbis vel alterius cuiuslibet civitatis pervenerunt sive pervenerint, super his licebit civitatibus venditionis pro suo commodo inire contractum, ut summa pretii exinde collecta ad renovanda sive restauranda publica moenia dispensata proficiat. 1. Indefessa vero cura prospicientes, ne quis adversus commoda civitatum quicquam moliri possit incommodum, sed sine ulla fraude seu nundinatione vel colludio seu coniventia huiusmodi venditiones procedant, hoc in posterum observandum esse censemus, ut, si quidem ad hanc

Thirty-First Title The Administration of Public Property

[1] Emperor PHILIP Augustus to Cresecentia. It is manifest that a farm subject to an impost (fundus vectigalis, one that is leased from a municipality) cannot be taken away from the possessor against his will if the amounts owed should be paid in a timely manner.

[2][111] Emperors DIOCLETIAN and MAXIMIAN Augusti and the Caesars to Julius and Zenodorus. You see that an action for the municipality's interest that the sureties were not taken should be directed against those who, while administering the municipality through the requirement of their office, ought to have accepted security to guarantee a trust left (to the municipality).

Posted November 25, in the consulship of the Caesars (294).

Thirty-Second Title Selling a City's Property

[1] Emperors SEVERUS and ANTONINUS Augusti to Herculianus. If you have purchased properties when the municipality was selling them without any condition, once the sale is completed you fear without reason that ownership can be taken away from you upon the submission of a higher bid. The times established for higher bids pertain to the interests of the Treasury, unless some city should have its own law.[112]

[2] Emperor ANTONINUS Augustus. Although an increase (a higher bid than yours) seems to be offered on the lease that has been made of a public property, nevertheless the terms of the lease must not be infringed under the pretext of an additional bid, especially since you state that so much time has already passed from (the beginning of) the contract.

[3][113] Emperor LEO Augustus to Erythrius, Praetorian Prefect. pr. If, by right of inheritance or legacy or trust or gift, any house or rights to municipal food distribution or buildings or slaves have come or will have come to belong to this Illustrious City (Constantinople) or any other city, the cities will be permitted to enter into a contract for sale to serve their interest, so that the amount of the price, once collected and paid, should serve for renewing or restoring public walls. 1. Looking out with untiring care, lest anyone might be able to cause any harm to the interests of cities, but that sales proceed without any fraud, bargaining, collusion, or connivance, We decree that this be observed in the future, that, if it happens that a house or city food supplies or slaves

111 = C. 6.54.8 (February 24), which also gives the action against the administrators' successors.
112 Paul. D. 50.1.21.7 refers to this rescript.
113 Pr. = C. 6.24.12; combine with 8.11.22. Krüger dates this text and the related ones to 472; Seeck dates this constitution to February 29, 472.

inclitam urbem domum vel civiles annonas aut alia quaelibet aedificia aut mancipia pertinentia contigerit venumdari, non aliter nisi imperiali auctoritate vendantur. 2. In provinciis vero praesentibus omnibus seu plurima parte tam curialium quam honoratorum et possessorum civitatis, ad quam res pertinent praedictae, propositis sacrosanctis scripturis singillatim unumquemque eorum qui convenerint iubemus sententiam quam putent utilem patriae suae designare, ut ita demum decreti recitatione in provinciali iudicio interveniente emptor competentem possit habere cautelam. 3. Hos autem venditionum contractus, sive iam completi fuerunt seu postea ineundi fuerint, stabiles esse censemus.

D. v k. Mart. Marciano et Zenone conss.

XXXIII De Debitoribus Civitatum

[1] Imp. Antoninus A. Diodoto. Non prius debitorem rei publicae honorem in re publica subire, quam id quod debere constiterit conventus exsolverit, tam meis quam divorum principum constitutionibus declaratur.

[2] Imp. Constantinus A. Verino suo salutem. pr. Apud eos, quos superstites integris facultatibus esse pervideris vel quorum heredes incolumia retinent patrimonia, sortes rei publicae perseverare debebunt, ita tamen, ut annuas usuras suis quibusque temporibus exsolvant, cum simul et rei publicae utile sit retinere idoneos debitores et ipsis commodum cumulum debiti minime nutriri. 1. Et quia nefas est obnoxiis corporibus alienatis circumscribi civitates, placuit, si qui debitor rei publicae civitatis quippiam ex eo patrimonio, quod habuit, cum pecuniam rei publicae sumeret, donaverit vel distraxerit vel qualibet in alium ratione contulerit, qualitate rei alienatae perspecta atque omnibus debitoris facultatibus consideratis, quas habuit, cum ei pecunia crederetur, pro rata ab eo, qui ex debitoris facultatibus aliquid detinet, ex sorte atque usuris postulari. 1a. Itaque quotiens minus idoneum deprehenditur eius patrimonium, cuius nomen civitati alicui invenitur obnoxium, iudex omni diligentiae sollicitudine debebit inquirere, ad quos ex qualibet condicione transierint debitoris facultates, ut singuli aequa aestimatione habita pro rata rerum quas possident conveniantur, belonging to this illustrious city are sold, they shall not be sold except with imperial authority. 2. In the provinces We order that, in the presence of all or the greater part of both the decurions as well as the office-holders (honorati) and landowners (possessores) of the city, to which the aforementioned property belongs, after bringing forth the holy scriptures, each one of those who have convened is to indicate one by one the opinion that he thinks is useful to his hometown, so that only after the recitation of the decree occurs in the provincial court may the buyer be able to have a sufficient guarantee (cautela). 3. We deem that these sale contracts, whether they have already been completed or are to be entered into afterwards, are valid.

Given February 25, in the consulship of Marcianus and Zeno (469).

Thirty-Third Title Debtors of Cities

[1] Emperor ANTONINUS Augustus to Diodotus. It is declared both in my constitutions and in those of the deified emperors that a debtor to a municipality not undertake an office in the municipality before, upon being sued, he has paid what it is established he owes.

[2][114] Emperor CONSTANTINE Augustus sends greetings to Verinus. pr. The fund's principal (sortes) belonging to a municipality should remain with those who you see are still alive with intact resources or whose heirs retain their patrimonies undiminished, but under the condition that they pay annual interest at the appropriate times, since it is at once both useful for the municipality to retain suitable (idonei, i.e., ones who can pay) debtors and a benefit for the debtors themselves that the amount of the debt not be increased. 1. And since it is unspeakable for cities to be defrauded by the alienation of obligated properties (obnoxia corpora), if some debtor of the commonwealth of a city (rei publicae civitatis) has given away any part of the patrimony that he had when he took the municipality's money or has sold it or conferred it upon another person by any means whatsoever, upon examination of the quality of the property that has been alienated and consideration of all the debtor's resources that he had when money was lent to him, it has been decided that the principal and interest be demanded in proportion from the one who holds anything from the debtor's resources. 1a. In this way whenever the patrimony of the person whose debt (nomen) is found to be owed to any city is discovered to be insufficient (to meet this debt), a judge with all care for diligence will be obliged to find out to whom the debtor's resources have passed under any condition, so that, after a fair appraisal is made, they may be sued individually in proportion to the personalem actionem contra eum habituri debitorem, qui ipsis solventibus liberatur. 1b. Ab eo autem, a quo constat fortunarum suarum partem maximam recessisse, etiam reliquam portionem quae apud eum resederit transferri ad idoneum oportebit.

[114] = C.Th. 12.11.1, addressed to Locrius Verinus, with a somewhat different wording. Seeck dates to January 30, 320.

2. Quod si quispiam debitor rei publicae civitatis fisco nostro locum fecerit, emptores, qui ex fisco nostro comparaverint, manifestum est secundum ius vetus et rescripta divorum constitutionesque nostras nullam debere molestiam sustinere. 3. Quod si quis debitor non comparaverit vel certe ita omnia sua consumpserit, ut nemo aliquam rem ex eius bonis possideat, id debitum convenit ad dispendium rei publicae pertinere. Ideoque cura patris civitatis apud idoneos vel dominos rusticorum praediorum pecunia collocanda est.

PP. III k. Febr. Volusiano et Anniano conss.

XXXIIII De Periculo Nominatorum

[1] Imp. Gordianus A. Severino. Hi, qui a te collegaque tuo magistratus creati sunt, etiamsi maxime fideiussores non exegistis, tamen si per id temporis quo magistratus honor deponebatur solvendo fuerunt, periculo vos creationis non fecerunt obnoxios ex eo, quod casu aliquo patrimonium eorum mutilatum sit, cum cessationi suae id debeant imputare damnaque rei publicae, si qua ob culpam eorum passa est, sarcire, qui, cum nomine publico eos convenire potuissent, id facere supersederunt.

[2] Idem A. Rufino. Si successoris tui successor non idoneum loco suo magistratum denominavit, administrationis eius periculum ad personam tuam spectare nequaquam potest. etenim nominati successoris dumtaxat quisque periculum suscipere compellitur nec ad nominatoris nominatorem manus iure porrigi possunt.

property that they possess, while they will retain an action in personam against the debtor, who is freed (from obligation to the city) upon their payment of the debt. 1b. It will be necessary, however, that the remaining portion that has stayed with a person from whom it is clear that the greatest part of his fortune has passed also be transferred to a suitable debtor.

2. But if some debtor of a municipality has made a place for Our Treasury,[115] it is manifest in accordance with ancient law, the rescripts of the deified emperors, and Our constitutions, that the buyers who have purchased from Our Treasury should not endure any trouble. 3. But if any debtor does not raise the money (comparaverit) or has indeed used up all his own property in such a way that no one possesses any property from his goods, it is established that this debt is at the expense of the municipality. For that reason money is to be allocated by the care of the patron (pater) of the city among suitable debtors or owners of rustic properties.

Posted January 30, in the consulship of Volusianus and Annianus (314).

Thirty-Fourth Title The Risk of Nominators

[1] Emperor GORDIAN Augustus to Severinus. Those who have been made magistrates through you and your colleague (as your successors in municipal office), even if you did not precisely demand sureties, nevertheless, if they were solvent through that time in which the office of the magistracy was being set aside, they have not made you subject to the risk for their election on this account, that by some chance their patrimony was dissipated, since the ones who, when they could have sued them on behalf of the public, failed to do so, should attribute that to their own neglect, and they should make good the losses to the municipality, if it has suffered any on account of their (the successors') fault.

[2] The same Augustus to Rufinus. If the successor of your successor has nominated an unsuitable magistrate in his place, the risk for his administration cannot at all concern your person. For each person is compelled to take up the risk for his own successor alone and the hands (of the law) cannot be extended lawfully to the nominator of the nominator.

[115] As Blume interprets, this must mean that the property has become forfeit: "The instant law gave the city the right to pursue purchasers of property of a debtor of the city, and while not exactly giving a lien, gave a right nearly the same as a lien. The former law on the subject, accordingly, which put cities in the same class with persons who took no mortgage or pledge, was profoundly modified. See C. 11.30.2 … The fisc (state) had a lien on the property of its debtor. Property sold by it for taxes became that of the purchaser free from other claims. C. 4.46.1. If an abandoned inheritance, however, fell to the fisc, and it sold it to another, the purchaser was liable for the indebtedness against it. C. 4.39.1. If property was confiscated by the fisc for some reason, and a third party had a mortgage against it, such confiscation did not extinguish the mortgage … If there was no mortgage against it, the purchaser of the fisc, as stated in the instant law, took it free from any claims of a general creditor."

XXXV De Periculo Eorum Qui pro Magistratibus Intervenerunt

[1] Imp. Antoninus A. Augustali. Fideiussorem magistratuum in his quae ad rei publicae administrationem pertinent teneri, non in his quae ob culpam vel delictum eis poenae nomine inrogentur, tam mihi quam divo Severo patri meo placuit.

XXXVI Quo Quisque Ordine Conveniatur

[1] Imp. Antoninus A. Luciano. pr. Etsi duobus simul cura pecuniae civitatis, non tamen separatis portionibus mandetur, singuli non pro virili portione, sed in solidum rei publicae obligantur. 1. Cum autem de indemnitate eius quaeritur, prius eius bona qui administravit ac mox, si satisfieri non potuerit, collegae conveniuntur. 2. Vos tamen, qui heredes unius ex curatoribus extitistis, damnum si quod post mortem eius dolo vel culpa collegarum accessit, onerari non est rationis.

[2] Imp. Gordianus A. Valenti. pr. Quotiens duobus non separatim, sed pro indiviso munus iniungitur, et ita, ut unusquisque eorum periculo soliditatis videatur obstrictus, manus ad nominatorem, priusquam utrique qui id munus administraverunt sollemniter fuerint excussi, nulla ratione possunt porrigi. 1. Si vero separatis portionibus ad munus nominati sunt, prius pro portione conveniantur qui administraverint, item fideiussores eorum: si nec ab his quidem indemnitas fuerit servata, tunc demum creatorem ac, si nec is quidem sufficiat, novissime participem muneris conveniri debere praeses non ignoret.

[3] Impp. Carus Carinus et Numerianus AAA. Theodosio. Si ita duumviri creati estis, ut mutuo periculo teneamini, in dubium non venit vicariis damnis vos esse obstrictos, cum in magistratibus prius nominatores conveniendos esse (hoc quod in persona vestra custodiri considerastis) constitutum est.

Thirty-Fifth Title The Risk of Those Who Have Stood Surety for Magistrates

[1] Emperor Antoninus Augustus to Augustalis. It has been decided both by myself and by the Deified Severus, my father, that a surety for magistrates is bound for those matters that pertain to the administration of public affairs (res publica), not for those things which might be charged as a penalty for their (the magistrates') fault or delict.

Thirty-Sixth Title In What Order Each Person Should Be Sued

[1] Emperor Antoninus Augustus to Lucianus. pr. Even if the care of money for a city should be entrusted to two people at the same time, but not in separate portions, they are individually obligated to the municipality not for their own portion (pro virili portione), but for the whole amount (in solidum). 1. When, however, there is a question of making good its (the city's) loss, the property of the one who administered it is first sought, and then, if satisfaction cannot be obtained, that of his colleague. 2. It is not reasonable, however, that you, who are heirs of one of the curatores, be burdened if any loss has ensued after his death by the deceit or fault of his colleagues.

[2] Emperor Gordian Augustus to Valens. pr. Whenever a service (munus) is enjoined upon two people, not separately, but jointly, and on this condition, that each one of them be seen as obligated for the risk for the whole amount, the hands (of the law) cannot by any reason be extended to the nominator before each one who has administered the service has been scrutinized (excutere). 1. But if they have been nominated for the service with their portions separate, the ones who administered it should first be sued for their portion, and then their sureties; and if the loss is not salvaged from these, the governor should not ignore that only then the elector (creator) shall be sued, and if indeed he does not satisfy the debt, then finally an associate in the service (particeps muneris).

[3] Emperors Carus, Carinus, and Numerian Augusti to Theodosius. If you have been elected duumviri under the condition that you be held at mutual risk, it does not come into doubt that you are (each) obligated for losses caused by the other party, although it has been established in a constitution that with magistrates nominators should be sued first – you have understood that this is to be observed in your person.

[4] Impp. Diocletianus et Maximianus AA. Dioni. Cum te et collegam tuum magistratus vestri tempore publicum fenus collocasse proponas nec potuisse debitum a quibusdam rei publicae restitui, cum paratus sis pro te id quod solus gessisti satis rei publicae facere, consequens est rem publicam, si separati actus vestri fuerint, contra successores collegae tui vel rerum eius possessores prius ob personam eius progredi et, si solida indemnitas rei publicae servata non fuerit, nominatores eius interpellare ac postremo loco, si quid ex nomine collegae tui defuerit, ob culpae nexum te interpellare. Priores nominatores enim veluti fideiussores placuit obstringi.

XXXVII Ne Quis Liber Invitus Actum Rei Publicae Gerere Cogatur

[1] Imp. Alexander A. Urbico. Si, ut proponis, decreto ordinis ad libertatem ductus es, non debere te invitum actum rei publicae administrare curator rei publicae non ignorat, praesertim cum servi eiusmodi officia administrare debeant.

[2] Impp. Diocletianus et Maximianus AA. Tiberio. Si, cum ingenuus esses, ad actum gerendum a re publica compelleris, auxilium praesidis et iuris praesidia prout usus exigebat implorare potuisti.

XXXVIII Iniuncti Muneris Sumptus ad Omnes Collegas Pertinere

[1] Impp. Diocletianus et Maximianus AA. Diodoro. Cum ad munus exhibendarum angariarum cum aliis creatus a consortibus muneris sollicitudine deserta solum te functum esse proponas, sumptuum detrimenta, si qua acciderunt, collatione eorum, quos munus oportuit participare, provisione praesidis dividentur. Qui si etiam a te obsequium derelictum esse cognoverit, quid censurae publicae congruit, non ignoret.

[4] Emperors Diocletian and Maximian Augusti to Dio. Since you state that you and your colleague during the time of your magistracy lent public funds at interest and the debt could not be restored to the municipality by certain people, since you were prepared to make good to the municipality on your own behalf what you alone have carried out, it is consistent for the municipality, if your (respective) transactions were separate, to proceed first against the successors of your colleague or the possessors of his property on account of his person, and, if the loss to the municipality has not been made good in its entirety, to press his nominators and, in the last instance, if something is lacking in the name of your colleague, to press you as liable for the fault. For it has been decided that nominators be held liable first as if they were sureties.

Thirty-Seventh Title No Free Person Should Be Compelled Unwillingly to Perform a Transaction for a Municipality

[1] Emperor Alexander Augustus to Urbicus. If, as you state, you have been brought to liberty by a decree of the town council, the curator of the municipality will not ignore that you ought not unwillingly to administer a transaction for the municipality, especially since slaves ought to administer offices of this type.

[2] Emperors Diocletian and Maximian Augusti to Tiberius. If, although you were free born, you were being compelled to perform a transaction by a municipality, you could have asked for the help of the governor and the protections of the law as custom required.

Thirty-Eighth Title The Expense of an Enjoined Service Belongs to All the Colleagues

[1] Emperors Diocletian and Maximian Augusti to Diodorus. Since you state that you were elected together with others for the service (munus) of providing requisitioned transport and, when the care for this service was abandoned by your colleagues, you alone performed it, the losses arising from the expenses, if any occurred, will be shared, under the supervision of the governor, on the basis of the contribution by those who were supposed to participate in the service. But if he learns that obedience was also abandoned by you, he shall not ignore what is appropriate for public censure (of you).

XXXVIIII De His Qui ex Officio Quod Administraverunt Conveniuntur

[1] Imp. Alexander A. Octavio. Fenoris rei publicae, quod non tua culpa perditum esse apparuerit, sufficit sortis damnum, non etiam usurarum sustinere.

XXXX De Solutionibus et Liberationibus Debitorum Civitatis

[1] Imp. Alexander A. quattuorviris et decurionibus Fabraternorum. pr. Cautiones servorum publicorum ita demum firmam securitatem debitoribus praestant, si curatorum adsignantium vel eorum quibus exigendi ius est auctoritate subnixae sunt. 1. Cum autem is qui exsolvisse dicitur solam scripturam actoris suscipientis pecuniam promet, ea tantum defensio consuevit admitti, si quod exsolutum est rationi rei publicae profecisse doceatur. 2. Sane curator vester, si fraude servi constiterit effectum, ut interciperentur a curatore illatae a debitoribus quantitates, de peculio eius quod eo modo deest restituet.

XXXXI De Spectaculis et Scaenicis et Lenonibus

[1] Imppp. Valens Gratianus et Valentinianus AAA. ad Hesperium proconsulem Africae. Non invidemus, sed potius cohortamur amplectenda felicis populi studia, gymnici ut agonis spectacula reformentur. verumtamen cum primates viri populi studiis ac voluptatibus grati esse cupiant, promptius permittimus, ut integra sit voluptas, quae volentium celebretur impensis.

D. VI id. Mart. Triveris Valente V et Valentiniano AA. conss.

[2] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. ad Valerianum pu. Quisquis equos, quos vel serenitas nostra vel ordinarii consules tribuunt voluptatibus, ad commodum compendiumque privatum abduxerit, unius librae auri condemnatione multetur.

D. VIII k. Mai. Triveris Eucherio et Syagrio conss.

Thirty-Ninth Title Those Who Are Sued in Connection with an Office That They Administered

[1] Emperor ALEXANDER Augustus to Octavius. It suffices that you sustain the loss of the principal of a municipality's funds lent at interest, which appears to have been lost without your fault, and not of the interest as well.

Fortieth Title Payments and Releases of a City's Debtors

[1] Emperor ALEXANDER Augustus to the quattuorviri and decurions of Fabratera. pr. Receipts (cautiones) given by public slaves only provide firm security for debtors if they have been supported the authority of the curatores signing them or of those who have the right to enforce debts. 1. Since, however, the person who is said to have paid off a debt (in this case) offers only a written document of the manager (actor, i.e., a slave) taking the money, such a defense has customarily been admitted only if what has been paid should be shown to have benefitted the interest of the municipality. 2. Admittedly your curator, if it is established that fraud was committed by (his) slave so that the amounts paid by the debtors were intercepted,[116] will restore what is lacking in this respect from his (the slave's) peculium.

Forty-First Title Spectacles, Stage Actors, and Pimps

[1][117] Emperors VALENS, GRATIAN, and VALENTINIAN Augusti to Hesperius, Proconsul of Africa. We do not begrudge but rather encourage embracing the passions of a happy people, that the spectacles (spectacula) of gymnastic competition be restored. However, since the leading men desire to win favor from the pursuits and pleasures of the people, We readily permit that the pleasure be complete that is celebrated at the expense of the willing.

Given March 10, at Trier, in the consulship of Valens, for the fifth time, and Valentinian Augusti (376).

[2][118] Emperors GRATIAN, VALENTINIAN, and THEODOSIUS to Valerianus, City Prefect. Whoever diverts for private benefit and gain horses that either Our Serenity or the ordinary consuls provide for pleasures shall be punished with a condemnation of one pound of gold.

Given April 24, at Trier, in the consulship of Eucherius and Syagrius (381).

[116] Mommsen omits "by the curator" in the manuscripts.

[117] = C.Th. 15.7.3 (from which voluptas is read for voluntas in the second sentence).

[118] = C.Th. 15.7.6–7. Combine with 3, and C.Th. 15.7.8, 15.10.2 (both Aquileia).

[3] Idem AAA. ad Valerianum pu. Eos qui agitandi munus exercent illustris auctoritas tua nullis praeter circense certamen adfici noverit oportere suppliciis.

D. VIII id. Mai. Eucherio et Syagrio conss.

[4] Imppp. Theodosius Arcadius et Honorius AAA. Rufino pp. pr. Si qua in publicis porticibus vel in his civitatum locis, in quibus nostrae solent imagines consecrari, pictura pantomimum veste humili et rugosis sinibus agitatorem aut vilem offerat histrionem, ilico revellatur neque umquam posthac liceat in loco honesto inhonestas adnotare personas. 1. In aditu vero circi vel in theatri proscaeniis ut collocentur, non vetamus.

D. III k. Iul. Heracleae Arcadio A. III et Honorio A. II conss.

[5] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Anthemio pp. Nemo iudicum ex quacumque civitate in aliud oppidum vel ex provinciae solo equos curules aurigas bestias histriones cives temptet traducere, ne, dum popularibus plausibus intemperanter serviunt, et publicarum rerum statum fatigent et festivitatem impediant in cunctis oppidis celebrandam: ita ut, si quis hanc violaverit iussionem, poena teneatur ea, quae legum violatores persequitur.

D. VIII id. Aug. Constantinopoli Honorio VIII et Theodosio III AA. conss.

[6] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Florentio pp. pr. Lenones patres et dominos, qui suis filiabus vel ancillis peccandi necessitatem imponunt, nec iure frui dominii nec tanti criminis patimur libertate gaudere. 1. Igitur tali placet eos indignatione subduci, ne potestatis iure frui valeant neve quid eis ita possit adquiri. sed ancillis filiabusque, si velint, conductisve pro paupertate personis, quas sors damnavit humilior, episcoporum liceat, iudicum etiam defensorumque implorato

[3][119] The same Augusti to Valerianus, City Prefect. Your Illustrious Authority should know that those who perform the service of driving chariots (munus agitandi) must not be subject to any punishments during (praeter) the circus competition.

Given May 8, in the consulship of Eucherius and Syagrius (381).

[4][120] Emperors THEODOSIUS, ARCADIUS, and HONORIUS Augusti to Rufinus, Praetorian Prefect. pr. If any painting should present a mime actor in humble clothing and a chariot driver with a wrinkled nose or a lowly actor in the public colonnades or in those places in the cities in which Our images are accustomed to be consecrated, it shall straightaway be torn down and henceforth it should never be permitted to draw attention to dishonorable persons in an honorable place. 1. But We do not forbid that (such pictures) be placed in the entrance to a circus or in the proscenia of a theater.

Given June 29, at Heraclea, in the consulship of Arcadius Augustus, for the third time, and Honorius Augustus, for the second time (394).

[5][121] Emperors HONORIUS and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Anthemius, Praetorian Prefect. No governor (iudex) should try to bring from any city into another town, or from the soil of the province, chariot horses, drivers, animals, or actors from a city (histriones cives),[122] lest, while they are unrestrained in their slavishness to public applause, they wear out the state of public resources and impede the festivity that is to be celebrated in all towns. Thus if someone violates this order, he shall be held by that punishment that follows upon violators of the laws.

Given August 6, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Honorius, for the eighth time, and Theodosius, for the second time, Augusti (409).

[6][123] Emperors THEODOSIUS and VALENTINIAN Augusti to Florentius, Praetorian Prefect. pr. We do not suffer fathers or owners who are pimps, who impose the necessity of sinning on their daughters or slave girls, to enjoy the right of ownership or to rejoice in getting off scot-free from so great a crime. 1. Therefore it is decided that they be removed as a result of such an outrage, so that they not be able to enjoy the right of (a father's) power, and that nothing be able to be acquired for them. But slave-women and daughters, if they should wish, or those whom a humble fate has condemned, when their persons have been leased out because of poverty, having implored the aid (suffragium) of the [119] Combine with 2 and the texts referred there.

[120] pr. = C.Th. 15.7.12; combine with C. 1.4.4. Seeck dates to May 30, 394.
[121] = C.Th. 15.5.3.
[122] Mommsen places cives before aurigas, "drivers." The C.Th. version omits animals and actors. Blume translates "actors of any city."
[123] Pr. = C. 1.4.12, with different wording, and C.Th. 15.8.2.

suffragio omni miseriarum necessitate absolvi, ita ut, si insistendum eis lenones esse crediderint vel peccandi ingerant necessitatem invitis, non amittant solum eam quam habuerant potestatem, sed proscripti poenae mancipentur exilii metallis addicendi publicis: quae minor poena est, quam si praecepto lenonis cogatur quispiam coitionis sordes ferre, quas nolit.

D. XI k. Mai. Felice et Tauro conss.

[7] Αὐτοκράτωρ Λέων Α. τῷ δήμῳ ... Μηδεὶς πορνοβοσκείτω τοῦ λοιποῦ μηδὲ πόρος ἐντεῦθεν ταῖς λαργιτίοσιν εἰσαγέσθω. μήτε οὖν δούλην ἢ ἐλευθέραν προϊστάτω τις, ἐπεὶ εὐτελὴς μὲν ὢν ὁ τοῦτο ποιῶν πρὸς τῷ τιμωρηθῆναι καὶ μεταλλίζεται ἢ ὑπερορίως ἐξορίζεται, στρατείαν δὲ ἔχων ἢ ἐπιτήδευμα σεμνὸν ἀπόλλυσι καὶ αὐτὴν σὺν τῇ οὐσίᾳ. ὡσαύτως καὶ οἱ θυμελικοὶ τούτων ἀπεχέσθωσαν. εἰ δὲ δοῦλον εἴη τὸ προσταθέν, παρὰ παντὸς ἐκδικείσθω προῖκα, εἴτε ἀνὴρ εἴτε γυνὴ εἴτε κληρικὸς ἢ μοναχὸς τοῦτο ἐκδικεῖ. ταῦτα δὲ φυλαττέτωσαν οἱ ἄρχοντες οἱ μείζονες καὶ οἱ ἥττονες καὶ αἱ τάξεις αὐτῶν, ποινὴν ὑφορώμεναι καὶ εἰς τὸ σῶμα καὶ εἴκοσι λιτρῶν.

XXXXII De Expensis Publicorum Ludorum

[1] Impp. Diocletianus et Maximianus AA. Marcello. pr. Cum praesidem provinciae impensas, quae in certaminis editione erogabantur, ad refectionem murorum transtulisse dicas, et quod salubriter derivatum est non revocabitur et sollemne certaminis spectaculum post restitutam murorum fabricam iuxta veteris consuetudinis legem celebrabitur. 1. Ita enim et tutelae civitatis instructae murorum praesidio providebitur et instaurandi agonis voluptas, confirmatis his quae ad securitatis cautionem spectant, insecuti temporis circuitione repraesentabitur.

bishops, perhaps, or of governors (iudices) or also defenders, shall be permitted to be released from all necessity of their miseries, under this condition, that if the pimps believe that they should insist on pursuing them or impose the necessity of sinning on them against their will, they shall not only lose the power that they had had, but they are to be proscribed and be made subject to the penalty of exile, to be assigned to the public mines. This is a lesser penalty then if someone at the behest of a pimp should be forced to endure the filth of copulation that she does not want.

Given April 21, in the consulship of Felix and Taurus (428).

[7][124] Emperor Leo Augustus to the People. … No one henceforth should act as a pimp, and no impost shall be exacted for the Imperial Finances from that source. No one may set a female slave or free woman to prostitution, since a person of lower rank (euteles, i.e., humilior) doing this, in addition to being punished, is given over to the mines or is exiled, and someone holding a service rank or an honorable profession loses it together with his property. Similarly theatrical musicians (thymelici) should refrain from these activities. If it is a slave who has been set to prostitution, she is to be claimed without any payment by everyone, whether a man, woman, cleric, or monk claims her. The magistrates, both the greater and lesser ones, and their offices, shall observe these measures, being liable to corporal punishment as well as a fine of 20 pounds (of gold).

(457–467).

Forty-Second Title Expenses of Public Games

[1] Emperors Diocletian and Maximian Augusti to Marcellus. pr. Although you say that the provincial governor transferred to the repair of walls funds that were dispersed for the production of a competition, both what was advantageously diverted will not be recalled and the customary spectacle of the competition will be celebrated in accordance with the law of the ancient custom after restoration of the fabric of the walls. 1. In this way provision will be made for the defense of the city equipped with the protection of walls, and the pleasure of renewing the competition, after securing those things that pertain to security, will be made manifest in the passage of the following time.

[124] = C. 1.4.14 (in part); restored from Bas. 60.38.1.

XXXXIII De Aquaeductu

[1] Imp. Constantinus A. ad Maximilianum consularem aquarum. pr. Possessores, per quorum fines formarum meatus transeunt, ab extraordinariis oneribus volumus esse immunes, ut eorum opera aquarum ductus sordibus oppleti mundentur, nec ad aliud superindictae rei onus isdem possessoribus attinendis, ne circa res alias occupati repurgium formarum facere non occurrant. 1. Quod si neglexerint, amissione possessionum multabuntur: nam fiscus eius praedium obtinebit, cuius neglegentia perniciem formae congesserit. 2. Praeterea scire eos oportet, per quorum praedia aquaeductus commeat, ut dextra laevaque de ipsis formis quindecim pedibus intermissis arbores habeant: observante officio iudicis, ut, si quo tempore pullulaverint, excidantur, ne earum radices fabricam formae corrumpant.

D. XV k. Iun. Gallicano et Symmacho conss.

[2] Imppp. Valentinianus Theodosius et Arcadius AAA. Pancratio pu. Si quis de cetero vetiti furoris audacia florentissimae urbis commoda voluerit mutilare aquam ad suum fundum ex aquaeductu publico derivando, sciat eundem fundum fiscalis tituli proscriptione signatum privatis rebus nostris adgregandum.

D. VIII ... Constantinopoli Timasio et Promoto conss.

[3] Idem AAA. Albino pu. Romae. pr. Eos, qui aquae copiam vel olim vel nunc per nostra indulta meruerunt, usum aut ex castellis aut ex ipsis formis iubemus elicere neque earum fistularum quas matrices vocant cursum ac soliditatem attemptare vel ab ipso aquaeductu trahere. 1. Quod si quis aliter fecerit, non solum id quod prius iure beneficii fuerat consecutus amittat, verum pro condicione quoque personae severissima poena plectetur.

D. V k. Sept. Romae Timasio et Promoto conss.

Forty-Third Title Aqueducts

[1][125] Emperor CONSTANTINE Augustus to Maximilianus, Consular Prefect of Waters. pr. We want landowners (possessores) through whose territory the channels of conduits (formarum meatus[126]) pass, to be free from extraordinary burdens, so that by their effort aqueducts that are filled with filth might be cleaned. These landowners are not to be bound to another burden from an extraordinary extra charge (superindicta res), lest, being occupied with other matters, they not be ready to perform the cleaning of the conduits. 1. If they neglect this, they will be punished with the loss of their possessions, for the Treasury will obtain the property of the person whose neglect brings destruction to the conduit. 2. In addition those through whose properties an aqueduct passes must know that they may have trees at a distance of 15 feet on the right and left side from the conduits themselves; the office of the governor (iudex) will observe that, if at any time they have sent off shoots, they should be cut out, so that their roots not corrupt the fabric of the conduit.

Given May 18, in the consulship of Gallicanus and Symmachus (330).

[2][127] Emperors VALENTINIAN, THEODOSIUS, and ARCADIUS Augusti to Pancratius, City Prefect. If someone henceforth with the boldness of forbidden insanity wants to mutilate the interests of the most flourishing city by channeling water from a public aqueduct to his own farm, he shall know that the same farm, having been marked by the proscription of a fiscal claim, will be included among Our property.

Given on the eighth day before ..., at Constantinople, in the consulship of Timasius and Promotus (389).

[3][128] The same Augusti to Albinus, City Prefect at Rome. pr. We order those who have merited a supply of water, either formerly or at present, by Our indulgence to draw their use from the reservoirs (castella) or from the conduits (formae) themselves, and not to test the course and solidness of those pipes that they call matrices or to draw water from the aqueduct itself. 1. But if anyone does otherwise, he shall not only lose what he had previously acquired by right of a benefit, but he shall be chastised with the severest punishment in accordance also with the condition of his person.

Given August 28, at Rome, in the consulship of Timasius and Promotus (389).

[125] = C.Th. 15.2.1.
[126] Blume: "acqueducts."
[127] = C.Th. 15.2.4. Since Pancratius was Prefect in 381–382, perhaps the emperors should be Gratian, Valentinian, and Theodosius. Seeck dates to 381 or 382.
[128] Pr. = C.Th. 15.2.5; 1 = C.Th. 15.2.6 (395).

[4] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Asterio comiti Orientis. Usum aquae veterem longoque dominio constitutum singulis civibus manere censemus nec ulla novatione turbari, ita tamen, ut quantitatem singuli, quam veteri licentia percipiunt, more usque in praesentem diem perdurante percipiant: mansura poena in eos, qui ad inrigationes agrorum vel hortorum delicias furtivis aquarum meatibus abutuntur.

D. k. Nov. Caesario et Attico conss.

[5] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Cyro pp. Si quis per divinam liberalitatem meruerit ius aquae, non viris clarissimis rectoribus provinciarum, sed tuae praecellentissimae sedi caelestes apices intimare debebit: condemnatione contra illum qui preces moderatoribus insinuare conatur quinquaginta librarum auri et contra universos administratores qui rescriptum per subreptionem elicitum suscipere moliuntur proponenda, apparitoribus nihilo minus eorundem virorum clarissimorum provinciae moderatorum animadversionibus pro vigore tui culminis subiugandis: et amplissima tua sede dispositura, quid in publicis thermis, quid in nymphaeis pro abundantia civium convenit deputari, quid his personis, quibus nostra perennitas indulsit, ex aqua superflua debeat impertiri.

[6] Idem AA. Cyro pp. pr. Omnis servitus aquarum aquaeductus Hadriani sive domorum sive possessionum sive suburbanorum sive balneorum vel per divinos adfatus intimatos in quolibet iudicio vel per usurpationem impertitos[ii] penitus exprobretur: maluimus etenim praedictum aquaeductum nostri palatii publicarum thermarum ac nymphaeorum commoditatibus inservire. et decernimus hanc dispositionem modis omnibus in posterum servari, nemini licentia tribuenda ab eodem aquaeductu precibus oblatis usum aquae petere vel eum audere perforare: scientibus his, qui qualibet ratione putaverint ad huiusmodi molimen accedere, vel officio, si ausum fuerit instruere vel minus instructis precibus parere, centena pondo auri multae nomine fiscalibus rationibus se esse illaturos.

1. Super his sancimus sulcum publicum aquarum nullis intra decem pedes arboribus coartari, sed ex utroque latere decempedale spatium integrum illibatumque servari. 2. Praeterea de plumbeis fistulis

[ii] impetrata

[4][129] Emperors Arcadius and Honorius Augusti to Asterius, Count of the East. We decree that any usage of water that is ancient and established by long ownership remain with individual citizens and that it not be disturbed by any innovation, but under the condition that individuals should receive the amount of water that they are receiving by ancient license, with the custom enduring up to the present day. Punishment will await those who abuse secret channels of the waters for irrigating their fields or for the delicacies of their gardens.

Given November 1, in the consulship of Caesarius and Atticus (397).

[5] Emperors Theodosius and Valentinian Augusti to Cyrus, Praetorian Prefect. If through divine generosity anyone has merited the right to water, he should direct the heavenly letters not to the viri clarissimi provincial governors, but to Your Most Excellent Seat. A penalty of 50 pounds of gold is to be established against a person who attempts to present his request to governors (moderatores) and against all administrators who scheme to receive a rescript elicited through fraud; the subordinate officials of the same viri clarissimi provincial governors are to be subject no less to punishments, in keeping with the vigor of Your Highness. And Your Most Magnificent Seat will decide what is appropriate to be assigned in the public baths and in the fountains (nymphaea) in keeping with the abundance of citizens, and what from the extra water should be allotted to those persons whom Our Eternity has indulged.

(440–441).

[6] The same Augusti to Cyrus, Praetorian Prefect. pr. Every servitude for waters from the aqueduct of Hadrian should be condemned completely, whether it is for houses, estates (possessiones), suburban properties, or baths, if it has been gained either through the publication of divine pronouncements in any court or through usurpation; for We have preferred that the aforesaid aqueduct serve the interests of the public baths and fountains (nymphaea) of Our Palace. And We decree that this disposition be maintained in all ways in the future, that no one is to be granted permission, after offering a petition, to seek the use of water from the same aqueduct or to dare to perforate it; those who think for any reason to engage in such shenanigans, or an office, if it has dared to draw up a petition or to comply with a petition not (yet) drawn up, know that they will each pay 100 pounds of gold as a fine to the accounts of the Treasury.

1. In addition to this, We ordain that the public channel of the waters should not be infringed upon with trees within 10 feet, but that from each side a 10-foot space be maintained whole and uncompromised. 2. We further decree that ducentibus ad thermas, quae Achillis nuncupantur, quas providentia tuae magnificentiae factas esse cognovimus, eandem formam servari censemus. 3. Etenim memoratas fistulas thermis tantum et nymphaeis, quibus eminentia tua deputaverit, volumus inservire: facultate praebenda tuae sublimitatis apparitoribus circumeundi sine formidine domus suburbana balnea ad requirendum, ne qua deceptio vel suppressio vel insidiae contra publicam utilitatem a quoquam penitus attemptetur.

[129] = C.Th. 15.2.7. Combine with C.Th. 15.1.36.

[7] Idem AA. Eutychiano pp. Ad reparationem aquaeductus huius almae urbis omnia vectigalia, quae colligi possunt ex universis scalis huius inclitae urbis et ex operariis qui Cyzicenii dicuntur, ad refectionem eiusdem aquaeductus procedere. illo videlicet observando, ut nemo eorum qui ius aquae possident quamcumque descriptionem sustineat: nam exsecrabile videtur domos huius almae urbis aquam habere venalem.

[8] Imp. Zeno A. Adamantio pu. pr. Hac lege sancimus, ut, si quis amplissimam praefecturam gubernans aurum aquaeductui deputatum ad alterum quodlibet opus non aquaeductibus vel aquae publicae competens extruendum vel curandum putaverit convertendum, de suis facultatibus eandem summam aquaeductus titulo repensare cogatur. 1. Separatus vero arcarius aurum aquaeductus suscipiat gloriosissimorum consulum liberalitate vel ex aliis titulis ad aquas publicas pertinentibus collectum vel postea colligendum.

[9] Idem A. Sporacio. Diligenter investigari decernimus, qui publici ab initio fontes vel, cum essent ab initio privati, postquam publice usum praebuerunt, ad privatorum usum conversi sunt, sive sacris apicibus per subreptionem impetratis, ac multo amplius si auctoritate illicita nec appetito colore sacri oraculi huiusmodi aliquid pertemptatum fuisse dignoscitur, ut ius suum regiae civitati restituatur et, quod publicum fuerit aliquando, minime sit privatum, sed ad communes usus recurrat: sacris oraculis vel pragmaticis sanctionibus adversus commoditatem urbis quibusdam impertitis iure cassandis nec longi temporis praescriptione ad circumscribenda civitatis iura profutura.

the same rule be observed with the lead pipes leading to the so-called baths of Achilles, which We have learned were made by the providence of Your Magnificence. 3. For We want the aforementioned pipes to serve only the baths and fountains to which Your Eminence has assigned them; the opportunity is to be offered to the subordinate officials of Your Sublimity to go without fear around the houses and suburban baths to make sure that no deception, subterfuge, or plot be attempted by anyone at all against the public utility.
(440?).

[7] The same Augusti to Eutychianus, Praetorian Prefect. All the imposts that can be collected from all the ladders[130] of this Famous City are to proceed for the repair of the aqueduct of this Generous City, as are the ones from the workers who are called Cyzicenii for the rebuilding of the same aqueduct; but this must be observed, that no one of those who possess a right of water should sustain any special assessment of taxes (descriptio); for it seems execrable that the houses of this Generous City have water that is purchased.[131]

[8] Emperor Zeno Augustus to Adamantius, City Prefect. pr. By this law We ordain that if anyone managing the Most Magnificent Prefecture thinks to divert gold assigned for an aqueduct to building or maintaining any other work not serving the aqueducts or public water, he shall be compelled to pay back from his own resources the same sum for the aqueduct fund. 1. The Treasurer (arcarius) shall separately receive the gold for the aqueducts that has been collected or henceforth is to be collected from the generosity of the Most Glorious Consuls or from other sources pertaining to the public waters.[132] .

[9] The same Augustus to Sporacius. We decree the diligent investigation of springs that were originally public or, although they were originally private, after they provided usage publicly, have (then) been converted for use by private people, whether sacred rescripts (sacrae apices) have been obtained surreptitiously, or much more so if it is determined that something has been attempted by illicit authority without seeking the appearance (color) of a sacred enactment (oraculum) of this type, so that the Imperial City be restored its right and that what has at one time been public (property) not at all be private but return to communal uses. Any imperial enactments or pragmatic sanctions obtained against the interest of the city are to have no legal force and the long-time prescription will not be of use in circumscribing the rights of the city.[133]

[130] According to Blume these were used to board ships that could not be docked.
[131] Seeck dates to 445–447.
[132] Lounghis et al. date to between 474 and 479.
[133] Lounghis et al. date to between 476(?) and 491.

[10] Idem A. Spontio. pr. Decernimus, ne quid a quacumque persona qualibet dignitate praedita contra munuscularios aquaeductus vel fontes publicos qui ad aquaeductus confluunt pertemptetur. 1. Sed et si quis clam vel palam auctoritate confisus de isdem paragogiis vel fontibus aquam transduxerit vel clandestinis insidiis forte subripuerit, publicis aquaeductibus eam restituere compellatur. 2. Hoc etiam praecipimus, ne in posterum a quolibet iuxta eosdem aquaeductus plantari qualescumque arbores possint, ne ex stirpibus labefactentur parietes aquaeductuum, quod antiquis etiam constitutionibus interdictum esse dignoscitur. 3. Scientibus universis, quod in posterum super huiusmodi commissis suburbanum vel praedium vel balneum vel aquae mola vel hortus, ad cuius usum aqua publica fuerit derivata, vel si quid ex his iuxta aquaeductum positum ad eum pertinet, qui plantavit arbores aquaeductibus noxias, ad quemcumque pertineat locum vel hominem vel domum, proscriptionis titulo subiacebit et fisci viribus vindicabitur: nulli super huiusmodi poena nec per sacros apices venia tribuenda. 4. Universos autem aquarios vel aquarum custodes, quos hydrophylacas nominant, qui omnium aquaeductuum huius regiae urbis custodiae deputati sunt, singulis manibus eorum felici nomine nostrae pietatis impresso signari decernimus, ut huiusmodi adnotatione manifesti sint omnibus nec a procuratoribus domorum vel quolibet alio ad usus alios avellantur vel angariarum vel operarum nomine teneantur. 5. Quod si quem ex isdem aquariis mori contigerit, eum nihilo minus qui in locum defuncti subrogatur signo eodem notari praecipimus, ut militiae quodammodo sociati excubiis aquae custodiendae incessanter inhaereant nec muneribus aliis occupentur.

[11] Imp. Anastasius A. Sergio pp. Divinam dispositionem ab inclitae recordationis principe Theodosio super his, qui aquam sibi de publicis aquaeductibus seu fontibus praeberi desiderant, promulgatam hac etiam lege in sua firmitate durare sancimus, quatenus nemo vel in hac sacratissima civitate vel in provinciis sine divinis apicibus de sacro epistularum scrinio more solito edendis et iudicio tuae celsitudinis vel aliis quorum interest intimatis vel intimandis aquam de publico aquaeductu seu fonte trahere permittatur: his, quicumque nostra iussa violaverint seu violari concesserint, denarum librarum auri condemnatione aliaque gravissima indignatione feriendis.

[10] The same Augustus to Spontius.[134] pr. We decree that nothing should be attempted by any person endowed with any rank against the service-pipes (munuscularii) or the public springs that flow to the aqueducts. 1. But if someone relying on his own authority either secretly or openly draws water from the same service-pipes (paragogia) or sources or perhaps steals it in a secret plot, he shall be compelled to restore it to the public aqueducts. 2. We also provide this instruction, that henceforth trees of any sort should not be planted by anyone alongside the same aqueducts, lest the walls of the aqueducts be weakened by their roots, something that is known to have been forbidden in the ancient constitutions as well. 3. All know that, in the future, for offenses of this type all property will be subject to proscription and will be claimed for the resources of the Treasury, whether it is a suburban estate, a country estate (praedium), a bath, a water mill, or a garden, for the use of which public water has been channeled off, of if anything from these (properties) situated alongside the aqueduct belongs to a person who has planted trees harmful to aqueducts, to whatever place, person, or household it might belong; no one is to be offered pardon from such a penalty, not even through a sacred rescript. 4. We decree that all water workers (aquarii) or water guards (aquarum custodes), whom they call (in Greek) hydrophylakes, who have been assigned to the custody of all the aqueducts of this imperial city, be branded on individual hands with the happy name of Our Piety, so that by such a marking they be manifest to everyone and not be torn away by the procurators of the households or by anyone else for other uses or be held for requisitioned transport or labor. 5. But if it happens that someone among the same water workers dies, We instruct that the one who is substituted into the place of the deceased be no less marked with the same sign, so that, associated in some way with their service (militia), they might stick unceasingly to their post of guarding the water and not be occupied with other services.

[11] Emperor ANASTASIUS Augustus to Sergius, Praetorian Prefect. We ordain that the divine disposition made by the Emperor Theodosius of famous memory concerning those who desire water to be provided for themselves from the public aqueducts or springs, having been promulgated also in this law, remain in its firmness, whereby no one be permitted to draw water from a public aqueduct or spring either in this most sacred city or in the provinces without divine rescripts to be acquired in the customary way from the Sacred Bureau of Correspondence, made known or to be made known in the tribunal (iudicium) of Your Highness or in others that have jurisdiction; those who violate Our orders or allow them to be violated are to be visited with a condemnation of 10 pounds of gold and other most grave indignation.[135]

[134] Possibly Sporacius, as in the previous constitution. Lounghis et al. date to between 476(?) and 491.

[135] Lounghis et al. date to 517. See 5 above for the law of Theodosius.

XXXXIIII De Gladiatoribus Penitus Tollendis

[1] Imp. Constantinus A. Maximo pp. Cruenta spectacula in otio civili et domestica quiete non placent. quapropter omnino gladiatores esse prohibemus.

PP. Beryto k. Oct. Paulino et Iuliano conss.

XXXXV De Venatione Ferarum

[1] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Mauriano comiti domesticorum et vices agenti magistri militum. pr. Occidendorum leonum cunctis facimus potestatem neque aliquam sinimus quemquam calumniam formidare. 1. Bestias autem, quae ad comitatum ab omnibus limitum ducibus transmittuntur, non plus quam septem diebus intra singulas civitates retineri praecipimus: violatoribus eorum quinas libras auri fisci viribus illaturis.

D. XIII k. Iun. Constantio et Constante vv. cc. conss.

XXXXVI De Maiuma

[1] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Caesario pp. Clementiae nostrae placuit, ut maiumae provincialibus laetitia reddatur, ita tamen ut servetur honestas et verecundia castis moribus perseveret.

D. VII k. Mai. Constantinopoli Arcadio IIII et Honorio III AA. conss.

XXXXVII Ut Armorum Usus Inscio Principe Interdictus Sit

[1] Impp. Valentinianus et Valens AA. ad Bulephorum consularem Campaniae. Nulli prorsus nobis insciis atque inconsultis quorumlibet armorum movendorum copia tribuatur.

D. III non. Oct. Altino divo Ioviano et Varroniano conss.

Forty-Fourth Title Eliminating Gladiators Altogether

[1] [136] Emperor CONSTANTINE Augustus to Maximus, Praetorian Prefect. Bloody spectacles in times of civil peace and domestic quiet are not pleasing, for which reason We prohibit gladiators from existing completely.

Posted at Beirut, October 1, in the consulship of Paulinus and Julian (325).

Forty-Fifth Title Hunting of Wild Animals

[1][137] Emperors HONORIUS and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Maurianus, Count of the Household and Acting Master of Soldiers. pr. We provide the power to kill lions to everyone and we do not allow anyone to fear any calumny (for doing so). 1.[138] However, We instruct that beasts, which are sent by all the dukes of the frontier areas (limitum duces) to the court (comitatus), not be kept in individual cities for more than seven days. Violators of these measures will pay 5 pounds of gold to the resources of the Treasury.

Given May 20, in the consulship of viri clarissimi Constantius and Constans (414).

Forty-Sixth Title The May Festival (Maiuma)

[1][139] Emperors ARCADIUS and HONORIUS Augusti to Caesarius, Praetorian Prefect. It has pleased Our Clemency that the joy of the May Festival be restored to the provincials, but on the condition that decency be maintained and modesty endure as a result of chaste customs.

Given April 25, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Arcadius, for the fourth time, and Honorius, for the third time, Augusti (396).

Forty-Seventh Title That the Use of Arms Without the Emperor's Knowledge Be Forbidden

[1][140] Emperors VALENTINIAN and VALENS Augusti to Bulephorus, Consular Governor of Campania. No one at all shall be granted the right to transport arms of any type at all without Our knowledge and consultation.

Given October 5, at Altinum, in the consulship of the deified Jovian and Varronianus (364).

[136] = C.Th. 15.12.1.
[137] Pr. = C.Th. 15.11.1.
[138] 1 = C.Th. 15.11.2, possibly a different law from the one in the pr.
[139] C.Th. 15.6.1. The Maiuma (or Maiumas) was a festival in May honoring Dionysos and Aphrodite; celebrated apparently every three years, it lasted thirty days: J. Liebeschuetz, Antioch (1972), 230–231. Blume: "In 399 A.D. the festivity was again prohibited because decency had not been observed. C. Th. 15.6.2. But being mentioned as lawful in the Justinian Code, it must have been permitted again later."
[140] = C.Th. 15.15.1. Combine with C.Th. 9.30.2.

XXXXVIII De Agricolis Censitis vel Colonis

[1] Imp. Constantinus A. ad Aemilianum pp. Numquam rationibus vel colligendis frugibus insistens agricola ad extraordinaria onera trahatur, cum providentiae sit opportuno tempore his necessitatibus satisfacere.

Lecta VII id. Mai. Romae Ianuarino et Iusto conss.

[2] Imp. Constantius A. ad Dulcitium consularem Aemiliae. pr. Si quis praedium vendere voluerit vel donare, retinere sibi transferendos ad alia loca colonos privata pactione non possit. 1. Qui enim colonos utiles credunt, aut cum praediis eos tenere debent aut profuturos aliis derelinquere, si ipsi sibi praedium prodesse desperant.

D. III k. Mai. Mediolani Constantio A. VIIII et Iuliano C. II conss.

[3] Impp. Valentinianus et Valens AA. ad Faventium vicarium Italiae. pr. Quisquis ex desertis agris veluti vagos servos liberalitate nostra fuerit consecutus, pro fiscalibus pensitationibus ad integram terrae professionem, ex qua videlicet servi manere videntur, habeatur obnoxius. 1. Id etiam circa eos observari volumus, qui ex huiusmodi fundis servos ad possessiones suas transire permiserint.

D. prid. k. Aug. Mediolani Valentiniano et Valente AA. conss.

Forty-Eighth Title Farmers Enrolled in the Census or Bound Tenants[141]

[1][142] Emperor CONSTANTINE Augustus to Aemilianus, Praetorian Prefect. Never should a farmer busy with his accounts[143] or harvesting crops be dragged to extraordinary burdens, since it is a matter of providence for him to address these necessary tasks at the opportune time.

Read May 9, at Rome, in the consulship of Januarinus and Justus (328).

[2][144] Emperor CONSTANTIUS Augustus to Dulcitius, Consular Governor of Aemilia. pr. If someone wishes to sell or donate a property, he shall not be able by a private agreement to retain the bound tenants (coloni) for himself so as to transfer them to other places. 1. For those who believe that bound tenants are useful ought either to hold them along with the properties or leave them behind to benefit others, if they indeed lose hope that a property is useful to themselves.

Given April 29, at Milan, in the consulship of Constantius Augustus, for the ninth time, and Julian Caesar, for the second time (357).

[3][145] Emperors VALENTINIAN and VALENS Augusti to Faventius, Vicar of Italy. pr. Whoever, from deserted fields (abandoned by their owners), has by Our generosity gained slaves as if they were wandering (i.e., without a master), shall be considered liable for payments to the Treasury for the land's full assessment (professio), from which the slaves are plainly seen as remaining. 1. We also want this to be observed concerning those who have permitted slaves to cross over from such farms to their own possessions.

Given July 31, at Milan, in the consulship of Valentinian and Valens Augusti (365).

141 This and the following Titles deal with the "bound tenants" of late imperial estates. Where possible, Latin terminology has guided translation; but the distinctions here are difficult and highly disputed. The precise status of bound tenants remains a continuing scholarly controversy. Traditionally, bound tenants have been viewed as farmers cultivating a plot of land belonging to a landowner, to whom they paid a rent. For tax purposes, such tenants were registered on the estate, where they were legally obligated to remain; farmers who owned land that was registered in the census roles would not be bound tenants. However, in recent years a growing number of scholars sees bound tenants as including, or consisting primarily of, workers who entered into labor contracts with landowners. Although they might cultivate a plot belonging to the landowner and pay a rent, their primary service involved serving as wage laborers. For this view of bound tenancy, see especially Sirks (1993).

142 = C.Th. 11.16.4.

143 Perhaps "sowing," sationibus, although the reading rationibus ("accounts") is also in the C.Th. version.

144 = C.Th. 13.10.3. Seeck gives April 29, 356.

145 = C.Th. 11.1.12.

[4] Idem AA. ad Modestum pp. pr. Ii, penes quos fundorum dominia sunt, pro his colonis originalibus, quos in locis isdem censitos esse constabit, vel per se vel per actores proprios recepta compulsionis sollicitudine implenda munia functionis agnoscant. 1. Sane quibus terrarum erit quantulacumque possessio, qui in suis conscripti locis proprio nomine libris censualibus detinentur, ab huius praecepti communione discernimus: eos enim convenit propriae commissos mediocritati annonarias functiones sub solito exactore cognoscere.
D. k. Mai. Constantinopoli Gratiano A. et Dagalaifo conss.

[5] Idem AA. ad Oricum praesidem Tripolitanae. Domini praediorum id quod terra praestat accipiant, pecuniam non requirant, quam rustici optare non audent, nisi consuetudo praedii hoc exigat.

[6] Idem AA. ad Germanianum pp. Galliarum. Omnes omnino fugitivos adscripticios colonos vel inquilinos sine ullo sexus muneri*s* condicionisque discrimine ad antiquos penates, ubi censiti atque educati natique sunt, provinciis praesidentes redire compellant.

[7] Idem AA. et Gratianus A. ad Maximum pp. pr. Quemadmodum originarios absque terra, ita rusticos censitosque servos vendi omnifariam non licet. 1. Neque vero commento fraudis id usurpet legis illusio, quod in originariis saepe actitatum est, ut parva portione terrae emptori tradita omnis integri fundi cultura adimatur. 2. Sed cum soliditas fundorum vel

[4][146] The same Augusti to Modestus, Praetorian Prefect. pr. Those with whom the ownership of farms resides, after receiving the instigation provided by compulsion, shall acknowledge, either themselves or through their own slave managers (actores), that duties to pay taxes (munia functionis) are to be fulfilled for the tenants bound by origin (coloni originales), who it will be clear are registered for the census (censiti) in the same places. 1. Certainly we exclude from sharing in this regulation those who have possession of land no matter how small, when they, registered in their own places, are included in the census books under their own name. For it is appropriate for them, entrusted to their own modest resources (mediocritas), to acknowledge their payments for the annona (the tax on land) under the customary collector.

Given May 1, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Gratian Augustus and Dagalaifus (366).[147]

[5] The same Augusti to Oricus, Governor of Tripolitania. Owners of estates (praedia) shall accept that which the land provides, and, unless the custom of the estate should demand it, they should not ask for money, for which the farmers (rustici) do not dare to hope.

(366).[148]

[6] The same Augusti to Germanianus, Praetorian Prefect of the Gauls. The provincial governors shall compel all fugitive bound enrolled tenants (adscripticii) or resident tenants (inquilini), without any distinction of gender, service (munus), or condition, to return to their ancient hearths (penates), where they have been registered, raised, and born.

(366).

[7] The same Augusti and Gratian Augustus to Maximus, Praetorian Prefect. pr. As with (bound) tenants by origin (originarii), it is not at all permitted that farmers and slaves registered in the census (censiti) be sold from the land. 1. Nor should a dodge around the law make use of this fraud by fabrication, which has often been done with tenants registered in their place of origin, that, with a small portion of the land conveyed to the buyer, the entire cultivation of the farm as a whole be taken away.[149] 2. But when farms in their entirety or

[146] = C.Th.11.1.14.

[147] Possibly 371 (consulate of Gratian, for the second time, and Probus); so Seeck.

[148] Seeck dates this constitution and the next to October 13, 365; Schmidt-Hofner, to May 1–19, 366. The recipient should be Ruricius; see Ammianus 28.6.11, 22 (Krüger).

[149] Blume explains the ruse: a portion of a larger estate was sold together with all the cultivators from the estate, thereby leading to the remaining estate falling out of cultivation. To prevent this happening, the law divides the cultivators proportionately; and if the cultivators are sold separate from the land, the buyer forfeits any excess in price paid and the seller can recover the surplus of cultivators.

certa portio ad unumquemque perveniat, tanti quoque servi et originarii transeant, quanti apud superiores dominos et possessores vel in soliditate vel in parte manserunt: et emptor pretium quod dederit amissum existimet, nihilo minus venditori ad repetendos servos cum agnatione eorum vindicatione concessa. 3. Et si aliqua denique ex causa dissimulaverit legis usurpare beneficium atque iste sub hac taciturnitate decesserit, et heredibus eius et contra heredes emptoris vindicationem damus longi temporis praescriptione submota: mala fide namque possessorem esse nullus ambiget, qui aliquid contra legum interdicta mercatur.

[8] Idem AAA. ad Probum pp. pr. Omnes profugi in alieno latebras collocantes cum emolumentis tributariis, salva tamen moderatione, revocentur, scilicet ut, si, apud quos homines reperiuntur, alienos esse noverant fugitivos et profugis in lucrum suum usi sunt, hoc est sive excoluerunt agros fructibus dominis profuturos sive aliqua ab isdem sibi iniuncta novaverunt nec mercedem laboris debitam consecuti sunt, ab illis tributa quae publicis perierunt functionibus exigantur. 1. Ceterum si occultato eo profugi, quod alieni esse videntur, quasi sui arbitrii ac liberi apud aliquem se collocaverunt aut excolentes terras partem fructuum pro solo debitam dominis praestiterunt cetera proprio peculio reservantes, vel quibuscumque operis impensis mercedem placitam consecuti sunt, ab ipsis profugis quaecumque debentur exigantur: nam manifestum est privatum iam esse contractum. 2. Si qui vero inter agricolas, ut solet, ex quibuscumque commerciis huiusmodi hominibus inveniuntur esse debitores, coram partibus constitutis iudex ab obnoxiis quod debetur exposcat.

[9] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. ad populum. Immunitates specialiter datae et iugatio et capitatio libris publicis et civitatum ac provinciarum encautariis sine aliqua probatione factae penes fruentes ereptae in functionem pristinam redeant.

D. III non. Mart. Mediolani Merobaude II et Saturnino conss.

in fixed part come to one person, as many slaves and bound tenants from the place of origin should pass as remained with the previous owners and possessors either altogether or in part; and the buyer should consider as lost the price that he has given, while the seller is conceded the right to claim (vindicatio) back the slaves with their offspring. 3. And finally if for any reason he (the seller) has feigned taking advantage of the benefit of the law and this person has died while maintaining this silence, We give a the right to sue for ownership to his heirs and against the heirs of the buyer, with the long-time prescription removed; for no one should doubt that he is a possessor in bad faith who purchases against the prohibitions of the laws.[150]

[8] The same Augusti to Probus, Praetorian Prefect. pr. All those in flight finding hiding places on another's property shall be called back, with their tributary emoluments, but with the normal regulation intact (salva tamen moderatione), so that if those with whom the persons are discovered knew that they were fugitives in another's power and have used the ones in flight for their own profit, that is, if they have cultivated fields to benefit the owners with their crops, or if they have undertaken some other tasks enjoined on them by the same people (the owners) and have not gained the pay owed for their work, the tribute shall be exacted from them (the owners harboring the runaways) that has been lost (perierunt) from the public payments (functiones). 1. But if those in flight, hiding the fact that they appear as in another's power, (and acting) as if they were under their own authority (sui arbitrii) and free, have taken up with someone and, after cultivating lands provided the owners part of the crops owed for the soil while reserving the rest for their own peculium, or have gained a wage agreed upon for performing some jobs, whatever is owed should be exacted from those in flight themselves: for it is manifest that this is now a private contract. 2. But if, as customarily happens, any people among the farmers are found to be debtors to such persons from any transactions, the judge shall, before the summoned parties, demand from those liable what is owed.[151]

[9][152] Emperors GRATIAN, VALENTINIAN, and THEODOSIUS Augusti to the People. Immunities specially given and tax liability for land (iugatio) and capitation (capitatio) made without any approval in the public books and the records (encauteriis) both of the cities and the provinces shall return to their old payment, after being snatched away from those enjoying them.

Given March 5, at Milan, in the consulship of Merobaudes, for the second time, and Saturninus (383).

[150] Seeck dates to July 13, 371; Schmidt-Hofner, to 371–375.
[151] Seeck dates to July 13, 371; Schmidt-Hofner, to 368–375.
[152] = C.Th. 13.10.8 pr. Combine with C. 10.25.1.

[10] Idem AAA. et Arcadius A. Cynegio pp. pr. Cum antea per singulos viros, per binas vero mulieres capitis norma sit censa, nunc binis ac ternis viris, mulieribus autem quaternis unius pendendi capitis attributum est. 1. Quocirca sublimitas tua huiusmodi census per Comanensium et Ariarathensium Armeniae secundae, Amasenorum Helenoponti et Diocaesarensium Cappadociae secundae urbes salubris et temperatae peraequationis modum monumentis publicis iubebit adnecti.

D. VI k. April. Constantinopoli Honorio et Euodio conss.

[11] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. ad populum. Originarios colonos nullis privilegiis, nulla dignitate, nulla census auctoritate excusari praecipimus, sed amputatis omnibus, quae aliquotiens per gratiam sunt elicita, domino vel fundo esse reddendos.

[12] Idem AA. Florentio ... pr. Servos vel tributarios vel inquilinos apud dominos volumus remanere. nam cum metu damni deterritus unusquisque eum quem incognitum habuerit coeperit propulsare, voluntas fugiendi servis non erit: nemo enim dominum suum deserit sciens nusquam sibi latendi locum esse derelictum. 1. Sed aut cognitum sibi ingenuum unusquisque suscipiet, aut eum qui se liberum esse simulaverit a se submovebit metuens his quae statuta sunt obnoxius fieri. 2. Si quis igitur ex memoratis fugitivis apud quemlibet fuerit repertus, duodecim libras argenti fisco nostro inferat detentator, ipsi autem cuius fuit praeter eundem fugitivum alterum etiam eiusdem aestimationis inferre decernimus.

[13] Idem AA. Vincentio pp. Galliarum. pr. Definimus, ut inter inquilinos colonosve, quorum quantum ad originem pertinet vindicandam indiscreta eademque paene videtur esse condicio, licet sit discrimen in nomine, suscepti liberi vel utroque vel neutro parente censito statum paternae condicionis agnoscant. 1. Illud etiam servandum est, ut, si

[10][153] The same Augusti and ARCADIUS Augustus to Cynegius, Praetorian Prefect. pr. While previously the norm of a caput (a unit of personal tax liability) was assessed as individual men but two women, now it has been established that the payment for one caput is based on two or three men, but four women. 1. Wherefore Your Sublimity will order the limit established by the temperate and healthy equalization of taxes (peraequatio) for such a census to be displayed on the public monuments throughout the cities of Comana and Ariaratheia of Armenia Secunda and the cities of Amaseia in Helenopontus and Diocaesarea in Cappadocia Secunda.

Given March 26, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Honorius and Euodius (386).

[11] Emperors HONORIUS and ARCADIUS Augusti to the People. We instruct that tenants by origin (originarii coloni) are not excused by any privileges, any rank, or any authority of the census, but, having been stripped of everything that has been at one time or another elicited through influence, they are to be returned to their landowner or farm.[154]

[12] The same Augusti to Florentius ... pr. We want slaves, tax-paying farmers (tributarii), or resident tenants (inquilini) to remain with their landowners (domini). For when, deterred by the fear of loss, each person starts to repel a person he has who is unknown to him, slaves will not have the will to flee, since no one leaves his master (dominus) knowing that there is no hiding place left for him anywhere. 1. But each person, fearing becoming liable to these measures that have been established, will receive someone he personally knows to be free, or he will remove from himself the one who has pretended his freedom. Therefore if someone from the aforementioned fugitives is found with anyone at all, the person holding him shall pay 12 pounds of silver to Our Treasury, but We decree that he deliver, to the very person to whom he (sc. the fugitive) belonged, in addition to the same fugitive, another of the same value.[155]

[13][156] The same Augusti to Vincentius, Praetorian Prefect of the Gauls. pr. We define that children raised among resident tenants (inquilini) and bound tenants (coloni), for whom, as far as claiming their origin is concerned, there seems to be an indistinct and almost identical condition, even though there may be a difference in the name, shall acknowledge (for themselves) the status of their paternal condition, whether either parent or neither one has been registered in the census. 1. But this also is to be observed, if ever the same owner of [153] = C.Th. 13.11.2. Combine with C. 11.58.3.

[154] Seeck dates to April 26, 396.
[155] Seeck dates to April 18, 396.
[156] Combine with C. 11.48.14, and the texts mentioned there.

quando utriusque fundi idem dominus de possessione referta cultoribus ad eam colonos quae laborabat tenuitate transtulerit, idemque fundi ad diversorum iura dominorum qualibet sorte transierint, maneat quidem facta translatio, sed ita, ut praedii eius dominus, a quo coloni probantur fuisse transducti, translatorum agnationem restituat.

D. III id. Iul. Stilichone et Aureliano conss.

[14] Idem AA. Vincentio pp. Galliarum. Si coloni, quos bona fide quisque possedit, ad alios fugae vitio transeuntes necessitatem condicionis propriae declinare temptaverint, bonae fidei possessori primum oportet celeri reformatione succurri, tunc causam originis et proprietatis agitari.

D. IIII id. Iul. Mediolani Stilichone et Aureliano conss.

[15] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Probo. Colonos numquam fiscalium nomine debitorum ullius exactoris pulset intentio: quos ita glebis inhaerere praecipimus, ut ne puncto quidem temporis debeant amoveri.

[16] Idem AA. Palladio pp. Mulier, quae fuisse originaria docebitur, si cuiuscumque liberi hominis secuta consortium in urbibus vel in quibuscumque locis victura constitit, eius omnem subolem secundum vetera constituta conveniet revocari.

D. VI k. Iul. Ravennae Monaxio et Plinta conss.

[17] Idem AA. Iohanni pp. Per colonum praeiudicium possessioni invito vel inscio domino imponi non posse et iure et legum auctoritatibus decantatur.

D. id. Iul. Ravennae Honorio XIII et Theodosio X AA. conss.

two farms transfers bound tenants from a possession teeming with cultivators to the one that is struggling because of a shortage, and the same farms by any sort of chance pass to the rights of different owners; the transfer that has been done shall remain in effect, but subject to this condition, that the owner of the property from which the bound tenants are proved to have been moved restore the offspring of the ones transferred.

Given July 13, in the consulship of Stilicho and Aurelianus (400).

[14][157] The same Augusti to Vincentius, Praetorian Prefect of the Gauls. If bound tenants whom someone has possessed in good faith have tried to turn aside the necessity of their appropriate condition by going over to others in a crime of flight, first the good faith possessor must be helped by a quick intervention, and then the case concerning the origin and property be tried.

Given July 12, in the consulship of Stilicho and Aurelianus (400).

[15][158] Emperors Honorius and Theodosius Augusti to Probus. No charge of any tax enforcer (exactor) shall ever strike bound tenants on account of debts owed to the Treasury: We order that they cleave to the soil in such a way that they ought not to be removed even for a small amount of time.

[16][159] The same Augusti to Palladius, Praetorian Prefect. A woman who will be shown to have been a tenant by origin (originaria), if it is established that she has followed a marriage with any free man to live in cities or in any places whatsoever, it will be appropriate that all her offspring be recalled in accordance with ancient constitutions.

Given June 27, at Ravenna, in the consulship of Monaxius and Plinta (419).

[17][160] The same Augusti to John, Praetorian Prefect. It is often repeated both in law and by statutory authority that a tenant (or bound tenant, a colonus) cannot impose a prejudice on possession by an owner who is unwilling or unaware.

Given July 15, at Ravenna, in the consulship of Honorius, for the thirteenth time, and Theodosius, for the tenth time, Augusti (422).

[157] = C.Th. 4.23.1. Combine with C. 11.48.13, 11.66.6 (all dated one day later), and possibly C.Th. 12.19.1–3 (Milan, June 29).

[158] Perhaps to be combined with C. 8.16.8, 11.59.13, dated to "June 11, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Constans and Constantius (414)." Seeck gives January 10, 414. In C. 8.16.8, Probus is Count of Imperial Finances.

[159] = C.Th. 5.18.1.4, with somewhat different wording.

[160] = C. 8.15.8, C.Th. 2.30.2 (with different wording); combine with C. 2.13.2, 4 4.1, 4.26.13, 12.60.4, with the date of July 11, which Seeck adopts.

[18] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Basso pp. Colonos nulla ratione ad ullum quamvis humilioris militiae locum sinimus admitti: sed nec apparitores magisteriae potestatis censibus adscriptos probari concedimus, quia in hac parte et dominorum iuri et publicae consulimus honestati.

[19] [Αὐτοκράτωρ Ἀναστάσιος A.]. Τῶν γεωργῶν οἱ μὲν ἐναπόγραφοί εἰσιν καὶ τὰ τούτων πεκούλια τοῖς δεσπόταις ἀνήκει, οἱ δὲ χρόνῳ τῆς τριακονταετίας μισθωτοὶ γίνονται ἐλεύθεροι μένοντες μετὰ τῶν πραγμάτων αὐτῶν· καὶ οὗτοι δὲ ἀναγκάζονται καὶ τὴν γῆν γεωργεῖν καὶ τὸ τέλος παρέχειν. τοῦτο δὲ καὶ τῷ δεσπότῃ καὶ τοῖς γεωργοῖς λυσιτελές.

[20] Imp. Iustinianus A. Demostheni pp. pr. Litibus imponentes celeritatem sancimus, si quando coloni cuiuscumque condicionis contra dominos terrae declamaverint super hoc ipso dubitantes, utrum is terrae dominus est nec ne (eos tamen dicimus, qui non ex longo prolixoque tempore vel longinqua et inveterata redituum susceptione sufficientem habent cautelam, in quibus casibus ne contradicendi quidem licentia colonis relinquitur, longi temporis praescriptione vel redituum frequentissima consequentia colonorum impetus excludente): talem esse super redituum vel publicarum functionum praestatione formam censemus, ut, si tales coloni, quales supra diximus, idoneum fideiussorem totius summae quae ab his dependitur praestiterint, quod omnes reditus sine ulla procrastinatione, si melior causa dominorum iudicetur, eis restituent, et talis fideiussor per triennium accipiatur eoque impleto iterum renovetur, coloni in medio nullo modo super reditibus a dominis inquietentur. 1. Sin autem hoc coloni minime facere voluerint vel potuerint, tunc idem reditus per officium iudicis annui exigantur per solita tempora, in quae etiam dominis dependebantur, et deponantur in aede sacra, id est in cimeliarchio civitatis, sub qua possessio sita est, vel si localis ecclesia ad susceptionem pecuniarum idonea non sit, in metropolitana ecclesia, ut remaneant cum omni cautela et post

[18] Emperors THEODOSIUS and VALENTINIAN Augusti to Bassus, Praetorian Prefect. We do not permit bound tenants to be admitted by any means to any place of public service (locum militiae), however humble; nor do We concede that those who are enrolled in the censuses (adscripti censibus, i.e., bound tenants) may be approved as subordinate officials (apparitores) of a magistrate's power,[161] because in this area We are consulting the right of landowners (domini) and public honor.

(426).[162]

[19][163] (Emperor ANASTASTIUS Augustus). Some farmers are enrolled as bound (enapographoi, i.e., adscripticii), and their peculia belong to the landowners; but others become paid farmers (misthotoi) in the course of thirty years, remaining free with their property; these are compelled to cultivate the land and to pay the tax (telos). This is advantageous for both the owner and for the tenants (georgoi).

[20] Emperor JUSTINIAN Augustus to Demosthenes, Praetorian Prefect. pr. To bring speed to lawsuits We ordain that, if ever tenants (coloni) of any condition declaim against the owners of the land and raise doubts about the very issue whether or not that person is the owner of the land – for We are referring to those people (owners) who do not have sufficient protection from a long and extended time or from a long-term and inveterate reception of rents (reditus), in which case tenants are not left with the license to contradict them, since the long-time prescription or the very frequent exaction of revenues excludes the attacks of the tenants – We decree that the following be the procedure for the payment of rents or public taxes (functiones), that, if such tenants as we have mentioned above provide a suitable surety for the whole sum that is paid by them, because they will restore all the rents to the owners without any delay if their case should be judged the better, and such a surety should be received for a three-year period and when that is completed be renewed again, the tenants in the mean time should not be disturbed in any way by the owners over the rents. 1. But if the tenants are unwilling or unable to do this, than the same annual rents shall be exacted through the office of the judge for the customary times for which they were also paid to the owners, and they shall be deposited in a sacred building, that is, in the treasury of the city in which the estate (possessio) is located, or if a local church should not be suitable for receiving funds, they shall be deposited in a metropolitan church, so that they remain there with every security and, after the most complete determination, be given to the plenissimam definitionem vel dominis dentur vel colonis restituantur. 2. Sin autem reditus non in auro, sed in speciebus inferuntur, vel in totum vel ex parte, interim per officium iudicis fructus vendantur et pretia eorum secundum praedictum modum deponantur.

[161] For rules about apparitores, cf. C. 12.54.3.
[162] Seeck gives March 30, 426.
[163] Restored from Bas. 55.1.18; that this law is of Anastatius is clear from the reference to it in 23.1. Lounghis et al. date to between 491 and 518.

3. Haec de reditibus definientes ad publicas transeamus functiones. et si quidem coloni more solito eas dependant, ipsi maneant in pristina consuetudine, nullo praeiudicio dominis generando, qui et quiescentibus colonis et non contradicentibus ad publicum tributarias functiones minime inferebant. 3a. Sin autem moris erat dominos totam summam accipere et ex ea partem quidem in publicas vertere functiones, partem autem in suos reditus habere, tunc, si quidem fideiussor a colonis detur, eundem fideiussorem dominis sine praeiudicio litis tantam summam inferre, quantam tributa publica faciunt, ut a dominis publicis rationibus persolvatur: nullo ex hoc colonis praeiudicio generando. super reditibus enim domini fideiussore fiant contenti.

4. Sin autem fideiussione cessante ad sequestrationem res veniat et pecuniae deponantur, ex earum summa tantam iudices separare, quanta ad publicas sufficiat functiones, et eam disponere dominum accipere, quatenus ipse eam persolvens publicas accipiat securitates: reliqua quantitate, quae in reditus puros remanet, in tuto collocanda et litis terminum expectante: 5. Nullo praeiudicio sive colonis sive dominis ex huiusmodi fideiussione vel sequestratione vel publicarum functionum solutione generando: sed omni causa in suspenso manente, donec iudicialis sententia, quae de toto negotio procedit, omnem rem aperiat et ostendat, quis dominus terrae constitutus est et ad quem publicarum functionum securitas debet in posterum fieri, seu reditus vel pervenire vel permanere.

Recitata septimo in novo consistorio palatii Iustiniani. d. Decio vc. cons.

[21] Idem A. ad senatum. pr. Ne diutius dubitetur, si quis ex adscripticia et servo vel adscripticio et ancilla fuisset editus, cuius status sit, vel quae peior fortuna sit, utrumne adscripticia an servilis, sancimus ea quidem, quae in anterioribus legibus cauta sunt pro tali progenie, quae ex mulieribus adscripticiis et viris liberis progenita sit, in suo statu landowners or be restored to the tenants. 2. If, however, the rents are paid not in gold but in kind, either in their entirety or in part, the crops should be sold in the interim through the office of the judge and the prices received for them deposited in accordance with the method mentioned above.

3. After setting these rules concerning rents, let Us go to public payments (functiones). And if indeed tenants should pay them in the customary manner, they are to remain in their former condition, with no prejudice to be created for the landowners, who, with the acquiescence of the tenants and without their contradicting this, were not making tax payments to the public treasury. 3a. But if it was the custom for the landowners to receive the whole sum and to turn over part of that for public payments and to have part for their own rents, then, if indeed a surety should be given by the tenants, then the surety shall pay the landowners the same sum as the public taxes represent, without prejudice to the litigation, so that it be paid by the landowners to the public accounts, without generating any prejudice from this for the tenants. For concerning the rents the landowners should be content with the surety.

4. But if without a surety the matter should come to sequestration and the funds should be deposited, the judges should separate from that sum as much as is sufficient for the public charges, and the landowner should accept disposing of this, in such a way that as he pays it himself he receive public receipts (securitates); the amount left over, which remains simply for the rents, is to be collected in a safe place to await the end of the litigation. 5. No prejudice is to be created either for the tenants or for the landowners from this type of surety, sequestration, or payment of public charges; but the whole case remains in abeyance until the court's judgment, that proceeds from the entire matter, opens the whole affair and shows who has been established as the owner of the land and to whom henceforth the receipt for the public charges ought to be issued, whether the rent should come (to the landowners) or remain (with the tenants).

Recited for the seventh time in the New Consistory of the Palace of Justinian. Given October 30,[164] in the consulship of the vir clarissimus Decius (529).

[21] The same Augustus to the Senate. pr. So that it not be doubted any longer, if anyone has been born from a woman of enrolled status (adscripticia) and a male slave, or from a male of enrolled status (adcripticius) and a female slave, as to what status he or she should be, or which fortune is worse, whether registered status or slave, We ordain those things that were provided for in earlier laws for such offspring as was born from women of enrolled status and free males, namely, that it (the issue) be left in its own status, and that offspring of relinqui, et sit adscripticia proles ex tali copulatione procreata. 1. Si quis autem vel ex servo et adscripticia, vel ancilla et adscripticio fuerit editus, matris suae ventrem sequatur et talis sit condicionis, qualis et genetrix fuit, sive ancilla sive adscripticia: quod hactenus in liberis tantum et servis observabatur. quae etenim differentia inter servos et adscripticios intellegetur, cum uterque in domini sui positus est potestate, et possit servum cum peculio manumittere et adscripticium cum terra suo dominio expellere?

[164] Inserted by Krüger, who is followed by Lounghis et al.

[22] Idem A. Iuliano pp. pr. Cum scimus nostro iure nullum praeiudicium generari cuidam circa condicionem neque ex confessionibus neque ex scriptura, nisi etiam ex aliis argumentis aliquid accesserit incrementum, sancimus solam conductionem vel aliam quamcumque scripturam ad hoc minime sufficere nec adscripticiam condicionem cuidam inferre, sed debere huiusmodi scripturae aliquid advenire adiutorium, quatenus vel ex publici census adscriptione vel ex aliis legitimis modis talis scriptura adiuvetur. 1. Melius etenim est in huiusmodi difficultatibus ex pluribus capitulis condiciones ostendi et non solis confessionibus neque scripturis homines forte liberos ad deteriorem detrahi fortunam. 2. Sin autem et scriptura et post scripturam confessio seu depositio, sine vi et necessitate tamen, intervenerit (quid enim, si etiam conductionale instrumentum vel alium chartulam, in qua subscripsit, intimavit et inter acta deposuit sese colonum fuisse adscripticium?), tunc ex utroque genere obligationis, id est tam scripturae quam confessionis vel depositionis, talem eum esse credendum, qualem et scripsit et inter acta deposuit.

3. Illud quoque non ineleganter dubitabatur, si coloni filius per triginta annorum curricula vel forsitan quadraginta seu ampliora, adhuc vivente patre et agriculturam peragente, ipse in libera conversatione morabatur, et dominus terrae, quia per patrem ei satisfiebat, non etiam eius praesentiam exigebat, an post obitum patris, vel postquam inutilis is forte existat et ruri non idoneus, potest excusari filius, longinqua libertate abutendo et quod per multos annos neque agrum coluit neque aliquid colonarii operis celebravit, cum non possit dominus incusari propter suam desidiam, cui per patrem eius omne quod voluerat accedebat. 4. In omnibus itaque huiuscemodi speciebus satis acerbum registered status be created from such copulation. 1. But if someone has been born either from a male slave and a woman of enrolled status, or from a female slave and a male of enrolled status, he or she shall follow the womb of the mother and be of such a condition as she was, whether she was a slave woman or a woman of enrolled status; this was observed up to now in slaves alone and free persons. For what difference will be understood between slaves and people of enrolled status, since each has been placed in the power of his owner, and he can manumit a slave with his peculium and expel from his ownership a person of registered status with his land?

(530).[165]

[22] The same Augustus to Julian, Praetorian Prefect. pr. Since We know that by Our law no prejudice is created concerning status from oral confessions or from a writing, unless something additional has been added from other evidence, We ordain that a lease alone[166] or any other writing not suffice for this and not impose the status of being enrolled (adscripticia condicio) on anyone, but some support should be added to such a writing, to the extent that such a writing is supported by an entry (adscriptio) in the public census or from other lawful means. 1. For it is better in such difficulties for conditions to be demonstrated from multiple sources (capitulae) and that people who are perhaps free not be dragged into a worse fortune by confessions or writings alone.

2. If, however, a writing intervenes and after the writing a confession or a deposition, but without force and compulsion – for what is it if he has produced a lease document or some other record (chartula) in which he has written his signature and in the records has set down that he had been an enrolled tenant (colonus adscripticius) – then on the basis of each type of obligation, that is of both the writing as well as the confession or deposition, he is to be believed to be of the status that he has written and set down in the records.

3. This point has also not inelegantly been debated, if the son of a bound tenant himself was living in free association (libera conversatio) through the passage of thirty or perhaps forty years or more, while his father was still alive and performing agriculture, and the owner of the land, because he was being satisfied through the father, was indeed not demanding his presence, whether, after the death of the father, or after that one perhaps becomes useless and not suitable for the country (i.e., for farming), the son can be excused, as a result of abusing a long-lasting freedom and because for many years he neither cultivated the land nor performed any work of a bound tenant, since the owner, to whom everything he wanted came through his (the son's) father cannot be censured for his neglect. 4. So in all such cases it seems to Us to be quite bitter

[165] Krüger adds: "Given July 22, at Constantinople, in the consulship of the viri clarissimi Lampadius and Orestes." He is followed by Lounghis et al.

[166] Sola conductio. Some scholars, who understand the legal relationship differently, translate this "a contract of employment alone."

nobis videtur domino praeiudicari colonorum absentia eorum, qui in rure nati et postea absentes per suos vel patres vel fratres vel cognatos agriculturam peragebant. cum enim pars quodammodo corporis eius per cognationem in fundo remanebat, non videtur neque peregrinari neque in libertate morari. 5. Maneat itaque domino ius inconcussum, et donec eius vel antiquitas vel posteritas vel cognatio in agrum remanet, ipse videatur ibi resedisse.

D. x k. ... Constantinopoli post consulatum Lampadii et Orestis vv. cc.

[23] Idem A. Iohanni pp. pr. Cum satis inhumanum est terram quae ab initio adscripticios habebat suis quodammodo membris defraudari et colonos in aliis terris demorantes dominos terrae maximis damnis adficere, censemus, quemadmodum in curialium condicione nemo ex temporali cursu liberatur, ita nec adscripticiae condicioni suppositus ex annalibus curriculis, quantacumque emanaverint, vel quacumque prolixa negotiatione aliquis sibi vindicet libertatem: sed remaneat adscripticius et inhaereat terrae. et si se celaverit vel separare conatus fuerit, secundum exemplum servi fugitivi sese diutinis insidiis furari intellegatur et sit suppositus una cum subole sua, etsi in alia terra eam fecerit, huiusmodi fortunae et capitali illationi, nulla liberatione ei penitus competente.

1. Cum autem Anastasiana lex homines qui per triginta annos colonaria detenti sunt condicione voluit liberos quidem permanere, non autem habere facultatem terra derelicta in alia loca migrare, et ex hoc quaerebatur, si etiam liberi eorum cuiuscumque sexus, licet non triginta annos fecerint in fundis vel vicis, deberent colonariae esse condicionis an tantummodo genitor eorum, qui per triginta annos huiusmodi condicioni illigatus est: sancimus liberos colonorum esse quidem in perpetuum secundum praefatam legem liberos et nulla deteriore condicione praegravari, non autem habere licentiam relicto suo rure in aliud migrare, sed semper terrae inhaereant, quam semel colenda*m* patres eorum susceperunt. 2. Caveant autem possessionum domini, in quibus tales coloni constituti sunt, aliquam innovationem vel violentiam eis inferre. si enim hoc approbatum fuerit et per iudicem pronuntiatum, that the owner be prejudiced by the absence of those bound tenants who, having been born in the country and afterwards in their absence were performing their agricultural duties through their fathers, brothers, or relatives. For since part of his body in some way remained on the farm through his relative (cognatio), he is seen as neither being abroad or being in liberty. 5. Thus the owner's right shall remain unshaken, and as long as either his parent (antiquitas) or posterity or a relative remains on the farm, he should be seen as having stayed there.

Given February 20,[167] at Constantinople, after the consulship of the viri clarissimi Lampadius and Orestes (531).

[23] The same Augustus to John, Praetorian Prefect. pr. Since it is quite cruel that land that from the beginning had enrolled tenants (adscripticii) somehow be defrauded of its members and that bound tenants dwelling on other lands afflict the owners of the land with very large losses, We decree that, just as no one in the condition of decurions is liberated by the passage of time, so too is no one who is placed in the condition of being a registered tenant freed by the passage of years, however many have slipped by, or by whatever obliging (prolixa) business someone claims liberty for himself: but the registered tenant shall stay in place and cling to the land. And if he has hidden or tried to separate himself, he is to be understood, following the example of a fugitive slave, as stealing himself by his long-enduring plots and he shall be subjected to such a fortune and the payment of the capitation tax (capitali illationi) together with his offspring, even if he has produced them on land belonging to another, with no liberation at all available to him.

1. However, the law of Anastasius[168] intended that (free) people who were detained in the condition of bound tenants (colonaria condicio) for thirty years remain free, but not have the right to abandon their land and to migrate into other places. Because of this there was a question whether also their children of either sex, although they have not passed thirty years on farms or in villages, ought to be in the condition of bound tenants or only their progenitor, who for thirty years has been tied to such a condition. We ordain that the children of bound tenants be free in perpetuity in accordance with he aforementioned law and that they not be burdened with any worse condition, but that they not have the right to abandon their countryside and migrate into a different place, but they shall always cling to the land that their fathers at one time took up to cultivate. 2. But the owners of estates (possessionum domini), on which such bound tenants have been established, shall take care not to visit any innovation (i.e., in the terms of their tenure) or violence on them. For if this is proved ipse provinciae moderator, in qua aliquid tale fuerit perpetratum, omnimodo provideat et laesionem, si qua subsecuta est, eis resarcire et veterem consuetudinem in reditibus praestandis eis observare: nulla nec tunc licentia concedenda colonis fundum ubi commorantur relinquere. 3. Et hoc tam in ipsis colonis quam in subole eorum qualiscumque sexus vel aetatis sancimus, ut et ipsa semel in fundo nata remaneat in possessione sub isdem modis isdemque condicionibus, sub quibus etiam genitores eius manere in alienis fundis definivimus.

[167] Krüger suggests the month, which is not included in the manuscripts; he is followed by Lounghis et al.

[168] See 19.

4. Nemini autem liceat vel adscripticium vel colonum alienum scienti prudentique in suum ius suscipere. 5. Sed et si bona fide eum susceperit, postea autem reppererit eum alienum esse constitutum, admonente domino vel ipsius adscripticii vel terrae et hoc faciente per se vel per procuratorem suum hunc restituere cum omni peculio et subole sua: et si hoc facere supersederit, omnis quidem temporis, quo apud eum remoratus est, publicas functiones sive terrenas sive animales pro eo inferre compelletur cura et provisione tam eminentissimae praefecturae quam praesidis provinciae: coartetur autem et sic ad restitutionem eius secundum veteres constitutiones et poenas eis insertas.

[24] Idem A. Hermogeni magistro officiorum. pr. Si qui adscripticiae condicionis constituti mulieres liberas quacumque mente aut quacumque machinatione sive scientibus dominis sive ignorantibus sibi uxores coniunxerunt vel postea coniunxerint, in sua libertate permanere tam eas quam prolem quae ex eis cognoscitur procreata sancimus: illo procul dubio observando, ut, si ex libero marito et adscripticia uxore partus fuerit editus, is maternae condicionis maculam, non paternam sequatur libertatem. 1. Sed ne adscripticii putent sibi impunitum esse tale conamen, quod maxime verendum est, ne liberarum mulierum nuptiis ab his excogitatis paulatim huiusmodi hominum condicio decrescat, sancimus, si quid tale fuerit ab adscripticio perpetratum, liberam habere potestatem dominum eius sive per se sive per praesidem provinciae talem hominem castigatione moderata corrigere et abstrahere a tali muliere. quod si neglexerit, sciat in suum damnum huiusmodi desidiam reversuram.

and pronounced through a judge, the very governor of the province in which anything of this sort has been perpetrated should take care in every way both to repair the harm for them and to maintain for them the ancient custom in paying rents; not even then is any permission to be conceded to the bound tenants to leave the farm where they dwell. 3. And We ordain this both for the bound tenants themselves and for their offspring of any sex or age, that it too, once having been born on a farm, remain on the estate (possessio) under the same terms and conditions as the ones under which We have determined its parents remained on farms belonging to other persons.

4. No one shall be permitted knowingly and intentionally to take up into his own right a registered tenant or a bound tenant belonging to another. 5. But if he takes him up in good faith, but afterwards discovers that he has been established as belonging to another, he shall, when asked to do so by the owner either of the registered tenant himself or of the land, and when he does this either himself or through his procurator, restore him with all his peculium and his offspring; and if he neglects to do this, he must be compelled, by the care and provision both of the most eminent Prefecture as well as of the provincial governor, to pay all the public charges for him, whether for land or for animals, for the entire time during which he remained with him; however, he shall be bound also in this way to the restitution of that one in accordance with the ancient constitutions and the penalties contained in them.

(531–534).

[24][169] The same Augustus to Hermogenes, Master of Offices. pr. If any persons established in the condition of registered tenants have married or marry free women with whatever intention or machination, whether the owners know or are unaware, We ordain that both they (the wives) and the offspring that is known to have been procreated from them remain in their liberty; but, far from any doubt, this principle is to be observed that, if offspring is born from a free husband and an enrolled tenant (adscripticia) wife, it follows the stain of the mother's condition and not the father's liberty. 1. But in order that enrolled tenants not think that such an effort go unpunished, since it is particularly to be feared that the number of this class of persons may decrease by the intermarriages they dream up with free women, We ordain that if anything of that kind is done by an enrolled tenant, the owner shall have the free power, either personally or through the provincial governor, to correct such a person by proper chastisement and to take him away from such a woman. If he neglects this, he may know that such laziness will redound to his own loss.

[169] §1 = C. 7.24.1; apparently combine with C. 1.3.53, 5.17.11, and 9.13.1 (the subscription for these reads: "Given November 17, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Our Lord Justinian, Ever Augustus, for the third time (533)." This date also in Lounghis et al.

XXXXVIIII De Capitatione Civium Censibus Eximenda

[1] Imp. Constantinus A. ad Eusebium virum perfectissimum praesidem Lyciae et Pamphyliae. Plebs urbana, sicut in Orientalibus quoque provinciis observatur, minime in censibus pro capitatione sua conveniatur, sed iuxta hanc iussionem nostram immunis habeatur.

D. k. Iun. Constantino A. III et Licinio III conss.

L In Quibus Causis Coloni Censiti Dominos Accusare Possunt

[1] Imp. Constantinus A. ad Maximum vicarium Orientis. Quisquis colonus plus a domino exigitur, quam ante consueverat et quam in anterioribus temporibus exactus est, adeat iudicem, cuius primum poterit habere praesentiam, et facinus comprobet, ut ille, qui convincitur amplius postulare, quam accipere consueverat, hoc facere in posterum prohibeatur, prius reddito quod superexactione perpetrata noscitur extorsisse.

PP. id.

[2] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Nebridio comiti Asiae. pr. Coloni censibus dumtaxat adscripti, sicuti ab his liberi sunt, quibus eos tributa subiectos non faciunt, ita his, quibus annuis functionibus et debito condicionis obnoxii sunt, paene est ut quadam servitute dediti videantur. 1. Quo minus est ferendum, ut eos audeant lite pulsare, a quibus ipsos utpote a dominis una cum possessionibus distrahi posse dubium non est. 2. Quam de cetero licentiam submovemus, ne quis audeat domini in iudicio nomen lacessere, et cuius ipsi sunt, eiusdem omnia sua esse cognoscant. 3. Cum enim saepissime decretum sit, ne quid de peculio

Forty-Ninth Title Removing the Capitation of Citizens from the Census

[1][170] Emperor CONSTANTINE Augustus to vir perfectissimus Eusebius, Governor of Lycia and Pamphylia. The urban plebs, as is observed also in the eastern provinces, shall not be held liable in the censuses for the capitation tax, but is to be considered exempt in accordance with this order of Ours.

Given June 1, in the consulship of Constantine Augustus, for the third time, and Licinius, for the third time (313).

Fiftieth Title Cases in which Bound Tenants Registered in the Census Can Accuse Owners

[1] Emperor CONSTANTINE Augustus to Maximus, Vicar of the East. If a landowner exacts more from any tenant[171] than what he was previously accustomed (to pay) and what was exacted from him in previous years, he should approach the judge whose audience he will first be able to gain, and he should prove the crime, so that the one who is convicted of demanding more than he had been accustomed to receive might be prohibited from doing this in the future, after first having returned what he is known to have extorted by perpetrating an excessive demand.[172]

Posted on the Ides ...

[2] Emperors ARCADIUS and HONORIUS Augusti to Nebridius, Count of Asia.[173] pr. Bound tenants, that is, ones enrolled in the censuses, just as they are free from these persons to whom taxes do not make them subject, so they ought to be seen as almost given over in a kind of servitude to the ones to whom they are liable by annual charges and the debt of their condition. 1. It is all the less to be tolerated that they dare to batter with a lawsuit those persons by whom as owners there is no doubt that they can be sold along with estates (possessiones). 2. We remove this license henceforth, so that no one dare to harry the name of an owner in a court, and so that they know that all their possessions belong to the same person to whom they themselves belong. 3. For since it has been decreed again and again that a bound tenant not be permitted either [170] = C.Th. 13.10.2. Seeck gives June 1, 311.

[171] The Latin term colonus does not necessarily have the sense of "bound colonate," which is the conventional translation for the texts from late antiquity; it is possible that more tenants are meant here than those bound to the land.

[172] On superexactiones, see C. 10.20.1, and 4 of the following constitution. Seeck dates this constitution to December 25, 325.

[173] C. 7.62.28 has Nebridius as Proconsul of Asia, which is to be preferred. The lex Romana Burgundionum 14.6 records this person as Vicar of Asia. Seeck dates to July 22, 396.

suo cuiquam colonorum ignorante domino praedii aut vendere aut alio modo alienare liceret, quemadmodum contra eius personam aequo poterit consistere iure, quem nec propria quidem leges sui iuris habere voluerunt et adquirendi tantum, non etiam transferendi potestate permissa, domino et adquirere et habere voluerunt? 4. Sed ut in causis civilibus huiusmodi hominum generi adversus dominos vel patronos et aditum intercludimus et vocem negamus exceptis superexactionibus, in quibus retro principes facultatem eis super hoc interpellandi praebuerunt, ita in criminum accusatione quae publica est non adimitur eis propter suam suorumque iniuriam experiendi licentia.

LI De Colonis Palaestinis

[1] Imppp. Valentinianus Theodosius et Arcadius AAA. Cynegio pp. Cum per alias provincias, quae subiacent nostrae serenitatis imperio, lex a maioribus constituta colonos quodam aeternitatis iure detineat, ita ut illis non liceat ex his locis quorum fructu relevantur abscedere nec ea deserere quae semel colenda susceperunt, neque id Palaestinae provinciae possessoribus suffragetur, sancimus, ut etiam per Palaestinas nullus omnino colonorum suo iure velut vagus ac liber exsultet, sed exemplo aliarum provinciarum ita domino fundi teneatur, ut sine poena suscipientis non possit abscedere: addito eo, ut possessionis domino revocandi eius plena tribuatur auctoritas.

LII De Colonis Thracensibus

[1] Imppp. Theodosius Arcadius et Honorius AAA. Rufino pp. pr. Per universam dioecesim Thraciarum sublato in perpetuum humanae capitationis censu iugatio tantum terrena solvatur. 1. Et ne forte colonis to sell or to alienate in some other fashion anything from his peculium without the knowledge of the owner of the property (praedium), in what way will he – whom the laws did not want to have his own possessions under his own authority (sui iuris), but instead wanted (to have) the right both to acquire and to hold for the owner, when he was (previously) permitted only the power to acquire, but not also the power to transfer – be able to stand against his person on an equal legal basis? 4. But as in civil cases, we both close off an entry and deny a voice to such a class of persons against their owners or patrons except in the case of excessive demands (superexactiones), in which previous emperors have provided the opportunity for them to bring an action on this issue, so also, in an accusation of crimes that is public, permission is not taken away from them to pursue a case on account of their own or their people's injury.

Fifty-First Title Bound Tenants in Palestine

[1][174] Emperors Valentinian, Theodosius, and Arcadius Augusti to Cynegius, Praetorian Prefect. Since, in the other provinces that are subject to the power of Our Serenity, the law established by our ancestors detains tenants by a kind of eternal right in such a way that they are not permitted to go away from these places by whose crops they are supported nor to desert what they have at one time taken up to cultivate, but this benefit is not also provided (suffragetur) to the landowners of the province of Palestine, We ordain that throughout Palestine (Palestinas) no one at all of the tenants may jump around under his own right (suo iure) as if wandering and free, but by the example of the other provinces he shall be bound to the owner of the farm in such a way that he cannot depart without a penalty for the one who receives him; this point is added, that the owner of the estate (possessio) be provided with the full authority to recall him.

Fifty-Second Title Bound Tenants in Thrace

[1] Emperors Theodosius, Arcadius, and Honorius Augusti to Rufinus, Praetorian Prefect. pr. Throughout the entire Diocese of the Thraces, after the removal of the census of the personal capitation tax, the tax assessment (iugatio) for land alone should be paid. 1. And lest by chance the capability tributariae sortis nexibus absolutis vagandi et quo libuerit recedendi facultas permissa videatur, ipsi quidem originario iure teneantur, et licet condicione videantur ingenui, servi tamen terrae ipsius cui nati sunt aestimentur nec recedendi quo velint aut permutandi loca habeant facultatem, sed possessor eorum iure utatur et patroni sollicitudine et domini potestate. 2. Si quis vero alienum colonum suscipiendum retinendumve crediderit, duas auri libras ei cogatur exsolvere, cuius agros transfuga cultore vacuaverit, ita ut eundem cum omni peculio suo et agnatione restituat.

[174] Possibly combine with C. 11.59.7, and the texts mentioned there. Seeck dates to October 25, 386.

LIII De Colonis Illyricianis

[1] Imppp. Valentinianus Valens et Gratianus AAA. ad Probum pp. pr. Colonos inquilinosque per Illyricum vicinasque regiones abeundi rure, in quo eos originis agnationisque merito certum est immorari, licentiam habere non posse censemus. 1. Inserviant terris non tributario nexu, sed nomine et titulo colonorum, ita ut, si abscesserint ad aliumve transierint, revocati vinculis poenisque subdantur, maneatque eos poena, qui alienum et incognitum recipiendum esse duxerint, tam in redhibitione operarum et damni, quod locis quae deseruerant factum est, quam multae, cuius modum in auctoritate iudicis collocamus: ita ut etiam dominus fundi, in quo alienus fuisse monstrabitur, pro qualitate peccati coercitionem subire cogatur nec sit ignorantiae locus, cum ad criminis rationem solum illud sufficiat, quod incognitum sibi tenuit. 2. Servum etiam in memoratis regionibus si quis receperit, ignorationis excusatione sublata quadrupli poena teneatur, operarum praeterea compendiis damnisque praestitis. 3. In libertis etiam, quos pari usurpatione susceperit, is modus sit, quem circa liberos duximus colonos retinendum.

D. III id. Iul. Gratiano A. II et Probo conss.

seem to be permitted to (bound) tenants to wander off with the dissolution of their tax bonds and to withdraw to wherever they want, they themselves are to be held by the law of their origin (originario iure), and although they may seem to be free-born in their condition, even so they are to be considered as slaves of the land to which they have been born and they should not have the capability of withdrawing to wherever they want and to change their places, but the estate owner (possessor) shall exercise a right over them as well as the solicitude of a patron and the power of an owner. 2. But if someone thinks to take up and retain a bound tenant belonging to another, he shall be compelled to pay 2 pounds of gold to the one whose fields he emptied with the desertion of its cultivator, so that he restore the same person with all his peculium and his family.[175]

Fifty-Third Title Bound Tenants in Illyricum

[1][176] Emperors VALENTINIAN, VALENS, and GRATIAN Augusti to Probus, Praetorian Prefect. pr. We decree that bound tenants and resident tenants (coloni inquilinique) in Illyricum and neighboring regions cannot have the right to leave the countryside, in which it is certain that they live by virtue of their origin and family. 1. For they shall be servants to the land not by the bond of taxes, but under the name and title of bound tenants, so that, if they leave or go to another person, they shall be recalled and be subjected to chains and punishments, and punishment should await those who considered receiving a person belonging to another and unknown (to him), both in compensating for their services and the loss that has been inflicted on the places they had deserted, as well as in paying a fine, whose amount we place in the authority of the judge, so that the owner of the farm, on which the foreign tenant will be shown to have been, also be compelled to undergo restraining in accordance with the quality of his misdemeanor, and there be no place for ignorance, since this alone suffices for the intention of a crime, that he held someone unknown to himself. 2. If anyone receives a slave in the aforementioned regions, the excuse of ignorance is removed and he shall be bound by a fourfold penalty, having besides made good the expenses and losses of the labor. 3. Also in the case of freed persons, whom he has taken by an equal usurpation, that measure is to be observed that We considered necessary to retain concerning free bound tenants.

Given July 13, in the consulship of Gratian Augustus, for the second time, and Probus (371).

[175] Seeck dates to April 3, 393.
[176] §1 middle = C. 6.3.13, which refers to the operae of a freedman (see 3).

LIIII Ut Nemo ad Suum Patrocinium Suscipiat Vicos vel Rusticanos Eorum

[1] Impp. Leo et Anthemius AA. Nicostrato pp. Orientis. pr. Si quis post hanc nostri numinis sanctionem in fraudem circumscriptionemque publicae functionis ad patrocinium cuiuscumque confugerit, id, quod huius rei gratia geritur sub praetextu donationis vel venditionis seu conductionis aut cuiuslibet alterius contractus, nullam habeat firmitatem: tabellionibus, qui talia instrumenta perficere ausi fuerint, bonorum proscriptione plectendis, qui tamen scientes ausi fuerint huiusmodi instrumenta conscribere: vicis etiam vel possessionibus ad patrocinia confugientium publico vindicandis. 1. Eae autem personae, quae contra publicam commoditatem in clientelam suam suscepisse collatores detectae fuerint, nobiliores quidem centum librarum auri condemnationem subire cogentur, mediocris vero fortunae facultatum suarum amissione plectentur: eadem poena multandis etiam his, qui intercedentes ministerium suum huiusmodi nefariis actibus improba mente praebuerint. 2. Quam formam ex eo quidem tempore, quod sacra constitutio a divae memoriae Marciano promulgata continet, id est in Thracica quidem dioecesi abhinc annis triginta, hoc est a consulatu Aetii iterum et Sigisbuldi, in Orientali vero et Aegyptiaca et Pontica et Asiana dioecesi viginti octo, hoc est a consulatu Cyri valere atque exsecutioni mandari praecipimus.
D. k. Sept. Anthemio A. II cons.

[Imp. Iustinianus A. Si cuiuslibet tributarius iunxerit sibi tributariam uxorem, vel e contrario si cuiuslibet ancilla servo se iunxerit alieno, tam tributarii quam servi filios matrum sequi condicionem earumque more genitricum suarum dominis subditos esse censemus.]

[2] pr. Μηδεὶς κωμήταις προστασίαν ὑπισχνείσθω μηδὲ δεχέσθω γεωργοὺς ἐπὶ τούτῳ ὑπόσχεσιν προσόδων ἢ ἕτερον κέρδος λαμβάνων. εἰ δέ τις παραβαίη ταῦτα, καὶ τοῖς προειρημένοις ἐπιτιμίοις ὑποπεσεῖται καὶ ἑτέρᾳ μείζονι πειρασθήσεται κινήσει. 1. Πρὸς τούτοις καὶ οἱ κωμῆται, εἰ μὲν δοῦλοι εἶεν, τοῖς δεσπόταις ἀποδοθήσονται σωφρονισθέντες, εἰ δὲ ἐλεύθεροι,

Fifty-Fourth Title No One Should Take up into his Patronage Villages or their Farmers

[1][177] Emperors LEO and ANTHEMIUS Augusti to Nicostratus, Praetorian Prefect of the East. pr. If anyone after this ordinance of Our Divine Majesty flees to the patronage of anyone to defraud or evade a public charge (functio), what is done for the sake of this purpose under the pretext of a donation, sale, lease, or any other contract shall have no validity; the notaries (tabelliones) who have dared to complete such documents are to be punished with the proscription of their property, as long as they have knowingly dared to sign such documents. The villages or properties (possessiones) of those fleeing to patronage are to be claimed for the public treasury. 1. Those persons, however, who are detected as having taken up taxpayers (collatores) into their own protection (clientela) contrary to the public interest, if they are of noble rank they will be compelled to undergo a condemnation of 100 pounds of gold, whereas those of a more modest fortune will be punished with the loss of their wealth; those who intercede and with wicked intentions offer their own service for nefarious court actions (actus) of this kind are to be fined with the same penalty. 2. We instruct that this enactment be in force and be entrusted to execution as of that time that the sacred constitution promulgated by Marcian of divine memory mentions, that is, in the diocese of Thrace, as of thirty years ago,[178] or from the consulship of Aetius, for the second time, and Sigisvultus,[179] but in the Dioceses of the East, of Egypt, of Pontus, and of Asia, as of twenty-eight years ago, that is, from the consulship of Cyrus.[180]

Given September 1, in the consulship of Anthemius Augustus, for the second time (468).[181]

[2][182] pr. No one is to promise patronage (patrocinium) to villagers or to receive farmers after taking a promise of revenues or any other gain for this. If someone should violate these ordinances, he will both be subject to the aforesaid punishments and he will be tested with another greater calamity. 1. In addition to this, the villagers, if they should be slaves, after being castigated, will be returned to their owners, but if they should be free, they are fined 20 pounds of

177 Combine with C. 10.19.8, 11.56.1.

178 This constitution is not extant. Krüger: "thirty-two years," since Marcian ruled 450–457.

179 437 CE.

180 441 CE.

181 Some manuscripts include the following constitution, which may be an epitome of Just. Nov. 54: "Emperor JUSTINIAN Augustus. If a tax-liable tenant (tributarius) belonging to anyone marries a wife of the same class, or on the other hand if a slave-woman belonging to anyone marries a slave belonging to another person, We decree that the children both of the tax-liable tenant and of the slave follow the condition of the mothers and, in accordance with custom, be subject to the owners of their mothers."

182 From B. 56.13.2. Date and origin unknown.

κʹ λίτρας προστιμῶνται καὶ τύπτονται μετὰ δέκα τῶν πρωτευόντων τῆς κώμης καὶ διηνεκῶς ἐξορίζονται, ἐν ᾧ γνώμῃ πάντων ἐστασίασαν.

LV Ut Rusticani ad Nullum Obsequium Devocentur

[1] Exemplum sacrarum litterarum Diocletiani et Maximiani AA. ad Charisium. Ne quis ex rusticana plebe, quae extra muros posita capitationem suam detulit et annonam congruam praestat, ad ullum aliud obsequium devocetur neque a rationali nostro mularum fiscalium vel equorum ministerium subire cogatur.

Sine die et consule.

[2] Impp. Valentinianus et Valens AA. ad Probum pp. Illyrici. Si qui eorum, qui provinciarum rectoribus obsequuntur quique in diversis agunt officiis principatus et qui sub quocumque praetextu muneris publici possunt esse terribiles, rusticano cuipiam necessitatem obsequii quasi mancipio sui iuris imponant aut servum eius vel forte bovem in usus proprios necessitatesque converterint, ablatis omnibus facultatibus perpetuo subiugentur exilio, et nihilo minus rusticanum, qui se in eiusdem operas sponte propria detulisse responderit, par poenae severitudo constringat.

D. prid. k. Oct. Agrippinae Valentiniano et Valente AA. conss.

LVI Non Licere Metrocomiae Habitatoribus Loca Sua ad Extraneum Transferre

[1] Impp. Leo et Anthemius AA. Nicostrato pp. In illis, quae metrocomiae communi vocabulo nuncupantur, hoc adiciendum necessario nostra putavit humanitas, ut nulli extraneo illic quoquo modo possidendi licentia tribuatur: sed si quis ex isdem vicanis loca sui iuris alienare voluerit, non licere ei nisi ad habitatorem adscriptum eidem metrocomiae per qualemcumque contractum terrarum suarum dominium possessionemque transferre: sciente persona extranea, quod, si contra gold, and they are beaten with ten of the decemprimi (ten people with administrative responsibilities in a village) and are exiled perpetually, as long as they have revolted with the knowledge of all of them.

Fifty-Fifth Title Farmers Should not be Called Away to Any Duty

[1] Copy of the sacred letter of DIOCLETIAN and MAXIMIAN Augusti to Charisius.[183] No one from the rural plebs (rusticana plebs), which, while it is placed outside the walls, has reported its liability for the capitation tax (capitatio) and offers an appropriate agricultural tax payment (annona), shall be called away to any other duty, nor shall (any of them) be compelled by Our Comptroller to undergo any service of providing mules or horses for fiscal purposes.

Without day and consul.

[2][184] Emperors VALENTINIAN and VALENS Augusti to Probus, Praetorian Prefect of Illyricum. If any of those persons who obey the provincial governors and who act in diverse offices of the principate and who, under any pretext of a public service, can be intimidating, should impose the necessity of obedience on any farmer (rusticanus) as if on a slave under their own right or convert his slave or perhaps his ox for their own uses and purposes, they shall be subject to perpetual exile with a loss of all their property, and a similar severity of punishment shall bind the farmer no less who has responded that he has provided himself for the services of the same person of his own accord.

Given September 30, at Agrippina (Cologne), in the consulship of Valentinian and Valens Augusti (368).

Fifty-Sixth Title Inhabitants of a Mother-Village Are Not Permitted to Transfer Their Properties to an Outsider

[1][185] Emperors LEO and ANTHEMIUS Augusti to Nicostratus, Praetorian Prefect. In the case of those places, which are called mother-villages (metrocomiae) in common parlance, Our Compassion has thought that this measure must necessarily be added, that no outsider be granted permission to possess there in any way. But if anyone from among the same villagers wants to alienate properties under his own right (loca sui iuris), he is not permitted to transfer ownership or possession of his lands by any type of contract except to an inhabitant enrolled [183] Cf. C. 9.41.9 (290), addressed to Charisius as Governor of Syria.

[184] = C.Th. 11.11.1, which provides for the death penalty instead of exile. Schmidt-Hofner dates this constitution to September 30, 370 or 375.

[185] Combine with C. 10.19.8, 11.54.1.

vetitum se huic negotio immiscere vel illic possidere temptaverit, quicumque contractus initus fuerit, carebit effectu et contractu soluto, si quid praestitum est, hoc tantum reddetur.

D. k. Sept. Anthemio A. II cons.

LVII Ut Nullus ex Vicanis pro Alienis Debitis Vicanorum Teneatur

[1] Imp. Zeno A. ... Grave est et non solum legibus, verum etiam aequitati naturali contrarium, pro alienis debitis alios molestari. idcirco huiusmodi iniquitates contra omnes vicanos perpetrari modis omnibus prohibemus.

LVIII De Censibus et Censitoribus et Peraequatoribus et Inspectoribus

[1] Imp. Constantinus A. ad populum. Quoniam tabularii civitatum per collusionem potentiorum sarcinam ad inferiores transferunt, iubemus, ut, quisquis se gravatum probaverit, suam tantum pristinam professionem agnoscat.

PP. XV k. Febr. Romae Constantino A. III et Licinio III conss.

[2] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. Eutropio pp. pr. Quisquis vitem succiderit aut feracium ramorum fetus hebetaverit, quo declinet fidem censuum et mentiatur callide paupertatis ingenium, mox detectus competenti indignationi subiciatur. 1. Illo videlicet evitante calumniam, qui forte detegitur laborasse pro copia ac reparandis agrorum fetibus, non sterilitatem aut inopiam procurasse.

D. prid. non. Iun. Constantinopoli Eucherio et Syagrio conss.

(adscriptus) in the same mother-village. The outside person knows that, if he tries to involve himself in this business against the prohibition or to possess something there, whatever contract has been entered into will lack effect and when it is dissolved, if something has been proffered, that alone will be restored.

Given September 1, in the consulship of Anthemius Augustus, for the second time (468).

Fifty-Seventh Title No Villager Should Be Held Liable for Debts of Other Villagers

[1] Emperor ZENO Augustus ... It is burdensome and contrary not only to the laws, but also to natural fairness, that people be troubled for the debts of others. For this reason We prohibit such iniquities from being perpetrated against villagers in every way.[186]

Fifty-Eighth Title Censuses, Census-Takers, Adjusters, and Inspectors

[1][187] Emperor CONSTANTINE Augustus to the People. Since the tax officials (tabularii) in the cities, through collusion with the more powerful, transfer the burden to the more humble people (inferiores), We order that whoever proves that he has been burdened should acknowledge only his original declaration (professio).

Posted January 18, at Rome, in the consulship of Constantine Augustus, for the third time, and Licinius, for the third time (313).

[2][188] Emperors GRATIAN, VALENTINIAN, and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Eutropius, Praetorian Prefect. pr. Whoever cuts down a vine or damages the fruit of productive branches in order to undermine the reliability of the censuses and cleverly to pretend to the quality of poverty (ingenium paupertatis), when he is soon caught he shall be subject to a suitable indignation. 1. Plainly that one avoids calumny who by chance is detected as having labored for production (copia) and to increase the yields of his fields, and not to have contrived a poor crop (sterilitas) or scarcity.

Given June 4, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Eucherius and Syagrius (381).

[186] Lounghis et al. date to between 474 and 491.
[187] = C.Th. 13.10.1. Combine with C.Th. 10.10.1
[188] = C.Th. 13.11.1, with somewhat different wording.

[3] Idem AAA. Cynegio pp. Si peraequatore misso aliquis aut procuratorem suum retraxerit aut colonum per contumaciam retractationis fugaverit, ad eum censuum modum, quem vel eo vel procuratore illius absente peraequator apposuerit, nostrae sanctionis auctoritate tenebitur.

D. VI k. April. Constantinopoli Honorio np. et Euodio conss.

[4] Imppp. Theodosius Arcadius et Honorius AAA. Rufino pp. Omne territorium censeatur, quotiens defectorum levamen exposcitur, ut sterilia atque ieiuna his quae culta vel opima sunt compensentur.

D. III non. April. Constantinopoli Theodosio A. III et Abundantio conss.

[5] Idem AAA. Rufino pp. pr. Qui gravatos se a peraequatoribus conqueruntur et iniusto oneri impares esse proclamant, competitionis habeant facultatem, ut, quid remissum gratia, quid interceptum fuerit fraude, convincant et ex eo levamen accipiant, quod per deformia et criminosa commercia sibi impositum esse deplorant, ut aliis demeretur. 1. Quod intra annum post codicum oblationem cui videbitur de iniusto onere conqueratur, iniquitatem peraequatoris accuset ac praestitam gratiam habita competitione convincat, ut, quod ei fuerat superfusum, ille cognoscat, quem debitae function*i* fraus clandestina subtraxerat. 2. Emenso autem eo tempore actio denegabitur, exceptis minoribus qui fuerint indefensi, his etiam qui aberunt rei publicae causa: qui tamen ex eo tempore quae sunt statuta custodient, ex quo ad agendum habuerunt facultatem.

D. III k. Dec. Constantinopoli Theodosio A. III et Abundantio vc. conss.

[6] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Eusebio pp. Peraequatores ac discussores, si incurrerint culpam neglegentiae vel gratiae, non solum

[3][189] The same Augusti to Cynegius, Praetorian Prefect. If, when a tax adjuster has been sent, someone either withdraws his procurator or sets his tenant (colonus) to flight out of scorn for the reassessment, he will be held by the authority of Our sanction to the amount of the census that the adjuster has assigned in his or his procurator's absence.

Given March 27, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Honorius, Most Noble Boy, and Euodius (386).

[4][190] Emperors THEODOSIUS, ARCADIUS, and HONORIUS Augusti to Rufinus, Praetorian Prefect. The entire territory shall be subject to the census whenever relief is requested for failed crops (defecta), so that the unproductive and barren lands be balanced with those that are cultivated and rich.

Given April 3, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Theodosius Augustus, for the third time, and Abundantius (393).

[5][191] The same Augusti to Rufinus, Praetorian Prefect. pr. Those who complain that they have been oppressed by the tax adjusters (peraequatores) and proclaim that they are unequal to an unjust burden should have the opportunity for an investigation (competitio), so that they might prove what has been remitted because of influence and seized by fraud, and receive relief from what they deplore has been imposed on them by unseemly and criminal deals so as for it to be removed from others (by shifting the tax burden). 1. He should make this complaint to whom it will seem appropriate about an unjust burden within a year after delivery of the assessment books (codices), and he should make an accusation of the unfairness of the tax adjuster and provide proof of the favor provided when the investigation is held, so that that one, whom clandestine fraud had removed from the charge he owed, might acknowledge what had been imposed on him. 2. When, however, this time has been measured out, a right of action will be denied, except for minors who lack a defender, and those who are absent on public business; however, these persons will observe what has been legislated from that time when they have had an opportunity to bring a suit.

Given November 29, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Theodosius Augustus, for the third time, and the vir clarissimus Abundantius (393).

[6][192] Emperors ARCADIUS and HONORIUS Augusti to Eusebius, Praetorian Prefect. Tax adjusters and auditors (discussores), if they commit (incurrere) fault through negligence or influence, will be required to undergo not only [189] = C.Th. 13.11.3, with somewhat different wording. Combine with C. 11.48.10.

[190] = C.Th. 13.11.4, with different wording.
[191] = C.Th. 13.11.5.
[192] = C.Th. 13.11.8, with different wording.

honorum iacturam, verum etiam annonarum in quadruplum multam subire debebunt: ea vero, quae in damnum provincialium fuerint accepisse convicti, in quadruplum cogentur exsolvere.

D. IIII k. April. Mediolani Arcadio IIII et Honorio III AA. conss.

[7] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Sebastio comiti primi ordinis. pr. Apud eum possessio firma permaneat, cui a peraequatore semel eam traditam fuisse constiterit. 1. Reliqua vero temporis anteacti a novo domino fiscum postulare non patimur, ne alterius culpa alter incipiat subiacere dispendio. 2. Si quis vero privatus aut obligatam sibi possessionem, quae deserta huc usque permansit, aut ex aliquo titulo deberi sibi iure confirmat, adlegationes suas sine mora vel per se vel per aliam personam legibus ordinatam manifestare debebit, ita ut, si aequitatis ratione suadente ad petitorem fuerit translata possessio, is, qui eam a peraequatore susceperit, rei melioratae receptis sublevetur expensis. 3. Verum ne sub specie litis dominationes semel constitutae turbentur, sex mensum spatium censemus debere servari, intra quod is, qui putat sibi rem probabili ratione competere, debitas exserat actiones. 4. Quod si tempus adscriptum silentio fuerit interveniente transactum, nullum penitus repetendi volumus esse principium. 5. Quod si quis eo tempore, quo peraequator praedium alicui addicit, de suo iure vel per se vel per homines suos non crediderit actitandum, sex mensum curriculis evolutis in perpetuum conquiescat.

D. prid. id. Mart. Ravennae Honorio A. XI et Constantio II conss.

LVIIII De Omni Agro Deserto et Quando Steriles Fertilibus Imponuntur

[1] Imp. Constantinus A. Capestrino. Cum divus Aurelianus parens noster civitatum ordines pro desertis possessionibus iusserit conveniri et pro his fundis, qui invenire dominos non potuerunt quos the loss of their offices, but also a fourfold fine of the tax payments (annonae); indeed they will be compelled to pay fourfold the amount that they are convicted of having accepted at the loss of the provincials.

Given March 29, at Milan, in the consulship of Arcadius, for the fourth time, and Honorius, for the third time, Augusti (396).

[7][193] Emperors HONORIUS and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Sebastius, Count of the First Order (comes primi ordinis).[194] pr. Possession shall remain firm with the person to whom it is established that it has at one time been transferred by a tax adjuster. 1. But We do not allow the Treasury to demand from the new owner arrears for time passed, lest because of the fault of one person another begin to be subject to a payment. 2. But if any private person confirms that a property (possessio) that has remained deserted until now either is obligated to him or is lawfully owed to him under another title, he will be required to demonstrate his allegations without delay either by himself or through another person authorized by the laws, so that, if the possession has been transferred to the claimant at the urging of considerations of fairness, that person who has received it from the adjuster shall be relieved of the expenses he has borne for the improvement of the property. 3. But so that, under the guise of a lawsuit, ownerships once established not be disturbed, We decree that a period of six months ought to be observed, within which a person who reasonably (probabili ratione) thinks that a suit is available to him should bring the required actions. 4. But if the time prescribed has passed with silence intervening, We do not wish there to be any beginning at all for seeking it again. 5. But if someone does not believe, in that time during which the adjuster assigned the property to someone, he had to take action concerning his right either by himself or through his people, he shall remain silent in perpetuity after the passage of six months.

Given March 14, at Ravenna, in the consulship of Honorius Augustus, for the eleventh time, and Constantius, for the second time (417).

Fifty-Ninth Title All Deserted Farmland, and When Unproductive Lands Are Imposed on Productive Lands

[1] Emperor CONSTANTINE Augustus to Capestrinus. Since the Deified Aurelian, Our Parent, ordered the city councils to be liable for deserted properties (possessiones) and for these farms that have not been able to find the owners whom We had instructed, after they had received an immunity for three years for the same

[193] = C.Th. 13.11.16. Combine with C. 11.59.15; C.Th. 13.6.9, 13.11.15–17.

[194] For the meaning of this title, see F. Mitthof, ZPE 109 (1995): 113–118, at 115.

praeceperamus, earundem possessionum triennii immunitate percepta de sollemnibus satisfacere, servato hoc tenore praecipimus, ut, si constiterit ad suscipiendas easdem possessiones ordines minus idoneos esse, eorundem agrorum onera possessionibus et territoriis dividantur.

Accepta ...

[2] Idem A. Si quis ab emphyteuticario seu patrimoniali possessore privati iuris quippiam comparaverit, cuius substantia alias possessiones sustentare consueverat, et succisis quasi quarundam virium nervis reliqua labuntur, earum possessionum onera subiturus est, quae penes distractores inutiles permanebunt.

D. VIII id. Dec. Thessalonicae Feliciano et Titiano conss.

[3] Impp. Valentinianus et Valens AA. ad Mamertinum pp. Quicumque deserta praedia meruerint sub certa immunitate, ad possessionem impetratorum non prius sinantur accedere, quam vel fideiussoribus idoneis periculo curialium datis vel fundis patrimonii sui maxime utilibus obligatis idonea cautione firmaverunt susceptam a se possessionem nullo detrimento publico relinquendam.

D. VII k. Iun. divo Ioviano et Varroniano conss.

[4] Idem AA. et Gratianus A. ad Crescentem vicarium Africae. Heredes scripti etiam pro minus idoneis fundis fiscale onus cogantur agnoscere, vel si renuntiandum hereditati putent, cedant his omnibus rebus, quas ex isdem bonis quocumque titulo et iure perceperint.

D. IIII id. Iul. Contionaci Gratiano A. II et Probo conss.

[5] Imppp. Valens Gratianus et Valentinianus AAA. ad Antonium pp. Qui utilia rei publicae loca possident, permixtione facta etiam deserta suscipiant, ut, si earum partium graventur accessu, quas antea per properties, to satisfy the customary dues (sollemnibus),[195] We, maintaining this tenor (of Aurelian's law), instruct that, if it is established that the councils are not suited to take up the same properties, the burdens on the same lands should be divided among the (remaining) properties and territories.

Received ...[196]

[2][197] The same Augustus. If someone has purchased anything at all from a holder of an emphyteusis (emphyteuticarius) or a possessor of a patrimonial property with a private right (patrimonialis possessor privati iuris), whose resources had been accustomed to sustain other properties (possessiones), and, as it were, the rest collapses after the muscles providing some strength are cut off, he will undertake the burdens of those properties that will remain useless in the possession of the sellers.

Given December 6, at Thessalonica, in the consulship of Felicianus and Titianus (337).

[3][198] Emperors VALENTINIAN and VALENS Augusti to Mamertinus, Praetorian Prefect. Whoever have merited deserted properties (praedia) subject to a certain immunity shall not be allowed to enter into possession of what they have acquired before they have affirmed, by giving suitable sureties at the risk of the decurions or by obligating farms of their own patrimony that are especially useful with a suitable guarantee (cautio), that the property (possessio) for which they have taken responsibility is not to be abandoned at a loss to the public.

Given May 26, in the consulship of the Deified Jovian and Varronianus (364).

[4][199] The same Augusti and GRATIAN Augustus to Crescens, Vicar of Africa. Heirs who have been named (in a will) shall be compelled to acknowledge the fiscal burden even for less suitable farms, or, if they should intend to renounce the inheritance, they must yield it with all those things that they have gained from the same property under any title and right.

Given July 12, at Contionacum, in the consulship of Gratian Augustus, for the second time, and Probus (371).

[5] Emperors VALENS, GRATIAN, and VALENTINIAN Augusti to Antonius, Praetorian Prefect. Those who possess properties (loca) useful to a municipality shall take up deserted ones in a combination, so that, if they should be burdened by entering into those parts that they have previously abandoned out of scorn, they should yield them to other decurions, who will retain both types under the [195] Neither Aurelian's order nor Constantine's grant of tax immunity survives.

[196] Seeck gives 312–337.

[197] = C.Th. 11.1.4; perhaps to be combined with C. 4.46.3, which is addressed to Egnatius Faustinus, Governor of Baetica. The C.Th. version has the emperor as Constantius.

[198] = C.Th. 5.15.14 (mutilated). Combine with C.Th. 12.12.3 (June 30, at Serdica).

[199] = C.Th. 11.1.17.

fastidium reliquerunt, cedant aliis curialibus, qui utraque hac condicione retineant, ut praestatione salva cum desertis et culta possideant sublata a paucis, quos iniquum est electa retinere, cum municipes gravatura sit pars relicta.

[6] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. Nebridio comiti rerum privatarum. pr. Ut quisque conductor fuerit inventus possessor fundi, qui ex publico vel templorum iure descendit, huic ager iungatur inutilior. 1. Quod si contra id reluctandum existimaverit, alius possessor sub eadem praestatione quaeratur, vel si voluntarius qui sit conductor non invenietur, tunc ad possessores antiquos, id est decuriones vel quoslibet alios, loca iuris praedicti adiunctis inutilibus revertantur, idoneis fideiussoribus praestitis.

D. XV k. Febr. Constantinopoli Merobaude II et Saturnino conss.

[7] Idem AAA. et Arcadius A. Cynegio pp. pr. Quicumque defectum fundum patrimonialem exercuerit, fertilem idoneumque praestiterit, salvo patrimoniali canone perpetuo ac privato iure defend*at* velut domesticum et avita successione quaesitum, sibi habeat, suis relinquat, neque eum aut promulgatione rescripti aut reverentia sacrae adnotationis quisquam a fructu impensi operis excludat. 1. Ceterum eos, qui opimas ac fertiles possident terras aut etiam nunc sibi aestimant eligendas, pro defecta scilicet portione summam debiti praesentis iubemus implere: illos etiam, qui emphyteuticario nomine nec ad plenum idoneas nec omnibus modis vacuas detinent, sic ex illis quoque quae praesidio indigent iustam ac debitam quantitatem debere suscipere, ut indulto temporis spatio post biennium decretum canonem solvendum esse meminerint. 2. Nemo tamen qualibet meriti et potestatis obiectione submoveatur, quominus ad diacatochiae vicem defectas possessiones patrimonialis iuris accipiat, earum tributa et canonem soluturus: illud speciali observatione procurans, ut primum vicinas et in eodem territorio sortiatur, dehinc si neque finitimas neque in isdem locis repperit constitutas, tunc demum etiam longius positas, sed in quantum fieri valet pro interiecto spatio sibimet cohaerentes pro modo et aequitate suscipiat, ut id consensu omnium fiat, quod omnibus profuturum est.

condition that, along with the deserted properties, they possess, without prejudice to the tax payment, the cultivated ones that have been removed from a few people, for whom it is unfair to retain the ones they choose when the part that has been abandoned will burden the townspeople.[200]

[6][201] Emperors GRATIAN, VALENTINIAN, and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Nebridius, Count of the Privy Purse. pr. As each lessee (conductor) is found to be the possessor of a farm that is under public or temple right, land (ager) that is more unprofitable (inutilior) should be joined to this one. 1. But if he thinks he should fight against this, another possessor shall be sought under the same terms of rent, or if a voluntary lessee will not be found, the properties under the right mentioned above should revert to the old possessors, that is, decurions or some others, with unproductive properties joined with them, after they (the old possessors) have provided suitable sureties.

Given January 18, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Merobaudes, for the second time, and Saturninus (383).

[7][202] The same emperors and ARCADIUS Augustus to Cynegius, Praetorian Prefect. pr. Whoever has worked a failing farm belonging to the Patrimony (defectum fundum patrimonialem) and rendered it fertile and suitable may defend it without prejudice to the patrimonial rent (canon) with a perpetual and private right as if he were the owner and it had been acquired by ancestral succession; he shall have it for himself and bequeath it to his heirs, and no one may exclude him from the fruit of the labor he has expended either by the promulgation of a rescript or by reverence for a sacred annotation (i.e., an answer to a rescript). 1. But We order those persons who possess the richest and most fertile lands, or even now think that they should choose them, to fulfill the amount of the present debt for the failing portion, certainly; (We also order) those persons who hold lands under an emphyteutic title that are not fully suitable or are not empty (vacuas) in all ways, to be obliged to take up the fair and owed amount also from those lands that lack a defense in such a way that after two years with the indulgence of a period of time they remember that the decreed rent has to be paid. 2. No one, however, should be removed by any claim of merit or power, so that he not accept failing properties of patrimonial right as a possessor (ad diacatochiae vicem), to pay the taxes and rent for them. He will take special care that he first be allotted neighboring lands and in the same territory, then, if he does not find lands either bordering his own or situated in the same locations, then (he should take) ones located further away, but to the extent that it is possible given the intervening space he should take up lands that are contiguous as is reasonable and fair, so that what will be beneficial to everyone will happen with their consent.

[200] Seeck gives 377–378.
[201] = C.Th. 10.3.4; perhaps to be combined with C. 11.71.2.
[202] = C.Th. 5.14.14.30. Combine with C. 11.64.2, 11.68.5, and possibly C. 11.51.1, 11.63.4, and 11.64.1.

D. VIII k. Nov. Constantinopoli Honorio np. et Euodio conss.

[8] Imppp. Valentinianus Theodosius et Arcadius AAA. Tatiano pp. Orientis. Qui agros domino cessante desertos vel longe positos vel in finitimis ad privatum pariter publicumque compendium excolere festinat, voluntati suae nostrum noverit adesse responsum: ita tamen, ut, si vacanti ac destituto solo novus cultor insederit, ac vetus dominus intra biennium eadem ad suum ius voluerit revocare, restitutis primitus quae expensa constiterit facultatem loci proprii consequatur. nam si biennii fuerit tempus emensum, omni possessionis et dominii carebit iure qui siluit.

[9] Imppp. Theodosius Arcadius et Honorius AAA. Rufino pp. Orientis. Qui fundos patrimoniales iure privato salvo canone susceperunt, hanc omnes sine ullius exceptione personae propositam intellegant optionem, ut aut ea loca, quibus minor est soli fecunditas, cum his, ex quibus fructus uberes capiunt, suscipere et tenere non abnuant, aut si eorum refugiunt sterilitatem, opimioribus cedant.

D. VIII id. Nov. Tyro Arcadio III et Honorio II AA. conss.

[10] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Eutychiano pp. Qui per potentiam fundos opimos ac fertiles occuparunt, cum quaestuosis uberibusque pro rata portione suscipiant infecundos ex eadem substantia.

D. non. Mart. Constantinopoli Honorio A. IIII et Eutychiano conss.

[11] Idem AA. Hadriano pp. pr. Locorum domini intra sex menses edictis vocati revertantur. qui si adfuerint, et propria teneant et ea quae ex praeterito contraxerint debita redhibere cogantur. 1. Sin vero impares

Given October 25, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Honorius, Most Noble Boy, and Euodius (386).

[8][203] Emperors VALENTINIAN, THEODOSIUS, and ARCADIUS Augusti to Tatianus, Praetorian Prefect of the East. Whoever hastens to bring under cultivation farms (agri) deserted because of the absence of an owner – either located far away or nearby – for private as well as public gain should know that Our (positive) response is available for his wish, under this condition, that if a new cultivator settles on vacant or destitute soil, and within two years the old owner wishes to recall the same property to his own right, having first given restitution for what it is established has been spent, he will gain the right (facultas) over his own place. But if the two-year period has passed, the one who has remained silent will lack every right of possession and ownership.

(388–392).

[9][204] Emperors THEODOSIUS, ARCADIUS, and HONORIUS Augusti to Rufinus, Praetorian Prefect of the East. Those who have taken up farms belonging to the Patrimony, under private right without prejudice to the payment of the rent (salvo canone), should all understand that the following choice is offered without an exception for any person, that either they not refuse to take up and hold those places that have less fertility of the soil along with the ones from which they gain abundant crops, or if they flee from their barrenness (sterilitas), they (also) withdraw from the richer lands.

Given November 6, at Tyre, in the consulship of Arcadius, for the third time, and Honorius, for the second time, Augusti (394).

[10][205] Emperors ARCADIUS and HONORIUS Augusti to Eutychianus, Praetorian Prefect. Those who through their power have seized rich and fertile farms shall also take up in proportion infertile farms from the same property along with the lucrative and rich ones.

Given March 7, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Honorius Augustus, for the fourth time, and Eutychianus (398).

[11] The same Augusti to Hadrianus, Praetorian Prefect. pr. The owners of properties (loca) when summoned by edicts should return within six months. If they are present, they shall hold them as their own and be compelled to pay back those debts that they have contracted in the past. 1. But if they admit that they [203] = C.Th. 5.11.12. Seeck dates to September 17, 391.

[204] = C.Th. 5.14.34.
[205] = C.Th. 13.11.9 (without the phrase "from the same property").

esse earum rerum tributis propria confitentur absentia nec adesse voluerint, penes eos, qui haec susceperint et certum quem tributorum canonem promittunt, proprietas possessionis intemerata permaneat, ut, postquam ea exsolverint, sciant sibi inquietudinem submovendam nec subreptione cuiusquam competitionis loca quae tenuerunt auferenda. 1. Quibus etiam illud indulsimus, ut ex eo tempore, ex quo primum loca de quibus agitur coeperint possidere, tributa poscantur.

D. VI k. Sept. Stilichone et Aureliano conss.

[12] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Seleuco pp. Hac definitione sancimus nullum possessorem neque munificum praedium pro alienis debitis vel destitutione esse retinendum neque eorum praediorum depectione praegravari, quae ex isdem bonis quae retinentur nequaquam esse monstrantur, ne ullis praestigiis atque commentis exactio mutiletur.

D. prid. k. Febr. Ravennae Honorio VIIII et Theodosio V AA. conss.

[13] Idem AA. ad Probum. Omnium praediorum actores ac domini requirantur. quorum si vitio probantur debita fuisse contracta, in absoluto est, ut debeat dominium commutari.

D. III id. Iun. Constantinopoli Constante et Constantio conss.

[14] Idem AA. Aureliano pp. Rura et possessiones, quas curiales quolibet pacto publicatis apud acta provincialia desideriis suis vel reliquerunt vel possidere alios permiserunt, penes eos, qui eas excoluerunt et functiones publicas recognoscunt, firmiter perdurabunt, nullam habentibus curialibus copiam repetendi.

D. III non. Dec. Honorio X et Theodosio VI AA. conss.

are unequal to the tax charges (tributa) for those properties because of their own absence and they do not wish to be present, the ownership of the property shall remain uncompromised with those who have taken these up and promise some certain payment of the taxes (certum quem tributorum canonem), so that, after they have paid the taxes, they know that their worry is to be removed and that the properties (loca) that they have held are not to be taken away from them by the stealth of any claim. 2. We have made this further indulgence to them, that the taxes be demanded (only) from that time when they first begin to possess the properties (loca) in question.

Given August 27, in the consulship of Stilicho and Aurelianus (400).[206]

[12][207] Emperors Honorius and Theodosius Augusti to Seleucus, Praetorian Prefect. By this enactment We ordain that no possessor or productive property (praedium munificum) is to be retained for the debts of another or for his desertion of it, nor is (the possessor) to be burdened by a contract for properties that are by no means demonstrated to be among the ones that are being retained, lest the exaction (of taxes) be harmed by any tricks and fabrications.

Given January 31, at Ravenna, in the consulship of Honorius, for the ninth time, and Theodosius, for the fifth time, Augusti (412).

[13][208] The same Augusti to Probus. The managers (actores) and owners of all properties should be sought. If debts are proved to have been contracted by their fault, it is clear that ownership ought to be changed.

Given June 11, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Constans and Constantius (414).

[14][209] The same Augusti to Aurelianus, Praetorian Prefect. Lands (rura) and properties (possessiones) that decurions have left by any means or have permitted others to possess, having made known their wishes in the provincial records, shall firmly remain in the possession of those people who have brought them under cultivation and who acknowledge the public charges (functiones), with the decurions having no right to seek them back.

Given December 3, in the consulship of Honorius, for the tenth time, and Theodosius, for the sixth time, Augusti (415).

206 Seeck gives August 27, 405.
208 Combine with C. 8.16.8 (where Probus is "Count of Imperial Finances"), and possibly 11.48.15. Seeck dates to January 10, 414.
207 = C.Th. 11.1.31.
209 = C.Th. 11.24.6.5, which, for rura, has arurae, the unit of land in Egypt.

[15] Idem AA. Sebastio comiti primi ordinis. Si quis deserta praedia, quae navalem sustinent functionem et in desertis nunc usque remanent, sub peraequationis iure perceperit, meliore condicione in omnibus titulis convenit ea relevari, ut gravis sors navalis esse non possit pro ea quae resederit portiuncula, cum aliis fuerit dispendiis liberata.

D. prid. id. Mart. Ravennae Honorio A. XI et Constantio II conss.

[16] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Celeri proconsuli Africae. Iubemus neminem curialem pro alieni territorii debitis attineri, sed tantum municipem pro gleba propria conveniri.

D. V k. Mai. Ravennae post consulatum Felicis et Tauri vv. cc.

[17] Idem AA. Hermocrati pp. Orientis. Si quis auctoritate nostri numinis de fundis patrimonialibus steriles sub certi canonis pollicitatione susceperit, firmiter eum volumus possidere sub eiusdem tantum canonis solutione, quem nostrae maiestatis auctoritas per annos singulos solvendum esse praescripserit, nullamque eos descriptionem aut adiectionem aut innovationem in posterum sustinere, quoniam nimis absurdum est eos, qui nobis hortantibus fundos inopes atque egenos magno labore impenso aut exhausto patrimonio vix forte meliorare potuerint, utpote deceptos inopinatum onus suscipere illudque velut quadam circumventione deposci, quod si se daturos praescissent, fundos minime suscipere aut etiam colere paterentur.

D. XII k. Dec. Constantinopoli Theodosio A. XVIII et Albino conss.

LX De Fundis Limitotrophis et Terris et Paludibus et Pascuis Limitaneis vel Castellorum

[1] Imppp. Valentinianus Valens et Gratianus AAA. ad Licinium pp. pr. Tiberianus ad possibilitatem singulorum quorumque locorum intuens

[15][210] The same Augusti to Sebastius, Count of the First Order. If someone under the right of tax adjustment receives deserted properties that sustain a shipping charge (navalis functio) and that still now remain among the deserted properties, it is proper that they (the properties) be relieved by the better condition in all aspects, so that the charge to maintain a ship (navalis sors) might not be burdensome for the small part that remains, since it has been freed from other expenditures.

Given March 14, at Ravenna, in the consulship of Honorius Augustus, for the eleventh time, and Constantius, for the second time (417).

[16][211] Emperors THEODOSIUS and VALENTINIAN Augusti to Celer, Proconsul of Africa. We order that no decurion be detained for the debts of a foreign territory (i.e., of another town), but that a townsman only be liable for his own soil.

Given April 27, at Ravenna, after the consulship of the viri clarissimi Felix and Taurus (429).

[17][212] The same Augusti to Hermocrates, Praetorian Prefect of the East. If someone under the authority of Our Divine Majesty assumes responsibility for unproductive (steriles) farms from the ones belonging to the Patrimony under the promise of the payment of a certain rent (canon), We want him to possess them firmly only under (condition of) the payment of the same rent that the authority of Our Majesty has prescribed to be paid for individual years, and that they (the farms) in the future should sustain no re-assessment (descriptio), addition, or innovation, since it is quite absurd that those who, at Our urging, have perhaps scarcely been able to improve poor and destitute farms by expending great labor or exhausting their patrimony take up an unexpected burden as if they had been deceived, and that they be summoned by some trick, when, if they had known they would be paying it, they would not have endured to assume responsibility for the farms or even to cultivate them.

Given November 20, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Theodosius Augustus, for the eighteenth time, and Albinus (444).

Sixtieth Title Farms of Serving Frontier Troops and Lands, Marshes, and Pastures on the Frontiers or Belonging to Fortresses

[1] Emperors VALENTINIAN, VALENS, and GRATIAN[213] Augusti to Licinius, Praetorian Prefect. pr. Tiberianus, examining the possibility for each individual [210] = C.Th. 6.2.24. Combine with C. 11.58.7; C.Th. 13.6.9, 13.11.15–17. Seeck dates to May 14, 417.

[211] = C.Th. 12.1.186; combine with C. 10.22.2. Seeck gives February 25, 429.

[212] = Nov. Theod. 26.4. Combine with C. 10.28.1. Seeck gives November 29, 444.

[213] The emperors should be Valentinian, Theodosius, and Arcadius. The Praetorian Prefect Licinius is unknown; this law should perhaps be combined with C. 10.16.7 (September 24), in which the addressee is Principius.

statuit certas possessiones, quae ad limitem frumenta conveherent. 1. Quocirca generali lege sancimus Tiberiani dispositionem oportere servari, amoventes, quidquid vel potentia uniuscuiusque elicuit vel furtiva deprecatio, addentesque nihilo minus in futurum nulli licere adversus utilem vetustatem et praesentem legem nostram importuna et respuenda reposcere.

D. XVIII k. Oct. Aquileiae Arcadio A. et Bautone conss.

[2] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Asclepiodoto pp. et consuli ordinario. pr. Quicumque castellorum loca quocumque titulo possident, cedant ac deserant, quia ab his tantum fas est possideri castellorum territoria, quibus adscripta sunt et de quibus iudicavit antiquitas. 1. Quod si ulterius vel privatae condicionis quispiam in his locis vel non castellanus miles fuerit detentator inventus, capitali sententia cum bonorum publicatione plectatur.

D. non. Mart. Constantinopoli Asclepiodoto et Mariniano conss.

[3] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Nomo magistro officiorum. pr. Agros limitaneos universos cum paludibus omnique iure, quos ex prisca dispositione limitanei milites ab omni munere vacuos ipsi curare pro suo compendio atque arare consueverant, et[iii] si in praesenti coluntur, ab his firmiter ac sine ullo concussionis gravamine detineri, et si ab aliis possidentur, cuiuslibet spatii temporis praescriptione cessante ab universis detentatoribus vindicatos isdem militibus sine ullo prorsus, sicut antiquitus statutum est, collationis onere volumus adsignari: in his etiam contra eos, qui praeceptionibus nostris obviam venire temptaverint, proscriptionis poena valitura. 1. Nam si quis forte, quod minime audere debuerat, emptionis titulo memorati iuris possidet praedia, competens ei actio contra venditorem intacta servabitur.

D. prid. id. Sept. Constantinopoli Maximo II et Paterio conss.

[iii] [et]

place, has designated certain properties (possessiones) to bring grain to the frontier. 1. For this reason We ordain in a general law that the disposition of Tiberianus must be maintained, so as to remove what either anyone's power or a secret entreaty has elicited, and add that in the future no one be permitted to make unseemly and contemptible demands contrary to useful tradition (vetustas) and Our present law.

Given October 15, at Aquileia, in the consulship of Arcadius Augustus and Bauto (385).

[2][214] Emperors HONORIUS and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Asclepiodotus, Praetorian Prefect and Ordinary Consul. pr. Those who possess properties (loca) belonging to fortresses (castella) under any title shall withdraw from them and desert them, since it is only lawful for the territories of fortresses to be possessed by those to whom they have been assigned and about whom antiquity has judged. 1. But if henceforth anyone either of private condition or a soldier not of the fortress is discovered holding (land) in these places, he shall be punished with a capital sentence and the confiscation of his property.

Given March 7, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Asclepiodotus and Marinianus (423).

[3][215] Emperors THEODOSIUS and VALENTINIAN Augusti to Nomus, Master of Offices. pr. We wish all fields on the frontiers (agri limitanei), together with marshes and every right, which the frontier soldiers in accordance with the ancient disposition had been accustomed to care for and plow themselves at their own profit, free from every public service (munus), if they are cultivated at present, to be held by these (i.e., soldiers) firmly and without any burden of extortion, and if they are (now) possessed by others, with the prescription from any passage of time being invalid, to be claimed for the same soldiers from all persons holding them without any burden at all of tax payment, just as it was established long ago. The penalty of confiscation will prevail against those who attempt to oppose Our commands. 1. For if someone by chance, which he ought not at all dare, possesses properties of the aforementioned right by purchase, the appropriate action will be maintained for him intact against the seller.

Given September 12, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Maximus, for the second time, and Paterius (443).

[214] = C.Th. 7.15.2.
[215] = Nov. Theod. 24.4, with somewhat fuller wording. Combine with C. 1.31.4, 1.46.4.

LXI De Pascuis Publicis vel Privatis

[1] Impp. Valentinianus et Valens AA. ad Rufinum pp. pr. Cum nulla ratio sit, cur in pascuis saltibus rei privatae pensio debeat ampliari, nequaquam pro libidine ordinum augmenta facienda sunt. 1. Etenim idcirco graviorem pensionem imponi ab ordinibus accipimus, ut animalia ex rebus privatis nostris a locorum pastibus arceantur: quod fieri non oportere divae memoriae Iulianus prorogata iussione constituit. 2. Quare excellens auctoritas tua conventis rectoribus provinciarum non eam licitationis necessitatem patiatur inferri, quam repentinam faciunt civitates, sed eam manere decernat, quam statuit antiquitas.

D. VIIII k. Oct. Luceriae Valentiniano et Valente AA. conss.

[2] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Simplicio comiti et magistro utriusque militiae. Insignis auctoritas tua hac condicione a publicis pratis Apamenis animalia militum prohiberi praecipiat, ut universi cognoscant de emolumentis eorum tuique officii facultatibus duodecim libras auri fisci commodis exigendas, si quisquam posthac memorata prata mutilare temptaverit: non minore decernenda poena, si etiam prata privatorum Antiochenorum fuerint devastata: ita tamen, ut sine laesione provincialium provideant curiales, quo pacto animalium militarium pastui consulatur.

D. V id. Mart. Constantinopoli Honorio A. IIII et Eutychiano vc. conss.

[3] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. comitibus et magistris militum. pr. Prata provincialium nostrorum et praecipue rei privatae nostrae perniciosum est militum molestia fatigari, ideoque lege ad amplissimam praefecturam promulgata censuimus, ne hoc deinceps usurpetur. 1. Super qua re universos quorum interest convenire tua magnificentia non moretur, ne permittant possessores vel colonos pratorum gratia qualibet importunitate vexari.

Sixty-First Title Pastures Belonging to the Public and the Privy Purse

[1][216] Emperors VALENTINIAN and VALENS Augusti to Rufinus, Praetorian Prefect. pr. Since there is no reason why the payment ought to be increased on pastures and woods (saltus) belonging to the Privy Purse (res privata), increases are by no means to be made at the whim of town councils. 1. For We learn that a greater payment is imposed by town councils for the reason that animals from Our own Privy Purse be kept away from the pastures belonging to the towns; Julian of deified memory established, in an order still in force (prorogata), that this must not happen. 2. Therefore Your Excellent Authority, having notified the provincial governors, should not allow introduction of this mandatory bidding, which the cities do hastily, but should decree that the bidding remain in force that ancient practice has established.

Given September 23, at Luceria, in the consulship of Valentinian and Valens Augusti (365).

[2][217] Emperors ARCADIUS and HONORIUS Augusti to Simplicius, Count and Master of Each Military Service. Your Illustrious Authority shall order that the soldiers' animals be prohibited from the public meadows of Apamea under these terms, that all know that 12 pounds of gold are to be exacted for the interests of the Treasury, from their (sc. the soldiers') emoluments and from the resources of Your office, if anyone henceforth tries to damage the aforementioned meadows; a penalty no smaller is also to be decreed if the meadows of private Antiochenes have been devastated; this is to be done so that the decurions take provision for how consultation is to be made for the pasture of soldiers' animals without harming the people of the provinces.

Given March 11, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Honorius Augustus, for the fourth time, and the vir clarissimus Eutychianus (398).

[3][218] Emperors HONORIUS and THEODOSIUS Augusti to the Counts and Masters of Soldiers. pr. It is pernicious that the meadows belonging to Our provincials and especially to Our Privy Purse (res privata nostra) be worn out by the vexation caused by soldiers, and for that reason, having promulgated a law to the Most Magnificent Prefecture, We have decreed that from now on this right (sc., of using the aforementioned meadows) not be usurped. 1. On this matter Your Magnificence shall not delay in informing all those with an interest in this matter that they not permit possessors or (bound) tenants (coloni) to be vexed by any importunity on account of meadows.

[216] = C.Th. 7.7.2.
[217] = C.Th. 7.7.3
[218] = C.Th. 7.7.5.

D. non. sept. Honorio x et Theodosio vi AA. conss.

LXII De Fundis Patrimonialibus et Saltuensibus et Emphyteuticis et Eorum Conductoribus

[1] Imp. Constantinus A. Cupito. Si quis fundos emphyteutici iuris salva lege fisci citra iudicis auctoritatem donaverit, donationes firmae sint, dummodo suis quibusque temporibus ea quae fisco pensitanda sunt repraesentare cogantur.

PP. xvii k. Iul. Treviris Constantino A. iiii et Licinio iiii conss.

[2] Idem A. ad Dracontium. Patrimonialis fundi pensitationem aurariam seu frumentariam intra tempus omissam minorum dominio non nocere praecipimus nec ad fraudem iuris eorum evadere, si, quod sollemniter debetur, paulo serius inferatur: ita tamen, ut permanente substantia parvulorum iudex tutorem vel curatorem, per quem differtur illatio, neglegentiae suae et deserti officii poenas exigat et damna deplorare compellat.

[3] Impp. Valentinianus et Valens AA. ad Germanianum comitem sacrarum largitionum. pr. Quicumque possessiones ex emphyteutico iure susceperint, ea ad refundendum uti occasione non possunt, qua adserant desertas esse coepisse, tametsi rescripta per obreptionem meruerint. 1. Sed nec avelli eas ab his posse, nec si licitatio ab alio fuerit promissa, sed eas in perpetuum apud eos qui eas susceperint et eorum posteritatem remanere, nec si super hoc rescriptum fuerit adversus eos impetratum.

D. viii k. Oct. Mediolani Valentiniano et Valente AA. conss.

[4] Idem AA. ad Florianum comitem rerum privatarum. Fundi patrimoniales et qui ex emphyteutico iure ad domum nostram diversis Given September 5, in the consulship of Honorius, for the tenth time, and Theodosius, for the sixth time, Augusti (415).

Sixty-Second Title Patrimonial, Woodland, and Emphyteutic Farms and their Lessees[219]

[1] Emperor CONSTANTINE Augustus to Cupitus. If anyone has made a gift of farms of emphyteutic right without prejudice to the law of the Treasury but without the authority of a judge, the gifts shall be firm as long as they (the recipients) are compelled to make the payments that are to be made to the Treasury at all the appropriate times.

Posted June 15, at Trier, in the consulship of Constantine Augustus, for the fourth time, and Licinius, for the fourth time (315).[220]

[2][221] The same Augustus to Dracontius. We instruct that a payment in gold or in grain for a farm belonging to the Patrimony (patrimonium) missed within the time (it was due) not harm the ownership by minors and that it not be the cause to defraud them of their right, if what is customarily owed should be paid a little late, but under this condition, that, while the property of the little ones remains intact, the judge exact penalties from the tutor or curator, by whom the payment is delayed, for his negligence and desertion of his office and compel him to lament his losses.

[3] Emperors VALENTINIAN and VALENS Augusti to Germanianus, Count of Imperial Finances. pr. Those who take responsibility for properties (possessiones) under emphyteutic right cannot use as an opportunity to return them their assertion that they have begun to be deserted, even if they have gained rescripts through deceit. 1. But these (properties) cannot be torn from them, not even if a (higher) bid has been promised by another, but they remain in perpetuity with those who have taken responsibility for them and with their posterity, not (i.e., they cannot lose their right) even if a rescript has been obtained against them on this matter.

Given September 24, at Milan, in the consulship of Valentinian and Valens Augusti (365).[222]

[4][223] The same Augusti to Florianus, Count of the Privy Purse. Farms belonging to the Patrimony (patrimonium) and those under emphyteutic right that have [219] For emphyteutic rights, see C. 4.66.

[220] Seeck gives June 15, 313.
[221] Possibly combine with C.Th. 11.19.1 (321). Seeck gives April 17, 368.
[222] Seeck dates this constitution to September 24, 369; Schmidt-Hofner argues for the transmitted date.
[223] Possibly combine with C. 11.66.2; C.Th. 5.15.18.

generibus devoluti sunt, sic eis qui eos poposcerint cedunt, ut commissi metus esse non possit. neque enim magis commodamus nostra, quam tradimus ea iure dominii: ita tamen, ut ea, quae in nostra possessione positi praestiterint, et in posterum dissolvant.

D. id. Mart. Treveris Valentiniano II et Valente II AA. conss.

[5] Imppp. Valens Gratianus et Valentinianus AAA. ad Modestum pp. Si qui a prioribus colonis vel emphyteuticariis destitutum patrimonialem fundum a peraequatore vel censitore susceperint, perpetuo eundem atque inconcusso iure possideant, nec quisquam secundus petitor accedat.

D. IIII non. Nov. Gratiano A. IIII et Merobaude conss.

[6] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. Nebridio comiti rerum privatarum. pr. Hi, quibus patrimoniales possessiones per Asianam ac Ponticam dioecesin vel a nobis vel a divis parentibus nostris sacra largitate donatae sunt, inconcusse possideant atque ad suos posteros mittant. 1. Quod quidem non solum in heredibus, sed et in contractoribus omni genere volumus custodiri.

D. III k. April. Constantinopoli Ricomere et Clearcho conss.

[7] Idem et Arcadius AAAA. Cynegio pp. pr. Quicumque ad emphyteusin fundorum patrimonialium vel rei publicae iussu nostri numinis venerit, is si redundantia fortunarum idoneus fuerit ad restituenda, quae desertis forte possessionibus requirentur, patrimonium suum publicis implicet nexibus. 1. Si vero minor facultatibus probabitur, datis fideiussoribus idoneis ad emphyteusin accedat: scientibus his, quos talium rerum cura sollicitat, in se neglegentiae damna, si huiusmodi cautio defuerit, esse vertenda.

D. VI k. Mart. Constantinopoli Honorio nob. puero et Euodio conss.

[8] Idem AAAA. Clearcho pp. Omnes fundi patrimoniales per Mesopotamiam et Osrhoenam provincias, quos constat divorum retro devolved to Our House by diverse means, go to those who have demanded them in such a way that there can be no fear for what has been committed (i.e., by the previous holder). For We do not so much lend Our properties as hand them over with the right of ownership, but under this condition, that in the future they make the payments that they made when placed in Our possession.

Given March 15, at Trier, in the consulship of Valentinian, for the second time, and Valens, for the second time, Augusti (368).[224]

[5] Emperors VALENS, GRATIAN, and VALENTINIAN Augusti to Modestus, Praetorian Prefect. If any persons have taken responsibility from a tax adjuster or tax assessor (censitor) for a farm belonging to the Patrimony but deserted by previous bound tenants or holders of emphyteusis, they shall possess it with a right perpetual and unshaken, and no second claimant should come forward.

Given November 2, in the consulship of Gratian Augustus, for the fourth time, and Merobaudes (377).

[6] Emperors GRATIAN, VALENTINIAN, and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Nebridius, Count of the Privy Purse. pr. Those who have been given patrimonial properties (possessiones) in the Asian and Pontic Diocese either by Us or by Our Deified Parents as an act of sacred generosity shall possess them firmly and transmit them to their posterity. 1. We want this to be maintained not only with heirs, but also with contractual partners of every type.

Given March 30, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Richomer and Clearchus (384).

[7] The same Augusti and ARCADIUS Augustus to Cynegius, Praetorian Prefect. pr. Whoever has come to emphytuetic possession (emphyteusis) of farms belonging to the Patrimony or a municipality at the behest of Our Divine Majesty, if that person, on account of an abundance of wealth, is suitable for restoring what will be needed if the properties (possessiones) are perhaps deserted, he shall subject his own patrimony to public liens. 1. But if he will be proved to be unequal in his wealth, he may enter emphyteutic possession after giving suitable sureties; the ones whom the care for such matters concerns know that the losses for their negligence are to revert to themselves if such a promise is lacking.

Given February 24, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Honorius, Most Noble Boy, and Euodius (386).

[8] The same Augusti to Clearchus, Praetorian Prefect. All farms belonging to the Patrimony in the provinces of Mesopotamia and Osrhoene, which it [224] C.Th. 5.15.18 has: "Given February 26, at Trier, in the consulship of Valentinian and Valens Augusti" (i.e., 365). Seeck dates to March 12, 368; Schmidt-Hofner, to March 15, 368.

principum sanctionibus limiti deputatos, ad ius pristinum sine ullius adsertionis revocentur obstaculo praebituri omnia, quae antea impendenda necessitatibus limitis praebere consueverant, ita ut nulli penitus audiantur, qui aut rescripto aut adnotatione dominium vel emphyteusin vel conductionem quolibet genere largitatis de nostra liberalitate meruerint.

D. prid. k. Mai. Constantinopoli Honorio np. et Euodio conss.

[9] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Eutychiano pp. Universi cognoscant nihil privato iure salvo canone fundis emptis cum patrimonialibus esse commune, ita ut ad eos numquam patrimonialium fundorum peraequator accedat: gravi multa feriendo eo, qui statuta nostrae clementiae ausus fuerit temerare.

D. prid. non. Iul. Nicomediae Honorio A. IIII et Eutychiano conss.

[10] Idem AA. Eutychiano pp. Fundos patrimoniales eos dumtaxat, qui salvo canone iure privato nostra liberalitate concessi sunt, cum his patrimonialibus, qui in condicione propria constituti sunt, illustris auctoritas tua iubebit exaequari, ita ut relevato, quod imminet fatigatis, translatio in eos, qui integris viribus florent, adscriptio tributorum aequa lance dividatur.

D. IIII id. April. Constantinopoli Theodoro cons.

[11] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Probo comiti sacrarum largitionum. Ius emphyteutici praedii, quod sine obligationis vinculo retentatum est, nostro iudicio immutabile perdurare praecipimus: possessionem autem, quae sine obligatione speciali fuerit vitiosa, vetustate temporis volumus adiuvari.

D. id. April. Ravennae Honorio VIIII et Theodosio V AA. conss.

[12] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Tauro pp. et patricio. pr. Possessores vel emphyteuticarii patrimoniales, qui fundos minime is established were assigned to the frontier by past ordinances of the deified Emperors, shall be recalled to their former right without the obstacle of any claim, so as to provide everything that they previously had been accustomed to provide for spending on the requirements of the frontier. Thus no people shall be heard who, either on the basis of a rescript or an annotation (a written response to a petition), have gained ownership, emphyteutic possession, or a lease by any type of gift from Our generosity.

Given April 30, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Honorius, Most Noble Boy, and Euodius (386).

[9] Emperors Arcadius and Honorius Augusti to Eutychianus, Praetorian Prefect. All should know that farms bought under private right without prejudice to the rent (canon) have nothing in common with farms belonging to the Patrimony, so that the tax adjuster for farms belonging to the Patrimony never approaches them; the one who dares to violate the statutes of Our Clemency is to be smitten with a heavy fine.

Given July 6, at Nicomedia, in the consulship of Honorius Augustus, for the fourth time, and Eutychianus (398).

[10] The same Augusti to Eutychianus, Praetorian Prefect. Your Illustrious Authority will order that farms belonging to the Patrimony, which have been granted by Our generosity under private right without prejudice to the rent (canon), be adjusted specifically with those patrimonial properties that are established in their appropriate condition, so that after what threatens the exhausted properties has been lightened, there may be a transfer (of charges) onto the ones that flourish with their strength intact, and the assignment of taxes may be divided in equal weight.

Given April 10, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Theodorus (399).

[11] Emperors Honorius and Theodosius Augusti to Probus, Count of Imperial Finances. We instruct that the right over an emphyteutic property, which has been retained without the bond of an obligation, remain immutable in Our judgment; however, We want possession that was flawed without a specific obligation to be aided by the passage of time.

Given April 13, at Ravenna, in the consulship of Honorius, for the ninth time, and Theodosius, for the fifth time, Augusti (412).

[12][225] Emperors Theodosius and Valentinian Augusti to Taurus, Praetorian Prefect and Patrician. pr. Possessors or emphyteutic holders of patrimonial property, who have not purchased their farms up to now, as a result nunc usque compararunt, eodem largitatis modo nequaquam ad eorum comparationem urgueantur, sed tamquam pretiis depensis, sic eis nostri numinis beneficio potiantur, ut, quod iuris alter inferendo pretium consecutus est, hoc nostra liberalitate praedictus emphyteuticarius habeat. 1. Illud quoque ius, in quibus coluit praediis, quod aut ex successione aut ex comparatione privata aut nostri numinis liberalitate aut quocumque modo possedit, sciat inlibatum intemeratumque servari: licentia eis concedenda etiam libertates mancipiis ex fundis patrimonialibus atque emphyteuticariis, cum fundorum sunt domini, praestare.

[225] = C.Th. 5.12.3. Combine with C.Th. 11.28.15.

D. XIIII k. Iul. Constantinopoli Ariobindo et Aspare conss.

[13] Idem AA. ad Florentium pp. Nulli iam in posterum licere praecipimus patrimoniales seu limitotrophos vel saltuenses fundos, qui per tractum Orientis positi sunt, ad ius transferre privatum, sive dempto sive salvo canone iuris fundorum immutatio postuletur: legis temeratores quinquaginta librarum auri poena coercentes tam videlicet petitorem quam officium, quod petitionem concedit admitti, licet adnotatio nostra, licet divina pragmatica contra vetitum proferatur.

D. VI id. Iun. Constantinopoli Theodosio A. XVII et Festo conss.

[14] Imp. Anastasius A. Matroniano pp. pr. Iubemus omnes, qui in quacumque dioecesi in quacumque provincia vel quolibet saltu fundos patrimoniales vel templorum aut agonothetici seu relevatorum iugorum vel cuiuscumque iuris per quadraginta iugiter annos (possessione scilicet non solum eorum qui nunc detinent, verum etiam eorum quoque qui antea possederant computanda) ex quocumque titulo vel etiam sine titulo hactenus possederunt vel postea per memoratum quadraginta annorum spatium possederint, nullam penitus super dominio memoratorum omnium fundorum vel locorum vel domorum a publico actionem vel molestiam aut quamlibet inquietudinem formidare. 1. Sed impositum canonem pro qualitate iuris, cuius praedia sunt vel loca, per singulos annos solventes pro certo habeant suum esse quod possident vel postea possederint, ita ut omnibus ad excludendam omnem quolibet modo e publico movendam quaestionem nudae et ex quocumque titulo vel etiam sine titulo corporalis quadraginta of the same type of generosity shall not at all be pressed to buy them, but they shall take possession of them by the benefit of Our Divine Majesty as if the prices had been paid, so that the aforesaid emphyteutic holder have by Our generosity the right that another has gained by paying a price. 1. He should know that the right for the properties he has cultivated, which he possesses from succession, private purchase, the generosity of Our Divine Majesty, or by whatever means, is maintained uncompromised and inviolate; they (emphyteutic holders) are also to be conceded the right to grant liberty to slaves from patrimonial or emphyteutic farms, since they are their owners.

Given June 18, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Ariobindus and Aspar (434).

[13][226] The same Augusti to Florentius, Praetorian Prefect. We instruct that henceforth no one be allowed to transfer to private right farms that belong to the Patrimony (patrimonium) or support the frontier or are woodlands (saltus), which are located in the territory (tractus) of the East, whether a change in the farms be requested with the removal or retention of the right to the rent (canon); We coerce the violators of the law with a fine of 50 pounds of gold, both the claimant and the office that allowed the claim to be admitted, even though Our annotation or a divine enactment be brought forward.

Given June 8, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Theodosius Augustus, for the seventeenth time, and Festus (439).

[14][227] Emperor ANASTASIUS Augustus to Matronianus, Praetorian Prefect. pr. We order everyone who, in any diocese, in any province, or in any woodland territory (saltus), has possessed up to this time farms belonging to the Patrimony or temples, or that are assigned to pay for games (agonothetici), or lands that have been relieved of their taxes (relevatorum iugorum) or of any other right, for forty consecutive years – the possession is to be counted not only of those who now hold the farms, but also of those who had possessed previously – under any title or even without a title, or who henceforth will have possessed them for the aforementioned period of forty years, not to fear public action, harassment, or any trouble at all concerning the ownership of all the aforementioned farms, places (loca), or houses. 1. But by paying each year the rent (canon) imposed in accordance with the type of right under which the properties or places fall, they should be certain that what they possess or will possess afterwards is theirs, so that the defense of bare (nuda) or physical possession by any title, or even without title, for forty consecutive years shall suffice to exclude the raising of any question on annorum iugis possessionis exceptio possit sufficere. 2. Hoc etiam adiciendo, ut illi quoque, qui dempto canone huiusmodi fundos ab initio principali iussione datos sibi fuisse confirmant, si per quadragesimos annos adempti canonis beneficium iugiter possederunt, nec canonem, cuius ademptionem quadraginta, sicut dictum est, annorum possessio testatur, possint penitus profligari, eo quod nostrae pietati placuit in utroque casu, id est tam salvo quam dempto canone, possessorum iura nostrorum in eo statu, in quo per quadragesimos, sicut dictum est, iugiter annos manserunt, absque ulla innovatione durare.

[226] = Nov. Theod. 5.2.1.
[227] Combine with C. 7.39.4, 10.27.1.

D. III k. Aug. Constantinopoli Olybrio vc. cons.

LXIII De Mancipiis et Colonis Patrimonialium et Saltuensium et Emphyteuticariorum Fundorum

[1] Imp. Constantinus A. pr. Emphyteuticarios gravant coloni agros praeter consuetudinem usurpantes, quos nullis culturis erudierunt, cum sollemnitas id eos attractare permittat, quod eorum labore vel olivetis est obsitum vel vinetis. sed et inriguas fontium aquas usurpare conantur, quarum fructus solis emphyteuticariis debentur. 1. Ideoque placuit, ut deinceps aquarum ius potestatesque penes emphyteuticarios permaneant, tantumque ex eis colonis impertiatur, quantum culturis eorum agrorum sufficere manifestum est, quos ipsi colunt. 2. Pro modo autem superfluae inrigationis, quam ultra culturas suas usurpaverint, emphyteuticariis possessoribus pensiones accessionesque praebeant.

PP. VII id. Mart. Carthagine Constantino A. V et Licinio C. conss.

[2] Impp. Valentinianus et Valens AA. ad Germanianum comitem sacrarum largitionum. Libertates, quas mancipiis ex fundis patrimonialibus atque emphyteuticis qui fundorum non sunt domini praestiterunt, rationales huiusmodi praecepti auctoritate rescindant.

PP. XIII k. Mai. Lupicino et Iovino conss.

[3] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. Postumiano pp. Cognovimus a nonnullis, qui patrimoniales fundos meruerunt, colonos behalf of the public. 2. This provision is also to be added, that those who confirm that such farms had originally been given them free from rent by order of the Emperor, if they have possessed the benefit of the removal of the rent for forty consecutive years, shall not be able to be troubled (profligari) for the rent, whose removal a possession for forty years affirms, as has been said, since it has pleased Our Piety in either case, that is, while both preserving and removing the rent, that the rights of Our possessors endure without any innovation in that status in which they have remained for forty consecutive years, as has been mentioned.

Given July 30, at Constantinople, in the consulship of the vir clarissimus Olybrius (491).

Sixty-Third Title Slaves and Bound Tenants of Patrimonial, Woodland, and Emphyteutic Farms

[1] Emperor Constantine Augustus. pr. The tenants[228] are burdening the emphyteutic holders by usurping lands, in violation of custom, that they have not improved with any cultivation, although the law (sollemnitas) allows them only to touch what has been planted by their own labor with olives or vines. But they also endeavor to usurp irrigation water from springs, whose fruits are owed to the emphyteutic holders alone. 1. Therefore it has been decided that from now on the right and power over the waters should remain with the emphyteutic holders, and that the tenants are to be permitted only so much water as manifestly sufficient for the cultivation of those lands that they themselves cultivate. 2. The tenants shall offer payments and additional services to the emphyteutic holders in accordance with the amount of the additional water that they have usurped for purposes other than the cultivation of their crops.

Posted March 9, at Carthage, in the consulship of Constantine Augustus, for the fifth time, and Licinius Caesar (319).

[2] Emperors Valentinian and Valens Augusti to Germanianus, Count of Imperial Finances. The comptrollers (rationales), on the authority of this type of regulation, shall rescind grants of liberty that people who are not the owners have provided to slaves from patrimonial and emphyteutic farms.

Posted April 19, in the consulship of Lupicinus and Jovinus (367).

[3] Emperors Gratian, Valentinian, and Theodosius Augusti to Postumianus, Praetorian Prefect. We have learned from some who have merited patrimonial farms that the most ancient (bound) tenants are being driven [228] The term coloni in this constitution does not seem to refer to bound tenants, but to farmers who have occupied land on an imperial estate in accordance with the Lex Manciana or a similar regulation. This regulation encouraged farmers to bring lands on imperial estates under cultivation by offering them perpetual leaseholds.

antiquissimos proturbari atque in eorum locum vel servos proprios vel alios colonos subrogari. edicti itaque huius auctoritate sancimus eos, qui deinceps huiusmodi aliquid crediderint attemptandum, isdem possessionibus esse privandos.

[4] Idem AAA. et Arcadius A. Cynegio pp. pr. Super patrimonialium refectione fundorum dudum nostris est legibus constitutum, ut ii, qui eos colentes solum eorum verterant, nunc alia loca deligentes, nunc ad militiam convolantes, ad avitas condiciones et propria iura revocentur. 1. Ceterum eos, qui castrensibus stipendiis otia quieta meruerunt veterani constituti, nequaquam placet tela in usum vomeris ligonisque convertere.

LXIIII De Fugitivis Colonis Patrimonialibus Et Emphyteuticis Et Saltuensibus

[1] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. Cynegio pp. Quicumque parvuli ex municipibus vel colonis patrimonialibus aut saltuensibus, quorum tamen avi ac patres implicati huiusmodi functionibus fuerint, coniventia militaris officii ad stipendium castrense vel officia diversa transierint, ad munera patriae vel agrorum cultus conventis ducibus tribunis ac praepositis revocentur neque his prosint stipendia.

[2] Idem AAA. ad Cynegium pp. Quisquis colonum patrimonialem aut sollicitatione susceperit aut occultatione celaverit, non solum ipsum restituere, sed etiam libram auri poenae nomine cogatur inferre.

D. VIII k. Nov. Constantinopoli Honorio np. et Euodio conss.

[3] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Anthemio pp. Cuiuscumque adnotationis vel oraculi dudum impetrati vel postea eliciendi auctoritate off and either one's own slaves or other tenants are substituted in their place. Therefore by the authority of this edict We ordain that those who henceforth believe something of this sort should be attempted are to be deprived of the properties in question.

(383?).

[4][229] The same Augusti and ARCADIUS Augustus to Cynegius, Praetorian Prefect. pr. Concerning the restoration of patrimonial farms, it has long been established by Our laws that those who had turned their soil in cultivating them, but who are now choosing other places or are now flying to service (militia), should be called back to their ancestral conditions and their own rights. 1. But it is not at all pleasing that those who, having been established as veterans, have earned quiet rest from their military service, convert their weapons into the use of the plow and mattock.

(384–389).

Sixty-Fourth Title Fugitive Bound Tenants from Patrimonial, Emphyteutic, and Woodland Properties

[1][230] Emperors GRATIAN, VALENTINIAN, and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Cynegius, Praetorian Prefect. Whichever children of townsmen (municipes) or bound tenants on patrimonial or woodland properties, whose grandfathers and fathers were tied to such functions, have passed to camp service or diverse duties by the connivance of a military office, shall be recalled to the public services of their hometown or the cultivation of the fields after the dukes, tribunes, or commanding officers (praepositi) have been informed, and their military service shall not be of benefit to them.

[2][231] The same Augusti to Cynegius, Praetorian Prefect. Whoever has either after enticing him taken up or concealed a bound patrimonial tenant shall be compelled not only to restore the person himself but also to pay a pound of gold as a fine.

Given October 25, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Honorius, Most Noble Boy, and Euodius (386).

[3] Emperors HONORIUS and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Anthemius, Praetorian Prefect. With the removal of authority of any annotation (a written response to a petition) or an imperial enactment (oraculum) obtained long ago or to be [229] Perhaps combine with C. 11.59.7 and the other texts mentioned there. Seeck gives February 24, 386.

[230] Perhaps combine with C. 11.59.7 and the other texts mentioned there. Seeck gives February 24, 386.
[231] = C.Th. 5.17.2. Combine with C. 11.59.7 and the other passages mentioned there.

submota omnes, quos patrimonialium agrorum vinculis fortuna tenet adstrictos, sub quibuslibet gradibus militantes ad provinciae moderatoris iudicium ilico sub idonea intercessione mittentur.

LXV De Collatione Fundorum Patrimonialium et Emphyteuticorum

[1] Imp. Constantinus A. ad Proculum proconsulem Africae. Emphyteuticarii possessores, qui mansuetudinis nostrae beneficio ad extraordinaria minime devocantur munera, sicut ceteri provinciales obsequium suum muniendis itineribus impendant. nulla enim ratione debent ab hoc, quod in commune omnibus profuturum est, seiungi.

PP. non. Mai. Karthagine Constantino A. v et Licinio C. conss.

[2] Idem A. ad Catullinum proconsulem Africae. Patrimoniales fundos extraordinariis oneribus vel mediae aut tertiae portionis obsequiis fatigari non convenit, cum eosdem et auri speciem et frumenti plurimum modum constet persolvere: ita ut, qui violare statuta temptaverit, puniatur.

PP. VI k. Sept. Carthagini Constantino A. v et Licinio conss.

[3] Imp. Iulianus A. Omnes, qui patrimoniales fundos sive communiter sive ex asse retinent, pro his conveniendi sunt ad universorum munerum ad eosdem fundos pertinentium pro rata portione vel in solidum functiones, sicut unumquemque privatorum necessitas publicae pensitationis adstringit.

D. v k. April. Mamertino et Nevitta conss.

elicited in the future, all those whom their fortune holds tied to the bonds of fields belonging to the Patrimony (patrimonium), when they perform service in any rank (militantes), will be sent to the court of the provincial governor immediately under a suitable intervention.[232] (408–415).

Sixty-Fifth Title Payment of Taxes for Patrimonial and Emphyteutic Farms

[1][233] Emperor CONSTANTINE Augustus to Proculus, Proconsul of Africa. Emphyteutic possessors, who, by the benefit of Our Clemency, are not summoned to extraordinary public services, shall like other provincials provide their obedience for paving roads. For they ought not for any reason to be kept from this (service), which will benefit everyone in common.

Posted May 7, at Carthage, in the consulship of Constantine Augustus, for the fifth time, and Licinius Caesar (319).

[2][234] The same Augustus to Catullinus, Proconsul of Africa. It is not appropriate that farms belonging to the Patrimony (patrimonium) be worn out by extraordinary burdens or by compliance to a half-share or a third-share of them, since it is established that these farms provide both gold coin and a great amount of grain; so that whoever attempts to violate the statutes shall be punished.

Posted August 27, at Carthage, in the consulship of Constantine Augustus, for the fifth time, and Licinius (319).

[3][235] Emperor JULIAN Augustus. All those who hold farms belonging to the Patrimony either in common or by themselves alone are to be held liable for them for the performance of all the public services (munera) pertaining to the same farms in proportion (to their share) or for the entire amount, just as the necessity of public payment binds each and every private individual.

Given March 28, in the consulship of Mamertinus and Nevitta (362).

[232] Intercessio militaris was enforced payment of taxes. Seeck dates this constitution to February 28, 409.

[233] = C.Th. 15.3.1.

[234] = C.Th. 11.16.1.

[235] = C.Th. 11.19.2.

[4] Impp. Valentinianus et Valens AA. ad Germanianum comitem sacrarum largitionum. pr. Placuit, ut emphyteuticorum fundorum patrimonialiumque possessores, quo voluerint tempore et quantum habuerint pensionis paratum (dummodo non amplius quam in tribus per singulos annos vicibus) officio rationalis adsignent ac de suscepto ab eodem securitatem eodem die pro more percipiant, modo ut intra Ianuariarum iduum diem omnis summa ratiociniis publicis inferatur: gravissimae poenae subdendo officio, si cuiquam quolibet anni tempore (dummodo nequaquam numerum trinae illationis excedat) solutionem facere gestienti negaverit susceptionis officium, vel si moram fecerit in chirographo securitatis edendo. 1. Super quo possessores apud curatores vel magistratus aut quicumque in locis fuerint, qui conficiendorum actorum habeant potestatem, conveniet contestari, ut et de officii insolentia constet, in quod exercenda vindicta est, et his possit esse consultum.

D. XIIII k. Iun. Remis Gratiano np. et Dagalaifo conss.

[5] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Messalae pp. pr. Per omnes provincias patrimonialium fundorum ab ordinariis iudicibus canon exigatur, et quidquid exactum fuerit, dirigatur. 1. Sciant vero memorati iudices nihil sibi ex privatae rei canone vel ex eo, quod ex isdem titulis contigerit, ad necessitates alias transferendum, nisi malint gravissima severitate eorum licentiam coerceri.

D. XVI k. Iun. Mediolani Theodoro cons.

LXVI De Fundis Rei Privatae et Saltibus Divinae Domus

[1] Impp. Constantius et Constans AA. edictum ad Heliopolitanos. Universi cognoscant has possessiones quas de fisco nostro comparaverunt seu comparant, nullo a nobis iure retrahi, sed propria firmitate possessas etiam ad posteros suos dominii perpetui durabilitate dimitti.

[4][236] Emperors VALENTINIAN and VALENS Augusti to Germanianus, Count of Imperial Finances. pr. It has been decided that, at the time they wish and for the amount of their payment they have ready (as long as it is in not more than three installments in an individual year), possessors of emphyteutic and patrimonial farms make their payment to the office of the Comptroller and receive a receipt, as is custom, on the same day for what he has received, as long as the whole sum is paid to the public accounts (ratiociniis publicis) by the Ides of January (January 13); the office is to be subject to a most serious punishment if it refuses its duty to someone desiring to make a payment at any time in the year – provided it not exceed the third payment – or if it causes a delay in issuing a written receipt (chirographum securitatis). 1. On this matter it will be appropriate for the possessors to appeal before the curatores[237] or magistrates or whoever in these places have the power of preparing records, so that it both be clear concerning the insolence of the office against which punishment is to be inflicted and that their (the possessors') interests might be consulted.

Given May 19, at Reims, in the consulship of Gratian, Most Noble Boy, and Dagalaifus (366).

[5][238] Emperors ARCADIUS and HONORIUS Augusti to Messala, Praetorian Prefect. pr. In all the provinces the rent (canon) for patrimonial farms shall be exacted by regular governors (ordinarii iudices), and whatever has been exacted is to be directed (by the governors to the appropriate account; dirigatur). 1. But the aforementioned governors shall know that they must not transfer to other needs anything from the tax (canon) for the Privy Purse (res privata) or from what they have derived from the same sources, unless they should prefer that their lack of responsibility be curbed with the gravest severity.

Given May 17, at Milan, in the consulship of Theodorus (399).

Sixty-Sixth Title Farms Belonging to the Privy Purse and Woodlands of the Divine Household

[1][239] Emperors CONSTANTIUS and CONSTANS Augusti, Edict to the Heliopolitani. Everyone should know that the properties (possessiones) that they have purchased or are purchasing from Our Treasury are not taken back by Us under any right, but that, possessed with the firmness of private property, they are transferred also to their posterity with security of perpetual ownership.

[236] = C.Th. 5.15.20.

[237] Curatores (i.e., curatores rei publicae, who had oversight of the finances of cities) is restored from the C.Th. version.

[238] Section 1 = C. 10.75.3, C.Th. 12.9.3.

[239] = C.Th. 5.13.1 (which lacks the addressee); one CJ manuscript has Constantinopolitanos.

D. prid. id. Febr. Antiochiae Marcellino et Probino conss.

[2] Impp. Valentinianus et Valens AA. ad Florianum comitem rerum privatarum. pr. Ii, quos commoditas privatae rei praediorum ad ea postulanda sollicitat, adeant tuae dicationis officium et modum suae deliberationis indicent per libellos certumque habeant pro unaquaque villa, cum eo onere vel forma cui nunc habetur obnoxia ad novi domini iura migraverit, ut, si quid adiecerit sumptus cura sollertia, quidquid mancipiorum vel pecoris adcreverit, capitationis aut canonis augmenta non patiatur, sed solis dominis heredibusque dominorum sit cessura felicitas. 1. Si quis autem in annis singulis non solverit debitum, ex re ipsius, quod in reliquis remansisse claruerit, sine aliquibus dependere cogetur indutiis. 2. Sane si quem postea minus idoneum factum esse constabit nec ita ut expedit rationem reddere pensionis, res, quas ex nostris rebus acceperat, ad alium idoneum iure quo sanximus transferentur: nec tamen decoctoris cuiusque reliquis qui novus accedit onerari.

[3] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. ad Hesperium proconsulem Africae. Quicumque possessionem rei privatae nostrae acceptam suo nomine vel iure perpetuo vel titulo conductionis ei crediderit esse tradendam, qui pensare utilitatem patrimonii nostri solvendo non valeat, is pro eo quem succedaneum subrogavit perpetuae solutioni statuatur obnoxius.

[4] Idem AAA. ad Nebridium comitem rerum privatarum. Universi fundi templorum ad rationalium rei privatae sollicitudinem curamque pertineant atque ab his anniversariis solutionibus postulatis peculiari, ut semper fuit, studio defendantur.

Given February 12, at Antioch, in the consulship of Marcellinus and Probinus (341).

[2][240] Emperors VALENTINIAN and VALENS Augusti to Florianus, Count of the Privy Purse. pr. Those whom the advantages of properties belonging to the Privy Purse move to request them should approach the office of Your Authority and indicate the nature of their deliberation through a petition, and they should be certain that, for each and every villa, it passes to the rights of the new owner with that burden or regulation to which it is now held liable, so that, if with care or ingenuity he has added any expense, he should not suffer increases in the capitation tax or in the rent (canon) for whatever addition there is in slaves or livestock, but the benefit alone shall pass to the owners or the owners' heirs. 1. If anyone, however, does not pay what is owed in an individual year, he will be compelled to pay without any delay from his own property what has clearly remained in arrears. 2. Certainly, if it will be established that someone henceforth has become insolvent (minus idoneus) and does not return the amount of the payment as is expedient, the property that he had received from Ours will be transferred to another suitable person under the right that We have ordained; nor is the new person who comes burdened by the arrears of every spendthrift.

[3] Emperors GRATIAN, VALENTINIAN, and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Hesperius, Proconsul of Africa.[241] Whoever believes that a property belonging to Our Privy Purse (res privata nostra) that he has received under his own name either under a perpetual right or under a lease is to be transferred to someone who is not capable of paying the benefit of Our Patrimony, that one shall be designated as liable in perpetuity for the payment on behalf of the one whom he substituted as a successor.

(376?).

[4] The same Augusti to Nebridius, Count of the Privy Purse. All farms belonging to temples shall fall under the care and management of the Comptrollers of the Privy Purse and, in the demanding of yearly payments, shall be defended by them with their particular zeal, as it always has been.

(382–384).[242]

[240] = C.Th. 5.13.4 (which omits "belonging to the Privy Purse"); perhaps to be combined with C. 11.62.4; C.Th. 5.15.18. Seeck dates to March 12, 368; Schmidt-Hofner, to after December 364, or after March 369.

[241] Hesperius was Proconsul of Africa in 376 and Praetorian Prefect in 377, which does not square with the names of the emperors. Seeck gives July 8, 377.

[242] Seeck dates to January 18, 383.

[5] Idem et Arcadius AAAA. ad Nebridium comitem rerum privatarum. pr. Usus aquae, quae fundorum nostrorum utilitatibus serviebat, plurimorum dicitur usurpatione sublatus, idque procuratorum coniventia vel dissimulatione perfectum, ut agrorum fertilitas destituta nullos fructus cultoribus praestet. 1. Quia igitur satis iniustum est statum florentis ante patrimonii aridae sitis molestia fatigari, ad meatus pristinos universum aquae modum temporis praescriptione submota praecipimus revocari.

[6] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Vincentio pp. Galliarum. Eum, qui curiae vel collegio vel burgis ceterisque corporibus per triginta annos sine interpellatione servierit, res dominica vel intentio privata non inquietabit, si colonatus vel inquilinatus quaestionem movere temptaverit: sed in curia vel in corpore, in quo servierit, remaneat.

D. III k. Iul. Mediolani Stilichone et Aureliano conss.

[7] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. ad Eudoxium comitem rerum privatarum. pr. Nemo dempto canone ad comparationem dominicae possessionis accedat. 1. Quod si quis in posterum ad interdictum contractum accesserit, eum volumus pretia perdere fundos reddere fructus redhibere perpetuo nec expensarum vel melioratae rei fructuum exactioni compensationem opponere nec temporis sibimet contra nostra commoda praescriptione, excepto vetustatis auxilio, blandiri. 2. Palatinum etiam officium, si quoquo modo contractus eiusmodi fuerit celebratus vel si talem petitionem instruxerit, quinquaginta pondo auri poenae nomine inferre privato nostrae mansuetudinis aerario. 3. Nulla liberalitate nostrae clementiae, nulla sanctione contra tanta rei privatae commoda valitura, licet adnotatio vel divina pragmatica sit, quae contra vetita canonem vendere concedit vel poenam palatino remittit officio.

D. XIII k. Iun. Constantinopoli Anatolio vc. cons.

[5] The same Augusti and Arcadius Augustus to Nebridius, Count of the Privy Purse. pr. The use of water that served the benefit of Our farms is said to have been removed by the usurpation of very many people, and this has been accomplished with the connivance or dissimulation of the procurators, so that the fertility of the fields is ruined and offers no crops to the cultivators. 1. Therefore since it is quite unjust that the previously flourishing state of the Patrimony be worn out by the vexation of arid thirst, We instruct that, with the prescription of time removed (i.e., without regard to the length of the violation), the entire amount of water be recalled to its original channels.

(383–384).

[6][243] Emperors Arcadius and Honorius Augusti to Vincentius, Praetorian Prefect of the Gauls. Neither the Imperial Household (res dominica) nor a private suit will disturb a person who has served a town council (curia), guilds (collegia), fortresses (burgi), or other associations (corpora) for thirty years without interruption, if (either one) tries to raise a question of his being a bound tenant (colonatus) or a resident tenant (inquilinatus); but he should remain in the council or in the association (corpus) in which he has served.

Given June 29, at Milan, in the consulship of Stilicho and Aurelianus (400).

[7][244] Emperors Theodosius and Valentinian Augusti to Eudoxius, Count of the Privy Purse. pr. No one shall enter into buying an imperial property (dominica possessio) with the rent (canon) removed. 1. But if someone henceforth enters into a forbidden contract, We want him to lose the price, return the farms, pay back the crops forever, and not to oppose a claim for compensation for expenses or for improvements, nor to flatter himself by a time prescription against Our interests, except for the aid of long age (vetustas, 40 years). 2. Even the Palatine Office, if somehow a contract of this type has been executed or if it has drawn up such a petition, is to pay 50 pounds of gold as a punishment to the private treasury of Our Clemency. 3. No generosity of Our Clemency and no ordinance will prevail against such important interests of the Privy Purse, even though there may be an annotation (written response to a petition) or a divine enactment that permits selling the rent (canon) contrary to what has been forbidden or that remits the penalty for the Palatine Office.

Given May 20, at Constantinople, in the consulship of the vir clarissimus Anatolius (440).

[243] = C.Th. 12.19.2. Combine with C. 11.48.13–14 (former with this date, latter with June 28), C.Th. 12.9.1.3.

[244] = Nov. Theod. 19.

LXVII De Fundis et Saltibus Rei Dominicae

[1] Imppp. Valentinianus Theodosius et Arcadius AAA. Drepanio comiti rerum privatarum. Si quis ovium vel equarum greges in saltus rei dominicae alienus immiserit, fisco ilico vindicentur. quod si venalis procuratorum coniventia, ut id deinceps temptetur, admiserit, gravissimo eos iubemus supplicio subiacere.

[2] Imppp. Theodosius Arcadius et Honorius AAA. ad Paulum comitem domorum. pr. Si qua loca ad sacrum dominium pertinentia cuiuslibet temeritas occupavit, secundum veteris census fidem in sua iura retrahantur: rescriptis per obreptionem impetratis et praescriptione longi temporis et novi census praeiudicio in hac causa submovendis. 1. Neque enim aut precatio colorata aut incubatio diuturna aut novella professio proprietatis nostrae privilegium abolere potuerunt.

D. v k. April. Constantinopoli Arcadio IIII et Honorio III AA. conss.

LXVIII De Agricolis et Mancipiis Dominicis vel Fiscalibus sive Rei Privatae

[1] Imp. Constantinus A. ad Constantium pp. Nullus omnino originalis colonus rei privatae nostrae ad aliquos honores vel quaelibet alia civitatis munera devocetur. nec enim civitatum ordinibus et ceteris, ex quibus pro multitudine fieri nominationes oportet, per omnia florentibus ad haec suprema praesidia iniuriosa nominatione descendendum est.

[2] Idem A. Ianuario comiti Orientis. Colonos nostros, qui sunt privati vel ad ratiocinia gerenda vel ad colendos agros idonei, retrahi iubemus ac tantum colendis nostris rebus addici, quin etiam in posterum

Sixty-Seventh Title Farms and Woodland Pastures of the Imperial Property

[1] Emperors VALENTINIAN, THEODOSIUS, and ARCADIUS Augusti to Drepanius, Count of the Privy Purse. If an outsider drives flocks of sheep or herds of mares into the woodland pastures (saltus) belonging to the imperial property (rei dominicae), they shall be claimed immediately for the Treasury. But if the venal connivance of the procurators allows that this be attempted in the future, We order them to be subject to the most serious punishment.[245]

[2][246] Emperors THEODOSIUS, ARCADIUS, and HONORIUS Augusti to Paulus, Count of the Household (comes domorum). pr. If anyone has rashly occupied any places belonging to the Sacred Imperial Property (sacrum dominium), they shall be drawn back to their proper status in accordance with the faith of the former census; rescripts acquired through subterfuge, long time prescription, and the prejudice of a new census are to be dispensed with (i.e., are void). 1. For an eloquent petition, squatting over the long term, or a new census declaration (professio) could not destroy the privilege of Our ownership (proprietas).

Given March 28, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Arcadius, for the fourth time, and Honorius, for the third time, Augusti (396).

Sixty-Eighth Title Imperial Farmers and Slaves, or Those Belonging to the Treasury or the Privy Purse

[1][247] Emperor CONSTANTINE Augustus to Constantius, Praetorian Prefect. No bound tenant by origin (originalis colonus) at all of Our Privy Purse (res privata nostra) shall be called to any offices or any compulsory duties (munera) of a city. Nor should the city councils and other bodies, from which nominations must be made because of their numbers, when they are flourishing in all respects, lower themselves by an unlawful nomination to these vanguard positions (praesidia).[248]

[2] The same Augustus to Januarius, Count of the East. We order Our bound tenants, who are private persons either suitable for keeping accounts or for cultivating fields, to be brought back and to be assigned only to performing Our business (colendis nostris rebus), and that it be observed henceforth that

[245] Seeck dates to 392.
[246] = C. 7.38.3, C.Th. 10.1.15, where the emperors are Arcadius and Honorius. Seeck dates to October 7, 325.
[247] See C.Th. 12.1.11 (325). Seeck gives October 7, 325.
[248] Blume translates: "resort to making wrongful nominations for those highly important positions."

observari, ne quis eorum rem privatam cuiusquam gerendam aut aliquid ministrandum suscipiat.

[3] Idem AA. ad Equitium magistrum equitum et peditum. Servi atque coloni, etiam eorum filii vel nepotes, vel quicumque de fundis ac possessionibus nostris clanculo ad officia convolaverint diversa, reddantur, etiamsi armatae habuerint sacramenta militiae. nos enim etiam eos discingi iubemus ac reddi, qui protectorum fuerint nomen adepti.

[4] Idem AA. et Gratianus A. ad Florianum comitem rerum privatarum. Ex ingenuo et colonis ancillisque nostris natos natasve origini, ex qua matres eorum sunt, facies deputari.

[5] Imppp. Valentinianus Theodosius et Arcadius AAA. Cynegio pp. Dominicos colonos neque ad descriptionem patimur devocari neque extraordinarias pati functiones, maxime cum adversus consuetudinem memoratis onera dicantur inferri.

[6] Imp. Theodosius A. et Valentinianus C. Valerio comiti rerum privatarum. Quotiens alicui colonorum agrum privati patrimonii nostri placuerit venumdari, non unus tantum, qui forte consortibus suis gravis ac molestus existat, sed alii quoque duo vel plures ex simili origine ac iure venientes in supra dicta emptione socientur.

D. id. Dec. Constantinopoli Theodosio A. XI et Valentiniano C. conss.

LXVIIII De Praediis Tamiacis et de His Qui ex Colonis Dominicis Aliisque Liberae Condicionis Procreantur

[1] Imp. Zeno A. Chryseroti praeposito sacri cubiculi. pr. Si liber colonus vel colona libera tamiaco vel tamiacae matrimonii iure copuletur, filii none of them undertake to manage anyone's private business or to perform any service.[249]

[3] The same Augusti to Equitius, Master of the Cavalry and Infantry.[250] Slaves and bound tenants, also their sons and grandsons, or whoever has secretly flown from Our farms and properties (possessiones) to various offices, shall be returned, even if they have the oaths of armed military service. For We also order those who have acquired the name of Protectors to be deprived of their rank and to be returned.

[4][251] The same Augusti and Gratian Augustus to Florianus, Count of the Privy Purse. You will make sons or daughters born from a free-born man and Our female bound tenants or slaves be assigned to the origin from which their mothers are.

[5][252] Emperors Valentinian, Theodosius, and Arcadius Augusti to Cynegius, Praetorian Prefect. We do not allow imperial tenants (dominicos colonos) to be called to a special tax or to endure extraordinary charges, especially when burdens are said to be imposed on the above-mentioned persons contrary to custom.

[6][253] Emperors Theodosius Augustus and Valentinian Caesar to Valerius, Count of the Privy Purse. Whenever it has been decided to sell a farm belonging to Our Private Patrimony to any of the bound tenants, not one alone (should buy it) who perhaps might be burdensome and annoying to those sharing his lot (consortes), but two or more others from a similar origin and right should come together as partners in the purchase mentioned above.

Given December 13, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Theodosius Augustus, for the eleventh time, and Valentinian Caesar (425).

Sixty-Ninth Title Treasury Properties and Offspring Who Are Born from Imperial Bound Tenants and Others of Free Condition

[1] Emperor Zeno Augustus to Chyseros, Grand Chamberlain. pr. If a free male or female tenant should be joined by right of marriage to a bound male

[249] Seeck dates to February 15, 319.
[250] The emperors should be Valentinian and Valens; see 4. Seeck dates to September 24, 364; Schmidt-Hofner, to from October 365 to late May 367. For "protectors" see C. 12.17.
[251] Possibly combine with C. 6.4.2 (367). Seeck gives October 13, 367.
[252] Possibly combine with C. 11.59.7 and the texts mentioned there. Seeck dates to February 24, 386. The "special tax" below is Blume's translation for descriptio, a term that is obscure, but must refer to some kind of additional charge.
[253] = C.Th. 5.16.34 (5.14.9).

vel filiae ex huiusmodi contubernio procreati vel procreatae colonis dominicis adnectentur. 1. Sin autem adscripticius vel servus alienus colonam vel ancillam dominicam ducat uxorem vel adscripticia vel ancilla colono vel servo nubat dominico et ex huiusmodi coniunctionibus nati sunt liberi, legum veterum ius tenere sancimus.

[2] Idem A. Sebastiano pp. pr. Meminimus pragmatica sanctione iussisse fundos tamiaci iuris in provinciis positos nec non etiam possessiones Gonatici saltus sub certa forma (salvo scilicet canone et tributariis collationibus isdem praediis impositis) volentibus distrahi, quatenus, quidquid ex pretiis memoratorum fundorum possit restitui, publico inferatur. 1. Sed licet per eandem sanctionem huiusmodi venditionum contractibus plenissima delata sit cautio, attamen perpetuae emptionis securitati consulentes huius etiam perpetuae constitutionis auctoritate muniri eosdem emptores praecipimus.

LXX De Diversis Praediis Urbanis et Rusticis Templorum et Civitatum et Omni Reditu Civili

[1] Imp. Iulianus A. Atarbino. Pro aedibus, quas nonnulli in solo rei publicae extruxerunt, placitam praestare pensionem cogantur.

[2] Idem A. Secundo pp. Pamphyliae etiam civitates et quaecumque aliae quidquid sibi adquirant, id firmiter habeant.

[3] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Hadriano comiti sacrarum largitionum. Restaurationi moenium publicorum tertiam portionem eius or female tenant of the Treasury, sons or daughters born from such a union (contubernium) should be included among the imperial bound tenants (coloni dominici). 1. If, however, a bound enrolled tenant (adscripticius) or a slave belonging to another should take an imperial female tenant or slave as a wife, or a bound registered female tenant or slave should marry an imperial tenant or slave, and children are born from such unions, We ordain that the law of the old statutes hold.[254]

[2] The same Augustus to Sebastianus, Praetorian Prefect. pr. We recall that in a general ordinance We ordered farms under the right of the Treasury situated in the provinces, as well as properties (possessiones) in the Gonaticus saltus to be sold to willing (purchasers) under a fixed arrangement – to be sure without prejudice to the rent (canon) and with the land taxes imposed on the same properties – as long as whatever can be regained from the prices for the aforementioned farms be paid to the Public Treasury. 1. But although through the same ordinance the fullest assurance (cautio) has been offered for such sale contracts, nevertheless, to provide for the security of a perpetual sale We instruct that the same buyers be protected also by the authority of this constitution.

(476–480 or 484?).[255]

Seventieth Title Diverse Urban and Rural Properties Belonging to Temples and Towns, and All Revenue Accruing to Towns

[1] Emperor Julian Augustus to Atarbinus. For the buildings that some people have constructed on the soil of a municipality, they shall be compelled to provide the payment agreed upon.[256]

[2][257] The same Augustus to Secundus, Praetorian Prefect. The cities of Pamphylia and any others that acquire something for themselves shall hold it firmly.

[3][258] Emperors Arcadius and Honorius Augustus to Hadrianus, Count of Imperial Finances. It is certain that a third portion of the rent (canon) that is [254] As Blume notes, this means following the condition of the mother. Lounghis et al. date this constitution to between 476 and 491.

[255] Lounghis et al. date to either between December 476 and May 1, 480, or between March and April 484.

[256] Seeck dates to March 13, 362.

[257] Combine with C.Th. 10.3.1, 11.16.10, 11.23.2 (possibly), 12.1.50,12.13.1 (possibly). Except for the last one, these laws are dated: "Posted March 15 (or 13), at Constantinople, in the consulship of Mamertinus and Nevitta (362)." Seeck gives March 13, 362.

[258] = C.Th. 5.14.35.

canonis, qui ex locis fundisve rei publicae annua praestatione confertur, certum est satis posse sufficere.

D. VIII id. Aug. Olybrio et Probino conss.

[4] Idem AA. Caesario pp. Eos, qui auctione prima fundorum iuris patrimonialis sive templorum possessores effecti sunt vel fuerint, firmum dominium tenere decernimus, ne ulterius vacillet uniuscuiusque possessio, sed teneat quisque ius proprium, quod dato pretio roboratum est vel fuerit.

[5] Impp. Valentinianus et Marcianus AA. ad Palladium pp. Orientis. pr. Si qui ex titulo donationis vel ex emptione sive ex alio quolibet titulo possessiones vel domus vel ergasteria iuris dumtaxat civilis, quae huius iuris esse vere probantur, cuiuslibet civitatis et praecipue huius aeternae urbis, cui maiorem debemus favorem, tam civilis, ut dictum est, iuris quam etiam agonotheticas possessiones a consulatu Ausonii et Olybrii dempto civili canone acceperunt, eos impositum eis canonem iuxta fidem publicorum monumentorum civitatis ad quam eaedem res pertinuerunt, praebere iubemus. 1. Nam si privatis viris debita non patimur denegari, multo magis praebenda sunt civitatibus quae iure debentur, cum sufficiat possessoribus, quod apud eos dominium in perpetuum ex nostra liberalitate permaneat. 2. Si quae tamen possessiones iuris civilis canonem privatis largitionibus in praesenti praebent vel numquam ademptum vel postea impositum, ad hanc iussionem non pertinebunt, sed privato aerario canonem quem nunc agnoscunt inferre ex more debebunt, dominio firmiter apud eos successoresque eorum et detentatores pari modo permanente.

D. XV k. Febr. Constantinopoli Marciano A. cons.

[6] Imp. Zeno A. Aeliano pp. Hac in perpetuum valitura lege sancimus et Nicaeensium civitati seu habitatoribus eius tam ius exactionis quadringentorum solidorum annui canonis civilis reditus ad suam patriam pertinentis ex possessionibus, id est Calamo et Heliobomo nec non emptorio[iv] Variario cum emptio eorum sub territorio Apamenae civitatis constitutis, ex nuper lapsa tertia indictione cum provided in an annual payment from lots (loca) or farms belonging to a municipality suffices for the restoration of the public walls.

[iv] Emporio

Given August 6, in the consulship of Olybrius and Probinus (395).

[4] The same Augusti to Caesarius, Praetorian Prefect. We determine that those who in the first auction have been or will have been made possessors of farms under the right of the Patrimonium (ius patrimoniale) or of temples hold firm ownership, so that each person's possession not be uncertain any longer, but each person shall hold his private right, which has been or will have been made firm by giving the price.[259]

[5][260] Emperors VALENTINIAN and MARCIAN Augusti to Palladius, Praetorian Prefect of the East. pr. If any persons have received by a gift or purchase or under any other title properties (possessiones), houses, or workshops (ergasteria), in so far as they are under the right of a city (iuris dumtaxat civilis), which are truly proved to be of this right, of any city whatsoever and especially of this eternal city, to which We owe greater favor, both properties under the right of a city, as has been said, and those supporting athletic competitions, since the consulship of Ausonius and Olybrius (379), with the removal of the city's rent (canon), We order them to provide the rent in accordance with the faith of the public records to the city to which the same properties belonged. 1. For if We do not allow what is owed to be denied in the case of private men, all the more so is what is lawfully owed to be provided to cities, since it should suffice for the possessors that ownership remain with them in perpetuity as a result of Our generosity. 2. If, however, any properties (possessiones) under the right of a city at present provide the rent to the Private Benefactions (privatis largitionibus), whether it was never removed or was later imposed, they will not fall under this order, but they will be required to pay the rent that they now acknowledge to the Private Treasury in accordance with custom, and ownership remains firmly with them and their successors and those who hold it on their behalf (detentatores) in equal measure.

Given January 18, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Marcian Augustus (451).

[6] Emperor ZENO Augustus to Aelianus, Praetorian Prefect. By this law that is to endure in perpetuity, We ordain both that to the city of Nicaea or its inhabitants be restored the right to exact 400 solidi as the annual rent (canon) from the properties under the city income belonging to their hometown, that is from Calamus and Heliobomus, as well as the market of Variarius, together with those properties purchased in the territory of Apamea,[261] since the recently

[259] Seeck gives June 11, 397.
[260] = Nov. Marc. 3, with somewhat different wording.
[261] The text of this phrase is corrupt.

ipsa restitui, quam si quid, ex quo sanctio Marciani divae memoriae lata est, ad eiusdem civitatis praeiudicium gestum est, infirmari et, quod ex eadem provisione civitatibus delatum interea qualibet occasione imminutum est, ex auctoritate constitutionis nostrae serenitatis isdem civitatibus redhiberi, ita ut neque iudiciaria auctoritas nec imperiale rescriptum, quacumque videlicet adiectione munitum, saepe dictae generalis legis vires possit refringere. quod si quis aliter fecerit, poena gravi plectetur.

LXXI De Locatione Praediorum Civilium vel Fiscalium sive Templorum sive Rei Privatae vel Dominicae

[1] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. ad Florum pp. pr. Divi patris nostri aperta praeceptio est fundos ex re privata nostra ita tradi perpetuariis, ut periculo collocantium officiorumque tradantur. 1. Neque enim quicquam potest ex devotionis plenitudine vacillare, si apparitione iudiciaria et fundi idoneis attributi sunt et sit fiscalis indemnitas idonea fideiussione munita. 2. Quorum si alterum vel utrumque neglectum est, quae ex hoc titulo pensitatio canonica desiderat, ex officiorum facultatibus seruentur.

[2] Idem AAA. Nebridio comiti rerum privatarum. Fundi rei publicae ab his, qui nec titulo conductionis eos detinent quique meliores cultu patrocinante reddiderunt, ne nostrarum quidem sanctionum (si forte quispiam per subreptionem meruerit) nutibus auferantur, iuxta legem veterem semel tantum licentia faciendae adiectionis indulta.

[3] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Hadriano pp. Loca omnia fundive rei publicae propositis prius licenter edictis dehinc, ubi in eum canonis passed third indiction (479–480), and also that if anything has been done to the prejudice of the same city from the time when the ordinance of Marcian of deified memory was passed, it be nullified, and what from the same provision that has in the meantime been turned over to the cities has been diminished by any occasion, be restored to the same cities on the basis of the authority of the constitution of Our Serenity, so that neither the authority of a court (iudicaria auctoritas) nor an imperial rescript, protected by any additional statement (adiectio), could compromise the strength of a general law often pronounced. But if anyone acts otherwise, he will be met with a grave punishment.

(480?).[262]

Seventy-First Title The Leasing of Properties Belonging to Cities, the Treasury, Temples, or the Privy Purse or the Crown

[1] Emperors GRATIAN, VALENTINIAN, and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Florus, Praetorian Prefect. pr. It is the clear instruction of Our Deified Father that farms from Our Privy Purse be conveyed to perpetual leaseholders (perpetuarii) in such a way that they be conveyed at the risk of the lessors (collocantes) and the offices. 1. For there can be no wavering from the fullness of your devotion if by the service of a court the farms have both been assigned to suitable lessees and the indemnity of the Treasury has been protected by a suitable suretyship. 2. But if either or both of these has been neglected, the rental payment (pensitatio canonica) that is missing under this account shall be saved from the resources of the offices.

(380–383).

[2][263] The same Augusti to Nebridius, Count of the Privy Purse. Farms belonging to a municipality shall not be removed, by the permission of Our ordinances – if perhaps someone has surreptitiously merited one – from those who hold them without a title of a lease but have improved them with the aid of their cultivation, since in accordance with the old law the right of making a higher bid is allowed just once.

(382–384).

[3][264] Emperors ARCADIUS and HONORIUS Augusti to Hadrianus, Praetorian Prefect. All lots (loca) or farms belonging to a municipality shall be leased to perpetual lessees (conductores perpetuarii) when, after the posting of edicts (to provide notice of the bidding) freely beforehand, bids for the amount of [262] Lounghis et al. date to between August 31, 480 and August 31, 481.

[263] Possibly combine with C. 11.59.6 (383). Seeck gives January 18, 383.
[264] Possibly combine with C.Th. 11.20.3 (400). Seeck dates this constitution to August 6, 395.

modum contendentium augmenta succreverint, ut extendi ultra aut superari alterius oblatione non possint, perpetuariis conductoribus locentur.

[4] Idem AA. Minervio comiti sacrarum largitionum. Congruit aequitati, ut veteres possessores fundorum publicorum novis conductoribus praeferantur, si facta per alios augmenta suscipiant.

[5] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Volusiano pp. pr. Praedia domus nostrae, si semel iure perpetuo vel nostra praeceptione vel auctoritate illustris viri comitis aerarii privati apud aliquem fuerint vel iam dudum sunt collocata, ad alium transferri perpetuarium non oportet. 1. Aperte enim definimus hoc edicto, ut a perpetuario numquam possessio transferatur, etiamsi alteri eam imperator vel exoratus vel sponte donaverit sive adnotatione sive pragmatica.

2. Cui si forte contra perpetuarium vir illustris comes privatarum, dum adlegabitur, adquiescet, et ipse de proprio centum libras auri et alias centum fisci viribus palatinum inferre cogatur officium. 3. Nec tamen post adlegationem habebit huiusmodi iussio firmitatem, sed nec locabitur alteri, licet ingenti superare videatur augmento, possessio. 4. Iure igitur perpetuo publici contractus firmitate perpetuarius securus sit et intellegat neque a se neque a posteris suis vel his, ad quos ea res vel successione vel donatione sive venditione vel quolibet titulo pervenit sive aliquando pervenerit, esse retrahendam.

5. Sane quia non ex omni parte excludenda est largitas principalis, rem divinae domus suae imperator, si velit, donabit ei, qui eam possidet iure perpetuo, sive ipse iam meruit sive cuiuslibet tituli iure successit. videtur enim suam concedere pensionem, non alteri nocere liberalitas, quae possidentem iure perpetuo dominum vult vocari.

6. Sane si quis non perpetuo iure, sed ad tempus locatam ab illustri viro comite rerum privatarum possessionem videtur adeptus, non erit obstaculo principali largitati, si voluerit in alterum donatione transferre, quod ad definitum tempus alter forte conduxit. 7. Si vero pro tali the rent (canon) from those competing have increased so that they cannot be extended further or be surpassed through an offer by another.

(400–405).

[4] The same Augusti to Minervius, Count of Imperial Finances. It is consistent with fairness that old possessors of public farms be preferred to new lessees if they should accept the higher bids (augmenta) offered by others.[265]

[5][266] Emperors THEODOSIUS and VALENTINIAN Augusti to Volusianus, Praetorian Prefect. pr. Properties (praedia) belonging to Our Household, if they will have once been or have long been leased (collocata) to someone under perpetual right by Our instruction or by the authority of the vir illustris Count of the Private Treasury, must not be transferred to another perpetual leaseholder (perpetuarius). 1. For We plainly direct by this edict that possession never be transferred from a perpetual leaseholder, even if the Emperor, either upon an entreaty or of his own accord, has given this by an annotation (a written response to a petition) or a general ordinance (pragmatica).

2. If by chance the vir illustris Count of the Privy Purse (comes privatarum) will acquiesce in this (the imperial ordinance), while it is being produced, he himself will be compelled to pay from his own property 100 pounds of gold and the Palatine office another 100 pounds to the resources of the Treasury. 3. Nor, however, will such an order after the production (of an imperial ordinance) have validity, and the property (possessio) will not be leased to another, although he might seem to prevail with a substantially higher bid. 4. Therefore a perpetual leaseholder shall be secure in his perpetual right by the force of a public contract, and he shall know that the property is not to be withdrawn from him or his posterity, or from those to whom that property passes by succession, sale, gift, or in any other manner.

5. Certainly, because imperial generosity is not to be excluded totally, the Emperor, if he should wish, will give property belonging to His Divine Household to the one who possesses it under a perpetual right, whether he himself has already merited it or succeeded to it by the right of anyone's title. The generosity that wishes the one possessing under a perpetual right to be called the owner is seen as conceding a payment, not as harming another.

6. Certainly, if someone is seen to have gained a property not under a perpetual right, but leased for a term by the vir illustris Count of the Privy Purse, this will not be an obstacle to the Emperor's generosity, if he wishes to transfer to one person as a gift what another happens to have leased for a fixed term. 7. But if a higher bid should be offered by another lessee for such a property, [265] Dated by Seeck to 398–399.

[266] Possibly combine with C. 1.14.4 (429). Seeck dates to June 11, 429.

praedio ab altero conductore offeratur augmentum, sit in arbitrio conductoris prioris, cui res ad tempus locata est, ut, si ipse quod alter adiecit obtulerit, maneat penes eum temporalis illa conductio. 8. Si vero idem hanc ipsam rem aliquando meruerit iure perpetuo possidere, habebit et ipse superius expressam perpetuam firmitatem.

LXXII De Conductoribus et Procuratoribus sive Actoribus Praediorum Fiscalium et Domus Augustae

[1] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Basso pp. Conductores hominesve augustissimae domus nostrae, quotiens de causa ad domum regiam pertinente aliquid quaestionis emerserit, non aliter quam ex legum ordine, quibus similiter omne hominum genus tenetur, vel excipiant vel inferant actiones: nec aliorum litigatorum negotio intercedant nec sententiam iudicantium aut illicito patrocinii sui fomite iura conturbent, nullive exsecutionis suae turbulentum ministerium audeant commodare: non privatis se negotiis, non publicis misceant: nec quiescentem domum delatio ulla sollicitet, ne eos inconsultae pertinaciae sero paeniteat. gravior enim poena constituenda est in hos, qui nostri iuris sunt et nostra debent custodire mandata.

D. prid. non. Mart. Ravennae Theodosio XII et Valentiniano II AA. conss.

LXXIII Quibus ad Conductionem Praediorum Fiscalium Accedere Non Licet

[1] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Nestorio comiti rerum privatarum. Nullus palatinorum, qui in officio rei privatae nostrae militat, conductoris nomine vel per se vel per quamlibet personam possessionum huiusmodi conducendarum habeat facultatem, cum neque militi neque curiali hoc faciendum permittimus.

D. VI k. Aug. Vincentio et Fravitta conss.

it shall be in the judgment of the prior lessee, to whom the property has been leased for a term, that, if he himself offers what the second bidder added, the term lease should remain with him. 8. But if the same person has at one time merited possessing this very property under a perpetual right, he too will have the perpetual security described above.

Seventy-Second Title Lessees and Procurators or Managers of Properties Belonging to the Treasury and the Augustan Household

[1][267] Emperors THEODOSIUS and VALENTINIAN Augusti to Bassus, Praetorian Prefect. Lessees or persons of Our Most August Household, whenever any question arises about a case regarding the Imperial (regia) Household, shall either defend against or initiate the actions in no way other than in accordance with the regular procedure of the laws, to which every type of person is similarly bound; nor shall they intervene in the business of other litigators or disturb the verdict of the judges or the laws with the illicit tinder of their legal representation (patrocinium), and to no one may they dare to provide their troublesome help in pursuing a case (exsecutio); they should not become involved in private or public business; nor should any accusation upset a quiet household, lest they regret too late their ill-considered stubbornness. For[268] a very serious punishment is to be established for those who are under Our right and ought to observe Our commands.

Given March 6, at Ravenna, in the consulship of Theodosius, for the twelfth time, and Valentinian, for the second time, Augusti (426).

Seventy-Third Title Those Who Are Not Permitted to Enter into a Lease of Properties Belonging to the Treasury

[1][269] Emperors ARCADIUS and HONORIUS Augusti to Nestorius, Count of Imperial Finances. No one of the palace officials (palatini) who serves in an office of Our Privy Purse shall have the right of leasing such properties as a lessee either by himself or through any person, since We do not permit this to be done either by a soldier or by a decurion.

Given July 27, in the consulship of Vincentius and Fravitta (401).

[267] = C.Th. 10.26.1.
[268] The following sentence is added from C.Th. 10.4.1.
[269] = C.Th. 10.3.6, which omits the final clause.

LXXIIII De Collatione Fundorum Fiscalium Vel Rei Privatae Vel Dominicae Vel Civitatum Vel Templorum

[1] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Firmino comiti sacrarum largitionum. Ordinariorum iudicum officiis nec non ipsis rectoribus provinciarum actores seu conductores dominicos conveniendi licentiam damus, ita tamen, ut rationalibus privatae rei ad exigenda fiscalia debita immineant.

D. VIIII k. Iul. Mediolani Honorio A. IIII et Eutychiano conss.

[2] Idem AA. Messalae pp. pr. Palatinos, qui a viro illustri comite rerum privatarum cum publicis litteris destinantur ad commonitionem iudicis, quo facilius ex praediis rei nostrae conferantur debitae pensiones, cum summa degere praecipimus disciplina. 1. De quorum nominibus, si temere versati fuerint, ad sublimitatem tuam referri per ordinarios iudices oportebit, ut in eos severissime vindicetur.

D. k. Dec. Mediolani Stilichone et Aureliano conss.

[3] Idem et Theodosius AAA. Petronio pp. Omnia praedia, tam ea, quae in re privata olim tenentur, quam illa, quae ex proscriptorum bonis ad fiscum sunt devoluta, eatenus ab huiusmodi privilegiis et excusationibus submoveantur, ut omnes species annonarias, cursitationes etiam debitas atque integram opinionem sciant esse solvendam.

LXXV De Privilegiis Domus Augustae Vel Rei Privatae Et Quarum Collationum Excusationem Habent

[1] Imp. Constantius A. ad Italicum. Privatas possessiones nostras ab universis muneribus sordidis placet esse immunes, neque earum

Seventy-Fourth Title Tax Obligations of Farms Belonging to the Treasury, the Privy Purse, or the Crown, or Cities or Temples

[1][270] Emperors ARCADIUS and HONORIUS Augusti to Firminus, Count of Imperial Finances. We give the power to summon managers or lessees of imperial property to the offices of regular judges as well as to the provincial governors themselves, under the condition that they press the Comptrollers of the Privy Purse to exact debts to the Treasury.

Given June 23, at Milan, in the consulship of Honorius Augustus, for the fourth time, and Eutychianus (398).

[2][271] The same Augusti to Messala, Praetorian Prefect. pr. We instruct that palace officials (palatini) who are sent by the vir illustris Count of the Privy Purse with a public letter to warn a judge that payments owed from estates in Our Property be paid more easily, act with the highest diligence. 1. A report will have to be made about their names to Your Sublimity by the regular judges if they have acted rashly, so that the most severe punishment be exacted from them.

Given December 1, at Milan, in the consulship of Stilicho and Aurelianus (400).

[3] The same Augusti and THEODOSIUS Augustus to Petronius, Praetorian Prefect. All properties (praedia), both those that are held of old in the Privy Purse, and those that have devolved to the Treasury from the goods of the proscribed, shall be removed to such a degree from privileges and exemptions of this type, that all know that they must pay the taxes in kind (species) for the annona, also transportation costs that are owed, and the entire assessment (opinio).[272]

Seventy-Fifth Title Privileges of the Augustan Household or the Privy Purse and the Tax Duties from Which They Have an Exemption

[1][273] Emperor CONSTANTIUS[274] Augustus to Italicus. It is decided that Our private properties (possessiones) are exempt from all lowly public services (munera sordida, generally ones involving physical labor) and that their lessees

[270] = CTh. 1.11.2. Combine with C.Th. 11.19.4, and possibly also with C. 10.19.6 (from May 25, 398, but addressed to Theodorus, Praetorian Prefect); C.Th. 2.1.11. Except for C. 10.19.6, these laws date to May 24.

[271] = C.Th. 1.5.13. Combine with C. 2.14.1, 10.30.2, 12.50.18; C.Th. 10.3.5, and possibly C.Th. 8.5.59.

[272] Seeck dates to March 24, 404.

[273] = C.Th. 11.16.5. Combine with C. 3.26.6

[274] Krüger points out that the emperors should be "Emperor Constans Augustus" or "Emperors Constantius and Constans Augusti."

conductores nec colonos vel ad extraordinaria munera vel superindictiones aliquas conveniri.

D. VIII k. Febr. Bononiae Placido et Romulo conss.

[2] Imppp. Valentinianus Valens et Gratianus AAA. ad Claudium. pr. Rem privatam nostram levandorum provincialium causa canonicas necessitates ea condicione, qua cunctos, volumus sustinere. 1. Sed excessit occasio iussionem, quandoquidem non locis solitis frumenta quae ex diversis sunt saltibus convehenda trahantur, sed eo usque portentur, quo grave atque damnosum est provehere. 2. Proinde spectata sinceritas tua rem eandem in isdem locis implere faciat proprias functiones, quibus antea frumenta praebeb*at*.

[3] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Minervio comiti rerum privatarum. Pro tironibus in corporibus postulatis pretia conferri ex fundis perpetuariis nostrae rei privatae praecipimus.

[4] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Asclepiodoto pp. pr. Absit, ut nos instructionem viae publicae et pontium stratarumque opera titulis magnorum principum dedicata inter sordida munera numeremus. 1. Igitur ad instructiones reparationesque itinerum pontiumque nullum genus hominum nulliusque dignitatis ac venerationis meritis cessare oportet. 2. Domos etiam divinas tam laudabili titulo libenter adscribimus.

D. XV k. Mart. Constantinopoli Asclepiodoto et Mariniano conss.

[5] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Flaviano pp. Excepto patrimonio pietatis nostrae, cuius quidem reditus necessitatibus publicis frequentissime deputamus, universos possessores functiones in (conductores) and bound tenants are not summoned for extraordinary services or for any special additional tax assessments (superindictiones).

Given January 25, at Boulogne (Bononia), in the consulship of Placidus and Romulus (343).

[2] Emperors VALENTINIAN, VALENS, and GRATIAN Augusti to Claudius.[275] pr. In order to relieve the provincials, We want Our private property (res privata nostra) to sustain the obligation to pay the obligatory taxes (necessitates canonicae) under the same condition as everyone. 1. But the occasion exceeds the command whenever the grain that is to be transferred from diverse estates (saltus) is not collected at the customary places, but is carried such a distance that is burdensome and financially crippling to transport. 2. Accordingly, Your Esteemed Uprightness should bring it about that the same property[276] fulfills its own charges in the same places in which it previously provided grain.

(368–370).

[3] Emperors ARCADIUS and HONORIUS Augusti to Minervius, Count of Imperial Finances. We instruct that the prices for recruits demanded for the guilds (corpora) be paid from the farms held under perpetual lease of Our private property (nostra res privata).

(397–398).[277]

[4][278] Emperors HONORIUS and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Asclepiodotus, Praetorian Prefect. pr. Far be it from Us that We count among the humble public services the construction of a public road and bridges and the paving projects dedicated with the names of the great emperors. 1. Therefore no type of persons, by the merits of any rank or veneration, is to be exempt from the construction and repair of routes and bridges. 2.[279] We also gladly assign the imperial estates (domus divinae) to such a laudable purpose.

Given February 15, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Asclepiodotus and Marinianus (423).

[5][280] Emperors THEODOSIUS and VALENTINIAN Augusti to Flavianus, Praetorian Prefect. With the exception of the Patrimony (patrimonium) of Our Piety, whose income we assign very frequently to public needs, We decree 275 Proconsul of Africa 368–370. Seeck dates to April 26, 370; Schmidt-Hofner, to from December 368 to April 370.

276 Reading rem eandem, Cuiacius' emendation for remeantem.

277 Seeck gives November 12, 397.

278 = C.Th. 15.3.6. Combine with C. 12.37.15 (February 14).

279 Section 2 = C. 1.2.7.

280 = C.Th. 11.1.36; perhaps combine with C. 4.61.13 and possibly C. 2.15.1.

superindicticiis titulis absque ullius beneficii exceptione agnoscere oportere censemus.

D. III k. Mai. Ravennae Basso et Antiocho conss.

LXXVI De Grege Dominico

[1] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Caesario pp. Propositis edictis sublimis magnificentiae tuae minimi maximique moneantur, ut sciant singulas auri libras ex propriis facultatibus eruendas pro singulis equis vel equabus sive Hermogenianis sive Palmatis, nisi eos sponte obtulerint: in his vero, quos ex aliis gregibus occupatos esse constiterit, sex auri uncias fisci viribus inferendas.

D. prid. k. Dec. Constantinopoli Olybrio et Probino conss.

LXXVII De Palatiis Et Domibus Dominicis

[1] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Iohanni comiti rerum privatarum. Consecratas nobis aedes, id est inclita palatia, ab omni privatorum usu et communi habitatione excipimus.

LXXVIII De Cupressis Ex Luco Daphnensi Vel Perseis Per Aegyptum Non Excidendis Vel Vendendis

[1] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Silvano comiti rerum privatarum. Si quis Daphnensis luci in Syria vel Persei in Aegypto arborem comparaverit, quinque libris auri noverit se esse multandum: non minore dispendio et illo feriendo, qui vendere arbores ausus fuerit, quas non licet emptoribus comparare.

[2] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Eudoxio comiti sacrarum largitionum. pr. Omnes iudices cuiuscumque dignitatis sciant that all possessors must acknowledge charges in extraordinary additional tax assessments without the exception of any benefit.

Given April 29, at Ravenna, in the consulship of Bassus and Antiochus (431).

Seventy-Sixth Title The Imperial Herd

[1][281] Emperors Arcadius and Honorius Augusti to Caesarius, Praetorian Prefect. Upon the posting of the edicts of Your Sublime Magnificence, the least and the greatest should be warned that they might know that individual pounds of gold are to be paid from their own resources for horses or mares, whether Hermogenians or Palmatians, unless they have offered them (the horses) voluntarily; but for those which it is has been established have been seized from other herds, 6 ounces of gold are to be paid to the resources of the Treasury.

Given November 30, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Olybrius and Probinus (395).

Seventy-Seventh Title Palaces and Imperial Houses

[1][282] Emperors Theodosius and Valentinian Augusti to John, Count of the Privy Purse. We except houses consecrated to Us, that is the famous palaces, from all use and common habitation by private individuals.

Seventy-Eighth Title Cypress Trees from the Grove of Daphne or Perseus in Egypt Are Not to Be Cut Down or Sold

[1] Emperors Arcadius and Honorius Augusti to Silvanus, Count of the Privy Purse. If anyone purchases a tree from the Grove of Daphne in Syria or of Perseus in Egypt, he shall know that he is to be fined 5 pounds of gold; and that one who has dared to sell trees, which buyers are not permitted to purchase, is to be struck with no less of an expense.[283]

[2] Emperors Theodosius and Valentinian Augusti to Eudoxius, Count of Imperial Finances. pr. All governors (iudices) of any rank shall know that

[281] = C.Th. 10.6.1.
[282] Combine with C.Th. 5.16.35. Seeck gives 426–429.
[283] Seeck gives 395–400 as the constitution's date.

posthac absque permissu magnitudinis tuae arborem ex Daphnensi luco Antiochenae civitatis praecidendi vel quolibet modo lapsas transferendi licentiam sibimet denegandam. 1. Sed nec alytarcha unam cupressum aliis plantatis excidere sibi licere contendat. ac ne solacio antiquitus ei concesso privari per omnia videatur, pro eo, quod ei cupressum excidere denegatur, unam auri libram eum de privatis nostris largitionibus accipere decernimus: quinque librarum auri condemnatione huius legis temeratore plectendo.

henceforth without the permission of Your Greatness the right is to be denied them to cut a tree in the Grove of Daphne in the city of Antioch or to transport ones that have fallen in whatever fashion. 1. But the Alytarch (a religious official) shall not contend that he is allowed to cut one cypress after planting others. But so that he not seem to be deprived in all respects of the solace conceded[284] to him long ago, We decree that he receive one pound of gold from Our Private Benefactions (de privatis nostris largitioninibus) for the fact that cutting a tree is denied to him. The violator of this law is to be punished with a condemnation of 5 pounds of gold.[285]

284 See C.Th. 10.1.12.
285 Seeck gives 427–429 as the constitution's date.

Liber Duodecimus

I De Dignitatibus

[1] Imp. Alexander A. Severianae. Si, ut proponitis, et avum consularem et patrem praetorium virum habuistis, et non privatae condicionis hominibus, sed clarissimis nupseritis, claritatem generis retinetis.

Sine die et consule.

[2] Imp. Constantinus A. Volusiano pp. Neque famosis et notatis et quos scelus aut vitae turpitudo inquinat et quos infamia ab honestorum coetu segregat, dignitatis portae patebunt.

[3] Idem A. ad Rufinum pp. Maior dignitas nulli debet circa prioris dignitatis seu militiae privilegia praeiudicium facere.

D. v k. Mai. Sirmio Constantino A. v et Licinio C. conss.

[4] Impp. Constantius et Constans AA. Philippo pp. Senatorum substantias, quas in diversis locis et provinciis possident, et homines eorum tam a temonariis oneribus conferendis quam a ceteris praestationibus,

Twelfth Book

edited by Charles F. Pazdernik

First Title Official Positions of Rank[1]

[1][2] Emperor ALEXANDER Augustus to Severiana. If, as you state, you had a grandfather of consular rank and a father of praetorian rank, and you have not married men of private status, but men of clarissimus rank, you retain the splendor of your (natal) family.

Without date and Consul (222–235).

[2] Emperor CONSTANTINE Augustus to Volusianus, Praetorian Prefect.[3] The doors to an official position of rank (dignitas) will be open neither to the infamous nor to the disreputable, nor to those whom crime or turpitude of life defiles, nor to those whom infamy segregates from the association of respectable men (honesti).

(313–315).

[3][4] The same Augustus to Rufinus, Praetorian Prefect. (The attainment of) a greater official position of rank (dignitas) must not vitiate the privileges obtained by reason of a prior official position of rank or military or civil office (militia).

Given 27 April, at Sirmium, in the consulship of Constantine Augustus, for the fifth time, and the Caesar Licinius (319).

[4] Emperors CONSTANTIUS and CONSTANS Augusti to Philippus, Praetorian Prefect. We direct that the property of Senators in various places and provinces, as well as their people thereon, shall be exempt from the obligation of

[1] Higher military and administrative posts, styled dignitates, honores, or administrationes, are distinguished in the sources from service as a common soldier or non-commissioned officer in the army or as an official in the civil service, which is called militia.

[2] Late imperial texts refer to the ascending ranks of clarissimus (plur. clarissimi), spectabilis (spectabiles), and illustris (illustres). By the sixth century only illustres were members of the Senate; clarissimus and spectabilis remained titles of honor, and the former continued to be hereditary.

[3] Actually, the City Prefect of Rome. Seeck dates this constitution to March 19, 314.

[4] = C.Th. 6.35.3 (altered). Combine with C. 12.28.2. This constitution's date is disputed.

quas iudices describunt, nec non etiam ab omnibus sordidis extraordinariisque et vilioribus muneribus liberos esse praecipimus nullaque sorte constringi functionis indignae.

[5] Imp. Constantius A. ad Clearchum pu. pr. Nemo praefectus urbis citra praeceptionem vel scientiam nostram ulli muneri subiuget senatorem: nemo curiam nostram immani pulset iniuria. 1. Si quid enim senatoria praeditis dignitate fuerit forte mandandum, nostro est iudicio reservandum: sit namque dignitas, si[1] nobis iubentibus sustinetur.

[6] Idem A. ad Orfitum. Ne quis ex ultimis negotiatoribus vel monetariis abiectisque officiis vel deformis ministerii stationariis omnique officiorum faece diversisque pastis turpibus lucris aliqua frui dignitate pertemptet. sed et si quis meruerit, repellatur: repulsos autem etiam propriis reddi consortiis oportebit.

[7] Idem A. ad senatum. Quoniam diversi iudices nonnulla opera in quibusdam aestimant urbibus extruenda, ad huiusmodi necessitatem senatorum substantia non vocetur.

D. v non. Mai. Tauro et Florentio conss.

[8] Imp. Iulianus A. Sallustio pp. Ius senatorum et auctoritatem eius ordinis, in quo nos quoque ipsos numeramus, necesse est ab omni iniuria defendere.

D. non. Febr. Constantinopoli Mamertino et Nevitta conss.

[9] Impp. Valentinianus et Valens AA. ad Symmachum pu. Libertorum filios adipisci clarissimam dignitatem non prohibemus.

[1] sic <namque dignitas>

collecting recruit taxes (temonaria onera), as well as from other assessments levied by provincial governors (iudices), and also from all menial, supplementary, and ignoble compulsory public services (sordida extraordinariaque et viliora munera), and that they shall not be fettered by any disreputable function.

(346–349).

[5] Emperor CONSTANTIUS Augustus to Clearchus, City Prefect (of Constantinople). pr. No City Prefect shall subject a Senator to any compulsory public service (munus) without Our direction or knowledge; no one shall wrong Our Senate by (such) gross insult. 1. If anything, perchance, is to be imposed upon those possessing senatorial rank, this must be reserved for Our discretion; for when We are the ones issuing orders rank is in this way maintained.

(352–353?).[5]

[6] The same Augustus to Orfitus. Persons of the lowest grade of merchants, or minters (monetarii) and petty officials, or persons engaged in the base occupation of policeman (stationarius) and men of the lowest dregs of officialdom and those who live on various disgraceful gains, shall not attempt to enjoy any official position of rank (dignitas). If any (such) person has attained it, he shall be expelled; and those who are expelled must be returned to their own associates.

(357–360).[6]

[7][7] The same Augustus to the Senate. Since the various provincial governors (iudices) deem it proper to have some public works erected in certain cities, the property of Senators shall not be called on to contribute to this kind of compulsory service (necessitas).

Given May 3, in the consulship of Taurus and Florentius (361).

[8][8] Emperor JULIAN Augustus to Sallustius, Praetorian Prefect (of the Gauls). The right (ius) of Senators, and the standing (auctoritas) of that order, in which We also number ourselves, must be protected from every wrong.

Given February 5, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Mamertinus and Nevitta (362).

[9] Emperors VALENTINIAN and VALENS Augusti to Symmachus, City Prefect (of Rome). We do not prohibit sons of freedmen from acquiring clarissimus rank.

(364–365).

[5] Seeck gives September 6, 353.
[6] Seeck gives July 6, 355.
[7] = C.Th. 15.1.7. Combine with C. 7.62.23 and the other laws cited there.
[8] = C.Th. 9.2.1.

[10] Imppp. Valens Gratianus et Valentinianus AAA. ad Gracchum pu. Severam indagationem per tormenta quaerendi a clarissimo nomine submovemus.

D. prid. non. Ian. Treviris Gratiano A. IIII et Merobaude conss.

[11] Idem AAA. ad Procopium. pr. Senator vel alius clarissimus privatos habeat filios, editos quippe, antequam susciperet dignitatem: quod non solum circa masculos dignoscitur constitutum, verum etiam circa filias simili condicione servandum. 1. Cum autem paternos honores invidere filiis non oportet, a senatore vel solo clarissimo susceptum in clarissimatus sciendum est dignitate mansurum.

D. XVIII k. ... Hierapoli Gratiano A. IIII et Merobaude conss.

[12] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. Neoterio pp. Iudices, qui se furtis et sceleribus fuerint maculasse convicti, ablatis codicillorum insignibus et honore exuti inter pessimos quosque et plebeios habeantur, nec sibi posthac de eo honore blandiantur, quo se ipsi indignos iudicaverunt.

D. XVIII k. Febr. Thessalonicae Gratiano V et Theodosio AA. conss.

[13] Imppp. Valentinianus Theodosius et Arcadius AAA. Marciano comiti Orientis. Mulieres honore maritorum erigimus, genere nobilitamus et forum ex eorum persona statuimus et domicilia mutamus. sin autem minoris ordinis virum postea sortitae sunt, priore dignitate privatae posterioris mariti sequantur condicionem.

D. IIII id. Nov. Constantinopoli Arcadio A. II et Rufino conss.

[14] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Basso pp. Praecipimus, ut senatori in qualibet provincia constituto nullam habeant iudices iniungendi aliquid forte publici muneris potestatem.

[10][9] Emperors VALENS, GRATIAN, and VALENTINIAN Augusti to Gracchus, City Prefect (of Rome). We withhold the harsh method of investigation by means of torture from persons of clarissimus rank (a clarissimo nomine).

Given January 4, at Trier, in the consulship of Gratian Augustus, for the fourth time, and Merobaudes (377).

[11][10] The same Augusti to Procopius. pr. The sons of a Senator or other person of clarissimus rank shall be persons of private status, namely those who were born before the rank was received; and this is known to be decreed not only as to sons, but applies in like manner to daughters. 1. Since, however, paternal honors should not put children at a disadvantage, it must be known that the child born to a Senator or any other clarissimus shall remain in the ranks of the clarissimi.

Given the 18th day before the kalends of ..., at Hierapolis, in the consulship of Gratian Augustus, for the fourth time, and Merobaudes (377).

[12][11] Emperors GRATIAN, VALENTINIAN, and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Neoterius, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). Provincial governors (iudices) convicted of having stained themselves by theft or other crime shall be deprived of the insignia conferred by their diplomas (codicilli), shorn of their honor and considered as among the lowest of men and as plebeians; nor shall they thereafter flatter themselves with the honor of which they proved themselves unworthy.

Given January 15, at Thessalonica, in the consulship of Gratian, for the fifth time, and Theodosius, Augusti (380).

[13][12] Emperors VALENTINIAN, THEODOSIUS, and ARCADIUS Augusti to Marcianus (Martinianus), Count of the East. We elevate women through the honor of their husbands; through the family (of their husbands) We ennoble them; on the basis of the legal status (persona) of their husbands We determine their (proper) legal forum and change their domicile. If, however, they later acquire a husband of a lesser station, they should be deprived of their previous rank and follow the rank of their later husband.

Given at November 10, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Arcadius Augustus, for the second time, and Rufinus (392).

[14]Emperors THEODOSIUS and VALENTINIAN Augusti to Bassus, Praetorian Prefect. We direct that provincial governors (iudices) shall have no power of attaching to a Senator, in whatever province located, any compulsory public service (publicum munus) whatsoever.

(426).[13]

[9] = C.Th. 9.35.3, which has "from the senatorial name" (a senatorio nomine).
[10] pr. = C.Th. 6.2.7 (altered). Seeck dates to Summer 377.
[11] = C.Th. 9.27.1.
[12] = C. 10.40.9; C.Th. 2.1.7.
[13] Seeck gives March 6, 426.

[15] Idem AA. ad Neuthium pu. Clarissimis vel spectabilibus universis ad genitale solum vel quolibet alio et sine commeatu proficiscendi et ubi voluerint commorandi habitandive permittimus facultatem.

[16] Idem AA. Apollonio pp. Si gravius ullum facinus admittatur, nocente persona extra carceralem custodiam substitutione habita, super illustribus quidem nobis suggeri iubemus, super ceteris vero quadam minore dignitate decoratis ad tui referri culminis notionem, ut ita demum, quid de admisso crimine constitui oporteat, iudicetur.

[17] Imp. Zeno A. Arcadio pp. pr. Quotiens ex privata cuiuslibet interpellatione civili vel criminali viri illustres conveniendi sunt, nulla dandae fideiussionis concussione vexentur, sed per speciale privilegium suae committi fidei consequantur, iuratoria ab his cautione tantummodo exponenda. 1. Quam si neglexerint et contra insertum cautioni sacramentum ipsi vel eorum procuratores afuerint, in pecuniariis quidem causis super possessione rerum ad eos pertinentium iudex competens, quod et iuris auctoritas et rei qualitas suggerit, ordinabit: in criminalibus vero negotiis dignitate quoque, qua se per suum videlicet periurium indignos esse probaverint, spolientur, ut in eos utpote illustri dignitate per suum facinus privatos inconsulta etiam nostra pietate iudicibus legum severitatem liceat exercere.

2. Quibus illustrium dignitatum privilegiis hoc etiam adiciendum statuimus, ut huiusmodi personae nullam ex cuiuslibet iudicis sine scriptis habita sententia conventionem neque in civili neque in criminali causa sustineant.

[18] Imp. Anastasius A. Eusebio magistro officiorum. Iubemus salvo honore, qui per evocationem sacrae revocatoriae defertur, durante licere cunctis tam maiores quam minores potestates gerentibus nec non etiam honorariis illustribus sive ex hac urbe regia, principali videlicet praecedente consensu, profecti fuerint, sive in provinciis habitantes

[15] The same Augusti to Neuthius, City Prefect. We allow all persons of clarissimus or spectabilis rank to go, without leave (commeatus), to their native soil or wherever they desire, and to tarry and live wherever they wish.

(426–443).[14]

[16] The same Augusti to Apollonius, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). If any serious crime is committed, and the guilty person has given bond instead of being in custody in prison,[15] We order that where persons of illustris rank are concerned, the matter shall be reported to us; if it concerns other persons, decorated by some lesser rank, the matter shall be referred to Your Highness, so that in this manner it may be determined what ought to be decided concerning the crime committed.

(442–443).

[17][16] Emperor Zeno Augustus to Arcadius, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). Whenever persons of illustris rank are to be summoned in any private suit, civil or criminal, they should not be troubled by an outrageous demand of suretyship (fideiussio), but they shall enjoy the special privilege of simply giving their guaranty on oath (cautio iuratoria) for their appearance. 1. If they fail to comply with their guaranty contrary to the oath contained therein, and they or their procurators remain absent, then the competent judge, if it is a pecuniary suit, shall render a judgment concerning the possession of the property belonging to them, in accordance with what the authority of the law and the situation of the matter in hand may suggest; in criminal cases, they shall also be deprived of their official rank, of which, by their perjury, they have shown themselves manifestly unworthy, so that judges, without consulting Our Piety, may apply the severity of the laws to them, as to men deprived of their illustris rank by their own crime.

2. We decree this further privilege of illustris rank to be granted, that persons of this kind shall not be summoned by any judge in any case, civil or criminal, without a written decision (to that effect).

(485–486?).

[18] Emperor Anastasius Augustus to Eusebius, Master of Offices. We order that, notwithstanding the honor attached to the issuance of an imperial summons (sacra revocatoria), all who occupy superior and inferior official positions (potestates), as well as persons of honorary illustris rank (honorarii illustres), may come to this capital city without an imperial summons, whether they had previously departed therefrom, it would seem, with the Emperor's sacratissimum, suis scilicet poscentibus negotiis, petere maluerint comitatum, sine sacra quoque revocatoria ad hanc regiam urbem pervenire.

[14] Seeck gives 326–343.

[15] This is the sense, as indicated by the Basilika, although the reading is uncertain.

[16] Combine with C. 3.24.3. The date is corrected to 490 following Lounghis et al.

II De Praetoribus et Honore Praeturae et Gleba et Folli et Septem Solidorum Functione Sublata

[1] Impp. Valentinianus et Marcianus AA. Tatiano pu. Nemo ex clarissimis et spectabilibus qui in provinciis degunt ad praeturam postea devocetur: maneat unusquisque domi suae tutus atque securus et sua dignitate laetetur.

D. xv k. Ian. Constantinopoli Valentiniano A. vii et Avieno conss.

[2] Idem AA. ad senatum. Glebam vel follem sive septem solidorum functionem sive quamlibet eiusmodi collationem tam circa personas quam circa res ac praedia funditus iubemus aboleri, ut omnis huiusmodi sopita perpetuo conquiescat exactio.

III De Consulibus et Non Spargendis ab His Pecuniis et de Praefectis et Magistris Militum et Patriciis

[1] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. ad senatum urbis ... pr. Antiquitus statutum est consularibus viris ceteros quidem honoratos ipsius trabeae summitate, pares vero infulis consideratione tantum temporis anteire. 1. Quis enim in uno eodemque genere dignitatis prior esse debuerat, nisi qui prior meruit dignitatem? cum posterior, et si eiusdem honoris praetendat auspicia, cedere tamen illius temporis consuli debeat, quo ipse non fuerit. 2. Hoc observando et si iterata vice fastigia consulatus aliquis adscenderit: repetiti etenim fasces virtutes saepe meriti comprobant, non augent, quia nihil est altius dignitate. 3. Quod si quis prior consul posteriori consuli eidemque patricio posthabitus patriciatum postea consequatur, vinci eum oportet qui prior consent or whether they live in the provinces and want to come to the imperial court on their own, undoubtedly urgent, business.

(492–497).

Second Title Praetors and the Honor of the Praetorship, and the Abolition of the Gleba, Follis, and "7 Solidi"

[1][17] Emperors VALENTINIAN and MARCIAN Augusti to Tatianus, City Prefect (of Constantinople). No one of clarissimus or spectabilis rank who lives in the provinces shall hereafter be called to the Praetorship; each shall be safe and secure at home enjoying his rank.

Given December 18, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Valentinian Augustus, for the seventh time, and Avienus (450).

[2] The same Augusti to the Senate. We order that (the tax on Senators called) the gleba or follis or the payment of "7 solidi," or any contribution of this sort as to persons, their property, or lands, shall be utterly abolished, so that every imposition of this kind, once laid to rest, may forever cease.[18]

(450–455).

Third Title Consuls, and That Money Not Be Scattered by Them; and Prefects, Masters of Soldiers, and Patricians

[1] The Emperors THEODOSIUS and VALENTINIAN Augusti to the Senate of the City (of Constantinople). pr. It has long since been established, in the case of ex-Consuls, that others who have been honored by the surpassing splendor of the same consular vestment (trabea) and are equal as to their insignia of office (infulae) take precedence (over their fellow ex-Consuls) only by reason of time. 1. For who should rather take precedence within one and the same rank than he who first received the rank? The one later in time, though he claims the perquisites of the same honor, must nevertheless give way to one who was Consul at the time when he himself was not. 2. This applies even if anyone ascends the heights of the consulship a second time; for fasces that are regained often, indeed, confirm the superlative qualities of the man thus rewarded, but they do not enhance those qualities, because nothing is greater than the rank itself. 3. But if an earlier Consul, having ceded precedence to a subsequent Consul who is also a Patrician, should thereafter attain the patriciate, he who first meruit patriciatum, postquam iste honore patriciae dignitatis decoratus est.

[17] Combine with C. 1.39.2.

[18] The gleba ("clod") or follis, instituted by Constantine, was an annual surtax on the landed wealth of Senators; its lowest assessment was 7 solidi.

[2] Impp. Valentinianus et Marcianus AA. Sporacio comiti domesticorum et consuli. pr. Ordinem consulatus ad antiquam reduximus sanctionem, ut sellam nostram honoris merito, non rapiendi studio populorum agmina sectarentur ac lucrandi cupiditate deposita venerabilem parentum habitum et felicissima antiquitatis ornamenta conspicerent. 1. Hoc ergo exemplo etiam ceteros procedere consules volumus nec expendere eos sine effectu patimur. 2. Cessante ergo ista spargendi vilitate amplissimi consules procedentes deinceps abstineant hoc errore perdendi, optimoque consilio operi necessario proficiat, quod erat incompetenter proiciendum. 3. Ad instaurationem itaque aquaeductuum huius amplissimae urbis centena pondo auri praestentur per singulos consulatus, ut et consul patriae se dedisse noverit et data notum sit mansura esse perpetuo.

[3] Imp. Zeno A. pr. Nemini ad sublimen patriciatus honorem, qui ceteris omnibus anteponitur, adscendere liceat, nisi prius aut consulatus honore potiatur aut praefecturae praetorio vel Illyrici vel urbis administrationem aut magistri militum aut magistri officiorum, in actu videlicet positus, gessisse noscatur, ut huiusmodi tantum personis sive adhuc administrationem gerendo seu postea liceat (quando hoc nostrae sederit maiestati) patriciam consequi dignitatem. 1. Quoniam vero gloriosissimae huic urbi, quae caput orbis terrarum est, omnifariam credimus consulendum, universos, qui posthac honorarii consulatus insignibus principali munificentia decorantur, centum auri libras ad reficiendum aquaeductum publicum ministrare censemus ad similitudinem eorum, qui per annale tempus consularium editione munerum gloriantur. nam ipsis quoque expedit, ut florentissima civitas centum auri librarum munificentia sustentata honorarium quoque sentiat consulatum.

became Patrician must give way, once the prior Consul has been decorated with the honor of the patrician rank.

(c. 426).[19]

[2] Emperors VALENTINIAN and MARCIAN Augusti to Sporacius, Count of the Household and Consul. pr. We have restored the order of the consulate to its ancient dignity so that the body of the populace will gather about Our seat of honor out of respect and not out of any desire for plunder, and may behold the venerable attire of the Fathers and the most salubrious ornaments of antiquity, all desire for gain having been abandoned. 1. We desire, then, that future Consuls conduct their processions in accordance herewith and do not permit them to squander money uselessly. 2. The despicable custom of scattering it about shall therefore cease, and the Most Exalted Consuls shall hereafter in their processions abstain from such foolish waste, and what (heretofore) was to be foolishly thrown away shall, in accordance with the best of plans, (hereafter) accomplish necessary work. 3. One hundred pounds of gold, therefore, shall be furnished towards the repair of the aqueducts of this most exalted city during each consulship, so that the Consul may know that he has given something to the fatherland, and it may be known that what has been given will last forever.

(452).[20]

[3] Emperor ZENO Augustus. pr. No one shall be permitted to rise to the exalted rank of Patrician, which takes precedence over all others, unless he has first received the honor of the consulship, or is known actually to have exercised the functions of Praetorian Prefect (of the East) or of Illyricum, or as City Prefect, Master of Soldiers, or Master of Offices; so that these persons only, during or after their administration, shall be permitted to receive the patriciate, whenever it shall seem good to Our Majesty. 1. And since We believe it Our duty to look out in every way for the welfare of this most glorious city, which is the capital of the world, We decree that all those who, by imperial munificence, are hereafter decorated by the insignia of the honorary consulship shall furnish 100 pounds of gold for the restoration of the public aqueducts, just like those who glory each year in the exhibition of consular games; for it is of advantage to them as well, that this most flourishing city (Constantinople), enriched by the munificence of 100 pounds of gold, may also be sensible of an honorary consulship.

(474–491).[21]

[19] Seeck dates to February 24, 426.
[20] Seeck dates to late 451.
[21] Lounghis et al. give between 476 and 480 or 484.

[4] Idem A. Sebastiano pp. pr. Sancimus viris excellentissimis consularibus omnibus, qui iam facti sunt vel postea fuerint, procedendi quoque et re ipsa per annum gerendi consulatus, impetrato videlicet principali iudicio, legitimam tribui facultatem, ita ut acta quam meruerint processione non novum aliquid vel quod nondum habeant adipisci, sed consulatus ius, quod semel eis consularitas detulerat, processionis iterasse beneficio videantur et in adoranda nostra purpura vel in consequendis cunctis consulum honoribus et privilegiis ex anteriore tempore provectionis ordinem sibimet noverint vindicandum. 1. Hoc etiam observando, ut huiusmodi consul nec centum libras auri aquaeductibus huius inclitae civitatis pro tenore sacrae constitutionis praebendas, quas cum esset consularis praestiterat, consul postea creatus persolvere denuo compellatur.

[5] Imp. Iustinianus A. Iohanni pp. pr. Sancimus viros excelsos patricios, quos in huiusmodi dignitatis apicem augusta maiestas rettulerit, ilico ab imperialibus codicillis praestitis patres familias effici ac potestate liberari paterna, ne videantur, qui a nobis loco patris honorantur, alieno iuri esse subiecti. 1. Quis enim patiatur patrem quidem posse per emancipationis modum suis nexibus filium relaxare, imperatoriam autem celsitudinem non valere eum quem sibi patrem elegit ab aliena eximere potestate? ne, si contrarium approbetur, per quamcumque machinationem imperialis maiestas minui videatur. 2. Et hoc quidem raro contingere satis certum est: nemo enim facile respexit filium familias in patriciatus honorem provectum, quemadmodum in consulibus haec res usitata est. 3. Sed ne quid in parte temporis tale eveniat et sine legibus inveniatur, ideo haec nobis visa sunt sancienda.

IIII De Praefectis Praetorio sive Urbis et Magistris Militum in Dignitatibus Exaequandis

[1] Imppp. Valentinianus Valens et Gratianus AAA. ad Ampelium pu. Praefectum urbis praefectum praetorio magistros equitum ac peditum

[4] The same Augustus to Sebastianus, Praetorian Prefect (of the East?). pr. We ordain that all the viri excellentissimi present or future (honorary) Consuls may, once imperial permission has been obtained, have the lawful right to hold a procession and to perform the actual functions of the consulship for a year. Having held the procession, to which they were granted the right, they shall not appear to have obtained something new or what they did not already have, but to have repeated the right of the consulship, which the (honorary) consulship had previously conferred upon them, with the favor of a procession; and in adoring Our purple and enjoying all the honors and privileges of Consuls, they should know that they may claim precedence according to the time of their first advancement. 1. It must be further observed that such a Consul shall not be compelled to pay over again 100 pounds of gold for the aqueducts of this Famous City as required according to the tenor of the (earlier) imperial constitution,[22] which he had already paid when he was an (honorary) Consul, once he has subsequently been made an (actual) Consul.

(476–484).[23]

[5] Emperor JUSTINIAN Augustus to John, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). We ordain that the Eminent Patricians, whom August Majesty has raised to the summit of such a dignity, become, immediately upon the issuance of imperial diplomas (codicilli), patres familias and are liberated from paternal power, lest those who are honored by us as fathers should seem to be subjected to another's power. 1.[24] For who would tolerate that a father should be able to release a son from his bonds by emancipation, but that imperial eminence should not have the power to release a man whom it has selected as one of its fathers from the power of another? If the contrary should be supposed to be true, imperial majesty would seem to be diminished by some misconstruction. 2. It is certain that this will happen rarely enough; for few see a son in his father's power advanced to the honor of the patriciate, though this is customary in the case of Consuls. 3. But lest such a thing might happen in the course of time without a law in relation thereto, We have deemed it best to enact these provisions.

(531–533).[25]

Fourth Title Equality in Rank of the Praetorian Prefect, the City Prefect, and the Master of Soldiers

[1][26] Emperors VALENTINIAN, VALENS, and GRATIAN Augusti to Ampelius, City Prefect (of Rome). We deem the City Prefect, the Praetorian Prefect, and [22] That is, C. 12.3.3.1.

[23] Lounghis et al. give between 476 and 480 or 484.
[24] = Inst. 1.12.4.
[25] Lounghis et al. date to either between February 531, and January 532, or between October 18, 532, and November 534.
[26] = C.Th. 6.7.1. Combine with C. 12.12.1 (= C.Th. 6.14.1); C.Th. 6.9.1, 6.11.1, 6.22.4.

indiscretae ducimus dignitatis, usque adeo videlicet, ut, cum ad privatam secesserint vitam, eum loco velimus esse potiorem, qui alios promotionis tempore et codicillorum adeptione praecesserit.

D. III non. Iul. Nasonaci. acc. III non. Sept. Modesto et Arintheo conss.

[2] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. Restituto pu. pr. Quisquis magisterium equitum peditumque susceperit et gesserit ante captam a quoquam praefecturam, is, cum privatus erit et honorem deposuerit, ex praefectis qui provecti fuerint praeferatur. 1. Si igitur sedes prior ante provectis, locus conspectior, decernendi loquendique facultas antiquior, cui est splendor adepti magistratus vetustior.

D. VIII k. Iul. Thessalonicae Gratiano V et Theodosio AA. conss.

V De Praepositis Sacri Cubiculi et de Omnibus Cubiculariis et Privilegiis Eorum

[1] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Florentio pu. Sacri cubiculi praepositi ea dignitate fungantur, qua sunt praediti, qui eminentissimam praetorianam vel urbanam meruerint praefecturam aut certe militarem magisteriam potestatem, ita ut sit inter eos post depositas administrationes nulla discretio, sive nostrae serenitatis adoraturi admittuntur imperium sive pro suo arbitrio sollemnes festivitates et coetus vel salutationes vel quaelibet alia officia frequentent, ut in sedibus et in consessu is eis ordo servetur, quem ordo provectionis ostenderit, sub habitu ipsis videlicet consueto, cum manifeste decretum sit eum esse qui praecesserit potiorem, vel illum subsequi, quem recentius probavit examen.

D. VIII id. Nov. Constantinopoli Honorio XIII et Theodosio X AA. conss.

the Masters of Cavalry and of Infantry (magistri equitum ac peditum) to be equal in rank, to such an extent, indeed, that when they have retired to private life, We want the person who was first promoted and first received his diplomas (codicilli) to take precedence over the others.

Given July 5, at Nasonacum; received September 3, in the consulship of Modestus and Arintheus (372).

[2][27] Emperors Gratian, Valentinian, and Theodosius Augusti to Rest(it)utus, Prefect of the City (of Constantinople). pr. Whoever has assumed and performed the official duties of Master of Cavalry and Infantry before another entered upon a prefecture shall, after retirement to private life and relinquishment of his post of honor, take precedence over ex-Prefects promoted (after him). 1. Persons promoted ahead of others shall therefore have the more prominent seat, the more distinguished place, and the right of deciding and speaking first, which are the prerogatives of one who was first in acquiring the splendor of a magistracy.

Given June 24, at Thessalonica, in the consulship of Gratian, for the fifth time, and Theodosius, Augusti (380).

Fifth Title The Grand Chamberlain and All Chamberlains and Their Privileges

[1][28] Emperors Honorius and Theodosius Augusti to Florentius, City Prefect (of Constantinople). Grand Chamberlains (sacri cubiculi praepositi) shall enjoy the same rank as those who have reached the most eminent Praetorian Prefecture or City Prefecture, or certainly those who have received the authority (potestas) of the Master of Soldiers, and there shall be no distinction (in rank) among them after they have relinquished their posts, either when they are admitted to adore the power (imperium) of Our Serenity, or when present, at their discretion, at customary festivities, assemblies, salutations, or other functions (officia), so that in reference to being seated, and in assemblies, the order of precedence shall be observed for them that is indicated by the order of their promotion, provided they wear the customary (official) attire, since it has been clearly decreed that one who preceded (another in attaining his office) takes precedence (on such occasions), and that the other, whom a more recent consideration has approved, follows.

Given November 6, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Honorius, for the thirteenth time, and Theodosius, for the tenth time, Augusti (422).

[27] = C.Th. 6.7.2. Combine with C. 12.6.1 (= C.Th. 6.9.2).
[28] = C.Th. 6.8.1. The date is restored by Seeck.

[2] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Proculo pu. pr. Hac nostrae mansuetudinis aeterna lege sancimus, ut omnes cubicularii, qui de nostro cubiculo exeunt, antequam primum locum obtineant, excepto castrensi et comite domorum his privilegiis perfruantur, id est ut nec possessiones eorum angarias sive parangarias vel etiam paraveredos in posterum dispositione tui culminis vel alicuius calumnia dare cogantur, ne sordidis adstricti muneribus decus ministerii, quod militando videbantur adepti, otii tempore et quietis amittant. 1. Domos quoque eorum vel in hac sacratissima urbe vel in qualibet alia positas civitate ab omni hospitum cuiuslibet dignitatis inquietudine vindicamus. 2. Provinciarum rectoribus eorumque apparitionibus denarum librarum auri dispendio feriendis, si mansuetudinis nostrae statuta dissimulare et ex aliqua parte violare temptaverint.

[3] Impp. Leo et Anthemius AA. Iohanni comiti et magistro officiorum. Cubicularios tam sacri cubiculi mei quam venerabilis Augustae, quos utrosque certum est obsequiis occupatos et aulae penetralibus inhaerentes diversa iudicia obire non posse, ab observatione aliorum tribunalium liberamus, ut in sublimitatis solummodo tuae iudicio propositas adversus se excipiant actiones.

[4] Imp. Leo A. Pusaeo pp. pr. Iubemus omnes, qui vel iam in sacrum cubiculum cuiuspiam liberalitate donati aliove titulo dati vel dandi principalibus obsequiis inhaerere vel ante meruerunt vel postea meruerint, licet nulla interveniente scriptura, nulla confectione gestorum, postquam devotissimis cubiculariis fuerint sociati, ad condicionem libertatis ingenuitatisque rapiantur raptique videantur. 1. Hoc non solum circa superstites, sed etiam circa mortuos volumus custodiri.

[2][29] Emperors THEODOSIUS and VALENTINIAN Augusti to Proculus, City Prefect (of Constantinople). By this eternal law of Our Clemency, We ordain that all chamberlains (cubicularii) who retire from Our chamber before reaching the foremost position, excepting the Steward (castrensis) and the Count of the Household (comes domorum), shall enjoy the following privileges: that is to say, their property shall not be burdened hereafter by any regular or supplementary requisitions of vehicles or mounts for the public post (angariae, sive parangariae vel etiam paraveredi) either on order of Your Highness or pursuant to the vexatious information (calumnia) of anyone; and they shall not, in their time of leisure and peace, lose the respectability (decus ministerii) which they appeared to have acquired through their service by being held liable for menial compulsory public services (sordida munera). 1.[30] We exempt also their houses, whether situated in this Most Imperial City or in any other city, from the duty of quartering any persons of any rank whatever. 2. The governors (rectores) of the provinces and their subordinates (apparitores) will be punished by a fine of 10 pounds of gold, if they attempt to disregard or in any way to violate these provisions of Our Clemency.

(Given January 31, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Felix and Taurus [428]).

[3][31] Emperors LEO and ANTHEMIUS Augusti to John, Count and Master of Offices. The chamberlains (cubicularii) of my imperial chamber and of that of the esteemed Augusta, who, occupied as they are by their duties and obliged to attend upon the innermost recesses of the court, certainly cannot attend the various judicial tribunals, We exempt from appearance in other jurisdictions, so that only in the tribunal of Your Sublimity must they answer actions brought against them.

(467–468).

[4] Emperor LEO Augustus to Pusaeus, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). pr. We order that all (slaves) who have heretofore been given to Our imperial chamber by the liberality of anyone, or who by any grant have been or will hereafter be given, and who have heretofore been or will hereafter be attached to the service of the Emperor, shall, after they have been associated with the most devoted chamberlains (cubicularii), be rendered and be seen to have been rendered free and free-born, although no document or record in relation thereto has been executed. 1. We desire this to be observed with respect not only to the living but [29] Combine with C.Th. 6.2.26, 6.27.22 (from which the subscription is restored). Seeck gives the date.

[30] Compare C. 12.16.3.2–3.

[31] Combine with C. 12.25.3; see also 12.59.8.

nam cum hoc privilegium videatur principalis esse proprium maiestatis, ut non famulorum, sicut privatae condicionis homines, sed liberorum honestis utantur obsequiis, periniquum est eos dumtaxat pati fortunae deterioris incommoda. 2. Sed testamenta quidem ad similitudinem aliorum, qui ingenuitatis infulis decorantur, pro sua liceat eis condere voluntate: intestatorum vero nemo dubitet facultates utpote sine legitimis successoribus defunctorum fisci viribus vindicari.

3. Haec omnia tunc diligenti observatione volumus custodiri, cum sponte suaque voluntate quis dederit eunuchum sacri cubiculi ministeriis adhaesurum. 4. Si vero cuidam fuerit violenter extortus, aut invito domino vel ignaro intra sacrum ausus sit militare cubiculum, liceat domino destinatum sacra ex lege cubiculariis interpellare iudicium et eum, quem probaverit nolente se vel inscio sacrum penetrasse cubiculum, ut suum famulum cum peculio consequatur.

5. Sed sicut laesis implorandi praesidii facultatem denegari non convenit, ita nec calumniandi viam patimur diutius esse patefactam. ideoque tempus quinquennii praefinimus, intra quod contra eum suas debeant exercere quaestiones, ut, si medio tempore movere distulerint, ulterius eis tamquam in suum famulum vindicandi vel eius ut servi peculium vel bona quasi liberti copia denegetur.

6. Haec omnia, quae super devotissimis cubiculariis sancimus, etiam ad cubicularias, quae a dominis in sacrum cubiculum datae vel dandae sunt, superstites atque mortuas extendi propagarique decernimus.

[5] Imp. Anastasius A. Eusebio magistro officiorum. Iubemus duobus viris illustribus praepositis utriusque sacri cubiculi tam nostrae pietatis quam nostrae serenissimae coniugis, post finitam militiam si senatorio fuerint consortio sociati, licere, quotiens ad adspiciendos agros suos vel ob aliam causam proficisci voluerint, cingulo uti, cum hoc ad implendum eorum desiderium et ad nullius laesionem respicere videatur.

also to the dead. For since it is observed to be the special privilege of the imperial majesty to use the services, not of slaves, as people of private status (privata condicio) do, but the honorable services of free people, it would be very iniquitous if these only (i.e., the dead) should suffer the disadvantages of an inferior status. 2. They (the chamberlains) shall be permitted to make testaments, at their discretion, just like those who are decorated by the ornaments (infulae) of free birth. If they die intestate, no one needs to doubt that their property will be claimed for the Treasury, since the deceased are without legal heirs.

3. We desire then all these provisions to be strictly observed when anyone has freely and voluntarily given a eunuch for service in the imperial chamber. 4. If the eunuch, however, was taken from anyone by force, or if he shall dare to serve in the imperial chamber against the wish or without the knowledge of the master, the latter may cite him to appear in the tribunal designated for chamberlains by imperial law[32] and recover, in addition to the peculium, the slave whom he can show to have entered the imperial chamber without his consent or knowledge.

5. But just as, on one hand, it is not proper to deny to the injured the opportunity to implore assistance, so, on the other hand, We do not allow the path of persecution to remain open very long. We fix therefore a period of five years within which masters may commence their action, and if they fail to do so in that time, the opportunity to reclaim the slave or his peculium, or his property as that of a freedman, shall be denied.

6. All these provisions We have made concerning the most devoted male chamberlains (cubicularii), We determine shall be extended and applied to female chamberlains (cubiculariae), living or dead, given or to be given by their masters to the imperial chamber.

(467–468).[33]

[5] Emperor ANASTASIUS Augustus to Eusebius, Master of Offices. We order that the two Grand Chamberlains (praepositi sacri cubiculi), that of Our Piety and that of Our Most Serene Consort, both persons of illustris rank, shall be permitted, after their terms of service, if they have been associated with the senatorial order (senatorium consortium), to wear the belt of their office (cingulum) whenever they want to go away to inspect their lands or for other purposes, since this would seem to give them satisfaction and injures no one.

(492–497).

[32] C. 12.5.3.
[33] Seeck dates to 473.

VI De Quaestoribus Magistris Officiorum Comitibus Sacrarum Largitionum et Rei Privatae

[1] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. Restituto pu. Qui ex quaesturae honore aut efficaci magisterio aut comitiva utriusque aerarii nostri attonito splendore viguerunt, acclamatione excipiantur solita nec praetereantur ut incogniti.

D. VIII k. Iun. Thessalonicae Gratiano V et Theodosio AA. conss.

VII De Primicerio et Secundocerio et Notariis

[1] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. Eutropio pp. pr. Praecipua est nostrae pietatis intentio circa notariorum nomen: atque ideo, si umquam huius ordinis viri laborem quiete mutaverint vel senectute posuerint seu cum alia dignitate post hanc qualibet usi sunt, non omittant prioris vocabulum militiae, sed compendium sequentis honoris adsumant. 1. Et si quis ex officio vel praecipue sublimitatis tuae temerarius ad census discussiones peraequationes, aliam denique ullam rem inquietator extiterit, officium suum noverit vel levis culpae offensione detecta gravis multae discrimine fatigandum et numerariorum corpus extincto iniuriae auctore minuendum.

D. XVII k. Iul. Thessalonicae Gratiano V et Theodosio AA. conss.

[2] Imp. Zeno A. Hilariano magistro officiorum. pr. Praeclaram nobilemque militiam spectabilium tribunorum notariorum, qui gloriosis obsequiis nonnihil rei publicae commoditatis adferunt et decoris, diversis beneficiorum titulis muniendam credidimus et augendam. 1. Nam biennales metas viro spectabili pro tempore primicerio agendis numeris duximus statuendas.

Sixth Title Quaestors, Masters of Offices, Counts of Imperial Benefactions and of the Privy Purse

[1][34] Emperors GRATIAN, VALENTINIAN, and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Rest(it)utus, City Prefect (of Constantinople). Those who have lived in amazing splendor on account of the honor of the Quaestorship, the powerful office of Master (of Offices), or the Countship of either Treasury must be received with the customary acclamation and not passed by unrecognized.

Given May 25, at Thessalonica, in the consulship of Gratian, for the fifth time, and Theodosius, Augusti (380).[35]

Seventh Title The Chief Secretary, First Assistant Chief Secretary, and Notaries

[1][36] Emperors GRATIAN, VALENTINIAN, and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Eutropius, Praetorian Prefect (of Illyricum). pr. Our Piety has a special regard for the name of notaries (notariorum nomen). And, therefore, if men of this order have ever changed their labor for quietude, or laid their position aside on account of age, or have, after their service in this order, obtained another position of rank, they shall not neglect the designation of their former service, but add to it the reward of the subsequent honor. 1. If any member of an official staff, especially anyone of the official staff of Your Sublimity, should be so imprudent as to disturb such persons with the burden of tax inspection or equalization or with any other matter, his staff must know that it incurs the risk of a heavy fine, even though the offense is revealed to be slight, and that the number of chief accountants (numerarii) will be diminished by the dismissal of the author of the offense.

Given June 15, at Thessalonica, in the consulship of Gratian, for the fifth time, and Theodosius Augusti (380).

[2][37] Emperor ZENO Augustus to Hilarianus, Master of Offices. pr. We believe that the distinguished and noble service of the tribunes of notaries, of spectabilis rank, who by their glorious services bring advantage and dignity to the state, ought to be fortified and exalted with various conferrals of benefits. 1. We have thought it best to limit the vir spectabilis Chief Secretary (primicerius) to a period of two years of leading the corps (numeri).

[34] = C.Th. 6.9.2. Combine with C. 12.4.2 (= C.Th. 6.7.2, which supplies the corrected date).

[35] Seeck dates to June 24, 380.

[36] = C.Th. 6.10.1. This law is probably separate from 5.1.3 and the other laws addressed to Eutropius cited there. Accordingly, there is no need to emend the date.

[37] Combine with C. 12.40.11. This was probably a law of Leo II and Zeno.

2. Hos autem tribunos, qui suis negotiis occupati minime sacrum palatium curaverint frequentandum, nisi intra annale spatium revertantur, quamvis commeatus iura praetendunt, pro absentia quidem unius anni unius gradus, si vero duobus annis afuerint, duorum, si tribus, trium, si quattuor, similiter quattuor graduum subire iacturam his qui inferiores eis fuerint postponendos. 3. Qui vero per quinquennium integrum se repraesentare cessaverint, exemptos matricula tantum nomine tribunorum, nec vero ordine perpotiri, his in hunc modum dispositis vacationem census discussionis peraequationes et cuiuslibet alterius rei habituros.

4. Illud praecipue provisionem nostram flagitare perspeximus, ne per ambitionem aut gratiam aut cuiuslibet occasionis obtentu vel laborum seu sollicitudinum specie publicorum cuiquam liceat aliquando graduum seriem conturbare et temporum ratione calcata dudum militantibus anteferri et, quae longis prolixisque stipendiis defensa iam pollicetur senectus, gratiosa festinatione subripere. 5. Hoc etiam adiciendo, ut primicerius post depositam publicam numerorum sollicitudinem, ac si ipsam gessisset administrationem, cuius consequitur dignitatem, magistri officiorum pro antiqua consuetudine infulas sortiatur, omnibus vacantibus quamvis tempore praecedentibus praeponendus.

VIII Ut Dignitatum Ordo Servetur

[1] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. ad Praetextatum pp. Si quis indebitum sibi locum usurpaverit, nulla se ignoratione defendat sitque plane sacrilegii reus, qui divina praecepta neglexerit.

D. XII k. Iun. Mediolani Ricomere et Clearcho vv. cc. conss.

[2] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Cyro pp. pr. Omnes privilegia dignitatum hoc ordine servanda cognoscant, ut primo loco habeantur ii, qui in actu positi illustres peregerint administrationes: secundo venient vacantes, qui praesentes in comitatu illustris dignitatis cingulum

2. But those tribunes who, occupied with their own affairs, have scarcely been concerned to visit the imperial palace and have not returned within a year – although they allege the rights of a leave of absence (commeatus) – shall suffer with respect to those who had been their inferiors the loss of one grade (gradus) on account of the absence of one year; of two grades, if absent two years; of three grades, if absent three years; likewise, of four grades, if absent four years. 3. Those, moreover, who have ceased to be present for a whole period of five years shall be stricken from the register and shall enjoy only the title (nomen), not the active rank (ordo), of tribune, with the reservation that despite these provisions they shall be free from the burden of tax inspection and equalization and from any other matter.

4. We have noticed that Our special attention is needed to see that no one through corrupt solicitation or influence, or on a pretence of any kind, or under the appearance of any public labor or care, may disturb the regular order of promotion and, by ignoring the reckoning of time, be preferred to those who have rendered lengthy service and through favoritism steal what old age, after long and extended devotion in duty, promises. 5. We must also add, that the Chief Secretary (primicerius) shall, after relinquishing public responsibility for the corps (numeri), be allotted the ornaments (infulae) of the Master of Offices, according to ancient custom, just as if he had carried on that office (administratio), the rank of which he attains, and shall have precedence over any titular officials (vacantes) though they precede him in time.

(474).

Eighth Title That the Order of Rank Be Preserved

[1][38] Emperors Gratian, Valentinian, and Theodosius Augusti to Praetextatus, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy, Illyricum, and Africa). If anyone usurps a place (of precedence) not belonging to him, he may not defend himself on the ground of ignorance, and a person who has neglected the imperial precepts is clearly guilty of sacrilege.

Given May 21, at Milan, in the consulship of the viri clarissimi Richomer and Clearchus (384).

[2] Emperors Theodosius and Valentinian Augusti to Cyrus, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). pr. All may ascertain that the privileges of rank shall be preserved in the following order: the first place is accorded those who have actually administered positions of illustris rank (illustres administrationes); next come titular office-holders (vacantes) who, while present at court (in comitatu), have received a belt of office (cingulum) of illustris rank; We assign the third place to meruerint: tertium ordinem eorum prospicimus, quibus absentibus cingulum illustris mittitur dignitatis: quartum honorariorum, qui praesentes a nostro numine sine cingulo codicillos tantum honorariae dignitatis adepti sunt: quintum eorum, quibus absentibus similiter sine cingulo mittuntur illustris insignia dignitatis. 1. Sed administratores quidem, etiam comites rei privatae, omnibus vacantibus omnibus honorariis anteponi censemus.

[38] = C.Th. 6.5.2.

2. Vacantes autem post administratores venientes non omnes iam omnibus honorariis credidimus praeponendos, sed eos vacantes illis honorariis, qui similem adepti sunt dignitatem, ut praefectorius praefectorio, non quaestorius praefectorio praeponatur, parique modo quaestorius quaestorio, non vacans comes thesaurorum vel comes rei privatae honorario quaestorio vel ex magistro officiorum praeferatur.

3. Inter administratores illos etiam numerari decernimus, quibus illustribus in sacro nostro consistorio cinctis aliquid ordinariae dignitatis vel antea commisimus vel postea committemus peragendum, verbi gratia si vacant*i* magistro militum belli cura commitatur. 4. Cur enim aut vir magnificus Germanus magister militum vacans appellatur, cui bellum contra hostes mandavimus? aut cur excellentissimus Pentadius non egisse dicitur praefecturam, cuius illustribus cincti dispositionibus vice praetorianae praefecturae miles in expeditione copia commeatuum abundavit.

[3] ...

VIIII De Magistris Scriniorum

[1] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Zoilo pp. Orientis. pr. Viris spectabilibus magistris omnium sacrorum scriniorum nostrae benivolentiae liberalitas tribuenda est, qui nostrae quodammodo adsidere maiestati those to whom, though absent, a belt of office of illustris rank has been sent; the fourth place to those honorary office-holders (honorarii) who, while present at Our court, have received from Our Majesty only a diploma (codicilli) of honorary (illustris) rank, without the belt of office; the fifth place to those to whom, though absent, the insignia of illustris rank, likewise without the belt, have been sent. 1. We deem it right that actual officials (administratores), including Counts of the Privy Purse, should take precedence over all titular (vacantes) and honorary (honorarii) officials.

2. We do not believe, however, that every titular official (vacantes), being inferior in rank to actual officials (administratores), should take precedence over every honorary official (honorarii), but, instead, that those titular officials should take precedence (only) over those honorary officials who have received the same rank; as (for instance) a (titular) Prefect over a(n honorary) Prefect, not a (titular) Quaestor over a(n honorary) Prefect; and in like manner a (titular) Quaestor over a(n honorary) Quaestor; but a titular Count of the Depots (vacans comes thesaurorum) or of the Privy Purse shall not take precedence over an honorary Quaestor (honorarius quaestor) or ex-Master of Offices (ex magistro officiorum).

3. We determine that among actual officials (inter administratores) shall also be numbered those who have received a belt of office of illustris rank in Our Imperial Council (consistorium), to whom a duty connected with the actual office (aliquid ordinariae dignitatis) has heretofore or shall hereafter be assigned – if, for instance, the management of a war is entrusted to a titular Master of Soldiers. 4. For why should the vir magnificus Germanus be called a titular Master of Soldiers, when We have entrusted a war against the enemy to him? Or why should the Most Excellent Pentadius, girded with the belt of illustris rank, not be said to have administered the prefecture, when by his management, in place of the Praetorian Prefect, the soldiers have had an abundant supply of provisions on their expedition?[39]

(440–441).[40]

[3] <A Greek constitution is apparently lost.>

Ninth Title Masters of the Bureaus

[1] Emperors THEODOSIUS and VALENTINIAN Augusti to Zoilus, Praetorian Prefect of the East. pr. The liberality of Our benevolence should be extended to the Masters of all the imperial bureaus (magistri scriniorum), persons of spectabilis rank, who seem, as it were, to sit by the side of Our Majesty (to [39] This refers to the role of Germanus and Pentadius in the Vandal expedition of 441.

[40] Seeck dates to 441.

videntur. 1. Ideoque post depositum etiam officium ab omni indictionis onere seu civilium seu militarium iudicum prorsus immunes esse praecipimus, ut nec ab amplissima quidem sede tui culminis eis ulla molestia super suscipiendo quolibet gravamine privato vel publico penitus iniungatur. 2. Hoc beneficium ad proximos etiam sacrorum scriniorum et ex proximis volumus propagari. 3. Quinquaginta librarum auri officio tui culminis damnatione multando, si quid adversus statuta clementiae nostrae innovari concesserit.

D. v k. Mart. Theodosio A. xviii et Albino conss.

X De Comitibus Consistorianis

[1] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Severino pu. Eos, qui tranquillitatis nostrae consistorii dici comites meruerunt, spectabilibus proconsulibus aequari generaliter decernimus.

D. vii k. Oct. Constantinopoli Theodoro vc. cons.

[2] Imp. Anastasius A. Eusebio magistro officiorum. Viros spectabiles comites consistorianos et coniuges et liberos, servos quin etiam atque colonos eorum isdem privilegiis tam intentiones ab aliis proponendas excipiendo quam suas contra alios exercendo perfrui, quibus viri clarissimi principes scholae agentium in rebus per sacram pragmaticam sanctionem divae memoriae Zenonis utuntur.

XI De Comitibus Et Tribunis Scholarum

[1] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Prisciano pu. pr. Praepositos ac tribunos scholarum, qui et divinis epulis adhibentur et adorandi principis facultatem antiquitus meruerunt, inter quos comites etiam sacri render assistance). 1.[41] We decree, therefore, that after retiring from office they shall be entirely exempt from every burden of a public obligation (indictio) by civil or military judges. They shall not be annoyed even by the most exalted office of Your Highness through the imposition upon them of any burden, public or private. 2. This benefit We desire also to extend to the chief clerks (proximi) and ex-chief clerks of the imperial bureaus. 3. The official staff of Your Highness will be punished by a fine of 50 pounds of gold, if they permit any innovation contrary to the statutes of Our Clemency.

Given February 26, in the consulship of Theodosius Augustus, for the eighteenth time, and Albinus (444).

Tenth Title Counts of the Imperial Council

[1][42] Emperors ARCADIUS and HONORIUS Augusti to Severinus, City Prefect (of Constantinople). We decree, with general effect, that those who deserve to be called Counts of the Imperial Council (comites consistorii) of Our Tranquility shall be equal (in rank) with the Proconsuls, persons of spectabilis rank.

Given September 25, at Constantinople, in the consulship of the vir clarissimus Theodorus (399).

[2] Emperor ANASTASIUS Augustus to Eusebius, Master of Offices. The Counts of the Imperial Council, persons of spectabilis rank, and their wives and children, as well as their slaves and bound tenants (coloni), shall enjoy the same privileges in regard to answering the complaints of others against them, and in regard to their own complaints against others, as are enjoyed under the terms of the imperial pragmatic sanction of Zeno,[43] of blessed memory, by the Chiefs of Staff (principes) of the corps of imperial couriers (schola agentium in rebus), persons of clarissimus rank.

(492–497).

Eleventh Title Counts and Tribunes of the Imperial Guard

[1][44] Emperors HONORIUS and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Priscianus, City Prefect (of Constantinople). pr. We have directed that the commandants (praepositi) and tribunes of the imperial guard (scholae), who are summoned to imperial banquets and have long received the right of adoring the Emperor, and [41] Sections 1 and 3 = C. 1.51.11 in part.

[42] = C.Th. 6.12.1.
[43] See C. 12.21.8.
[44] = C.Th. 6.13.1. Combine with C. 12.12.2 (= C.Th. 6.14.3), 12.13.1 (= C.Th. 6.16.1), 12.14.1 (= C.Th. 6.17.1); C.Th. 6.15.1, 6.20.1.

stabuli et cura palatii numerantur, si primi ordinis comitivam cum praepositura meruerunt et casu ad altiora non pervenerint, deposito sacramento inter eos, qui comites Aegypti vel Ponticae dioeceseos fuerint, quorum par dignitas est, haberi praecepimus. 1. Sin absque honore comitivae regimen fuerint nacti, absolutos militia inter eos qui duces fuerint provinciarum numerari iubemus.

D. XII k. April. Constantinopoli Lucio vc. cons.

XII De Comitibus Rei Militaris

[1] Imppp. Valentinianus Valens et Gratianus AAA. Ampelio pu. Qui contemplatione meritorum, ducto intra provincias transmarinas strenuissimo milite, primi ordinis comitivam fuerint consecuti, ea reverentia altissimarum dignitatum viris subiungantur, ut his locum praestent, qui proconsulatus insignibus adornantur.

D. III non. Iul. Nasonaci Modesto et Arintheo conss.

[2] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Prisciano pu. Eos, qui sub comitivae primi ordinis dignitate peculiariter ad quamlibet provinciam vel provincias defendendas milite credito auctoritate nostri numinis destinantur, et eos, qui vicem illustrium virorum magistrorum militum susceperint peragendam, ducibus, qui praeter Aegyptum et Ponticam in aliis provinciis administraverint, adaequamus.

D. XII k. April. Constantinopoli Lucio vc. cons.

XIII De Comitibus et Archiatris Sacri Palatii

[1] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Prisciano pu. Archiatros intra palatium militantes si comitivae primi ordinis nobilitaverit gradus, inter among whom also are numbered the Counts of the Imperial Stable (comites sacri stabuli) and the Curator of the Palace (cura palatii), shall, if they have received the Countship of the First Order (comitiva primi ordinis) along with the post of commandant (praepositura) and happened to have reached no higher rank, after relinquishing their oath of imperial service (sacramentum) be numbered among those who have been Counts of Egypt or of the diocese of Pontica, whose rank is equal. 1. But if they obtained their appointment without the honor of the Countship, We order them, after their service, to be numbered among the Dukes of provinces.

Given March 21, at Constantinople, in the consulship of the vir clarissimus Lucius (413).

Twelfth Title Counts of Military Affairs

[1][45] Emperors Valentinian, Valens, and Gratian Augusti to Ampelius, City Prefect (of Rome). Those who, in view of their deserts and after conducting the most vigorous of soldiers within transmarine provinces, have attained the Countship of the First Order (comitiva primi ordinis) are subordinated to the men of the highest ranks with such respect (due them) that they must give precedence to those who have been decorated by the insignia of the Proconsulship (or: that those who have been decorated by the insignia of the Proconsulship must give them precedence).

Given July 5, at Nasonacum, in the consulship of Modestus and Arintheus (372).

[2][46] Emperors Honorius and Theodosius Augusti to Priscianus, City Prefect (of Constantinople). Those who hold the the Countship of the First Order and by authority of Our Divine Majesty have been specially sent with an army entrusted to them to defend any province or provinces, and those who have acted in the place of the Masters of Soldiers, of illustris rank, We make equal in rank with the Dukes who have administered provinces other than in Egypt and Pontica.

Given March 21, at Constantinople, in the consulship of the vir clarissimus Lucius (413).

Thirteenth Title Counts and Chief Physicians of the Imperial Palace

[1][47] Emperors Honorius and Theodosius Augusti to Priscianus, City Prefect (of Constantinople). We direct that the chief physicians (archiatri) serving

[45] = C.Th. 6.14.1. Combine with C. 12.4.1 and the other laws cited there.
[46] = C.Th. 6.14.3. Combine with C. 12.11.1 and the other laws cited there.
[47] = C.Th. 6.16.1. Combine with C. 12.11.1 and the other laws cited there.

vicarios taxari praecipimus, sive iam pridem deposuerunt militiam sive postea deposuerint, ita ut inter vicarios et duces qui administraverint et hos qui comitivam primi ordinis meruerint nihil intersit nisi tempus, quo quis administraverit vel comitivae indeptus est insignia.

D. XII k. April. Constantinopoli Lucio vc. cons.

XIIII De Comitibus Qui Provincias Regunt

[1] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Prisciano pu. Hos, qui in administratione civili ac provinciae gubernaculis sub iurisdictionis licentia comites quoque primi ordinis esse meruerint, vicariae dignitatis post depositam administrationem privilegiis frui oportet.

D. XII k. April. Constantinopoli Lucio vc. cons.

XV De Professoribus Qui in Urbe Constantinopolitana Docentes ex Lege Meruerint Comitivam

[1] Imp. Theodosius A. et Valentinianus C. Theophilo pu. Grammaticos tam Graecos quam Latinos, sophistas et iuris peritos in hac regia urbe professionem suam exercentes et inter statutos connumeratos, si laudabilem in se probis moribus vitam esse monstraverint, si docendi peritiam facundiamque dicendi interpretandi subtilitatem copiam disserendi se habere patefecerint, et coetu amplissimo iudicante digni fuerint aestimati, cum ad viginti annos observatione iugi ac sedulo docendi labore pervenerint, placuit honorari et his qui sunt ex vicaria dignitate connumerari.

D. id. Mart. Constantinopoli Theodosio A. XI et Valentiniano C. conss.

within the palace, if ennobled by the rank (gradus) of the Countship of the First Order (comitiva primi ordinis), shall be numbered among the Vicars (vicarii) whether they have already or shall hereafter quit their service, so that there shall be no difference (in rank) between, on one hand, Vicars and Dukes who have held actual office and those, on the other hand, who have received the Countship of the First Order, except as to the time during which they respectively administered the office or received the insignia of the Countship.

Given March 21, at Constantinople, in the consulship of the vir clarissimus Lucius (413).

Fourteenth Title Counts Who Govern Provinces

[1][48] Emperors Honorius and Theodosius Augusti to Priscianus, City Prefect (of Constantinople). Those in the civil administration and in the government of provinces with the right to give judicial decisions who have also deserved to be Counts of the First Order (comites primi ordinis) shall, after relinquishing their office (administratio), enjoy the privileges of the rank of Vicar (vicaria dignitas).

Given March 21, at Constantinople, in the consulship of the vir clarissimus Lucius (413).

Fifteenth Title Professors Who, Teaching in the City of Constantinople, Have Received the Countship by Statute

[1][49] Emperor Theodosius Augustus and Caesar Valentinian to Theophilus, City Prefect (of Constantinople). Be it resolved that the grammarians of Greek and Latin, the rhetoricians (sophistae), and the learned in the law (iuris periti) who practice their profession in this imperial city and who are a part of the established number (as regulated by statute), insofar as they have, by their upright demeanor, shown that they have led a life praiseworthy in itself, and if they have demonstrated their experience in teaching, their eloquence in speaking, their subtlety in interpretation and fluency in dissertation, and if they have been adjudged worthy by the most exalted council (the Senate), shall, after twenty years of constant attention and diligent labor of teaching, be honored and numbered among those of the rank of ex-Vicar (ex vicaria dignitate).

Given March 15, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Theodosius Augustus, for the eleventh time, and the Caesar Valentinian (425).

[48] = C.Th. 6.17.1. Combine with C. 12.11.1 and the other laws cited there.

[49] = C.Th. 6.21.1. Compare C. 11.19.1.

XVI De Decurionibus et Silentiariis

[1] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Urso pu. et Aureliano pp. Orientis et Strategio pp. per Illyricum. Decuriones nostri palatii post emensum fideliter obsequium postque deposita sacramenta militiae electionem habeant, sive ex magistro officiorum velut agentes dignitatem consequi a nostra maiestate maluerint, sive inter viros illustres comites domesticorum, videlicet inter agentes, taxari, ut tam in adoranda nostra serenitate quam in salutandis administratoribus et reliquis praedicti honoris privilegiis nec non in nostro consistorio his honor omnifariam observetur.

D. prid. k. Nov. Constantinopoli Honorio x et Theodosio vi AA. conss.

[2] Idem AA. Venantio pp. Unusquisque decurio vel silentiarius a tironum et equorum praestatione habeatur immunis: nullam collationem, quae plerumque poscitur, solvat: nihil his ulla potestas iniungat aut necessitas imponat.

D. vii id. Mart. Ravennae Asclepiodoto et Mariniano conss.

[3] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Flaviano pp. pr. Decurionibus et silentiariis, etiam si ad superiorem gradum successu meliore transcendunt, omnia privilegia, quae iam dudum divorum principum iudicio meruerunt, legis istius praeceptione noveris esse firmata, non praeiudicatura quacumque generalitate pragmatica. 1. Nec angarias vel parangarias sive paraveredos ulla eis amplissimae praeceptionis imponat auctoritas. sordidis quoque muneribus, excoctione calcis et superindicti gravamine eos liberamus. 2. Domus quoque eorum non tantum in hac

Sixteenth Title Decurions and Silentiaries[50]

[1][51] Emperors HONORIUS and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Ursus, Prefect of the City (of Constantinople), and Aurelianus, Praetorian Prefect of the East, and Strategius, Praetorian Prefect of Illyricum. The decurions of Our palace, after faithfully performing their duty (obsequium) and having relinquished their oaths of imperial service (sacramenta militiae), shall have the option whether they prefer to obtain from Our Majesty the rank of ex-Master of Offices as though they had actually officiated as such (velut agentes), or to be rated among the Counts of the Household (comites domesticorum) of illustris rank, that is, as though on an active basis (inter agentes), so that this honor shall be in every way extended to them in adoring Our Serenity, and in connection with the salutation of officials (administratores), and with respect to the other privileges of the aforesaid honor, as well as in Our Council (consistorium).

Given October 31, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Honorius, for the tenth time, and Theodosius, for the sixth time, Augusti (415).

[2][52] The same Augusti to Venantius, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy and Africa?). Every decurion (of the palace) and every silentiary shall be exempt from the duty of furnishing recruits or horses; he need not make any contribution which is generally asked; no authority shall enjoin, nor necessity impose, any burden upon him.

Given March 9, at Ravenna, in the consulship of Asclepiodotus and Marinianus (423).

[3][53] Emperors THEODOSIUS and VALENTINIAN Augusti to Flavianus, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy, Illyricum, and Africa). pr. You shall know that, even if decurions (of the palace) and silentiaries (silentiarii) advance to a higher rank (gradus) by a fortunate promotion, all privileges that they received by order of former Emperors remain in force by the direction of this law, and no general pragmatic sanction shall affect them adversely. 1. No authority of any imperial order, however high, shall impose upon them the burden to furnish regular or supplementary requisitions of vehicles or mounts for the public post (angariae vel parangariae sive paraveredi). We also exempt them from menial compulsory public services (sordida munera), from burning lime, and from any extraordinary burden. 2.[54] Their houses, also, situated not only in this Most Imperial [50] The silentiaries were an elite corps of thirty court attendants, organized under three officers (or decurions), and charged with maintaining order and silence during audiences in the imperial palace.

[51] = C.Th. 6.23.1 (altered).

[52] = C.Th. 6.23.2.

[53] = C.Th. 6.23.3–4.

[54] Compare C. 12.5.2.

sacratissima urbe, sed in qualibet alia positas civitate immunes ab omni hospitum cuiuslibet dignitatis inquietudine vindicamus: permissa eis veniendi ad comitatum licentia praeter evocatoriae securitatem. multa decem librarum auri iudicibus provinciarum eorumque officiis infligenda, si statuta numinis nostri crediderint esse contemnenda. 3. His addimus, ut, cum optatam quietem acceperint et inter viros illustres senatores coeperint numerari, honore curiae sine aliqua functione laetentur, immunitatisque gaudio plena dignitatis laetitia potiantur, ut dignitatem solam habeant ex senatu: sub hac videlicet definitione, ut triginta tantummodo numero ea privilegia consequantur, decuriones quoque tres. 4. Sed eos tunc demum perpotiri decernimus beneficiis supra scriptis, cum per continuos tredecim annos inculpatas excubias peregerint.

D. VIIII k. April. Ravennae Aetio et Valerio conss.

[4] Imp. Zeno A. Cosmae praeposito sacri cubiculi. Ne ad diversa tracti viri devoti silentiarii iudicia sacris abstrahi videantur obsequiis, iubemus eos, qui quemlibet devotissimorum silentiariorum scholae vel eius uxorem civiliter vel etiam criminaliter pulsare maluerint, minime eum ex cuiuslibet alterius iudicio nisi ex iudicio tantummodo viri excellentissimi magistri officiorum conveniri.

[5] Imp. Anastasius A. Polycarpo pp. pr. Iubemus clarissimorum silentiariorum militia praeditos, etsi genitorum suorum in potestate sint constituti, quaecumque solaciorum sive emolumentorum vel donationum seu hereditatum nomine per militiam vel quamlibet eius causam his adquisita sunt vel fuerint, iure castrensis peculii possidere, nec ea posse vel parentes superstites sibimet vindicare vel auferre, vel etiam post eorum obitum fratres vel alios heredes eorum quasi ad defunctorum dominium pertinentia in divisionem deducere: nec enim oportet

City but in any other city, We declare shall be exempt from every inconvenience of quartering guests of any rank whatever. Leave is given them to come to the imperial retinue (comitatus) without the guarantee of an imperial summons (evocatoria). A fine of 10 pounds of gold will be inflicted upon the governors (iudices) of the provinces and their official staff, if they should believe these orders of Our Divine Majesty to be worthy of contempt. 3. And We add that when they have received their hoped-for rest and begin to be numbered among the Senators of illustris rank, they shall enjoy the senatorial honor (honor curiae) without any obligation (functio), and in the pleasure of their exemption fully enjoy their rank (dignitas), so that they may have only dignity (dignitas) from the Senate. It is understood, of course, that only thirty silentiaries and three decurions shall attain these privileges. 4. But We decree that they may enjoy the benefits described above only after they have faultlessly maintained their vigils through thirteen continuous years.

Given March 24, at Ravenna, in the consulship of Aetius and Valerius (432).

[4] Emperor ZENO Augustus to Cosmas, Grand Chamberlain. In order that the devoted silentiaries may not be dragged before various tribunals and thus seem to have been distracted from their imperial duties (obsequia), We order that anyone who wants to sue any member of the corps of most devoted silentiaries or his wife, either civilly or criminally, shall under no circumstances cause them to be summoned by any tribunal other than that of the vir excellentissimus Master of Offices.

(488–491).

[5] Emperor ANASTASIUS Augustus to Polycarpus, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). pr. We order that those serving in the position of the silentiaries of clarissimus rank, although they are under the (paternal) power (potestas) of their progenitors, shall possess as a military peculium (iure castrensis peculii) whatever they have acquired or will acquire in the way of salary, gains, gifts or inheritance by reason of their service or by any other means. Parents surviving them cannot claim or take it, nor after their demise may brothers or their other heirs claim it for purposes of partition, as if it were to be considered as part of the inheritance of the deceased. For labors of the silentiaries should not labores eorum aliis fructum vel lucrum adferre. 1. Hac namque ratione simul et contemplatione nec ipsam militiam vel suffragium, quodcumque pro ea vel ab isdem viris devotis silentiariis vel a parentibus eorum vel quolibet alio datum est vel fuerit, ab his patimur in successionem defunctorum parentum conferri seu nomine collationis in medium easdem offerri pecunias vel his imputari.

2. Ad haec de tutelis et curationibus eos excusari sancimus, ne alienarum rerum administrationem subire compellantur, qui propter nostra ministeria nec suis curam seu provisionem diligenter deferre possunt.

3. Liberos insuper eorum, qui dignitate virorum spectabilium comitum seu tribunorum decorati sunt vel fuerint, nullatenus nolentes administrationem praeturae suscipere seu peragere.

4. Omnibus videlicet antelatis privilegiis in persona non tantum in praesenti militantium, sed etiam postea eidem consortio inserendorum tam tempore militiae quam post eam depositam observandis.

XVII De Domesticis et Protectoribus

[1] Imppp. Valentinianus Theodosius et Arcadius AAA. ad Eusignium pp. Domestici ac protectores osculandi, cum salutaverint, vicarios tui culminis habeant potestatem. poena enim sacrilegii similis erit, si his honorificentia non deferatur, qui contingere nostram purpuram digni sunt aestimati.

D. prid. non. Mart. Mediolani Valentiniano A. III et Eutropio conss.

[2] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Heliodoro pu. pr. Primicerius quidem domesticorum et protectorum utriusque scholae post acceptum bring increase or gain to others. 1. Upon the same ground and for the same reason, neither the position in the imperial service itself, nor the (purchased) recommendation (suffragium) heretofore or hereafter paid for the position, either by the devoted silentiaries themselves or by their parents or by anyone else, shall We allow to become part of the estate of the deceased parents, nor shall the proceeds themselves be brought into hotchpot or charged against the silentiaries.

2. We decree, further, that they shall be exempt from tutelage and curatorship, so that those who, on account of their service to us, are not even able to give proper care and attention to their own matters may not be compelled to manage the property of others.

3. Besides, the children of those who heretofore have been or hereafter will be decorated by the rank of Counts or tribunes, persons of spectabilis rank, shall under no circumstances be compelled to take up or to administer the Praetorship against their wishes.

4. All of these aforementioned privileges are of course granted not only to those now serving, but also to those hereafter joining the fellowship (consortium), both during the time of their service and after they relinquish it.

(497–499).[55]

Seventeenth Title The Household Garrison and Guards[56]

[1][57] Emperors VALENTINIAN, THEODOSIUS, and ARCADIUS Augusti to Eusignius, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy and Illyricum). The (Imperial) Household garrison and guards (domestici ac protectores), shall, when they pay their respects, have the right (potestas) of kissing the Vicars of Your Highness. For punishment similar to that in case of sacrilege will be imposed, if proper deference (honorificentia) is not shown to those who are deemed worthy to touch Our purple.

Given March 6, at Milan, in the consulship of Valentinian Augustus, for the third time, and Eutropius (387).

[2][58] Emperors THEODOSIUS and VALENTINIAN Augusti to Heliodorus, City Prefect (of Constantinople). pr. The chief (primicerius) of the Household garrison and guards of either corps (schola, i.e., that of infantry or cavalry) shall,

[55] Lounghis et al. suggest 498.

[56] By the sixth century the domestici et protectores, who in the fourth century served as a kind of training corps for prospective unit commanders, had become a ceremonial body of parade troops, admission to which was obtainable by purchase: see C. 2.7.25.3.

[57] = C.Th. 6.24.4.

[58] = C.Th. 6.24.11 (altered), with the conclusion added from C.Th. 6.24.9.

tribunatum inter eos spectabili dignitate potiatur, qui ducatum agere meruerint. 1. Alii vero, qui decursis stipendiis ab eodem decem usque numero subsequuntur, consulari, id est clarissimatus dignitate, perfruantur cum ipsa loci decem primorum accessione.

D. III id. Iun. Constantinopoli Aetio et Valerio vv. cc. conss.

[3] Idem AA. Sporacio comiti domesticorum peditum. pr. Si quis domesticorum nulla negotii publici abstrahente sollicitudine nec ei per commeatum sollemniter, ut abesset, facultate concessa biennium obsequiis serenitatis nostrae defuerit, is retrorsum in ordinem tractus inferiorem quinque sequentibus postponatur. 1. Si vero triennium eius absentia continuasse monstretur, usque ad decimum locum procul dubio regradetur. quod si quadriennio tenus afuerit, novissimus collocetur. quinquennio autem si fuerit devagatus, ipso iam cingulo spoliandus est. indignum quippe est desides ac propriis tam diu muniis aberrantes, quos esse convenit adsiduos, numerari.

[4] Imp. Iustinianus A. Vigilantio comiti domesticorum consulari ac patricio. Lege pragmatica sine fine victura praefiniendum ac constituendum credidimus, ut, si quis virorum fortium praesentalium domesticorum in equitum schola secundocerii locum indeptus diem interea supremum clauserit, heredes eius non reliqui tantum temporis, quod eidem gradui superesse monstratur, verum etiam insequentis anni, hoc est primiceratus, solaciis ac emolumentis fruantur omnibus, ut, quod ad quaestum et compendium militiaeque fructum prolixe pertinet, similis habeatur, ac si superstes permanserit ad finem usque supremum.

[5] [Ὁ αὐτὸς βασιλεύς.] Ἡ διάταξις τὸ προνόμιον τὸ δεδομένον τῷ σεκουνδοκερίῳ τῶν ἱππέων χαρίζεται καὶ τῷ σεκουνδοκερίῳ τῶν πεζῶν.

after reaching the tribunate, enjoy spectabilis rank among those who have attained the position of Duke. 1. But the ten others next highest in rank who succeed those finishing their terms of office shall, on attaining the position (locus) of decemprimi (i.e., the ten senior officers after the primicerius), enjoy consular – which is to say, clarissimus – rank.

Given June 11, at Constantinople, in the consulship of the viri clarissimi Aetius and Valerius (432).

[3] The same Augusti to Sporacius, Count of the Household Garrison, Infantry Corps. pr. If any member of the Household garrison, lacking any public duty calling him away or a formally approved leave of absence, shall absent himself from the duties owing to Our Serenity for a period of two years, he shall be placed in a grade below that of the next five following him. 1. If indeed his absence is shown to have continued for a period of three years, he shall assuredly be demoted ten grades. If he is absent for a period of four years, he shall be placed last on the list. But if he has wandered off for a period of five years, he must be deprived of his belt of office (cingulum) altogether, for it is not becoming that those who are idle and so long diverted by their own affairs, when they should be attentive to their duty, should remain on the rolls.

(c. 450).

[4] Emperor Justinian Augustus to Vigilantius, Count of the Household Garrison, Consular and Patrician. We believe We should determine and enact by an eternally valid pragmatic sanction that if any member of the stalwart Household garrison serving at Our court (domestici praesentales), having reached the position of first assistant chief (secundocerius) in the cavalry corps, shall have lived his final day while in office, his heirs shall receive not only the salaries and emoluments which he would have received during his remaining time in that position, but also those which he would have received during the following year, that is during the time when he would have been chief (primicerius); accordingly, as far as the question of gain, compensation, and fruits of his service is broadly concerned, it shall be treated as though he had survived to the very end of his service.

(527–534).

[5][59] (The same Emperor.) The constitution concedes the privilege granted to the first assistant chief (secundocerius) of the cavalry likewise to the first assistant chief of the infantry.

(527–534).

[59] A summary from Bas. 6.27.5.

XVIII De Praepositis Labarum

[1] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Monaxio pp. Qui praepositi labarum nostro iudicio promoventur, clarissimi sint inter *ad*lectos, ita ut ex consularibus habeantur. nam et immunitate digni sunt, quos nostri lateris comitatus illustrat.

D. III id. Nov. Constantinopoli Theodosio A. VII et Palladio conss.

XVIIII De Proximis Sacrorum Scriniorum Ceterisque Qui in Sacris Scriniis Militant

[1] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. Cynegio pp. Proximos memoriae, epistularum ac libellorum atque dispositionum ita vicariorum honore cumulamus, ut inter eos merito dignitatis habeantur, qui pro praefectis dioeceses sibi creditas temperarunt, ex eo tempore, ex quo eos splendor indepti proximatus ostendat, insequentibus praeponendi, qui vicarias postea administraverint. et nullam iniuriam descriptionis perhorrescant.

D. prid. k. Mai. Constantinopoli Honorio nobilissimo puero et Euodio conss.

[2] Imppp. Valentinianus Theodosius et Arcadius AAA. Constantio pp. In sacris scriniis nostris militantes in provinciis ordinarii vel spectabiles iudices a salutatione non arceant, etiam inviti in consessum accipiant: scituris vel principe vel corniculario vel capitibus officii, ternas libras auri ex suis facultatibus eruendas, si consistorium nostrum

Eighteenth Title Color Guards

[1][60] Emperors HONORIUS and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Monaxius, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). Those who are advanced by Our decree to the position of color guard (praepositi labarum) shall be admitted to the Senate with clarissimus rank (as clarissimi inter adlectos), so as to be considered ex-Consuls. For those who receive luster by being at Our side are worthy of exemption.

Given November 11, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Theodosius Augustus, for the seventh time, and Palladius (416).

Nineteenth Title Chief Clerks of the Imperial Bureaus and Others Who Serve in the Imperial Bureaus

[1][61] Emperors GRATIAN, VALENTINIAN, and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Cynegius, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). We amplify the chief clerks (proximi) of (the bureaus of) memorials, correspondence, petitions, and arrangements[62] ([scrinia] memoriae, epistularum, libellorum atque dispositionum) with the honor of Vicars (vicariorum honor), so that they will be considered of the same rank as those who govern dioceses entrusted to them on behalf of Prefects, with effect from the time at which the splendor of the position of chief clerk is attained by them and offers them distinction, giving them precedence over those who subsequently hold the position of Vicar. And they need fear no wrong from the assessment of taxes (descriptio).

Given April 30, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Honorius, Most Noble Boy, and Euodius (386).[63]

[2][64] Emperors VALENTINIAN, THEODOSIUS, and ARCADIUS Augusti to Constanti(an)us, Praetorian Prefect (of the Gauls). Provincial governors (iudices ordinarii) and magistrates of spectabilis rank[65] shall not exclude those serving in Our imperial bureaux in the provinces from participating in the official morning reception (salutatio) and shall, even against their wishes, receive them to sit in court with them;[66] the Chief of Staff (princeps) and the Department Head (cornicularius) and the heads of the official staff (capita officii) should know that 3 pounds of gold will be taken from their property if

[60] = C.Th. 6.25.1.
[61] = C.Th. 6.26.4; the concluding sentence = C.Th. 6.26.12. Combine with C. 12.21.1 (= C.Th. 6.28.3).
[62] Reference to the bureau of arrangements (scrinium dispositionum) has been added from C.Th. 6.26.10.
[63] Seeck gives February 28, 386.
[64] = C.Th. 6.26.5.
[65] For example, Proconsuls and Vicars.
[66] What follows = C. 1.48.3 (altered) = C.Th. 6.26.5.

saepe ingredientibus secretarii iudicum non patuerit ingressus, aut reverentia non fuerit in salutatione delata aut sedendi cum iudice societas denegata.

D. VI id. Nov. Triveris Timasio et Promoto vv. cc. conss.

[3] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Claudio pu. In scriniis palatii militantes, id est memoriae epistularum libellorumque ac dispositionum, post viginti annos transactae militiae si discedendum sibi esse decreverint, consulari honore fulti inter adlectos habeantur huncque honorem dignitatis teneant, qui ex consularibus deferri consueverit. nec eos quisquam iniungendo aliquid vel iubendo possit ab impertito otio separare.

D. XV k. Mart. Constantinopoli Arcadio IIII et Honorio III AA. conss.

[4] Imppp. Arcadius Honorius et Theodosius AAA. Epiphanio pu. pr. Iubemus, ut primum omnium sit eorum, qui in sacris scriniis nostris, id est memoriae epistularum libellorum et dispositionum, referuntur, secura possessio ab omnibus sordidis muneribus excusata: superindictum non timeant, venalicium non petantur solumque canonicae indictionis praestent tributum: labore dignitas conquisita extraordinarium munus ignoret nec ullam temonis patiatur iniuriam: equorum tironumque praestationem nullus agnoscat, qui vel adhuc in scriniis militat vel honorem proximi et comitivam primi dispositionum longi temporis sudore quaesivit. et haec quidem patrimoniis censuimus deferenda. 1. Quod autem omnibus constat deferri, adiectu alterius dignitatis perire non patimur, ut, etiamsi prosperioris fortunae iudicio ad honoris ornamenta processerint, vetera tamen eis scrinii labore privilegia quaesita serventur.

D. id. Oct. Ravennae Honorio VII et Theodosio II AA. conss.

ingress to the goveror's council chamber (secretarium) does not stand open to those who frequent Our Council (consistorium), or if reverence should not be paid them in the morning reception or the courtesy (societas) of sitting in court with the governor should be denied.

Given (posted) November 8, at Trier, in the consulship of the viri clarissimi Timasius and Promotus (389).

[3][67] Emperors ARCADIUS and HONORIUS Augusti to Claudius, City Prefect (of Constantinople). If those serving in the imperial bureaus, that is, in (the bureaus) of memorials, of correspondence, of petitions, and of arrangements, decide to retire after twenty years of service, they shall be fortified with consular honors and be considered Senators (inter adlectos), and they may enjoy the honor of the rank customarily extended to ex-Consuls. Nor shall anyone, by enjoining or enforcing anything upon them, be able to separate them from the leisure granted them.

Given February 15, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Arcadius, for the fourth time, and Honorius, for the third time, Augusti (396).

[4][68] Emperors ARCADIUS, HONORIUS, and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Epiphanius, City Prefect (of Rome). pr. We order that, first, all those who belong to the imperial bureaus, that is, (the bureaus) of memorials, of correspondence, of petitions, and of arrangements, shall be safe in their exemption from all menial compulsory public services (sordida munera); they need fear no extra supplementary tax assessment (superindictum); no tax on sales (venalicium) shall be demanded of them, and they are under obligation to pay only the regular tax assessment (canonica indictio). Their rank, acquired by labor, shall know no extraordinary burden (munus) and be free from the obligation of collecting recruit taxes (temo); those still in the active service in the bureaus or who through many years of labor have obtained the honor of serving as chief clerk (honor proximi), or the Countship of the First (Order) of the bureau of arrangements (comitiva primi [ordinis] dispositionum), need acknowledge no duty of furnishing horses or recruits. And indeed We resolve that these privileges should be extended to their property. 1. And what clearly is established for all, We do not permit to be lost by the addition of another rank. Hence those who by the judgment of a more favorable fortune have acquired additional ornaments of honor shall nevertheless retain the former privileges obtained by their work in the bureaux.

Given October 15, at Ravenna, in the consulship of Honorius, for the seventh time, and Theodosius, for the second time, Augusti (407).

[67] = C.Th. 6.26.8; compare C.Th. 6.26.7.

[68] = C.Th. 6.26.14. Combine with C.Th. 6.18.1 (which supplies the corrected date of 412; so also Seeck).

[5] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Faustino pp. pr. Peculiari praeceptionis nostrae favore praestamus, ut in scriniis memoriae epistularum libellorumque ab exceptoribus usque ad melloproximos dignitatem clarissimorum honoremque percipiant. 1. Et sicuti reliqui, qui in isdem scriniis militant, liberum cum ordinariis iudicibus ingressum in secretarium consessumque habere legibus meruerunt, ii quoque, in quos hanc stipendiorum meritis clarissimatus conferimus dignitatem, cum spectabilibus etiam sese habere reverentiam recognoscant, ut consedendi ingrediendique secretarium sciant a nobis licentiam contributam.

D. VIII id. Iun. Ravennae Lucio vc. cons.

[6] Idem AA. Eustathio quaestori et Helioni magistro officiorum. Pro biennio annum solum agere deinceps decernimus eos, qui in tribus scriniis memoriae epistularum libellorumque ordine ac merito stipendiorum ad gradum pervenerint proximorum.

D. VIII id. Febr. Constantinopoli Theodosio A. VII et Palladio conss.

[7] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Nomo magistro officiorum. pr. Unicuique, qui in sacris scriniis militat, sui loci merita servari oportere constituimus, et universos, qui ultra numerum statutorum in isdem scriniis militant, sui gradus respectu per ordinem quem sortiti sunt in deficientium statutorum locum, ut tamen ultimis socientur, subire decernimus: scilicet ut nemini penitus liceat, cum sit posterior tempore, in locum praecedentis ambire, nisi forte adeo qui tempore vincitur laborum comparatione superat, ut quindecim primatum eiusdem scrinii testimonio cum sacramenti religione subnixus praecedentibus dignior iudicetur.

1. Hanc quoque observationem extra filios proximorum volumus custodiri. etenim cuique proximo unum de suis filiis, qui temporis

[5][69] Emperors Honorius and Theodosius Augusti to Faustinus, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy and Africa). pr. We grant as a special favor of Our imperial decree that those in the bureaus of memorials, correspondence, and petitions, from the shorthand writers (exceptores) to the deputy chief clerks (melloproximi), shall have the rank and honor as clarissimi. 1. And just as the others serving in the same bureaus have, by law, been granted free access to the council chamber of governors of ordinary rank (ordinarii iudices) and to sit in court with them, so too those upon whom We have conferred clarissimus rank as a reward for their service (stipendia) shall recognize that they have the same right to deference as those of spectabilis rank, in order that they may know that they have the prerogative, conferred by us, of sitting (with the governor) in court and of entering the (governor's) council chamber.

Given June 6, at Ravenna, in the consulship of the vir clarissimus Lucius (413).[70]

[6][71] The same Augusti to Eustathius, Quaestor, and Helion, Master of Offices. We decree that those in the three bureaus of memorials, correspondence, and petitions who in the regular order and by the merit of their service (stipendia) have attained the position of chief clerk (proximus) shall hereafter serve only one year in this office, instead of two years (as heretofore).

Given February 6, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Theodosius Augustus, for the seventh time, and Palladius (416).

[7][72] Emperors Theodosius and Valentinian Augusti to Nomus, Master of Offices. pr. We have decreed that the rewards of one's position (locus) ought to be preserved in the case of anyone who serves in the imperial bureaus, and We determine that all those serving in these same bureaus beyond the number of established officials (i.e., as supernumeraries) enter, with respect to their own ranking (gradus), in their allotted order into the place (locus) of departing established officials (statuti), so that they (the most senior supernumeraries) are, however, associated with the most junior (regulars); clearly, then, it will be utterly impermissible for anyone who is junior in time of service to seek corruptly (ambire) the place (locus) of anyone more senior, unless, perchance, one who is disqualified by length of service prevails upon consideration of (the quality of) his work, such that the successful party, supported by the statement under oath of the fifteen most senior colleagues (primates) of the same bureau, is adjudged to be worthier than those more senior.

1. We want the foregoing provision to apply except in the case of sons of the chief clerks (proximi). We decide that it is possible for each chief clerk to prefer [69] = C.Th. 6.26.16. The transmitted date is corrected to 410, in the consulship of Varanes.

[70] Seeck gives January 6, 410.
[71] = C.Th. 6.26.17.
[72] Combine with C. 12.19.8, 21.6, 26.2. Seeck dates this constitution to 444.

dumtaxat suffragio nititur, licet parum observasse militiam cognoscatur, insequentibus tempore, qui laborum meritis muniuntur, anteferre posse decernimus. 2. Illum tamen, qui locum statuti meretur, proximo quidem ducentos quinquaginta solidos, melloproximo vero vel adiutori pro consuetudine uniuscuiusque scrinii viginti aut quindecim solidos offerre praecipimus. 3. Quod si quis de supernumerariis, qui in statuti locum subire debuerat, ne pecuniam offerat, statuti etiam gradum recusare voluerit, sequenti tam offerendae quantitatis praedictae quam subrogandi licentia permittatur, ita videlicet, ut si secundus etiam vel tertius vel cuiuslibet numeri in eadem excusationis voluntate duraverit, accedenti semper eadem copia quam praecedens excusaverat tribuatur. 4. Hos autem, qui ad statutorum ordinem progredi noluerint, nec de suo gradu volumus removeri et, cum vacaverit statuti locus, condicionem quam antea repudiaverant, id est offerendae pecuniae et adipiscendi statuti locum liberam habere praecipimus facultatem.

[8] Idem AA. Nomo magistro officiorum. pr. Proximos sacrorum scriniorum, quos fides ac diuturnae observationis industria litterataque militia, comitem quin etiam dispositionum, quem probitas ac strenuitas merito commendat, completo tempore suae militiae comitivae sacri nostri consistorii cingulo in diem vitae potiri, manentibus videlicet iam dudum praestitis salvis privilegiis, decernimus. 1. Quibus enim arcana pietatis nostrae merito committuntur, his pietas nostra vitam cingulo supra dictae comitivae ornandam decorandamque decrevit.

[9] Imp. Leo A. Patricio magistro officiorum. In sacris nostris scriniis militantes per commeatum non continuatim praestitum ante conventionem profecti intra indultum temporis spatium erunt cum suis coniugibus et liberis a conventione securi: ab indictionibus etiam publicorum et civilium munerum et post completam militiam excusatione potiantur: super domibus quoque, quas in provinciis possident, metatorum molestia liberentur.

one of his sons who is qualified in respect of seniority but is acknowledged to have neglected his service (militia) over those who are more junior but deserve precedence by reason of their (superior) work. 2. But We direct that the person qualified for an established position (locus statuti) shall pay 250 solidi to the chief clerk (proximus), and 20 or 15 solidi, according to the custom of each bureau, to the deputy chief clerk (melloproximus) or principal assistant (adiutor). 3. If the supernumerary who should enter into an established position (in statuti locum) wishes to refuse that position (statuti gradus) in order to avoid payment of the money, then the option of paying the prescribed amount and being substituted in his place is available to the next in order. If the next in order, or third, or any other number should give the same excuse, the opportunity which his predecessor has refused is always open to the one immediately succeeding. 4. We do not, however, wish those who are unwilling to join the ranks of established officials (statutorum ordo) to be disturbed from their own ranking (de suo gradu, i.e., as supernumeraries), and whenever thereafter an established position is open We order that they shall have the opportunity which they previously failed to embrace, that is, to pay the money and to obtain the position.

(443–444?).

[8][73] The same Augusti to Nomus, Master of Offices. pr. We decree that the chief clerks (proximi) of the imperial bureaus, whom fidelity, daily industry, and learned service commend, and indeed also the Count of (the bureau of) Arrangements (comes dispositionum), whose honesty and alacrity justly deserve credit, shall be entitled upon completion of their service to wear during their lifetimes the belt (cingulum) of the Countship of Our Imperial Council (comitiva sacri nostri consistorii), reserving to them, in addition, the privileges already granted them. 1. Our Piety decrees for those to whom the secrets of Our Piety are deservedly committed a life adorned and decorated with the belt of the above-mentioned Countship.

(443–444?).

[9] Emperor Leo Augustus to Patricius, Master of Offices. Those serving in Our imperial bureaus who go away on a temporary leave of absence before a summons is served upon them shall, together with their wives and children, be exempt from being sued during their leave of absence. After completion of their service, they shall also be exempt from imposition of public and civic obligations. Their houses, too, in the provinces, shall be freed from the duty of quartering (metata).

(c. 466).[74]

[73] Combine with C. 12.19.7, 21.6 (where the concluding words of the pr. are repeated), 26.2. Seeck dates the constitution to 444.

[74] Seeck gives 457–470.

[10] Idem A. Hilariano comiti et magistro officiorum ac patricio. pr. Statutos memoriales praecipimus esse in scrinio quidem memoriae sexaginta duos, epistularum vero triginta quattuor, libellorum quoque triginta quattuor: antiquarios vero, qui habentur in scrinio memoriae, numquam minus esse quam quattuor. 1. Supra scripti autem memoriales nullo modo duplici fungantur officio nec geminis chartis inrepserint, ut non occupentur plura in unum se commoda collaturi nihilque reliquis relicturi.

[11] Imp. Anastasius A. Eusebio magistro officiorum. Si quis in sacris nostris scriniis, id est memoriae dispositionum epistularum et libellorum, statutis iam connumeratus ab hac luce fuerit subtractus, ab eo, quicumque utpote vacante loco de substitutis in statutorum consortio fuerit ultimus subrogatus, pro solacio vel suffragio proximi definitam sacraeque constitutioni divae memoriae Theodosii et Valentiniani principum insertam quantitatem defuncti heredes vel successores vel liberi eius seu creditores, qui fenus cum mortuo pro statuti loco ei adquirendo contraxerint, consequantur: ita scilicet ut, si hereditas vel successio diem functi minime fuerit suscepta vel adita, tales personae, id est creditores quidem contra ceteros praerogativa sibi servata, liberi autem vel agnati seu cognati non hereditatis sed privilegii nomine simili modo huiusmodi summam percipiant sibique petere ac vindicare permittantur: nullius machinatione huiusmodi nostra dispositione retractanda seu violanda, maxime cum viros etiam pro tempore spectabiles eorundem proximos scriniorum, si quis eorum ante completum proximatus actum morte praeventus sit, ad heredes successoresque suos residui temporis proximatus solacia sine quadam imminutione transmittere non dubitetur.

[12] Idem A. Celeri magistro officiorum. pr. In sacris scriniis militantes et parentes atque uxores eorum nec non liberos ex sententia tantummodo tuae celsitudinis criminales et civiles intentiones agentium excipere

[10][75] The same Augustus to Hilarianus, Count, Master of Offices, and Patrician. pr. We direct that the (number of) established clerks (statuti memoriales) in the bureau of memorials (scrinium memoriae) shall be sixty-two, in the bureau of correspondence (epistularum) thirty-four, and in the bureau of petitions (libellorum) also thirty-four. The number of copyists (antiquarii) employed in the bureau of memorials shall not be less than four. The above-mentioned clerks (memoriales) shall not perform the duties of two offices nor duplicate paperwork, so that it may not happen that they appropriate several advantages to themselves and leave nothing for anyone else.

(470–474).

[11] Emperor ANASTASIUS Augustus to Eusebius, Master of Offices. If anyone enrolled among the established officials (statuti) in Our imperial bureaux, that is, (the bureaus) of memorials, arrangements, correspondence, and petitions, should be carried off from the light of day, his heirs, successors, children, or the creditors who made a loan (fenus) to the deceased for the purpose of obtaining an established position (statuti locus) shall receive from his replacement – namely, any one of the supernumeraries who has been substituted for the vacancy as the most junior in the established ranks – the sum of money fixed in the imperial constitution of the Emperors Theodosius and Valentinian, of blessed memory, for the benefit and help of the chief clerk (proximus);[76] and if the inheritance or succession of the deceased has not been entered upon or accepted, such persons, that is to say, the creditors–rights against others being preserved for them–and the children, agnates and cognates, shall in like manner receive, and are permitted to seek and claim, this sum, not as an inheritance but as a privilege. Our arrangement shall not be changed or violated by any scheme, particularly when it may not be doubted that the then-serving chief clerks (proximi) of these same bureaus, persons of spectabilis rank, transmit to their heirs and successors without diminution the benefits (solacia) of the remaining time of their position as chief clerk if any one of them should be prevented by death from completing his term.

(492–497).

[12][77] The same Augustus to Celer, Master of Offices. pr. We order that those serving in the imperial bureaus and their parents, wives, and children, shall answer the criminal and civil complaints of plaintiffs only upon order of Your Highness; their bound tenants and enrolled tenants (coloni seu adscripticii) and slaves living in this imperial city shall, moreover, enjoy the same benefit, being entrusted for [75] Possibly combine with C. 1.23.6 (given March 27, 470, which Seeck accepts for this constitution), 12.59.9.

[76] See law 7 of this title.
[77] Possibly combine with C. 12.20.6.

iubemus, insuper etiam colonos seu adscripticios et servos eorum in hac regia urbe degentes eodem beneficio potiri, fidei pro tempore adiutoris viri spectabilis proximi vel unius ex statutis committendos: ita ut, si in provincia quicumque memorialis repertus fuerit, iuratoriae cautioni committatur, etsi non possideat immobilem substantiam, servi nihilo minus et coloni ad eum pertinentes fidei eius tradantur.

1. Modum insuper sportularum ad mediocrem deduci quantitatem et exsecutoribus de schola agentium in rebus attribuendis unum solidum singulos usque ad finem negotii proque ingressu in iudicio tuae magnitudinis quolibet modo faciendo duos solidos et pro editione gestorum exceptoribus dimidiam solidi partem et, si apud arbitrum negotium ventilari contigerit, ipsi quidem arbitro unum solidum et nihil amplius, exceptoribus autem eum observantibus tam pro ipso quod implere videntur ministerio quam pro editione gestorum seu relationis vel definitionis tertiam partem solidi praebere sancimus: nec pro tempore virum spectabilem fisci patronum vel exsecutores, quibus imminendi litibus sollicitudo iniuncta est, quicquam ab his exigere seu profligare concedi: dimidia scilicet expensarum, quas in iudicio tui culminis a memoratis personis praeberi statuimus, portione in iudiciis provincialibus ab his agnoscenda: ita ut, si de civilibus annonis vel tutela seu curatione vel novi operis nuntiatione litem eos subire contigerit, in maiore quidem iudicio ad similitudinem sumptuum, quos in iudicio eminentiae tuae dependere praecepti sunt, apud virum autem clarissimum praefectum annonae seu fisci patronum urbicariae magnificae praefecturae vel architectos pro modo eorum, quae super arbitris et litibus apud eos exercendis superius statuta sunt, solventes expensas nihil amplius agnoscere seu dependere cogantur.

2. Quae omnia custodiri iubemus, sive per se sive per procuratores aut defensores lites exercere maluerint. haec, si prolata scriptis sententia moniti sunt. 3. Si vero ex depositione seu aliter quis eorum conventus fuerit, nihil eum vel scrinio viri clarissimi adiutoris vel cuilibet alii nomine sportularum offerre compelli. 3a. Omnibus ante latis privilegiis postea, quibus per anteriores divorum principum sanctiones defenduntur, in persona tam eorum, qui adhuc militant et qui postea eandem militiam sortiti sunt, quam eorum, qui praedictam militiam gradu vocante iam deposuerunt vel postea deposuerint, servandis, ut eorum commodo ipsi quoque una cum uxoribus et liberis, colonis praeterea et servis propriis perfruantur.

their appearance to the care of the then-serving principal assistant (adiutor) of the chief clerk (proximus), a person of spectabilis rank, or of one of the established officials (statuti, i.e., in the bureaus); and so, if any clerk (memorialis) shall be found in a province, he shall be bound by his guaranty on oath (iuratoria cautio) even if he has no immovable property, and the slaves and bound tenants (coloni) belonging to him shall be entrusted to his good faith nonetheless.

1. We order, moreover, the measure of judicial fees (sportulae) to be reduced to a small quantity, and each of them shall give: 1 solidus to the court clerks (exsecutores) assigned from the corps of couriers (agentes in rebus) through to the end of the suit; 2 solidi for appearance in the tribunal of Your Greatness in whatever manner made; and one-half-solidus to the shorthand writers (exceptores) for a copy of the proceedings. And if it happens that the suit is tried before an arbitrator, 1 solidus and no more shall be paid to the arbitrator himself and one-third-solidus to the shorthand writers attending him for their services as such, as well as for a copy of the proceedings or of a report or decision. Nor shall the then-serving Advocate of the Treasury (fisci patronus), of spectabilis rank, or the court clerks (exsecutores) who are required to render services in connection with suits ask or demand anything. In provincial tribunals the aforesaid persons shall pay half of the amount which We have fixed for the tribunal of Your Highness. If they should happen to have litigation concerning the public food supply (annonae civiles) or guardianship or curatorship or in connection with a protest against new construction (novi operis nuntiatio) before a higher tribunal, then they must pay the same amount of fees which they are directed to pay before the tribunal of Your Eminence; but they shall not be compelled to acknowledge or pay in the tribunal of the Prefect of the Food Supply, a person of clarissimus rank, or the Advocate of the Treasury of the Magnificent City Prefecture, or the architects greater fees than those which have been fixed above for arbitrators and for suits tried by them.

2. We order all these provisions to apply whether they conduct the litigation personally or by procurators or defenders. The foregoing governs when they are summoned to appear by an order in writing. 3. If anyone of them is summoned by deposition or otherwise, he shall not be compelled to pay any fees (sportulae) to the bureau of the principal assistant (adiutor), of clarissimus rank, or anyone else. 3a. All the privileges previously conferred, by which they have been protected through previous ordinances of the blessed Emperors, shall hereafter be preserved for those now serving and those hereafter appointed to the same service, as well as for those who have already relinquished the aforesaid office or shall hereafter do so, upon their promotion,[78] so that they, together with their wives and children, as well as their bound tenants (coloni) and slaves, shall enjoy the advantages thereof.

[78] Lit., "with a (superior) ranking/grade/position summoning (them)," gradu vocante; alternatively, "leaving the ranking/grade/position vacant," gradu vacante.

4. Et quoniam in controversiis, quas in iudiciis moveri contigerit, aequalitatem litigatoribus volumus servari, et adversariis eorum pro sumptibus et expensis similem ante latorum beneficiorum praerogativam custodiri.

5. Propter hanc etenim causam et viros devotos memoriales non tantum agendo in quolibet iudicio, sed etiam actiones ab aliis ingerendas excipiendo privilegiis a nobis indultis potiri decernimus. 6. His videlicet, qui militiam virorum devotissimorum memorialium gradu soluto deposuerunt seu deposuerint, et si quietis amore per provincias domicilium fovere maluerint, omnibus nihilo minus privilegiis, quae huiusmodi personis per sacratissimam legem nuper promulgatam a nostra serenitate praestita sunt, muniendis et eorum commodis atque auxilio potituris.

[13] Imp. Iustinus A. Proculo quaestori sacri palatii. pr. Comperimus divinitus quidem fuisse dispositum viros devotos adiutores tuae magnitudinis certo esse in numero nec ad huiusmodi nomen vel operam plures licitum esse adspirare, quam in scrinio quidem sacrae memoriae duodecim tantum, septenos vero in duobus reliquis scriniis, id est sacrarum epistularum sacrorumque libellorum, sed posterioris licentiam temporis supra modum indulgendo ambitionibus disturbasse rei merita ac in multitudinem divulgasse, ut inter memorialium et adiutorum numerum non longum paene intersit.

1. Sancimus itaque reduci ac renovari statutum ordinis terminum, non ut eximantur adiutoribus ii, qui praeter praedictam dispositionem in praesenti exuberant, sed ut interea omnibus aliis interdicatur ab adfectando hoc nomen, donec exeuntibus singulis ac recedentibus decrescere possit vetita conglomeratio legitimusque iam resideat numerus: non prohibendis viris devotis adiutoribus desistentibus eodem officio, cum vel ad laterculensis gradum in scrinio sacrae memoriae provecti fuerint vel secundum locum obtinuerint in duobus aliis scriniis, post quem proximi creabuntur, licet nondum redacta sit quantitas pristina, tamen alios pro se quos elegerint subrogandos adiutores petere, qui posteriores erunt ceteris.

4. And since We desire to maintain parity for the litigants in controversies in courts, (We decree that) their adversaries shall also enjoy the right of the aforementioned benefits in regard to outlays and expenses.

5. And so We decree that the devoted clerks of the imperial bureaux (memoriales) shall enjoy the privileges bestowed by Us not only in bringing an action but also in answering an action brought by others against them. 6. And those who have completed their service and have relinquished their positions as most devoted clerks of the imperial bureaus or shall hereafter do so, though they prefer to establish their domicile in the provinces owing to a love of tranquility, shall nevertheless enjoy the protection of the privileges granted them by the imperial law recently promulgated by Our Serenity[79] and obtain the advantages and benefit thereof.

(503–518).

[13] Emperor JUSTIN Augustus to Proculus, Quaestor of the Imperial Palace. We have learned that an imperial enactment provided that the devoted principal assistants (adiutores) of Your Greatness should be of a definite number and that no more should be permitted to aspire to that name and work than twelve in the imperial bureau of memorials (memoriae), and seven each in both of the other bureaus, that is to say, in that of the imperial correspondence (epistularum) and of the imperial petitions (libellorum); but that the liberty taken in later times, by indulging corrupt solicitations (ambitiones) beyond the limit set, has disturbed this arrangement and has let in a multitude, so that there is hardly any difference between the number of clerks (memoriales) and the number of principal assistants.

1. We ordain therefore that the fixed arrangement be reinstated and renewed, not that those presently in excess of the number of principal assistants contrary to the foregoing arrangement should be removed, but that in the meantime all others shall be forbidden to aspire to this name, so that by various persons retiring and departing the forbidden superfluity may be decreased, and the legitimate number only remain. Nor do We forbid the devoted principal assistants who are leaving that same position, once they have been advanced to the grade of registrar (laterculensis) in the bureau of memorials or have attained the second place (i.e., of deputy chief clerk or melloproximus) in the two other bureaux, after which they are chosen as chiefs clerks (proximi), to choose substitutes for themselves – who will (however) come after the others (in rank) – even if the membership has not yet been reduced to its former number.

79 This law is not extant.

2. Illud etiam disponendum duximus utpote nonnullis anterioribus exemplis subnixum nec non iustitiae congruum, ut ab his, quibus concessum est adiutorum agmini pro se sociare, libellus offeratur viro illustri pro tempore quaestori petendaque eius subscriptio tempus atque hominem nec non rem ipsam continens, id est quod inter adiutores ei quem pro se subrogat merere permissum est: ordinandis videlicet isdem adiutoribus pro ratione temporum, quibus libelli porrecti sunt, ut, etiamsi memorialium matricula inferiore loco sit, qui prior in adiutoribus meruit, adiutor quidem habeatur superior, memorialis vero posterior pro utriusque ordinis modo vel discrimine: quod etiam in aliis quoque paene omnibus officiis observari dignoscitur.

[14] Idem A. Tatiano magistro officiorum. pr. Hac lege sancimus, si quando adiutores viri magnifici pro tempore quaestoris sacri nostri palatii in accusationem civilis causae vel criminalis deducti fuerint, strictum iuris et integritati congruum ordinem conservari, ut, si sine scriptis conveniendi sint, nomen eius praecipientis ore designatum esse sufficiat: sin autem scriptis in querimoniam unus adiutorum aut plures forte ferendi sint, monumenta sententiarum in persona tantummodo conveniendi adiutoris praecedentium aequum et iustum initium futuro praestent certamini.

1. Et quoniam probatioribus exemplis quam indecorae consuetudini deceat indulgeri, quod in universo scrinio devotissimorum libellensium evicisse monstratur, id in adiutores sacrae memoriae, sacrarum etiam epistularum transferendum censemus, ut, qui liberam proficiscendi licentiam pronuntiatione commeatus indepti fuerint, sine qualibet stipendiorum aut emolumentorum deductione peregre degant, etenim[ii] pro tempore viris clarissimis proximis et melloproximis aut eorum adiutoribus absentiae causa vel offerre de suo proprio aut ex annonis aut stipendiis quicquam relinquere cogendi, quamvis Ianuarias kalendas indultum excedat spatium et intra se festum diem contineat.[iii] 2. Ad haec illud observandum sancimus, ne alius adiutor propter quamcumque ambitionem his, qui in praesenti sunt, vel post eorum deminutionem addatur, licet in veterem numerum redacti fuerint.

[ii] minime
[iii] nec intra festum diem se contineat

2. We have also believed it well to arrange a matter which is sustained by past examples and not inconsonant with justice, that those who are permitted to substitute someone for themselves as one of the principal assistants should address a petition to the then-serving Quaestor, a person of illustris rank, seeking his signature (subscriptio) on a declaration stating the time, the name of the person, and the matter itself, that is to say, that the substituted person is permitted to serve among the principal assistants; and the principal assistants themselves are to be arranged in the order in which the petitions are submitted, so that although he may be in a lower place (locus) on the register of clerks, yet if he first commenced to serve as principal assistant, he shall be ranked a senior principal assistant but a junior clerk, in accordance with the practice and situation in each case, an arrangement also followed in almost all the other official staffs.

(522–526).[80]

[14] The same Augustus to Tatianus, Master of Offices. pr. By this law We ordain that if ever the principal assistants (adiutores) of the then-serving vir magnificus Quaestor of the Palace should become involved in a criminal or civil accusation, a strict arrangement consonant with law and honesty shall be observed, so that if they are to be summoned without writing, it shall suffice (to commence the proceedings) that their name be orally designated by the summoner; but if one or more of the principal assistants are to be sued in writing then the record of the preceding judgment only as to the person of the principal assistant to be summoned shall be sufficient for the proper beginning of the suit.

1. And since it is better to follow approved examples than an improper custom, We order that the practice prevailing throughout the most devoted bureau of petitions shall also apply to the principal assistants of the bureaus of imperial memorials and of imperial correspondence, namely that those who have permission to go away on an approved leave of absence may live abroad without any diminution of their stipends or emoluments and without (minime) being compelled to give to the then-serving chief clerks (proximi), of clarissimus rank, or to the deputy chief clerks (melloproximi) or to their principal assistants (adiutores) anything from their own property, salary, or stipends by reason of such absence, although the time of leave of absence is beyond the first day of January and extends beyond the festive day. 2. We also order that no other principal assistant shall by any corrupt solicitation (ambitio) be added either to the present number or after the diminution thereof, even after they have been reduced to the former number.

(520).[81]

[80] Lounghis et al. date to between 522 and 523, or between 525 and 526.

[81] Lounghis et al. date to between May 28, 520, and December 25, 524.

[15] Impp. Iustinus et Iustinianus AA. Tatiano magistro officiorum. pr. Certae quidem sunt dispositiones nostri numinis, quas super adiutoribus viri illustris pro tempore quaestoris nostri palatii, quorum obsequio res agitur quaestoria, dedimus.

1. Quarum prima quidem ad supplicationem eorundem adiutorum emissa numero eorum, qui erant illo tempore, quo preces nobis obtulerunt, neque aliquem eximi neque aliquem addi praecepit, praeterquam si quis eorum vel ad laterculensis gradum in scrinio sacrae memoriae vel ad secundum locum in duobus aliis scriniis, id est sacrarum epistularum sacrorumque libellorum et cognitionum, provectus fuerit: nam his licere desistentibus ab adiutoris officio alios pro se quos voluerint adiutores subrogare ultimum locum in isdem adiutoribus obtenturos, licet superiorem in memorialibus habeant.

2. Altera vero per sacram pragmaticam facta est, per quam excelsae memoriae Proculo viro suggerente praecepimus illos etiam adiutores posse in suum locum alios inducere, qui per aliquem fortuitum casum minus implere suum officium valeant, veluti senium vel morbum vel aliam necessariam causam: quod ex ipsorum adiutorum petitione idem magnificae memoriae Proculus ad nos rettulit.

3. Sed in praesenti, ab aliis memorialibus tam in scrinio sacrae memoriae quam in ceteris duobus sacrarum epistularum sacrorumque libellorum et cognitionum relatis aditi comperimus deminutionem eorundem adiutorum impediri per memoratam pragmaticam sanctionem et insuper venditionis quodammodo memorati officii locum introductum esse.

4. Quod ne de cetero fiat, praesentem sanctionem ad tuam magnitudinem mittimus, per quam iubemus illis tantummodo permissum esse secundum prius nostrae serenitatis rescriptum alios in suum locum subrogare, qui vel laterculensis gradum in scrinio memoriae vel secundum locum in aliis duobus scriniis adepti fuerint, secunda nostra sanctione super hoc capitulo de cetero cessante: nulli danda licentia eorundem adiutorum, praeterquam si ad memoratos gradus adscenderit, alium pro se isdem adiutoribus ex quocumque fortuito casu connumerare, ut eo modo ad veterem numerum idem adiutores redeant et duodecim quidem in scrinio sacrae memoriae, septeni vero in aliis pr. There are certain orderings of Our Divine Majesty that We have made concerning the principal assistants (adiutores) of the then-serving Quaestor of Our Palace, of illustris rank, through whose service quaestorial duties are performed.

[15][82] Emperors Justin and Justinian Augusti to Tatianus, Master of Offices.

1. The first of these,[83] made upon the petition of the principal assistants themselves, directed that none should be taken from or added to the number existing at the time at which they addressed the petition to us, except that if one of them should reach the rank of registrar (laterculensis) in the bureau of memorials (memoriae) or the second place (locus; i.e., of deputy chief clerk or melloproximus) in the two other bureaus, that is, those of the imperial correspondence (epistularum) and of imperial petitions (libellorum et cognitionum), he should have the right, when leaving the position of principal assistant, to select in his place anyone he wants, who should take the most junior place among the principal assistants, although he might occupy a higher place among the clerks (memoriales).

2. The other order[84] was made by an imperial pragmatic sanction, in which We directed, upon the suggestion of Proculus, of exalted memory, that those principal assistants who by some unexpected circumstance were unable to occupy their position, for instance on account of old age, sickness, or other unavoidable cause, might substitute others in their place. This was suggested to Us by Proculus, of towering memory, upon petition of the same principal assistants.

3. But at present, having been approached by other clerks, both of the bureau of memorials as well as of the other two bureaus, those of the imperial correspondence and of imperial petitions, We learned that the diminution in the number of these principal assistants was hindered on account of the above-mentioned pragmatic sanction, and moreover that opportunity was in a manner introduced for the sale of the above-mentioned position.

4. In order that this may not happen in the future, We are sending the present ordinance to Your Greatness, by which We order that only those who have attained either the rank of registrar in the bureau of memorials or the second place in the other two bureaus shall be permitted to choose others in their place, in accordance with the prior rescript of Our Serenity, and that Our second ordinance made on this subject (as mentioned above) shall hereafter cease to have validity; to none of the same principal assistants, except those reaching the aforementioned ranks, is granted the opportunity of selecting a substitute for any cause whatever, so that by this means the aforesaid principal assistants may be reduced to the former number, namely twelve in the bureau of imperial memorials and seven each in the other two, that is those of the imperial [82] Compare C. 1.31.5. Lounghis et al. give between April 22 and late July, 527.

[83] See C. 12.19.13 pr., 1.
[84] See C. 12.19.13.2.

duobus sint, id est sacrarum epistularum sacrorumque libellorum et cognitionum. 5. Illo videlicet observando, ne alius adiutor per quamcumque ambitionem his qui in praesenti sunt vel post eorum deminutionem, licet in veterem numerum redacti fuerint, addatur: nam si permutationem, licet fortuito casus inciderint, prohiberi disposuimus, multo magis prioribus manentibus alios introduci vetamus: ceteris scilicet anterioris sanctionis capitulis in suo robore permansuris.

XX De Agentibus in Rebus

[1] Imppp. Arcadius Honorius et Theodosius AAA. Anthemio magistro officiorum. Nullus de schola agentium in rebus de cetero locum mortui conetur invadere, sed is, qui ordine stipendiorum et laborum merito ad gradum militiae sequebatur, statim atque illum fata subduxerint in eius praemia percipienda succedat omni obreptione cessante.

D. prid. k. Iul. Constantinopoli Honorio A. VI et Aristaeneto conss.

[2] Idem AAA. Helioni magistro officiorum. Nulli posthac sine nostrae maiestatis auctoritate discingendi agentem in rebus, nulli eximendi pateat copia: nam probata schola et animadversionem vereri iudicis et nullam debet timere contumeliam vilitatis.

D. III id. Nov. Constantinopoli Honorio X et Theodosio VI AA. conss.

[3] Imp. Leo A. Patricio magistro officiorum. pr. Matriculam agentum in rebus a tua celsitudine confectam amittentes iubemus, ne ducenarii plus quam quadraginta octo in cingulis habeantur in posterum: et numerum centenariorum ducenti viri, quos vocante tempore gradus competentes admiserint, parique modo biarchorum nomen meritumque ducenti quinquaginta viri dumtaxat, praeterea circitorum trecenti et equitum quadringenti quinquaginta impleant. 1. Sit in aeternum illa quoque correspondence and of imperial petitions. 5. This, too, must be observed, that no other principal assistant may be added, by any kind of corrupt solicitation, either to the present number or after the diminution thereof, even after they have been reduced to the former number. For insofar as We have directed that no substitution shall be made even for unexpected circumstances, so much more do We forbid others to be added while the prior members remain. The other subjects of the former ordinance shall remain in force.

(527).

Twentieth Title Imperial Couriers

[1][85] Emperors Arcadius, Honorius, and Theodosius Augusti to Anthemius, Master of Offices. No member of the corps of couriers (schola agentium in rebus) shall henceforth attempt to seize the place (locus) of a deceased member, but as soon as the fates have carried off the decedent, the person who followed him in service rank (gradus militiae) with respect to the regular order of compensation and the merit of his labor shall succeed to and take possession of his predecessor's emoluments, and every surreptitious activity shall cease.

Given June 30, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Honorius Augustus, for the sixth time, and Aristaenetus (404).

[2][86] The same Augusti to Helion, Master of Offices. No one, without authority from Our Majesty, shall hereafter have the power (copia) of depriving of his belt of office or dismissing a courier. For a corps (schola) which has received Our approbation should neither be overawed by a judge's capacity to punish nor fear vilification of a trifling kind.[87]

Given November 11, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Honorius, for the tenth time, and Theodosius, for the sixth time, Augusti (415).

[3] Emperor Leo Augustus to Patricius, Master of Offices. pr. We direct those who keep the register of couriers drawn up by Your Highness that hereafter no more than forty-eight ducenarii (highest in service rank) shall be kept on duty; the number of centenarii (second in rank) whom the competent authorities admit in order of seniority in rank shall consist of 200; in like manner the title and reward of biarchus ("commissary," third in rank) shall be limited to 250, that of circitor ("patrol," fourth in rank) to 300, and that of the equites ("troopers," fifth in rank) to 450. 1. Let the following arrangement, too, of Your

[85] = C.Th. 6.27.14.

[86] = C.Th. 6.27.17, indicating that in fact this law was issued by the Emperors Honorius and Theodosius. Seeck corrects the date to November 11, 416.

[87] Taking nullam with both animadversionem and contumeliam, as the sense seems to require.

fixa stabilisque tuae sublimitatis dispositio, ut, si quis de numero ducenariorum, quos quadraginta octo quotannis esse censuimus, forsitan de luce migraverit, laborum eius fructum successores ab intestato vel ex testamento venientes luctui dispensent, et ita omnibus inter ceteros superstites potiantur solaciis, tamquam si vivus, qui haec eadem diu speraverat, sibimet vindicasset: qua de causa locum etiam eius successorum intuitu vacare conveniet. 2. Nemo autem sine divali probatoria, quam codices in sacro nostro scrinio memoriae positi debeant inserendam accipere, militaribus eiusdem devotissimae scholae stipendiis vel privilegiis potiatur.

[4] Idem A. Patricio magistro officiorum. pr. Ex eo, quo primum ducenae vel centenariorum gradum in schola agentum in rebus militantes meruerint, desinant in sacratissima videlicet civitate constituti alterius iudicis cuiuslibet auctoritate pulsari, vel in alio quolibet examine praeterquam viri magnifici magistri officiorum et cui forsitan ipse concesserit actionibus sui quisque adversarii respondere. quod multo magis in criminalibus causis observari decernimus: absurdum est enim, ut in eius salutem vel existimationem valeat quisquam proferre sententiam, cuius de nulla re possit pecuniaria iudicare. 1. Huius autem beneficii praerogativam subadiuvis etiam, qui singulis inveniuntur temporibus, deferri iubemus, licet hanc in eorum persona more quoque vetere servari cognoverimus: ut tamen post depositum officium memoratum, si non inter centenarios numerentur, communi iam lege respondere non ambigant. 2. Praedictas autem omnes centenariorum personas in provincia repertas concessa nunc speciali fori praerogativa, nisi publicae exsecutionis sollicitudo his iniuncta sit, uti prohibemus eosque ordinariorum etiam iudicum pro vetere iure sententiis oboedire praecipimus.

[5] Idem A. Patricio magistro officiorum. pr. Agentes in rebus, qui per ordinem consequi solent principatus insignia, in unoquoque scrinio fabricarum et barbarorum quaternos subadiuvarum sollicitudinem per annum dumtaxat integrum procedentes gradatim subire hac in Sublimity be fixed and stable unto eternity, that if any one of the ducenarii, whom We have determined shall annually consist of forty-eight, should, perchance, leave the light of day, his successors on intestacy or testacy shall, as a solace, receive the fruits of his labor; and so his survivors, among others, shall enjoy every consolation, as if he had lived and had claimed as his own the very things for which he long had hoped; for this reason it is proper that his place shall be left open in consideration of his heirs. 2. No one, however, shall enjoy the stipends and privileges of service in the most devoted corps (schola) without an imperial certificate of appointment (probatoria) recorded in the books of Our imperial bureau of memorials.

(c. 466).[88]

[4] The same Augustus to Patricius, Master of Offices. pr. From the time at which those serving in the corps (schola) of couriers first reach the rank of ducenarii or centenarii (i.e., the highest or second highest service rank), they shall not, if they are located in this Most Imperial City, be sued by the order (auctoritas) of any judge or respond to the action of their adversaries in any court other than that of the vir magnificus Master of Offices, unless, perchance, the latter has delegated authority to another. We decree that this shall be particularly followed in criminal causes; for it would be absurd that anyone who cannot even adjudicate the pecuniary matters of another should render a decision concerning that person's well-being and character. 1. We order the privilege of this benefit to be extended also to their deputy principal assistants (subadiuvae) whom they may have at various times, although We have learned that it has already been extended to them by former custom. After they have relinquished the aforementioned office, they are subject to the law applicable in ordinary cases, unless numbered among the centenarii. 2. We forbid, however, all the above-mentioned centenarii who are discovered in the provinces to enjoy the special privilege here granted unless the care of the performance of a public duty has been enjoined upon them; and so We direct that they must obey the orders of the ordinary governors (ordinarii iudices) according to the ancient law (applicable in such cases).

(c. 466).

[5][89] The same Augustus to Patricius, Master of Offices. pr. We decree by this law, to be in force forever, that four of the imperial couriers who in due course usually attain the insignia of the position of Chief of Staff (principatus) shall, in regular order (gradatim), serve as deputy principal assistants (subadiuvae)

[88] Seeck gives 457–470 for this constitution and the next two.

[89] Early editions of C. inserted a new title here with the rubric "Concerning the commandants (praepositi) of the couriers (agentes in rebus)."

aeternum valitura lege decernimus: exceptis videlicet universis negotiatoribus quodlibet mercimonium per se gerentibus interpositasve personas, cum eis ante sacratissimis constitutionibus interdictum sit militare: exceptis nihilo minus his, qui possessionum alienarum sollicitudinem procurationemve susceperint. eos enim ad haec officia volumus adspirare, quorum labores scholae agentum in rebus testimonio comprobantur.

1. Illi quoque sunt ab hac liberalitate nostrae mansuetudinis excludendi, qui, cum scholae eidem socientur, in sacris scriniis, quibus vir spectabilis primicerius et tertiocerius praesunt, adiuvantes eos publicarum chartarum tractatibus occupantur et duobus officiis operam suam adhibere non possunt: nam praeter emolumenta, quae de praedictis scriniis consequuntur, principatus etiam solacio debent esse contenti. 2. Quod si morbo vel aetatis senio capti vel imperiti huiusmodi rerum vel quocumque alio vitio praepediti per se memorati officii curam subire nequiverint, consideratis praecedentibus eorum laboribus per substitutum chartularium eiusdem scrinii, cui praefuturus est ipse, idoneum et tam moribus optimis praeditum quam scientiam peritiamque rerum habentem electione sua suarumque periculo facultatum praefatum munus eos implere praecipimus.

[6] Imp. Anastasius A. Celeri magistro officiorum. pr. Hac saluberrima sanctione decernimus agentes in rebus pro conventionibus et modo sportularum exsecutoribus praebendarum pro quantitate sumptuum, quae circa litigia sibimet ab aliis inferenda vel a se contra alios per semet ipsos seu per ordinandos a se procuratores exercenda convenit ab his agnosci, beneficiis, quae in sacro nostro militantibus ministerio iam pridem per divinas sanctiones indulta sunt, perpotiri, fideiussorem idoneum de eadem schola, non autem extraneum offerre compelli: 1. Ita tamen, ut privilegia, quaecumque centenariis seu ducenariis vel chartulariis seu viris clarissimis principibus post depositam quoque militiam iam per dispositiones principales impertita et nunc usque observata for the period of one year only, (one) in each (diocesan) bureau of the state arms factories (fabricae) and (in each diocesan bureau) of foreigners (barbari), excepting (herefrom) however all merchants carrying on any kind of trade either personally or through third persons, since they have by previous imperial constitutions been forbidden to be in the imperial service; and excepting no less those who have undertaken the care and management of the possessions of others. For We want these offices to be occupied by those whose labors have been approved by the testimonial of the corps (schola) of couriers.

1. Those, too, are to be excluded from this bounty of Our Clemency who, while associated with the same corps (schola), are occupied in the imperial bureaus (sacra scrinia) over which the Chief Secretary (primicerius, i.e., of the notaries), of spectabilis rank, and Second Assistant Chief Secretary (tertiocerius) preside, aiding them in drafting public documents, for they cannot do work on two official staffs; and aside from the emoluments which they receive from the aforesaid bureaus, they ought to be content with the solace of the position of Chief of Staff (principatus). 2. But if, taken by sickness or old age, or inexperienced in such matters, or hindered for any other reason, they are unable to enter into the responsibility of the above-mentioned office themselves, then in consideration of their former labor We grant them discretion to fulfill, with their own choice and at the peril of their own property, the aforesaid duty by substituting a secretary (chartularius), drawn from the same bureau of which he himself is about to become the Chief of Staff, who is suitable, provided with the highest morals, and possessed of requisite knowledge and experience.

(c. 466).

[6][90] Emperor ANASTASIUS Augustus to Celer, Master of Offices. By this very salutary ordinance We order that couriers shall enjoy the benefits heretofore granted by imperial ordinances to those who are serving in Our imperial administration (ministerium), in connection with complaints (conventiones) and the measure of fees (sportulae) payable to court clerks (exsecutores) (and) in connection with the amount of expenses which should be paid by them in suits against them or in suits brought by them against others either directly or through procurators appointed by them; they shall (moreover) be compelled to provide a suitable surety (fideiussor) from their department, but not from outside it. 1. The privileges, however, which are known to have heretofore been bestowed by imperial orders upon centenarii, ducenarii, or secretaries (chartularii), or upon the Chiefs of Staff (principes) of clarissimus rank, even after they have relinquished their office, and are still observed up to this time, shall be kept unimpaired and inviolate, since it would be absurd and foolish to concede that anyone, through esse noscuntur, intacta inviolataque custodiantur, cum perabsurdum perque temerarium sit hanc nostrae pietatis liberalitatem quemquam astuta interpretatione non ad augmentum anteriorum privilegiorum, sed imminutionem convertere concedi: 2. Simili videlicet forma pro matribus et uxoribus eorum nec non etiam liberis sub eorum potestate constitutis nec aliam sortitis vel sortituris militiam nec non etiam servis ad eos pertinentibus servanda: 3. Ita ut in provinciis quoque supra dictae personae degentes simili beneficio perfruantur, sportulas tamen et litium expensas pro tertia superius enarratae quantitatis soluturae: 4. Denarum librarum auri condemnatione aliaque gravissima indignatione his feriendis, quicumque nostra iussa quolibet modo seu tempore violaverint seu violari concesserint.

[90] Possibly combine with C. 12.19.12.

XXI De Principibus Agentum in Rebus

[1] Imppppp. Gratianus Valentinianus Theodosius et Arcadius AAAA. Cynegio pp. pr. Agentes in rebus post palmam laboris emeriti principatus honore remuneramus. atque ideo officiales tam ad necessitates publicas quam privatas non nisi principe mittantur auctore, nullarumque sine ipso cuiquam mandetur exhibitio personarum, etiamsi intercessio in locis degentis officii fuerit impertita. 1. Causarum etiam patronos volumus esse conventos, ne ignorante principe ullam postulationem introducant, neve sub unius persona suscepti fraude quadam aliena negotia inserenda esse pertemptent. 2. Quod si fuerit definitio contempta, decem libras auri fisco nostro ab officio tuo iubemus inferri.

D. prid. k. Mart. Constantinopoli Honorio np. et Euodio conss.

[2] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Theodoto pu. Omnia citatoria, omnium scilicet causarum atque personarum, licet sint senatoriae dignitatis, ad principes specialiter revocari praecipimus, actus vero ceteros, qui in sacratissimo coetu senatus tractari consueverunt, censualium sollicitudine celebrari, nec aliquid praeiudicium ex subreptivo rescripto supplicibus inferri.

D. XII k. Iun. Constantinopoli Olybrio et Probino conss.

shrewd interpretation, could construe this bounty of Our Piety to be a decrease of former privileges rather than an increase thereof. 2. A similar rule in favor of their mothers and wives, and also their children under their (paternal) power who have not chosen or are not about to choose another branch of the imperial service, and also the slaves belonging to them, is to be respected. 3. And the aforesaid persons who live in the provinces shall also enjoy a similar benefit, paying, however, (only) the third part of the above-mentioned fees and costs of litigation. 4. Those who shall in any manner or at any time violate Our orders, or permit them to be violated, shall pay a fine of 10 pounds and be visited by even severer punishment.

(503–518).

Twenty-First Title Chiefs of Staff of the Couriers

[1][91] Emperors GRATIAN, VALENTINIAN, THEODOSIUS, and ARCADIUS Augusti, to Cynegius, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). pr. We reward the imperial couriers, after the success of their accomplished work, with the honor of the position of Chief of Staff (principatus honor). No officials (under him) shall be sent to attend to public or private responsibilities without his order, and no one shall without his authorization be directed to produce any person (in court), even if the order is issued in places where the official staff is located. 1. We also want advocates (causarum patroni) to acknowledge that they shall bring no suit in court without the knowledge of the Chief of Staff and that they should not fraudulently attempt to bring unrelated business before the court in the name of one accepted as a client. 2. If this order is violated, We order 10 pounds of gold to be paid by your staff into Our Treasury.

Given February 28, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Honorius, Most Noble Boy, and Euodius (386).

[2][92] Emperors ARCADIUS and HONORIUS Augusti to Theodotus, City Prefect (of Constantinople). We direct that all summonses (citatoria) in all legal causes and in respect to all persons, even those of senatorial rank, shall be specifically recalled to (the direction of) the Chiefs of Staff (principes), but that other proceedings which usually take place in the most sacred assembly of the Senate shall be attended to by the tax assessors (censuales), nor shall any prejudice arise to suppliants through a rescript surreptitiously obtained.

Given May 21, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Olybrius and Probinus (395).

[91] = C.Th. 6.28.3, 4. Combine with C. 12.19.1 (= C.Th. 6.26.4).

[92] = C.Th. 6.28.5.

[3] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Palladio proconsuli Africae. Proconsularis apicis dignitatis adiectione principes agentum in rebus praecipimus decorari.

D. VII k. Oct. Ravennae Varane vc. cons.

[4] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Valerio magistro officiorum. pr. Ex agentibus in rebus principibus domesticos in suis actibus habere liceat eos, quorum fidem industriamque probatam sibi aestimant, etsi saepe eodem officio fuerint ante perfuncti. 1. Et si quis agens in rebus post viginti quinque annorum curricula ob adversam corporis valitudinem militiae finem minime valuerit expectare, sed ad honorariam ex principe dignitatem testimonio scholae prosilierit, isdem eum privilegiis muniri censemus, quibus ii qui ad principatus actum progressi sunt potiuntur. 2. Sed in salutationibus iudicum consessibusque priores eos, qui per longae militiae metas ad principatus actum pervenerint, etsi actus tempore posteriores sint, esse praecipimus. 3. Nihil censualibus vel apparitoribus adversus privilegia eorum excogitantibus, tamquam in actu principatus fuerint versati, vicenarum librarum auri condemnatione contra eos proposita.

D. IIII k. Febr. Constantinopoli Theodosio A. XV et qui fuerit nuntiatus.

[5] Idem AA. Cyro pp. Eos, qui ordine transcursa militia post ducenam ad desideratum principis pervenerint gradum aut adiutores viri illustris magistri officiorum extiterint, cum inter honoratos coeperint numerari, vicarianae dignitatis titulis decorari censemus.

[6] Idem AA. Nomo magistro officiorum. Principes agentum in rebus, quos saepe saeva pericula vitaeque interdum renuntiatio ad memoratum gradum adduxit, completo tempore suae militiae comitivae primi

[3][93] Emperors Honorius and Theodosius Augusti to Palladius, Proconsul of Africa. We direct that the Chiefs of Staff of the couriers be decorated by the addition of the lofty distinction of proconsular rank (proconsularis dignitas).

Given September 25, at Ravenna, in the consulship of the vir clarissimus Varanes (410).

[4][94] Emperors Theodosius and Valentinian Augusti to Valerius, Master of Offices. pr. Chiefs of Staff of the couriers may in the performance of their duties have as personal assistants (domestici) those whose fidelity and industry they deem proven although the latter have often served in the same position before. 1. And if any courier, after the service of twenty-five years, is on account of bodily infirmity unable to await the end of the service, but by the testimonial of the corps (schola) is advanced ahead of time to the honorary rank of ex-Chief of Staff, We determine that he shall be rewarded with the same privileges which are enjoyed by those who have actually officiated as Chief of Staff. 2. But in the official morning receptions (salutationes) of governors (iudices) and when sitting with them in court, We decree that those who through the course of long service have actually officiated as Chief of Staff, even if they have done so later in time, shall take precedence. 3. Nothing shall be devised against the privileges of these persons (i.e., the honorary ex-Chiefs of Staff), just as if they had actually occupied the position of Chief of Staff, by tax assessors (censuales) and subordinate officials (apparitores), at the risk of a fine of 20 pounds of gold.

Given January 29, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Theodosius Augustus, for the fifteenth time, and the one who is to be announced (436).

[5] The same Augusti to Cyrus, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). We direct that those who in regular order of their service have, after the rank of ducenarius, reached the desired rank (gradus) of Chief of Staff or become principal assistants (adiutores) of the Master of Offices, a person of illustris rank, shall, once they have begun to be numbered among the dignitaries (honorati), be decorated by the designation of the rank of Vicar (vicariana dignitas).

(440–441).[95]

[6][96] The same Augusti to Nomus, Master of Offices. We order that the Chiefs of Staff of the couriers, whom oftentimes grim dangers and at times renunciation of life have brought to the aforementioned rank (gradus), shall, when the time

[93] = C.Th. 6.28.7.

[94] = C.Th. 6.28.8. The Consul to be announced is the Emperor Valentinian, for the fourth time; Seeck corrects the date to January 29, 435.

[95] Seeck gives December 30, 440.

[96] Combine with C. 12.19.7, 8 (where the concluding words are repeated), 26.2. The date should be corrected to 445; Seeck had February 26, 444.

ordinis cingulo in diem vitae potiri, manentibus videlicet dudum praestitis salvis privilegiis, decernimus.

[7] Imp. Leo A. Nicostrato pp. pr. Quicumque ex corpore cohortalium militans in schola agentum in rebus filium procreaverit, antequam ad metas militiae suae perveniat,[iv] principatus honore decoretur, licet ipse post finitam militiam utpote liber nulla debeat huiusmodi conventione pulsari, filium tamen cohortali condicioni relinquat obnoxium. 1. Si vero, postquam adeptus fuerit principatum, ediderit filium, is qui natus est, etiamsi in schola devotissimorum agentum in rebus militiam sortitus non fuerit, ita sit liber ac securus nec ullis cohortalis officii nexibus obligetur, quasi iam ex patre libero et ab hac condicione penitus alieno progenitus.

[8] Imp. Zeno A. Iohanni magistro officiorum. pr. Multis devotissimae scholae agentum in rebus aditionibus permoti viros clarissimos eiusdem scholae principes, qui finitis militiae stipendiis exeunt, quotiens ex maioris iudicis sententiis ipsi vel eorum coniuges aut liberi vel servi aut coloni sive per se sive per procuratores conveniantur, non amplius quam unum solidum exsecutoribus sportularum nomine praebere compelli, apparitoribus vicarianis seu praesidalis iudicii non nisi tertia parte solidi tantum praestanda: 1. Nullasque eisdem concussiones aut vexationes in praebendis fideiussoribus ingeri, sed eos fideiussores quos locorum defensor existimaverit dare, ita videlicet, ut pro tenore generalium edictorum ii, qui vel in sacratissima urbe vel in provinciis immobiles possident facultates, iuratoriae cautioni et substantiae suae credantur. 2. Hoc etiam adiciendo, ut numquam nisi ex sententia in scriptis prolata penitus moneantur.

3. Ad similitudinem insuper aliorum officiorum, quotiens civiles vel criminales contra eosdem cognitiones moventur, exsecutorem quidem negotii usque ad finem litis civilis seu criminalis unius esse solidi praestatione contentum. 4. Et pro insinuandis nostrae serenitatis apicibus vel simplici contra obnoxios eorum postulatione deponenda binos solidos of their service is complete, enjoy the belt (cingulum) of the Countship of the First Order (comitiva primi ordinis) during the remainder of their life, reserving to them, in addition, the privileges already granted them.

iv <et>

(443–444?).

[7] Emperor LEO Augustus to Nicostratus, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). pr. If any of the members of the provincial administration (cohortales) serves in the corps (schola) of couriers and has a son before the end of his service, and is (afterwards) decorated by the honor of the position of Chief of Staff (principatus honor), then, although he himself shall be free after the completion of his service from being required to perform any duty pertaining to the cohortales, the son, nevertheless, shall continue to be subject to that status. 1. If however the son is born to him after he has reached the position of Chief of Staff, this son, even should he not serve in the corps of the most devoted couriers, shall be free and excused from any ties as a cohortalis, as if he were the son of a father free and entirely exempt from that status.

(468).[97]

[8] Emperor ZENO Augustus to John, Master of Offices. pr. Actuated by many requests of the most devoted corps (schola) of couriers, We decree that the Chiefs of Staff of that corps, of clarissimus rank, who depart with their period of service completed, shall pay no greater amount of fees (sportulae) than 1 solidus to the court clerks (exsecutores) and no more than a third part of a solidus to the subordinate officials (apparitores) of the court of the Vicar or the provincial governor (vicariane seu praesidale iudicium) whenever they, their wives, children, slaves, or bound tenants (coloni) are summoned either in person or through procurators by the order of one of the superior judges. 1. They shall be troubled by no extortions or vexations in furnishing sureties, but shall give such sureties as the defender of the place (defensor locorum) thinks should be given, and those who, in accordance with the tenor of the general edicts, possess immovable property either in this most imperial city or in the provinces need on that account give only a guaranty on oath (cautio iuratoria) (to appear). 2. This, too, is to be added, that they shall be summoned only pursuant to an order in writing.

3. And, further, as in the case of other members of official staffs, whenever a civil or criminal case is instituted against them the court clerk assigned to the transaction shall be content with payment to him of 1 solidus for the entirety of the civil or criminal suit. 4. And for registering rescripts (apices) of Our Serenity or for a simple action brought by him or his wife against their debtors, ab his vel coniugibus eorum praeberi. 5. Et quotiens exemplaria postulantur, ii quorum interest accepto solido quod petitur praebere non differant. 6. Pro implendis vero monumentis, unde conveniendi tribuitur exsecutoribus facultas, non ultra quam tres solidos quibus competit impertiri praecipimus. 7. Arbitro vero non amplius quam solidum et fisci patronis dimidiam solidi partem, notariis vero tertiam usque ad finem, sicut dictum est, causae praestare: super editione quoque chartularum solidi partem dimidiam praebere. 8. Quod si non apud arbitrum, sed in competentibus iudiciis maioribus cognitio celebretur, inducendi quidem negotii gratia non nisi quattuor solidos eosdem viros clarissimos erogare, gestorum vero excipiendorum causa duos tantummodo solidos dare et nullius ultra supra scriptas quantitates cuilibet alteri praestandi sumptus exactione vexari. 9. His omnibus locum habentibus, sive ipsi aliis litem ingerunt sive ab aliis pulsantur.

[97] Seeck gives February 8, 468.

D. k. Sept. Theodorico cons.

XXII De Curiosis

[1] Imp. Constantius A. ad Lollianum pp. Curiosi et stationarii, vel quicumque funguntur hoc munere, crimina iudicibus nuntianda meminerint et sibi necessitatem probationis incumbere, non citra periculum sui, si insontibus eos calumnias nexuisse constiterit. cesset ergo prava consuetudo, per quam carceri aliquos immittebant.

D. XI k. Aug. Mediolani. acc. XII k. Sept. Arbitione et Lolliano conss.

[2] Idem A. et Iulianus C. ad Taurum pp. pr. Agentes in rebus in curis agendis et evectionibus publici cursus inspiciendis nostrorum memores praeceptorum credimus in omnibus velle profutura rei publicae: ideoque solos agentes in rebus in hoc genere iussimus obsequium adhibere, et non ab alio penitus officio. 1. Hi vero pervigili diligentia providebunt, ne quis contra evectionis auctoritatem moveat cursum vel amplius postulet, quam concessit evectio. quisquis igitur aliquid tale perpetrare temptaverit, improbi coepti privetur effectu. 2. Demonstretur etiam iudicibus they shall pay only 2 solidi in each case. 5. And whenever copies are demanded, those whom it concerns shall not delay, after receipt of the payment of 1 solidus, to furnish what is asked. 6. For furnishing documents whereby court clerks are authorized to summon (parties), not more than 3 solidi shall be paid to the parties entitled thereto. 7. But they (couriers and their wives) shall pay not more than 1 solidus to a judge arbitrator; not more than half of a solidus to the Advocates of the Treasury (fisci patroni), and not more than one-third of 1 solidus to the notaries (from the beginning) to the end, as has been said, of the case. For a copy of records (chartulae) they shall pay one-half of a solidus. 8. But if the trial is not held before a judge arbitrator but before one of the competent superior judges, these same persons of clarissimus rank shall pay no more than 4 solidi for commencing the action and only 2 solidi for taking down the proceedings, and they shall not be troubled by an exaction of payment of expenses to anyone else beyond the amounts stated. 9. These provisions shall apply whether they bring actions against others or are sued by others.

Given September 1, in the consulship of Theodoric (484).

Twenty-Second Title Inspectors of the Public Post

[1][98] Emperor Constantius Augustus to Lollianus, Praetorian Prefect (of Illyricum). The inspectors of the public post (curiosi) and the military police (stationarii), or whoever performs this function (munus), must remember to notify the governors (iudices) of crimes, and that upon them lies the duty of proof, not without danger to themselves if it is determined that they have brought false accusations against persons who are innocent. The wicked practice by which they have sent men to jail shall therefore cease.

Given July 22, at Milan, and received August 21, in the consulship of Arbitio and Lollianus (355).

[2][99] The same Augustus and the Caesar Julian to Taurus, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy and Africa). pr. We believe that the couriers (agentes in rebus), mindful of Our ordinances in the performance of their duties (in curis agendis) and in inspecting the warrants for the public post (evectiones), wish to look after the welfare of the state in all things. We order, accordingly, that they alone, and no other office, shall be engaged in this service. 1. They will with ever-watchful care see to it that no one uses the public post beyond the authority of the warrant or demands more than the warrant authorizes. Whoever attempts to do this shall be deprived of any beneficial result of his dishonest attempt. 2. The warrant

[98] = C.Th. 6.29.1.
[99] = C.Th. 6.29.2 (altered). Seeck corrected the date to April 17, 356.

vel curiosis evectio, etiamsi quis nobis iubentibus festinare memoret in obsequium necessarium, nec praevaleat contumacia vel dignitas. 3. Ergo nummum vetamus exposci pro animalibus in cursu minime constitutis. quod si forte aliquis aestimaverit perpetrandum, eius quadruplum quod accepit inferre cogatur.

D. XV k. Mai. Mediolani Constantio A. VIIII et Iuliano C. II conss.

[3] Idem A. ad agentes in rebus. Per id tempus, quo cursus tuendi sollicitudinem sustinetis, condemnationes praefectorum praetorio circa eos solos irritae sunt futurae, qui servaverint honestatem. erga eos vero, qui inhoneste et contra decus saeculi vel honorem militiae versabuntur, non solum condemnatio mansura est, verum etiam gravior poena statuenda.

PP. prid. k. Dec. Eusebio et Hypatio conss.

[4] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Marcello magistro officiorum. pr. Agentes in rebus singulos per singulas provincias mittendos esse censemus, quibus tamen inspiciendarum evectionum tantum debeat cura mandari, ut nihil prorsus commune aut cum iudicibus aut cum provincialibus habeant. 1. Nec naves debebunt illicita concussione vexare nec libellos aut attestationes litis gratia suscipere aut in carcerem quemquam trudere, sed cursui solum vacare.

D. k. Iun. Constantinopoli Olybrio et Probino conss.

XXIII De Palatinis Sacrarum Largitionum et Rerum Privatarum

[1] Impp. Constantius et Constans AA. ad Veronicianum vicarium Asiae. Palatini pro capitibus seu iugis suis tantum pensitationem atque obsequia recognoscant, extraordinariis et sordidis muneribus et susceptionibus et temonariis oneribus liberati.

D. non. Mai. Constantinopoli Constantio IIII et Constante III AA. conss.

shall also be shown to the governors (iudices) or to inspectors of the public post, even if the bearer states that he is engaged in an urgent mission (obsequium) at Our command, nor shall any refusal be considered nor any rank be exempt. 3. We therefore forbid money to be demanded for animals not provided by the public post. If perchance anyone should purpose to accomplish this, he shall be compelled to pay fourfold the amount received.

Given April 17, at Milan, in the consulship of Constantius Augustus, for the ninth time, and the Caesar Julian, for the second time. (357).

[3][100] The same Augustus to the couriers. During the time when you are concerned with the supervision of the public post, the penalties of the Praetorian Prefect shall have no effect only against those (of you) who have preserved their honesty. Indeed, against those engaged in acting dishonestly and without regard for the splendor of the times and the honor of the imperial service, not only will the penalty be preserved but an even heavier punishment imposed.

Posted November 30, in the consulship of Eusebius and Hypatius (359).

[4][101] Emperors Arcadius and Honorius Augusti to Marcellus, Master of Offices. pr. We order that into each province shall be sent a courier (agens in rebus), to whom, however, shall only be entrusted the duty of inspecting warrants for the public post (evectiones), in order that they shall have nothing at all in common with the governors (iudices) or the provincials. 1. They shall vex no ships by unlawful extortion, nor receive complaints (libelli) or declarations (contestationes) looking to a lawsuit, nor put anyone in prison, but they shall devote their time entirely to the public post.

Given May ?, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Olybrius and Probinus (395).

Twenty-Third Title Palatine Officials of the Imperial Benefactions and of the Privy Purse

[1][102] Emperors Constantius and Constans Augusti to Veronicianus, Vicar of (the diocese of) Asia. Palatine officials (palatini) need to pay only the taxes and obligations levied on their own capitation tax and land tax units (capita seu iuga), and they are exempt from supplementary and menial compulsory public services (extraordinaria et sordida munera), from service as tax receivers (susceptiones), and from the obligation of collecting recruit taxes (temonaria onera).

Given May 7, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Constantius, for the fourth time, and Constans, for the third time, Augusti (346).

[100] = C.Th. 6.29.3. Combine with C. 1.31.1 (= C.Th. 1.9.1); C.Th. 6.29.4–5. Seeck dates to October 31, 359.
[101] = C.Th. 6.29.8. The date in May is uncertain.
[102] = C.Th. 11.16.6. The date is corrected by Seeck to May 7, 335.

[2] Imppp. Valentinianus Valens et Gratianus AAA. Titiano comiti sacrarum largitionum. Nullus thesaurensis vel officialis comitis thesaurorum semel deprehensus eversor quocumque pacto aut repetat militiam suam aut aliam sibi requirat per ambitum dignitatem vel sese transferat ad aliam quamcumque militiam.

D. VIII k. Febr. Antiochiae Gratiano A. IIII et Merobaude conss.

[3] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. Pancratio comiti rerum privatarum. pr. Prisco iam nunc ordine revocato de palatino potius officio ad gerendum principatum officii comitis domorum per Cappadociam mittantur, quales comes etiam domorum, si inhonestum aliquid gesserit, vereatur. 1. Idoneos itaque singulis annis e numero mittendariorum ad hoc eligere debebis et mittere.

D. prid. non. Iul. Scupis Ausonio et Olybrio conss.

[4] Idem AAA. ad Hesperium pp. Nihil omnino ullis iudicibus cum palatinis nostrae clementiae, quicumque a comitibus diriguntur, sit commune atque coniunctum, sed excepta reverentia, quae non solum ab inferioribus, sed etiam a maioribus et in provincia degentibus rectoribus provinciarum debetur atque defertur, suis quisque necessitatibus obsecundet.

D. VIII id. Dec. Sirmio Ausonio et Olybrio conss.

[5] Idem AAA. Nebridio comiti rerum privatarum. Quidam post impletum ordinem militiae palatinae quam gesserant honoremque transactum ad exceptorum scrinia transire nituntur. hac igitur lege sancimus, ut nulli prorsus dehinc ista audendi relinquatur occasio: sed unusquisque

[2][103] Emperors VALENTINIAN, VALENS, and GRATIAN Augusti to Tatianus, Count of Imperial Benefactions. No depot official (thesaurensis) or member of the official staff (officialis) of a Count of the Depots (comes thesaurorum) shall in any manner attempt to regain his place in the imperial service after he has once been found to be an embezzler (eversor; "wrecker") or obtain any other position of rank through corrupt solicitation or transfer himself to any other branch of the imperial service.

Given January 25, at Antioch, in the consulship of Gratian Augustus, for the fourth time, and Merobaudes (377).

[3][104] Emperors GRATIAN, VALENTINIAN, and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Pancratius, Count of the Privy Purse. pr. Reinstating the former arrangement, the position of Chief of Staff (principatus officii) of the Count of the Imperial Estates in Cappadocia (comes domorum per Cappadociam) shall be filled by persons sent preferably from the palatine staff (palatinum officium), whose qualities are such that even the Count of the Imperial Estates must fear them if he should do anything dishonest. 1. You must, therefore, each year, select and send suitable men from among the messengers (mittendarii) for this purpose.

Given July 6, at Scupi (Skopje), in the consulship of Ausonius and Olybrius (379).

[4][105] The same Augusti to Hesperius, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy and the Gauls). There shall be absolutely nothing in common and no association between the governors (iudices) and the palatine officials of Our Clemency who are sent by the Counts, but each shall attend to his own duties, observing the deference that is owing and must be paid to the governors (rectores) of the provinces not only by inferior officials but also by their superiors stationed in the provinces.

Given December 6, at Sirmium, in the consulship of Ausonius and Olybrius (379).

[5][106] The same Augusti to Nebridius, Count of the Privy Purse. Some, having completed the regular order of palatine service in which they were engaged and having attained the honor (of the highest place therein), attempt to pass into the bureaus of shorthand writers (scrinia exceptorum). We therefore ordain by this law that henceforth no opportunity of daring such a thing shall be left for anyone. Everyone shall follow the regular order of that bureau in which he first

[103] = C.Th. 8.7.14.
[104] = C.Th. 6.30.2.
[105] = C.Th. 6.30.4. The date is corrected by Seeck to December 6, 378; Mommsen gave February 6, 379.
[106] = C.Th. 6.30.5.

eius scrinii, quod primum militando elegit, ordinem persequatur nec in alterius loco finem militiae requirat, qui iam proprii ordinis transegerit principatum.

D. v id. Oct. Constantinopoli Merobaude II et Saturnino conss.

[6] Idem AAA. ad Probum pp. Ab officiis palatinorum excellentia tua sciat ita penitus recedendum, ut neque ipsa postmodum licitum sibi credat isdem aliquid iniungere et praeterea provinciarum rectores prohibeat quicquam ulterius tale conari.

D. II k. Nov. Mediolani post cons. Merobaudis II et Saturnini.

[7] Idem AAA. Trifolio comiti sacrarum largitionum. pr. Scriniis omnibus largitionum comitatensium infra scriptas decernimus dignitates, ut his contenti ambiendi sibi aditum interclusum esse cognoscant, etiamsi speciale beneficium emendicato suffragio quisquam valuerit impetrare. annonas etiam iuxta definitum dignitatum modum volumus postulari nec amplius quicquam praesumi.

1. Brevis, quas dignitates per singula scrinia officiorum sacrarum largitionum habere statuimus, hic est:

2. Scrinii exceptorum: perfectissimus ordinis secundi numero unus, id est primicerius omnis scholae. perfectissimus id est primicerius exceptorum numero unus. ducenarii duo, id est tertiocerius et quartocerius. centenarius unus, id est primicerius instrumentorum. epistulares numero duo. formae primae numero triginta sex. formae secundae numero quattuor. formae tertiae numero tres.

sought service, and whoever has already occupied the position of Chief of Staff (principatus) in the regular order (of his own bureau) shall not seek to finish his service in any other.

Given October 11, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Merobaudes, for the second time, and Saturninus (383).

[6][107] The same Augusti to Probus, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy, Africa, and Illyricum). Your Excellency will take notice that you are to have nothing to do with the staffs (officia) of palatine officials, so that hereafter you will not think yourself entitled to impose any burdens upon them, and you will, besides, prohibit the governors (rectores) of the provinces from attempting anything of the kind hereafter.

Given (received?) October 26, at Milan, in the post-consulate of Merobaudes, for the second time, and Saturninus (384).

[7][108] The same Augusti to Trifolius, Count of the Imperial Benefactions. pr. We decree for all of the bureaus of the staff of the Count of the Imperial Benefactions (scrinia largitionum comitatensium) the positions of rank designated below, so that they be content with them and know that the opportunity of corrupt solicitation is barred for them, even should someone succeed in obtaining special dispensation through some recommendation (suffragium) importuned by him. We desire also that pay allowances (annonae) be sought in accordance with the established scale of ranks, nor should anything more be anticipated.

1. A short catalogue of the positions of rank We have decided to have in the several bureaus of the official staff of the Imperial Benefactions is as follows:

2. In the bureau of shorthand writers (scrinium exceptorum, the general clerical branch): one perfectissimus of the second class, that is to say, the chief (primicerius) of the corps as a whole (schola); one perfectissimus (of the third class),[109] that is to say, the chief of the (bureau of) shorthand writers (primicerius exceptorum; i.e., the secundocerius or first assistant chief of the corps as a whole); two ducenarii, that is to say, the second assistant chief (tertiocerius, chief of the bastagae or imperial transport service) and the third assistant chief (quartocerius, chief of the department of libelli or petitions); one centenarius, that is to say, the chief of (the department of) tax records (primicerius instrumentorum); two secretaries (epistulares; the lowest equestrian rank); thirty-six (clerks) of the first grade (forma prima); four of the second grade; three of the third grade. (Fifty in total.)

[107] = C.Th. 6.30.6. The date is corrected to 383.
[108] = C.Th. 6.30.7, which supplies the subscription. The figures stated in the catalogue of positions are those established in the sixth century.
[109] Compare Not. Dig. Or. 13.32 (ed. Seeck).

3. Scrinii numerorum: perfectissimus ordinis tertii numero unus. ducenarius numero unus. centenarii numero duo. epistulares numero duo. formae primae numero tres. formae secundae numero unus. formae tertiae numero duo.

4. Sacri scrinii tabulariorum: perfectissimus ordinis tertii numero unus. ducenarius numero unus. centenarius numero unus. epistularis numero unus. formae primae numero tres. formae secundae numero quinque.

5. Scrinii canonum: perfectissimus ordinis tertii numero unus. ducenarius numero unus. centenarius numero unus. epistulares numero duo. formae primae numero quattuor. formae secundae numero quattuor.

6. Scrinii mittendariorum: ducenarius numero unus. centenarii numero quinque. epistulares numero novem. formae primae numero septem. formae secundae numero triginta tres.

7. Scrinii auri massae: perfectissimus ordinis tertii numero unus, id est primicerius sacrae massae. perfectissimus numero unus, id est secundocerius. ducenarii numero duo, id est tertiocerius et quartocerius. centenarii numero quattuor. epistulares numero quattuor. 8. Aurifices specierum: perfectissimus numero unus. ducenarii numero tres. centenarii numero sex. epistulares numero octo. formae primae numero decem et octo. formae secundae numero quattuor. 9. Aurifices solidorum: ducenarius numero unus. centenarii numero septem. epistulares numero sex. formae primae numero novem. formae secundae numero triginta. 10. Sculptores et ceteri aurifices: centenarius numero unus. epistulares numero quinque. formae primae numero sex. formae secundae numero decem et octo. 11. Scrinii auri ad responsum: perfectissimus ordinis primi numero unus. perfectissimi ordinis secundi numero duo. ducenarii numero tres. centenarii numero duo. epistulares numero tres. formae primae numero tres. formae secundae numero duo. formae tertiae numero unus. 12. Scrinii a miliarensibus: perfectissimus ordinis primi numero unus. ducenarius numero unus. formae primae numero unus. formae secundae numero duo. formae tertiae numero tres.

13. Scrinii vestis: perfectissimus primi ordinis numero unus. perfectissimus secundi ordinis numero unus. ducenarius numero unus. centenarius numero unus. epistulares numero duo. formae primae numero septem. formae secundae numero decem. formae tertiae

3. In the bureau for military regiments (numeri; probably accounted for outlays to soldiers): one perfectissimus of the third class; one ducenarius; two centenarii; two epistulares; three (clerks) of the first grade; one of the second grade; two of the third grade. (Twelve in total.)

4. In the bureau of accountants (tabularii): one perfectissimus of the third class; one ducenarius; one centenarius; one epistularis; three (clerks) of the first grade; five of the second grade. (Twelve in total.)

5. In the bureau of revenue (canones): one perfectissimus of the third class; one ducenarius; one centenarius; two epistulares; four (clerks) of the first grade; four of the second grade. (Thirteen in total.)

6. In the bureau of messengers (mittendarii): one ducenarius; five centenarii; nine epistulares; seven (clerks) of the first grade; thirty-three of the second grade. (Fifty-five in total.)

7. In the bureau of gold bullion (auri massa): one perfectissimus of the third class, that is, the chief (primicerius) of the bureau of imperial bullion (sacra massa); one perfectissimus (of the third class), that is, the first assistant chief (secundocerius); two ducenarii, that is, the tertiocerius and the quartocerius; four centenarii; four epistulares. (Twelve in total.) 8. Goldsmiths (aurifices specierum): one perfectissimus (of the third class); three ducenarii; six centenarii; eight epistulares; eighteen (clerks) of the first grade; four of the second grade. (Forty in total.) 9. Minters of solidi (aurifices solidorum): one ducenarius; seven centenarii; six epistulares; nine (clerks) of the first grade; thirty of the second grade. (Fifty-three in total.) 10. Engravers and other craftsmen: one centenarius; five epistulares; six (clerks) of the first grade; eighteen of the second grade. (Thirty in total.) 11. In the bureau of gold ad responsum (function obscure): one perfectissimus of the first class; two perfectissimi of the second class; three ducenarii; two centenarii; three epistulares; three (clerks) of the first grade; two of the second grade; one of the third grade. (Seventeen in total.) 12. In the bureau of silver coinage (a miliarensibus): one perfectissimus of the first class; one ducenarius; one (clerk) of the first grade; two of the second grade; three of the third grade. (Eight in total.)

13. In the bureau of clothing (vestis): one perfectissimus of the first class; one perfectissimus of the second class; one ducenarius; one centenarius; two epistulares; seven (clerks) of the first grade; ten of the second grade; four of the third grade. (Twenty-seven in total.) 14. Of the stewards of the imperial wardrobe (officiales sacrarum vestium): two ducenarii; two centenarii; two epistulares; seven (clerks) of the first grade; ten of the second grade; nine of the third grade. (Thirty-two in total.) 15. Commissaries of the imperial wardrobe

numero quattuor. 14. Officialium sacrarum vestium: ducenarii numero duo. centenarii numero duo. epistulares numero duo. formae primae numero septem. formae secundae numero decem. formae tertiae numero novem. 15. Deputati sacrae vestis: perfectissimi secundi ordinis numero duo. ducenarii numero duo. centenarii numero duo. epistulares numero duo. formae primae numero tres.

16. Scrinii ab argento: perfectissimus ordinis secundi numero unus. centenarius numero unus. epistularis numero unus. formae primae numero quattuor. formae secundae numero tres. formae tertiae numero unus. 17. Ad pecunias: perfectissimus ordinis secundi numero unus. formae primae numero duo. formae secundae numero duo. formae tertiae numero quinque. 18. Argentarii comitatenses: ducenarius numero unus. centenarii numero duo. epistulares numero duo. formae primae numero octo. formae secundae numero viginti quinque. 19. Barbaricarii: centenarius numero unus. epistulares numero duo. formae primae numero octo. formae secundae numero unus. …

D. IIII id. Iun. Heracliae Ricomere et Clearcho conss.

[8] Idem AAA. et Arcadius A. Trifolio comiti sacrarum largitionum. Placuit iusta et omnibus mittendariis palatini officii profutura suggestio, qua insinuasti, ut ex isdem annui singuli ex ducenariis, terni ex centenariis habito provisionis intuitu cingulo liberentur.

D. IIII id. Mart. Constantinopoli Arcadio A. et Bautone vc. conss.

[9] Imppp. Arcadius Honorius et Theodosius AAA. Nestorio comiti rerum privatarum. Non aliter quilibet in officio sacrarum largitionum vel privatarum cingulum militiae sibi sumendum existimet, nisi nostrae mansuetudinis adnotationem meruerit.

D. prid. id. Aug. Ancyrae Stilichone II et Anthemio conss.

[10] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Iohanni pp. Palatinos, qui sacrarum remunerationum rationem tractantes inculpanter ad calcem

(deputati sacrae vestis): two perfectissimi of the second class; two ducenarii; two centenarii; two epistulares; three (clerks) of the first grade. (Eleven in total.)

16. In the bureau of silver (bullion) (ab argento): one perfectissimus of the second class; one centenarius; one epistularis; four (clerks) of the first grade; three of the second grade; one of the third grade. (Eleven in total.) 17. (In the bureau) of (copper) money (ad pecunias): one perfectissimus of the second class; two (clerks) of the first grade; two of the second grade; five of the third grade. (Ten in total.) 18. The court silversmiths (argentarii comitatenses): one ducenarius; two centenarii; two epistulares; eight (clerks) of the first grade; twenty-five of the second grade. (Thirty-eight in total.) 19. Producers of armor embellished in gold and silver (barbaricarii): one centenarius; two epistulares; eight (clerks) of the first class; one of the second class. (Twelve in total; 443 altogether.) (…).[110]

Given June 10, at Heraclea, in the consulship of Richomer and Clearchus (384).

[8][111] The same Augusti and Arcadius Augustus to Trifolius, Count of the Imperial Benefactions. The report (suggestio) that you have forwarded appears just and advantageous to the messengers (mittendarii) of the palatine staff, namely, that from among them one ducenarius and three centenarii should be relieved of their official belt (cingulum) each year, with due consideration of the law.

Given March 12, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Arcadius Augustus, for the first time, and Bauto (385).

[9][112] Emperors Arcadius, Honorius, and Theodosius Augusti to Nestorius, Count of the Privy Purse. No one whosoever shall deem himself authorized to assume the belt of office (cingulum) in the official staff of the Imperial Benefactions or of the Privy Purse unless he has received the written endorsement (adnotatio) of Our Clemency.

Given August 12, at Ankara, in the consulship of Stilicho, for the second time, and Anthemius (405).

[10][113] Emperors Honorius and Theodosius Augusti to John, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy). We direct that the palatine officials who, faithfully keeping the accounts of the imperial expenditures (remunerationes), have [110] Manuscript O includes additional, otherwise unattested, information: two perfectissimi, a secundocerius, and four centenarii. Comparison with Not. Dig. Or. 13.33–34 suggests that the list of bureaus as presented here is complete, if the tertiocerius and quartocerius mentioned there are to be identified with the officials named in §2.

[111] = C.Th. 6.30.8. Combine with C.Th. 6.30.9.

[112] = C.Th. 6.30.18.

[113] = C.Th. 6.30.20.

terminumque militiae pervenerint, adiutorem et primicerios diversorum officiorum praecepimus habere privilegia, quae nuper agentum in rebus scholae a nostra sunt mansuetudine contributa, scilicet ut a tironum praebitione memorati reddantur exsortes ceteraque onera non agnoscant.

D. VII id. Iun. Ravennae post cons. Honorii VIIII et Theodosii V AA.

[11] Idem AA. Anysio comiti sacrarum largitionum et Tauro comiti rerum privatarum. Ad similitudinem sanctionis, quam de proximis sacrorum promulgavimus scriniorum, etiam in officio sacrarum largitionum atque privatarum pro biennio annum sub perpetua observatione praecipimus custodiri, ita ut et privilegia, quae huiusmodi officiis vel primiceriis sacris legibus deferuntur, integra illibataque serventur.

D. III k. Iul. Constantinopoli Theodosio A. VII et Palladio conss.

[12] Imp. Theodosius A. et Valentinianus C. Maximino comiti sacrarum largitionum. pr. Viros devotos palatinos non oportere in hac regia urbe apud virum illustrem praefectum urbis litigare compelli, nisi de aedificatione domorum et servitutibus et annonis orta videatur causa: in aliis vero causis tam pecuniariis quam criminalibus apud viros illustres tantummodo comites suos respondere. 1. Rectoribus autem provinciarum intra administrationis suae fines inter praesentes palatinos nec causis publicis occupatos cognoscere tam pro civili quam pro criminali causa permittimus, sic tamen, ut non aliter criminalis sententia adversus eos proferatur, nisi ex suggestione provincialis iudicii vir illustris comes sub quo militat certioratus hoc ei permiserit.

[13] Idem AA. Eudoxio comiti sacrarum largitionum. Inter alias praerogativas, quas ante meruerant scholae societatis sacrarum largitionum, come to the limit and end of their service, (that is,) the principal assistant (adiutor) and the chiefs (primicerii) of the different official staffs (officia), shall have the privileges which were recently bestowed by Our Grace upon the corps (schola) of couriers (agentes in rebus),[114] namely, that the aforementioned persons shall be rendered exempt from furnishing recruits and shall not assume other burdens.

Given June 7, at Ravenna, in the post-consulate of Honorius, for the ninth time, and Theodosius, for the fifth time, Augusti (413).

[11][115] The same Augusti to Anysius, Count of the Imperial Benefactions, and Taurus, Count of the Privy Purse. In conformity with the ordinance which We promulgated concerning the chief clerks (proximi) of the imperial bureaux (sacra scrinia),[116] We direct that an annual term of service, instead of two-year term, shall also be perpetually observed in the official staff of the Imperial Benefactions and of the Privy Purse, but that the privileges granted under imperial statutes to such official staffs or chiefs shall be preserved intact and undiminished.

Given June 29, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Theodosius Augustus, for the seventh time, and Palladius (416).

[12] The Emperor T*HEODOSIUS* Augustus and the Caesar V*ALENTINIAN* to Maximinus, Count of the Imperial Benefactions. pr. The devoted palatine officials in this imperial city should not be compelled to litigate before the City Prefect, a person of illustris rank, except in matters that appear to concern the construction of buildings, servitudes, and the food supply (annonae). In all other cases, civil and criminal, they should be required to answer only before their own Counts, persons of illustris rank. 1. We nevertheless permit governors (rectores) of provinces, within the confines of their jurisdiction (administratio), to try cases civil as well as criminal involving palatine officials resident therein who are unoccupied with public business, with the limitation, however, that no sentence shall be pronounced against them in a criminal case unless the Count, of illustris rank, under whom the accused serves permits it upon the recommendation (suggestio) of the provincial court.

(424–425).

[13] The same Augusti[117] to Eudoxius, Count of the Imperial Benefactions. Among other prerogatives heretofore received by the corps (scholae) of the [114] See C.Th. 6.27.13.

[115] = C.Th. 6.30.21.
[116] See C. 12.19.6.
[117] Strictly, it should be: "Emperors Theodosius and Valentinian Augusti." Seeck gives January 31, 428.

primicerius et tres primicerii scriniorum tribuni praetoriani militaris dignitate fruantur, nulla eis ex cuiuslibet iudicis praeceptione iniungenda publica vel privata necessitate.

[14] Idem AA. Florentio pp. pr. Iubemus viros devotos palatinos rei nostri numinis privatae isdem privilegiis decorari, quibus etiam palatini qui in sacris largitionibus deferuntur. cum enim par similisque militia sint, iustum et competens videtur isdem utrumque officium privilegiis gloriari. 1. Primicerios itaque officii tresque primates scriniorum rerum privatarum finito tempore militiae inter tribunos militares praetorianos, salvis isdem praestitis privilegiis sacris constitutionibus, nostram clementiam adorare decernimus, ita tamen, ut nullam iniunctionem nullam sollicitudinem privati vel publici negotii quolibet iudiciario praecepto sustinere possint, sed excepta omni necessitate omnique fatigatione indeptae dignitatis honore potiantur.

XXIIII De Stratoribus

[1] Impp. Valentinianus et Valens AA. ad Zosimum praesidem novae Epiri. pr. Per omnes provincias edictum generale misimus, ut ab stratoribus unus tantum solidus probae nomine posceretur, et in offerendis equis certam formam staturam aetatem provinciales nostri custodiendam esse cognoscant. 1. Quos etiam fisco certo solidorum modo obnoxios fecimus, si, quod stratores petere interdictum est, illi dare stratoribus non timerent. 2. Officium quoque gravitatis tuae centum argenti libris multabitur, si sciens praedictam rem gestam fuisse non ilico eam severitati iudiciariae prodidisset.

D. XIII k. Iul. Apolloniae Valentiniano et Valente AA. conss.

department of Imperial Benefactions (societas sacrarum largitionum), the chief (primicerius) (of the corps as a whole) and three chiefs of the (separate) bureaus (primicerii scriniorum) shall enjoy the rank of Praetorian Military Tribune, and by the direction of no judge shall a public or private obligation be enjoined upon them.

(428?).

[14] The same Augusti to Florentius, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). pr. We order that the devoted palatine officials of the Privy Purse of Our Divine Majesty shall be adorned with the same privileges as the palatine officials serving in the Imperial Benefactions. For since their service appears to be equal and similar, it seems just and proper that each official staff should glory in the same privileges. 1. Thus We decree that the chiefs (primicerii) of the (whole) staff and the three senior members (primates) of the (separate) bureaus (scrinia) of the Privy Purse shall at the end of their service adore Our Clemency among the Praetorian Military Tribunes, while retaining the privileges formerly granted to them by Our imperial constitutions, so that they shall not be burdened by any duty or care, private or public, by order of any judge, but exempt from all such burdens and from every trouble may enjoy the honor of the rank they have attained.

(428–430 or 438–439).[118]

Twenty-Fourth Title Inspectors of Horses

[1][119] Emperors VALENTINIAN and VALENS Augusti to Zosimus, Governor of Nova Epirus. pr. We have sent a general edict throughout all the provinces, that only 1 solidus shall be demanded by the inspectors of horses (stratores) for their approval, and Our provincials may know that, in offering horses, a certain shape, stature, and age (of the horses) must be observed. 1. Those provincials who do not fear to give the inspectors what the latter are prohibited from seeking, We have also made liable for the payment of a definite number of solidi to the Treasury. 2. The staff of Your Eminence, also, will be fined 100 pounds of silver, if it knows that the foregoing offence has been committed and has failed to report that fact immediately for judicial punishment of a most severe kind.

Given (?) June 19, at Apollonia, in the consulship of Valentinian and Valens, Augusti (365).

[118] Seeck gives 428–430.

[119] = C.Th. 6.31.1. The date is corrected to 374.

XXV De Castrensianis et Ministerianis

[1] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Narsi comiti et castrensi sacri palatii. In officio spectabilitatis tuae secundum formam divalium responsorum post completum tempus praefinitum, id est biennium, prioribus decedentibus insequentes ad locum pro merito laborum stipendiorumque succedant, nec ulla licentia tribuatur his, qui impletum deposuerint officium, denuo ad eandem militiam vel sollicitudinem remeandi.

D. VI id. Febr. Constantinopoli Theodosio A. VII et qui fuerit nuntiatus.

[2] Idem AA. Scholastico comiti et castrensi sacri palatii. Si quis primae vel secundae vel tertiae formae specialiter inter statutos gradum caelitus valuerit impetrare, supernumerarius ultimus formae tertiae in matriculis habeatur.

D. prid. id. Ian. Constantinopoli Honorio XIII et Theodosio X AA. conss.

[3] Impp. Leo et Anthemius AA. Iohanni comiti et magistro officiorum. Ii, qui in schola vestis sacrae militant, vel matres eorum vel uxores criminalem vel civilem litem contra se commovendam in nullo alio nisi in sublimitatis tuae suscipiant examine.

[4] Impp. Leo et Zeno AA. Hilariano comiti et magistro officiorum. pr. Ante omnia nullius penitus alterius iudicis minoris vel maioris sacro ministerio nostro deputatos, quorum officia singillatim brevis subter adnexus continet, nisi a tuae dumtaxat magnitudinis sententiis conveniri, ut in nullo penitus alterius iudicis foro pulsantium[v] nisi in tuae tantummodo amplitudinis examine praebeant aliquando responsum. 1. Sed ne in hoc ipso iudicio enormibus molestentur dispendiis, vel ex nudis conveniantur facile cuiuscumque mandatis, ipsis quoque

[v] pulsantibus

Twenty-Fifth Title The Domestic Staff (Castrensiani) and Workers (of the Imperial Household)

[1][120] Emperors Honorius and Theodosius Augusti to Narses, Count and Steward of the Imperial Palace. When, in accordance with the provisions of imperial orders (responsa), the officials on the staff of Your Conspicuousness (spectabilitas) have completed the fixed time of service, that is, two years, those at the top of the list shall pass out of office, and their places shall be filled by those following them according to the merits of their labor and their terms of service (stipendia); and no permission to return again to the same service or responsibility (militia vel sollicitudo) shall be granted to anyone who has relinquished his completed office (officium).

Given February 8, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Theodosius Augustus, for the seventh time, and the one who is to be announced (416).

[2][121] The same Augusti to Scholasticus, Count and Steward of the Imperial Palace. If any one (of the supernumeraries) of the first, second, or third grade (forma) has obtained by special imperial permission (caelitus; lit., "from on high") a position (gradus) among the established officials (statuti), he shall occupy the position of most junior supernumerary of the third grade (forma) in the register.

Given January 12, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Honorius, for the thirteenth time, and Theodosius, for the tenth time, Augusti (422).

[3][122] Emperors Leo and Anthemius Augusti to John, Count and Master of Offices. Those who serve in the department of the imperial wardrobe (schola vestis sacrae), and their mothers and wives, shall not answer in any criminal or civil suit commenced against them, in any tribunal save that of Your Sublimity.

(467–468).

[4] Emperors Leo and Zeno Augusti to Hilarianus, Count and Master of Offices. pr. Above all, those assigned to Our imperial domestic service (ministerium), whose official staffs the subjoined schedule mentions specifically,[123] shall be summoned by the order of absolutely no other judge, inferior or superior, except only by that of Your Greatness, so that they need to answer complaints in the forum of no other judge, except only in the tribunal of Your Magnificence. 1. And lest they be burdened by great expenses even in that tribunal, or be summoned (too) easily by the mere verbal order (ex nudis

[120] = C.Th. 6.32.1. The Consul to be announced is Palladius.
[121] = C.Th. 6.32.2.
[122] Combine with C. 12.5.3; see also 12.59.8.
[123] This schedule has not been preserved.

sportulis et fideiussionibus modum constituimus observandum, ante omnia decernentes, ne quando sine scriptura vel interpellatione deposita ac sententia prorogata tuae magnitudinis eademque non edita conveniri posse, conventos vero non alium fideiussorem nisi actuarium vel unum e primatibus suae scholae exsecutoribus pro suae personae responsione sine scripto praestare, sive per se ipsi sive procuratore dato in iudicio responsuri sunt, et sive in causis civilibus appetantur sive in criminalibus incusentur. 2. Nec ultra conventionis nomine sportularum quam unum aureum exsecutoribus usque ad finem litis praestent, quemcumque contigerit conveniri. inducendorum sane nomine et cognitionum exercendarum standaeque personae gratia ex simplici postulatione contra eos habita, sive ex appellatione subsecuta vel quolibet alio modo in iudicio deponatur, tribus tantummodo solidis usque ad terminum negotii eos qui accepturi sunt praecipimus semper esse contentos. in cognitionalibus vero gestis edendis duos tantummodo praestari solidos.

3. Haec autem privilegia non in eorum tantummodo, sed in matrum quoque et uxorum personis valere et ad integrum permanere: filiis quoque et maritis easdem fideiussionis nomine, si necessitas interpellationis exegerit, tradi nec alios vades exigi: ipsosque, dum militant, et post emensam militiam cum his, qui ex tempore prioris praestitae sibi pragmaticae sanctionis eiusdem militiae stipendia implesse noscuntur, omnibus privilegiis perfrui (cunctis nihilo minus capitulis sacris adfatibus divae recordationis Marciani, quos se meruisse adserunt, valituris, excepto hoc, quod in diversis iudiciis tunc respondere praecepti sunt) hac sanctione decernimus.

4. Advocato quoque fisci, exceptoribus etiam, qui apud arbitros hoc utuntur officio, ab exordio incipiendo usque ad terminum finemque negotii tertiam dumtaxat partem solidi praebituros: in huiusmodi autem arbitrorum gestis edendis non ultra praestare quam dimidiam solidi partem: et cum per provincias constitutus fideiussore conventus caruerit, adiuratoriae tantummodo cautioni committi nec ullo tempore nisi ex tuae dumtaxat magnitudinis sententia conveniri (exceptis tributariis et munerum functionibus et criminibus, quae in locis inquiri flagitari et vindicari generalia legum praecepta constituunt), praesenti sanctione decernimus: viro clarissimo adiutore sublimitatis tuae in speculis constituto, ne quid ex his quae statuimus aliqua subreptione violetur.

...

mandatis) of anyone, We order that the measure of judicial fees (sportulae) and provision for suretyship be observed, resolving above all that they shall not be able to be summoned without writing, or without a complaint lodged in court and without the order of Your Greatness being served on them; and when they are summoned they shall not be compelled to furnish to the court clerks (exsecutores), for their appearance, any surety other than the quartermaster (actuarius) or one of the senior officials (primates) of their department (schola), without writing, whether they intend to answer in court personally or by appointment of a procurator, and whether they are sued in civil cases or are accused in criminal cases. 2. And no one who happens to be summoned needs to pay to the court clerks, on account of the summons, fees in excess of 1 gold piece (aureus) (from the beginning) to the end of the lawsuit. We order that those having the right to receive fees, whether for bringing the case to a hearing or for the conduct of the trial and causing persons to appear as a result of a simple demand against them, be it on appeal or brought before the court in any other manner, shall be content with only 3 solidi to the end of the suit, and for a record of the proceedings given them only 2 solidi need be paid.

3. We direct with this decree that these privileges belong not only to them, but also fully and completely to their mothers and wives, who, if necessity arises by reason of any case brought against them, shall be committed to the suretyship of their sons and husbands, nor shall any other surety be required of them. The above-mentioned officials themselves, during and after their term of service, and those who learn that they have completed the terms of the same service (eiusdem militiae stipendia) since the enactment of the former pragmatic sanction for their benefit, shall enjoy all privileges (granted them), including those which they say were granted them by the rescript of Marcian, of blessed memory, which shall remain in force except as to the provision directing them to answer in the court of various judges.

4. We direct also by the present law that they shall pay to the Advocate of the Treasury and to the shorthand writers (exceptores) employed on the staff of the arbitrators only the third part of a solidus from the very beginning to the very end of a suit; for a copy of the proceedings before the arbitrators, they shall pay only half of a solidus. If one of them is summoned while located in a province, and he lacks a surety, he shall bound only by a guaranty on oath (adiuratoria cautio) (for his appearance), and he shall never be summoned unless pursuant to the order of Your Magnitude, except in cases involving payment of taxes or performance of public obligations, or for crimes, which must be investigated, tried, and punished in the place where committed as provided by general laws. The principal assistant (adiutor) of Your Sublimity, a person of clarissimus rank, is appointed as the watchman to see that none of these provisions is secretly violated.

(474).

XXVI De Decanis

[1] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Helioni comiti et magistro officiorum. Quattuor, qui ex corpore decanorum ad primum militiae gradum pervenerint, biennii spatio primiceratus gerant officium, neque ulterius cuiquam hoc loco liceat immorari, ut omni gratia et ambitione cessante post duorum annorum curricula succedant prioribus subsequentes.

D. prid. non. Nov. Constantinopoli Theodosio A. VII et Palladio vc. conss.

[2] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Nomo magistro officiorum. pr. Nostrae pietatis famulationibus adhaerentes decanos non oportet pro desiderio pulsantium ad alia protrahi iudicia, sed viri illustris tantum magistri officiorum observare examen. 1. Hoc namque modo neque mansuetudinis nostrae obsequia decipiuntur et agentibus adversus eos iure adhibetur responsum. 2. Ad exemplum itaque devotissimorum scholarium nulli licere memoratos ad aliud iudicium trahere et pulsatos priorum fidei scholae permitti praecipimus.

XXVII De Mensoribus

[1] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Aemiliano magistro officiorum. Primicerius mensorum biennio expleto agentis in rebus ultimi militiam sortiatur.

D. x k. Aug. Ancyrae Stilichone II et Anthemio conss.

XXVIII De Privilegiis Eorum Qui in Sacro Palatio Militant

[1] Imp. Constantinus A. palatinis bene meritis salutem. A palatinis tam his, qui obsequiis nostris inculpata officia praebuerunt, quam illis,

Twenty-Sixth Title Palace Doorkeepers

[1][124] Emperors Honorius and Theodosius Augusti to Helion, Count and Master of Offices. The four who arrive at the first grade (gradus) of the service from the company (corpus) of the doorkeepers (decani) shall fill the position of chief (primiceratus) for a period of two years, and no one shall be permitted to tarry in that position any longer, so that all favoritism and corrupt solicitation shall cease and those next in grade shall succeed those who precede them after the completion of two years.

Given at November 4, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Theodosius Augustus, for the seventh time, and the vir clarissimus Palladius (416).

[2][125] Emperors Theodosius and Valentinian Augusti to Nomus, Master of Offices. pr. It is improper that the doorkeepers attached to the household of Our Piety should be dragged into other tribunals on the whim of those that want to sue them. They should need to appear only before the tribunal of the vir illustris Master of Offices. 1. In this manner the service (obsequia) of Our Clemency will not be slighted, and recourse is available to those who sue them. 2. So We direct, in accordance with the example established for the most devoted palace troops (scholares), that no one shall be permitted to hale the above-mentioned persons into any other tribunal, and that those of them who are sued shall be committed to the care of the senior officials of their corps (priores scholae) (for their appearance).

(443–444?).

Twenty-Seventh Title Quartering Masters

[1][126] Emperors Honorius and Theodosius Augusti to Aemilianus, Master of Offices. The chief (primicerius) of the quartering masters (mensores) shall, upon completion of his service of two years, be appointed to the service of a courier (agens in rebus) as most junior (in rank).

Given July 23, at Ankara, in the consulship of Stilicho, for the second time, and Anthemius (405).

Twenty-Eighth Title Privileges of Those Who Serve in the Imperial Palace

[1][127] Emperor Constantine Augustus to the well-deserving palatine officials, greeting: We order all vexations or nominations (for performance of compulsory

[124] = C.Th. 6.33.1.
[125] Combine with C. 12.19.7, 8, 21.6. Seeck gives February 26, 444.
[126] = C.Th. 6.34.1. Combine with C.Th. 1.9.3.
[127] = C.Th. 6.35.1. Seeck corrects the date to October 29, 313.

qui in scriniis nostris, id est memoriae epistularum libellorumque, versati sunt, procul universas calumnias sive nominationes iubemus esse submotas, idque beneficium ad filios eorum atque nepotes ipso ordine sanguinis pervenire, atque immunes eos a cunctis muneribus sordidis et personalibus permanere cum universis mobilibus et mancipiis urbanis, neque iniurias eis ab aliquibus inferri: ita ut, qui haec contempserit, indiscreta dignitate poenas debitas exigatur.

D. IIII k. Nov. Triveris Volusiano et Anniano conss.

[2] Idem A. Rufino pp. pr. De cubiculis nostris vacatione donatos vel diversis obsequiis palatinis, memoriales etiam, qui in scriniis memoriae epistularum libellorum sacrarumque dispositionum referuntur, nec non et si qui in utroque officio palatinorum comitatensium singularumve urbium et officio admissionum et castrensis sacri palatii militant, privilegia volumus habere, ut nec ipsi nec filii nec nepotes eorum ad honores vel munera municipalia devocentur. 1. Quibus omnibus condonamus, ne exactorum vel turmariorum, quos capitularios vocant, curam subeant vel obsequium temonariorum vel pentaprotiae aut etiam tironis praestationem agnoscant. 2. Nam beneficiis nostris ita digni sunt, ut etiam censualibus vel personalibus vel corporalibus muneribus liberentur et habeant castrense peculium, sive adhuc palatium observant sive optata quiete donati sunt. 3. Quibus omnibus privilegiis coniungimus agentes in rebus, licet militaribus videantur esse subnixi.

D. V k. Mai. Sirmio Constantino A. V et Licinio C. conss.

[3] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. Eutropio pp. Ex aula nostra decedentes viri ab omnibus iniunctis habeantur immunes:

public services) to be far removed from the palatine officials (palatini), who have blamelessly performed their duties in Our personal service, as well as from those serving in Our bureaus, that is, (the bureaus) of memorials, correspondence, and petitions (scrinia memoriae epistularum libellorumque), and that this benefit shall accrue to their sons and grandsons in the order of blood relationship, and that they shall remain exempt from all menial and personal compulsory public services (munera sordida et personalia) together with all their movable property and urban slaves, and that no outrage shall be committed against them by anyone; and therefore the proper fines shall be demanded from any person, without regard to his rank, who ignores these orders.

Given October 29, at Trier, in the consulship of Volusianus and Annianus (314).

[2][128] The same Augustus to Rufinus, Praetorian Prefect. pr. We desire that those from Our chambers or from the various palatine services who have been granted a release (vacatio), and also the clerks (memoriales) who belong to the bureaus of memorials, correspondence, petitions, and imperial arrangements (scrinia memoriae epistularum libellorum sacrarumque dispositionum) and indeed those also who serve on the staff of palatine officials (of the Imperial Benefactions) both at court and in the various cities (palatinorum comitatensium singularumve urbium) and on that of the ushers (admissionales) and of the Steward (castrensis) of the imperial palace shall have the privilege that neither they nor their sons and grandsons will be liable for municipal honors and obligations (honores vel munera municipalia). 1. We present to all these the privilege that they will not incur the responsibility (of filling the post) of tax collectors (exactores) or of cavalry recruitment tax officers (turmarii), who are called capitularii, nor will they acknowledge the duty of collectors of recruit taxes or of (membership on) the board of five leading men (temonarii vel pentaprotia) or even the responsibility of furnishing recruits (tironis praestatio). 2. For they are sufficiently worthy of Our benefits so as to be exempt also from serving as tax assessors and from personal and corporal obligations (censualia vel personalia vel corporalia munera) and to have their own military peculium whether they still attend to the palace or have been granted their desired rest. 3. To all these privileges We join also the couriers (agentes in rebus), although they appear to be supported by military (privileges).

Given April 27, at Sirmium, in the consulship of Constantine Augustus, for the fifth time, and of the Caesar Licinius (319).

[3][129] Emperors Gratian, Valentinian, and Theodosius Augusti to Eutropius, Praetorian Prefect (of Illyricum). Those who have departed from [128] = C.Th. 6.35.3 (altered). Combine with C. 12.1.3. The constitution's date is disputed.

[129] = C.Th. 6.35.11.

numerariorum fastus vel rapaces quaestus tamquam experientes et idonei non patiantur.

D. III non. Febr. Constantinopoli Eucherio et Syagrio vv. cc. conss.

[4] Idem et Arcadius AAAA. ad Pinianum pu. pr. Omnes, qui in palatio militando diversis actibus paruerunt, in tantum eius dignitatis, cuius meruerint missionem, obtinere noverint insignia, ut his omnibus praeferantur in ordine atque consessu, qui posteriore tempore regendas provincias dignitatesque susceperint palatinas. 1. Si quis autem temeraria usurpatione violare statuta temptaverit, sacrilegii poenam sustineat.

D. prid. non. Iul. Mediolani. acc. IIII k. Sept. Honorio np. et Euodio conss.

XXVIIII De Privilegiis Scholarum

[1] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Phlegetio comiti et magistro officiorum. pr. Viris spectabilibus comitibus scholarum verberandi regradandive senatores ac ducenarios licentiam denegamus. ea namque, quae tali commotione digna sunt, ad tuae sublimitatis volumus referri notitiam. 1. Insuper etiam domesticos eorum non senatores vel ducenarios centenariosve fieri decernimus: poena quinque librarum auri plectendo, quisquis hanc divinam iussionem excesserit, scrinio vero barbarorum, si tale quid vel attemptari passum fuerit vel attemptatum contra leges non suggesserit, decem librarum auri condemnatione percellendo. 2. Illud etiam observari non sine ratione conveniet, ne is, cui domestici officium per militiae gradum vel quinquennii tempus interdici censuimus, familiaritate comitis simulata rem prohibitam alio nomine valeat usurpare.

D. XV k. Mai. Constantinopoli Cyro vc. cons.

[2] Impp. Leo et Zeno AA. Eusebio magistro officiorum. pr. Hac lege decernimus, ut, qui in singulis scholis militant quique post emensa stipendiorum

Our Court (aula) shall be considered exempt from every imposition (of compulsory public services); they shall not, on the grounds that they are experienced and suitable, put up with the arrogance and grasping acquisitiveness of accountants (numerarii).

Given February 3, at Constantinople, in the consulship of viri clarissimi Eucherius and Syagrius (381).

[4][130] The same Augusti and Arcadius Augustus to Pinianus, City Prefect (of Rome). pr. All who have been engaged in the performance of various duties in the palace shall know that they shall enjoy the insignia of the rank from which they earned retirement to such an extent that they shall take precedence in rank and in order of seating before all those who subsequently receive provincial governorships or palatine offices. 1. If anyone rashly and preemptively attempts to violate this order, he shall suffer the punishment of sacrilege.

Given July 6, at Milan, and received August 29 in the consulship of Honorius, Most Noble Boy, and Euodius (386).

Twenty-Ninth Title Privileges of the Imperial Guard

[1][131] Emperors Theodosius and Valentinian Augusti to Phlegetius, Count and Master of Offices. pr. We deny to the viri spectabiles Counts of the imperial guard (scholae) the right to punish corporally or reduce in rank senatores and ducenarii. For We want matters deserving such punishment to be referred to the notice of Your Sublimity. 1. Moreover, We decree that their personal assistants (domestici) shall not be made senatores or ducenarii or centenarii[132] under penalty of 5 pounds of gold inflicted upon the person who violates this imperial command, and should the bureau of foreigners (scrinium barbarorum) allow anything of the sort to be done or fail to report any violation it shall be smitten by a fine of 10 pounds of gold. 2. This too should be observed, not without reason, that anyone to whom We have decided that the position of personal assistant is forbidden on account of his service rank (per militiae gradum) or for the period of five years may not, by pretended friendship with the Count, accomplish his illicit aim on some other pretext.

Given April 17, at Constantinople, in the consulship of the vir clarissimus Cyrus (441).

[2] Emperors Leo and Zeno Augusti to Eusebius, Master of Offices. pr. We decree by this law that those who serve among the several regiments of the

[130] = C.Th. 6.35.13.
[131] = Nov. Theod. 21; pr. = C. 1.31.3.
[132] Or: "that senatores or ducenarii or centenarii shall not be made their personal assistants." These were, in descending order, the uppermost ranks of the guards.

curricula ad primiceriorum gradum pervenerint et adorata nostrae divinitatis purpura virorum clarissimorum comitum meruerint dignitatem, tam cingulo quam privilegiis omnibus sibimet competentibus perfruantur ac deinceps usque ad finem vitae foro tuae celsitudinis tantummodo subiaceant nec ex alterius cuiuslibet sententia civile subire litigium compellantur. 1. In criminalibus sane controversiis et in publicis tributis et adversus tales viros provincias moderantium congruam iurisdictionem volumus observari, ne sub praetextu concessi privilegii vel flagitiorum crescat auctoritas vel publica vacillet utilitas.

[3] Imp. Zeno A. Longino magistro officiorum. pr. Quotiens super causa civili vel etiam criminali, ex sententia videlicet iudicii tui culminis, scholares vel eorum coniuges, sive adhuc vivent mariti sive post mortem eorum in viduitate constitutae sunt, matresve eorum in viduitate permanentes aut liberi, qui non specialiter alterius iudicis iurisdictioni subiectam condicionem sortiti sunt, et servi ad eos pertinentes conveniuntur, minime eos easve extranei fideiussoris exactione vexari, sed pro consuetudine vetustissima et iugiter observata numerarium suae scholae fideiussorem praebere iubemus.

1. Hoc videlicet observando, ut in criminalibus causis quinque alios primates ex triginta viris, a primicerio usque ad tricesimum retro numerandis una cum numerario, volentes scilicet et non recusantes, praebeant fideiussores, aut recusantibus quinque sicut dictum est viris extraneus in criminibus tantummodo publicis fideiussor una cum numerario praebeatur: ita ut exsecutoribus non amplius ab his quam unus solidus, sive per se sive per procuratorem respondere maluerint, praebeatur. 1a. In subeundis autem cognitionalibus certaminibus, quotiens causa fuerit arbitro delegata, pro contestatione litis unum solidum et pro definitione ab arbitro recitanda alterum unum et nihil amplius dari decernimus.

2. Quod si causa in iudicio tui culminis ab ipsa contestatione litis vel relatione iudicis aut appellatione interposita ventilatur, pro inducenda cognitione non amplius quam tres solidos, et chartarum vel recitandorum in cognitionibus instrumentorum nomine, editionis quin etiam gestorum duos tantummodo solidos dabunt. 3. Quotiens sane apud viros clarissimos provinciarum moderatores, ex delegatione scilicet sententiae tuae magnitudinis, contra viros fortissimos scholares vel imperial guard (scholae), and who after completing the course of terms of service (stipendiorum curricula) have acquired the rank of chief (primicerius) and, having adored the purple of Our Divinity, have received the title of Count, of clarissimus rank, shall enjoy their belt of office (cingulum) as well as all privileges appertaining thereto, and thence forward to the end of their life they shall be subject only to the forum of Your Highness and shall not be compelled to answer a civil lawsuit by the order of anyone else. 1. In criminal controversies, however, and in matters pertaining to the public revenue, We want the suitable jurisdiction of those governing the provinces to extend over these persons, lest under cover of a granted privilege the influence of criminality increase or the public advantage suffer.

(474).

[3] Emperor Zeno Augustus to Longinus, Master of Offices. pr. We order that whenever the imperial guardsmen (scholares), or their wives – whether in the lifetime of their husbands or after they have become widows following the death of their husbands – or their mothers remaining in widowhood, or their children who have not attained a status (condicio) specially subject to the jurisdiction of another judge, and slaves belonging to them, shall be summoned into court in a civil or even a criminal case by order of Your Highness, they shall not be harassed by the demand for an outside surety, but in accordance with most ancient and perpetually observed custom shall furnish as such surety only the chief accountant (numerarius) of their own troop (schola).

1. In criminal cases, indeed, the rule must be observed that they shall furnish as sureties, along with the chief accountant, five other senior officials (primates) from among thirty men, reckoning from the chief (primicerius) back to the thirtieth, provided they are willing and do not refuse; but if the aforementioned five refuse, then in criminal cases only shall an outside surety be furnished along with the chief accountant. They shall pay no more than 1 solidus to the court clerks (exsecutores) whether they prefer to answer in person or by a procurator. 1a. We decree that in submitting to trial, they shall, whenever a case shall be referred to an arbitrator, pay 1 solidus for the joinder of issue and another solidus for the recitation of the decision by the arbitrator, and no more.

2. But if the case is tried in the tribunal of Your Highness from the joinder of issue on, or pursuant to, reference to you by a judge, or on appeal to you, they shall pay no more than 3 solidi for bringing the case to trial and only 2 solidi for the papers or reading the documents at the trial as well as for a copy of the record of the proceedings. 3. If a case is tried against the most stalwart imperial guardsmen or their wives, children, or slaves before provincial governors (moderatores), persons of clarissimus rank, pursuant to an assignment of the eorum coniuges vel liberos vel servos cognitio celebretur, non amplius quam dimidiam partem consuetorum sumptuum praeberi decernimus.

3a. Hoc etiam adiciendo, ut, qui acceptis commeatibus ad provincias profecti fuerint, usque ad quinque mensium spatium, intra quod ipsis erit remeandi licentia, nullam penitus actionem, super civili videlicet negotio (exceptis criminibus et tributariis functionibus) sustineant. 3b. Ne tamen ibi quoque, post quinque scilicet commeatus menses, ex sententia iudicii tuae magnitudinis conventi in exigendis fideiussoribus aliquod sentiant detrimentum, iuratoriae eos cautioni iubemus committi.

4. Quotiens autem ex verbis et sine ulla scriptis prolata sententia idem fortissimi scholares vel eorum matres seu coniuges, ut dictum est, aut liberi vel servi moneantur, nihil ipsa exsecutione sportularum nomine penitus eos vel eorum matres seu coniuges aut liberos secundum superius datam distinctionem vel servos praebere decernimus.

5. Sed si talis sit negotii vilitas, ut etiam sine scriptis, consentientibus videlicet partibus, super ea possit cognosci, expectato sine scriptis, sicut dictum est, habendae cognitionis eventu, si deteriorem calculum reportaverint, sportularum nomine unum tantummodo solidum exsecutori praestabunt. 6. Sin vero causae qualitas in scriptis habendam cognitionem flagitaverit, in hoc necesse est casu interlocutione in scriptis proferenda ea, quae superius de quantitate sportularum decidendarumque cognitionum disposita sunt, observari.

XXX De Castrensi Omnium Palatinorum Peculio

[1] Imp. Constantinus A. ad Severum pu. pr. Omnes palatinos, quos edicti nostri iam dudum certa privilegia superfundunt, rem, si quam, dum in palatio nostro morantur, vel si parsimonia propria quaesierint vel donis nostris fuerint consecuti, ut castrense peculium habere praecipimus. quid enim tam ex castris est, quam quod nobis consciis ac prope sub conspectibus nostris adquiritur? 1. Sed nec alieni sunt a pulvere et labore castrorum, qui signa nostra comitantur, qui praesto sunt semper actibus, quos intentos eruditis studiis itinerum prolixitas et expeditionum difficultas exercet. 2. Ideoque palatini nostri, qui privilegiis edicti uti potuerunt, peculia sua praecipua retineant, quae, dum in case to them by order of Your Greatness, We determine that no more than half of the customary fees shall be paid.

3a. This too is to be added, that no civil action – criminal cases and proceedings relating to taxes being excepted – shall be commenced against those who have gone to the provinces on leave of absence until the lapse of a period of five months, within which they may return. 3b. In order, nevertheless, that not even after the expiration of the five months for the leave of absence shall they, when summoned by order of the tribunal of Your Greatness, experience any difficulty in the demand for sureties, We order that they shall be bound by their own guaranty on oath (iuratoria cautio) (to appear).

4. Whenever, however, the most stalwart imperial guardsmen, or their mothers or wives, as has been said, or their children or slaves are summoned verbally and without a written order, We determine that they or their mothers or wives or children – according to the above-mentioned distinction – or slaves shall pay nothing in the way of fees (sportulae) at all for the suit.

5. If the amount involved in the transaction is so small that trial may be had regarding it without writing, upon consent of the parties, then, after waiting for the outcome of the trial (which is held, as stated, without writing) they shall, if they receive an adverse judgment, pay only 1 solidus in the way of fees to the court clerk. 6. But if indeed the nature of the case demands that the proceedings be reduced to writing, then upon the entering of an interim order (interlocutio) in writing the aforesaid provisions as to the amount of fees and decisions of cases shall govern.

(484–491).

Thirtieth Title The Military Peculium of Palatine Officials

[1][133] Emperor Constantine Augustus to Severus, City Prefect (of Rome). pr. We direct that all palatine officials (palatini), whom Our edicts have long ago inundated with settled privileges, shall have as their military peculium anything they acquire while remaining in the palace, whether they have saved it by their own parsimony or obtained it by gifts from Us. For what is so clearly acquired by military service (ex castris) as that which is acquired with Our knowledge and virtually under Our eyes? 1. Nor are they strangers to the dust and toil of the camp, since they accompany Our standards, are always present at Our acts, and, intent as they are upon their recondite studies, are worn out by the length of journeys and the difficulty of expeditions. 2. Our palatine officials, therefore, who have been able to take advantage of the privileges of the edict shall retain as their own special peculia whatever they have acquired while palatio constituti sunt, aut labore, ut dictum est, proprio aut dignatione nostra quaesierint.

[133] = C.Th. 6.36.1.

PP. x k. Iun. Constantino A. VII et Constantio C. conss.

XXXI De Equestri Dignitate

[1] Impp. Valentinianus et Valens AA. ad Mamertinum pp. Equites Romanos secundum gradum post clarissimatus dignitatem obtinere iubemus.

D. prid. k. Nov. Philippopoli divo Ioviano et Varroniano conss.

XXXII De Perfectissimatus Dignitate

[1] Imp. Constantinus A. ad Paternum Valerianum. Codicillis perfectissimatus fruantur, qui impetraverint, si abhorreant a condicione servili vel fisco aut curiae obnoxii non sint vel si pistores non fuerint vel non in aliquo negotio constiterint nec sibi honorem venali suffragio emerint nec rem alicuius administraverint.

XXXIII Qui Militare Possunt vel Non et de Servis ad Militiam vel Dignitatem Adspirantibus et Ut Nemo Duplici Militia vel Dignitate et Militia Simul Utatur

[1] Impp. Severus et Antoninus AA. Antonio suo salutem. Si militiae nomen dare vultis, offerte vos his qui probandi ius habent. non autem ignoratis eos, qui litis causa militiam appetierunt, postulantibus adversariis solvi sacramento solere.

they have been stationed in the palace either through their own effort, as has been said, or as a token of Our regard.

Posted May 23, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Constantine Augustus, for the seventh time, and the Caesar Constantius (326).

Thirty-First Title The Equestrian Rank

[1][134] Emperors VALENTINIAN and VALENS Augusti to Mamertinus, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy, Africa, and Illyricum). We order that the Roman equestrians (equites) shall occupy the second class (gradus) after the rank of clarissimus.

Given October 31, at Philippopolis, in the consulship of the blessed Jovianus and Varronianus (364).

Thirty-Second Title The Rank of "Most Perfect"

[1][135] Emperor CONSTANTINE Augustus to Paternus Valerianus. Those who have obtained the diplomas of the perfectissimate (codicilli perfectissimatus) may enjoy the benefit thereof if they are untouched by servile status (condicio), are liable neither to the Treasury nor to a municipal council (curia), have not been bakers (pistores) nor engaged in any trade, have not bought the honor by purchased recommendation (venale suffragium), and have not managed the property of anyone.

(312–337).

Thirty-Third Title Those Who Can and Cannot Be in the Imperial Service, and Also Slaves Aspiring to Such Service or to an Official Position of Rank, and That No One May Enjoy at the Same Time Two Positions of Such Service or an Official Position of Rank and a Position in Such Service

[1] Emperors SEVERUS and ANTONINUS Augusti to their own Antonius, greeting: If you want to enroll (nomen dare) in the imperial service (militia), offer yourself to those who have the right of approval. Do not forget, however, that those who have sought a post in the imperial service for the sake of a lawsuit are, upon demand of the adversaries, customarily absolved from their oath (i.e., dismissed from the service).

(203–209).

[134] = C.Th. 6.37.1. The constitution dates more probably to late May (Seeck); Schmidt-Hofner dates to May 24–26, 364.

[135] = C.Th. 6.38.1. Seeck dates to January 19, 317.

[2] Impp. Diocletianus et Maximianus AA. Valerio militi. Non tantum decurionum filiis, sed omnibus in fraudem civilium munerum nomina armatae militiae dantibus fraudem prodesse displicuit.

[3] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Pulchro magistro utriusque militiae. Cura pervigili observare debebit sublimitas tua, ne coloni vel saltuenses aut ultro se offerentes ad militiam suscipiantur armatam aut cogantur inviti.

[4] Imp. Leo A. Dioscoro pp. Omnes omnino curialis vel cohortalis condicionis constituti nullam armatam militiam in posterum adripiant.

[5] Imp. Iustinus A. Licinio magistro officiorum. pr. Eis quidem, quibus indultum hactenus demonstratur, quo binis aut ternis pluribusve mereantur cingulis non coniunctis e prisca consuetudine, sed absectis atque discrepantibus, detur electio, quem retinendum sibi potius censeant, quem deserendum cognoscant, ut in eo quod optaverint firmiter maneant, eo quod despexerint sine dubitatione reppellantur.

1. In posterum vero nemini prorsus facultas pateat eodem tempore plus quam unius ordinis nomen adfectare, interdicendis in commune cunctis ut dictum est binis pluribusve militiis, nec dignitatem coniungere cuilibet alii cingulo concedendis, ut et qui supplicandum de re vetita nobis existimaverint, poena decem librarum auri pro temeritate quamvis infructuosa plectantur, et qui susceperint iussionem augustam per subreptionem elicitam, quod nonnumquam contingit, decem librarum auri multa feriantur: scriniis etiam nec non officiis, quorum haec intersit, si non restiterint et hanc pragmaticam legem obiecerint, decem librarum auri dispendio puniendis. 1a. Si quid autem contra haec perpetretur, sciant omnes, quod extra concessum admissum est aut actum fuerit vel notis conscriptum publicis, simile habeatur, ac si nec impetratum nec pronuntiatum omnino nec insertum esset ullis matriculis.

2. Scituris etiam omnibus, qui merentes in ordinibus armatis sive civilibus administrandas provincias seu regendos quoslibet numeros vel iam sunt seu de cetero fuerint iussione nostra sortiti et, ut servetur eis

[2] Emperors Diocletian and Maximianus Augusti to Valerius, a soldier. It is resolved that fraud will avail neither sons of decurions nor anyone else seeking enlistment in the armed military service to escape civil obligations (civilia munera).

(285–293).

[3] Emperors Arcadius and Honorius Augusti to Pulcher, Master of Both Infantry and Cavalry. Your Sublimity shall take great care lest bound tenants or (other) farm workers (coloni vel saltuenses) are enlisted in the armed military service, either voluntarily or by compulsion.

(395–401).

[4] Emperor Leo Augustus to Dioscorus, Praetorian Prefect (of the East?). No one belonging to the status of decurions or members of the provincial administration (curialis vel cohortalis condicio) may hereafter grasp at a place in the armed military service.

(472–474).

[5] Emperor Justin Augustus to Licinius, Master of Offices. pr. Those to whom permission has heretofore been conceded to serve in two or three or more official positions (cingula; lit., belts of office) which are not combined according to ancient custom, but instead separate and distinct, shall now be granted the choice as to which position they prefer to retain and which they want to leave, in order that they might remain in that which they have resolutely chosen and be expelled from that which they have unambiguously rejected.

1. Nor indeed shall anyone hereafter have the ability to seek a post (nomen) in more than one department (ordo) at the same time, and all alike, as has been said, are forbidden service in two or more places in the imperial service (militiae), nor shall anyone be permitted to combine an official position of rank (dignitas) with an ordinary official position (cingulum), so much so that even those who essay to importune Us on matters herein prohibited shall be punished by a fine of 10 pounds of gold for their temerity, albeit fruitless; and anyone who obtains an imperial order elicited by stealth, as sometimes happens, shall be punished by a fine of 10 pounds of gold. The bureaus (scrinia), also, and the official staffs (officia) concerned with this law shall, if they fail to resist violations of this pragmatic sanction, be punished by a fine of 10 pounds of gold. 1a. If any act is done contrary to these provisions, let all take notice that what has been permitted or is transacted or inscribed in public records, contrary to what is legal, shall be considered as though it had neither been sought, proclaimed, nor inscribed at all in any register.

2. Likewise all those in the military or civil service who have heretofore been or shall hereafter be appointed on Our orders to administer provinces or to command soldiers, and who at the same time have received the imperial sanction to retain their position (gradus), are notified that an equitable choice gradus, augusta promeriti sanctione, parem indulgendam sibi licentiam, postquam deposuerint sollicitudinem, aut in priore cingulo protinus persistendi, nullo vindicando titulo dignitatis, quem sollicitudo media praestiterint, aut retinendi splendorem, quem adquisierint administrationis obtentu, verum priore cingulo desistendi. 3. Monente tamen innata nobis clementia liberum esse cunctis prospeximus, si militia, qua decedendum est, inter eas habetur, quas volentibus licet distrahere, et in alios eam conferendi et pretia consequendi, prout in isdem agminibus consuevit hactenus.

4. Excipiendis videlicet nec deducendis in hanc perpetuo conservandam legem pragmaticam eis, qui binas militias simul compositas et sociali nexas consortio fuerint adsecuti, ut in viris dicatissimis scholaribus atque candidatis fieri moris est nec non in viris devotis laterculensibus et pragmaticariis vel a secretis contigit, quos memorialium etiam aut agentum in rebus adornat cingulus, et si qui simili stipendiorum iunguntur copula.

D. VIII k. Ian. Constantinopoli Iustino A. iterum et Opilione conss.

[6] Imp. Iustinianus A. Menae pp. pr. Super servis, qui postea ad quandam militiam adspirare temptaverint vel scientibus vel ignorantibus dominis, praecipimus, si quidem ignorantibus his eam meruerint, licere dominis adire competentem iudicem et suam ignorantiam eo, quod contrarium minime probatur, ostendere eoque modo spoliatos eos militia in suum dominium trahere: sin vero scientibus his servi militaverint, cadere quidem eos non tantum dominio eorum, sed etiam omni patronatus iure, illos vero ingenuos effectos, si quidem utiles ad militiam eis datam visi fuerint, in ea durare, sin vero minime idonei sint, ea privari.

1. Super illis autem servis, qui iam militarunt et adhuc in eadem militia perseverant, licentiam dominis damus intra triginta dierum spatium ab eo tempore connumerandorum, quo praesens sanctio divulgata fuerit, vel nostram adire clementiam vel competentes iudices et suam innocentiam commendare eosque in suum recipere dominium. 2. Quo tempore transacto simili modo tam dominio quam omni patronatus iure cadere eos necesse est.

D. VIII id. April. Constantinopoli Decio cons.

has been bestowed upon them, once they have discharged their responsibility (sollicitudo), either of remaining in their original office (prius cingulum) without interruption while disclaiming the title of the official position of rank (titulus dignitatis) conferred by the intervening responsibility (sollicitudo), or of retaining the splendor which they acquired by reason of their administration while retiring from their original office (prius cingulum). 3. Admonished, however, by Our inborn Clemency, We have deemed it best to grant permission that, if the imperial service (militia) from which retirement must take place is one of those which may be sold, it may be transferred to another and its price received, just as has been the custom heretofore in such bodies (agmina).

4. Excepted herefrom, however, and not to be subjected to this ever-enduring pragmatic sanction, are those who hold multiple offices which are naturally related and joined by a common bond, as is customary among the most obedient imperial guardsmen (scholares) and the imperial bodyguard (candidati) and happens as well among the devoted registrars (laterculenses) and the clerks who compose pragmatic sanctions (pragmaticarii) or the confidential secretaries (a secretis), whom the belt (cingulum) of the clerks of the bureaux (memoriales) or of couriers (agentes in rebes) adorns, and in the case of anyone whose terms of service (stipendia) are closely related.

Given December 25, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Justin Augustus, for the second time, and Opilio (524).

[6] Emperor JUSTINIAN Augustus to Menas, Praetorian Prefect (of the East?).
pr. As to slaves who shall hereafter attempt to aspire to any position in the imperial service, either with or without the knowledge of their masters, We order that if the former (the slaves) have received the position without the knowledge of the masters, the latter may go before a competent judge and prove their lack of knowledge, and if the contrary is not shown, the slaves shall be despoiled of their position and returned to the ownership of their masters. If the slaves, however, occupy the position with the knowledge of their masters, the latter shall not only lose ownership over the slaves but also all the rights of a patron. The slaves thus rendered free-born shall, if they shall appear to be useful in the service, remain therein, but if unsuitable be deprived thereof.

1. As to slaves who have heretofore occupied and who still occupy positions in the imperial service, We grant permission to the masters within the space of thirty days, reckoned from the time that the present sanction is published, either to come before Our Clemency or to go before competent judges to prove their lack of knowledge and thus to recover ownership over their slaves. 2. After that time has passed, they will be deprived of ownership as well as all the rights of a patron.

Given April 6, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Decius (529).

[7] Idem A. Iohanni pp. pr. Si quis servum suum dignitatem habere, quemadmodum militiam, fuerit passus, spolietur et dominio servi et iure, quod pervenit ad patronos. 1. Cui enim ferendum est homines a nostra manu donationes accipientes adhuc inter servos haberi et forte cum suis dominis nostram purpuram adorantes? 2. In his itaque casibus, in quibus non militia, sed dignitas volentibus dominis servis adquiritur, eadem iura reserventur, quae antea posita sunt, ne videatur nostra sanctio aliquid habere imperfectum.

3. Sciant autem domini ad exemplum praeteritae nostrae constitutionis, quae de huiusmodi servis loquitur, quod, nisi hoc intra triginta dies, ex quo hoc eis fuerit notum, manifestaverint et competentem iudicem adierint et spoliare eos dignitatibus curaverint, dominium eorum et ius patronatus amittant, nobis deliberantibus, postquam dominio fuerint servi liberati et inter ingenuos connumerati, si oportet eos habere dignitatem vel ea quasi indignos spoliari.

D. k. Sept. post consulatum Lampadii et Orestis vv. cc.

[8] Ὁ αὐτὸς βασιλεύς Φ[λώρῳ κόμητι]||τῶν[θε]ί[ω]ν ἰ[δικῶν. pr. Θεσπ]ί[ζ] ο||μεν .....|| παρα τ...... || .... || ......αιατο || ἢ καὶ πιμο*αα κατα || ... ιρ ... ν*υ|| .... || .... || .... ν λαμ||π[ροτατ τριβουν νοτα]ριο*||ο...... τοῦ || τριβούν[ο]υ .... νικα||τον .... || ν .... || δι[κ]α πραιτ ... || .... || κατα*σ*ων ιων || ἢ ποίαν [στρ]ατείαν ἡγοῖντο, καὶ εἴπερ αἱρετον * τὴν τοῦ λαμπροτάτου κόμητος μᾶλλον ἀξίαν κεκτῆσθαι καὶ τοῖς συμβόλοις τε περιβλέπτου τριβούνου κεχρῆσθαι, τὴν ἄλλην ἢ ἄλλας τὰς οὔσας αὐτοῖς στρατείας ἀποθέσθαι, μηκέτι τούτων ἢ μιᾶς αὐτῶν ἀντιλαβέσθαι δυναμένων· ἤγουν εἴπερ ἐπὶ τῆς οἰκείας θέλοι διαμένειν στρατείας, τῇ ἀξίᾳ ἧς ἔτυχεν ἀπογορεῦσαι καὶ [τοῖς] ὑπὲρ τοῦ λαμπροτάτου τριβούνου νοταρίου πραιτοριαν[οῦ δεδομένοις] αὐτῷ συμβόλο[ις]. 1. Ταύτῃ [ο]ὔ[ν] || τῇ εμτρεμ θεσπίζομεν μηνῶν εἴσω τριῶν μετὰ | τὸ *ατάμενιιτ *ν

[7] The same Augustus to John, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). pr. If anyone permits his slave to acquire an official position of rank (dignitas), just as in the case of an ordinary position in the imperial service (militia), he shall be deprived of ownership of the slave as well as the right that belongs to patrons. 1. For how can anyone bear that men who receive gifts at Our hands should still be considered slaves and perchance jointly with their masters adore Our purple? 2. In such cases, therefore, in which slaves have acquired, with the compliance of their masters, not an ordinary position in the imperial service but an official position of rank, the same laws are applicable that have heretofore been enacted, lest Our ordinance appear to contain anything that is imperfect.

3. Let masters therefore take notice, in conformity with Our past constitution which We enacted concerning slaves of this kind, that unless they proceed within thirty days after they have received knowledge of this enactment and go before a competent judge and cause the slaves to be despoiled of their rank, they shall lose ownership of them and the right pertaining to patrons, reserving to Us the right to consider whether, after the slaves have been liberated and are counted among the free-born, it should be proper for them to retain the rank or to be deprived thereof as unworthy.

Given September 1, in the post-consulate of the viri clarissimi Lampadius and Orestes (531).

[8][136] The same Emperor to Florus, Count of the Privy Purse. pr. We ordain that … declare in the proceedings conducted in your tribunal which official position of rank or what position in the imperial service they prefer, and if indeed … they prefer to possess the rank of a Count of clarissimus rank and to enjoy the insignia of a tribune of spectabilis rank, relinquish another position or positions which they occupy, so that they may claim only one and no more; but if he prefers to remain in his own position in the imperial service, he must renounce the official position of rank acquired, including the insignia conferred upon him as a Praetorian Tribune and notary of clarissimus rank. 1. Therefore … We ordain that within three months after they have been well informed of this Our divine pragmatic sanction, in this imperial city before

[136] The text is badly mutilated. Bas. 57.1.45 summarizes the pr. and §1 as follows: "This Greek constitution confirms the (fifth) constitution of this title (i.e., C. 12.33.5), which says that no one may hold two positions in the imperial service at the same time, adding that no one should join another branch of the imperial service and be enrolled as a tribune and notary. (1.) It decrees, however, that everyone shall make a declaration for the official record as to which position in the imperial service or official position of rank he prefers, prescribing a time limit of three months after they have become aware of this ordinance, within which anyone who wishes to do so shall appear before the Count of the Privy Purse in Constantinople or the governors in the provinces and indicate his choice."

* θεῖον || [ἡμῶ]ν πραγματικὸν νόμον γε||νέσθαι κατὰ ταύτην μὲν τὴν βα||[σιλίδ]α πόλιν παρὰ τῇ σῇ ὑπερο||[χῇ]ου*οι*ιμενουστσ αταυ || .... ιηκ*τε*ασ*παρ|| κιιι*ριισμ*ιρσι*τ*ι*υ* || .... ν* πάντας τὴν  || νιιην φανερὰν κατα||*ιιιο*ιι εἴτε μίαν τις τῶν ἐξ*ν||των αὐτῷ στρατιῶν ἐπιλεξαν||των νυον αὐτὸν ἀφίστασθαι πάντως, εἴτε τῆς περιγενομένης ἀπὸ τοῦ λαμπροτάτου κόμητος ἢ καὶ τ[ῶ]ν [δ]ε[δο]μ[έ]ν[ω]ν αὐτ[ῷ] || συμβόλων τοῦ λαμπροτάτου τριβούνου ν[ο]ταρίο[υ] πρ[αιτο]ριανοῦ || μασασ .... γανητα || τραβα .....ατινιαν || ἐπιταχουσ .....ν||δα .... 2. || .... ε αυπρει* τ[οῖ]ς λ[α]μπροτάτοις τριβούνοις νοταρίοις πραιτοριανοῖς σιωεινσυσ ||  [τ]ὴν οἰκείαν φα[νε]ροῦν μὲν γνώμην εναξιομηνπερ || τῆς μὲν στρατείας ἀφαιρεθῆναι, μένουσιν δὲ τοῖς λαμπροτάτοις τριβούνοις νοταρίοις ἡμῶν συναριθμούμενοι, ἤγουν τῷ τὴν ἀξίαν τοῦ λαμπροτάτου κόμητος τοῦ θείου μενεξο*εινκονοισ || τεκταντων τῶν ἤδη πεπορισμένων εἰσὶν τῶν θείων πραγμάτων *πειενβα*σν* || ναιτε*εντωτε*οι*α || αετον καὶ τῶν κατὰ ταυιονκ* || *στρατεῖαν ἢ στρατείας ... || ... ἀξίας ηνποθενρ.. ||  τριβούνου τὸν ἀριθμου  || σβασ*ο .... || ... ενεχυε*ναιιαιι || .... Εἰ δὲ συμβαίνοι παραδραμεῖν τὸν χρόνον τοῦτον, κελεύει αὐτούς, εἰ μὲν στρατείας πολλὰς ἔχοιεν, μίαν καὶ μόνην ἔχειν, εἰ δὲ στρατείαν καὶ ἐπιστολὰς τριβούνων νοταρίων, μένειν μόνον τριβούνους, εἰ δὲ στρατείαν καὶ κόμητος ἀξίαν, τὴν μὲν στρατείαν ἀπολλύειν, τὴν δὲ ἀξίαν τοῦ κόμητος τοῦ ὑψηλοῦ βήματος ἔχειν, μηδενὸς πραγματικοῦ τύπου παρὰ τὰ διηγορευμένα μέλλοντος ἰσχύειν. 3. Ἐάν δέ τις στρατείαν ἔχων ἄρχων ἐπαρχίας γένηται καὶ λάβῃ θεῖον τύπον περὶ τοῦ φυλαχθῆναι αὐτῷ τὸν ἴδιον τόπον, κελεύει ἡ διάταξις τοῦτον τὸν τύπον ἰσχύειν, ἵνα ὁ μὲν στρατείας φυλάττηται τόπος, μηκέτι δὲ κεχρῆσθαι καὶ τῷ ἐκ τῆς ἀρχῆς ὡς εἰκὸς προσγενομένῳ αὐτοῖς ἀξιώματι. 4. Εἰ δέ τι τοιοῦτο ἐπιχειρίσωσιν ἑκάτερόν τινες ποιεῖν καὶ δύο τυχὸν στρατείαις κεχρῆσθαι, ἑκατέρων ἐκπίπτουσιν. 5. Ὁρίζει δὲ πρόστιμον εἴκοσι λιτρῶν κατὰ τῶν παραβαινόντων, εἰ καὶ θεῖον τύπον ὡς εἰκὸς προσποριζομένων καὶ ταύτῃ τῇ θείᾳ διατάξει ἐναντιουμένων· ὁμοίως δὲ καὶ κατὰ τῶν ἀρχόντων τῶν τὸν τοιοῦτον θεῖον τύπον προσδεχομένων.

XXXIIII Negotiatores Ne Militent

[1] Imp. Iustinianus A. Menae pp. pr. Eos, qui vel in hac alma urbe vel in provinciis cuidam ergasterio praesunt, militare de cetero prohibemus, exceptis argenti distractoribus, qui in hac alma urbe negotiantur. 1. Hos enim utpote omnium contractibus utiles armata quidem militia penitus abstinere sancimus, aliam vero quamcumque sine metu praesentis sanctionis posse sibi adquirere. 2. Si qui vero negotiatores, quos omni militia prohibuimus, iam militarunt, licentiam eis damus

Your Excellency ... in the provinces before the governors of those provinces, each shall express his preference, and if anyone chooses one of the positions in the imperial service which he occupies he shall entirely relinquish the others, or if the rank of ex-Count of clarissimus rank were retained or the insignia bestowed upon him of Praetorian Tribune and notary of clarissimus rank ... 2. ... for the Praetorian Tribunes and notaries of clarissimus rank ... express his preference ... be deprived of a position in the imperial service, they shall remain however in the corps of Our tribunes and notaries, or for him who the rank of Count of the imperial ... of clarissimus rank ...[137] Should this be the case, when this time expires, then (the constitution) directs that if they have several positions in the imperial service they shall retain only one; if they have a position in the imperial service and diplomas as a tribune and notary they shall remain only tribunes; if they have a position and the rank of Count, they shall lose the position and retain the rank of Count of the First Order. No pragmatic order shall prevail against these provisions. 3. If anyone occupying a position in the imperial service becomes governor of a province and has obtained an imperial order preserving for him his seniority (in the service), the constitution bids this order to remain in force, so that while his seniority within the imperial service is preserved for him he cannot enjoy in addition any rank he might possibly receive from his term as provincial governor. 4. If anyone presumes to seek and to enjoy two official positions, he shall lose both. 5. (The constitution) fixed, moreover, a fine of 20 pounds against the violators of this law, even if they produce an imperial order contravening it. A similar fine is imposed on governors who accept such an order.

(531–534).

Thirty-Fourth Title That Merchants Shall Not Hold a Position in the Imperial Service

[1] Emperor Justinian Augustus to Menas, Praetorian Prefect (of the East?). pr. We prohibit henceforth those who keep any shop in this Generous City (Constantinople) or in the provinces from holding any position in the imperial service (militia), excepting the sellers of silver (argenti distractores) who carry on their trade in this Generous City. 1. We ordain that the latter, useful as they are in all transactions, shall avoid entirely the armed service (armata militia), but that they may acquire any other position in the imperial service without fear of the present law. 2. If any merchants (negotiatores) whom We forbid to hold any position in the imperial service are now occupying such a position, We grant them permission to abandon their calling as merchants negotiationem quidem relinquere, militiam vero retinere, scientibus quod, si postea negotiantes appareant, militia privabuntur. 3. Quod et in argenti distractoribus huius almae urbis, si armatam militiam iam sortiti sunt, tenere volumus, ut relicta negotiatione liceat eis in eadem militia durare. 4. Negotiantes etenim post hanc sanctionem huiusmodi militia privabuntur: illis, qui ad armorum structionem suam professionem contulerint, minime prohibendis ad competentem suae professionis venire militiam et huiusmodi negotiationem nihilo minus retinere.

[137] What follows is from Bas. 57.1.45.

XXXV De Re Militari

[1] Imp. Antoninus A. Annaeo militi. Stipendia et donativa temporis, quo apud hostes fuisse te dicis, restitui tibi postliminio regresso restitutoque non iure desideras.

[2] Idem A. militibus cohortis primae. Viginti stipendia si implestis, sordida munera militiae vobis non indicentur.

[3] Idem A. Iuliano. Milites ignominia missi, cum infamia notantur, nullis honoribus, qui integrae dignitatis hominibus deferri solent, uti possunt. habeant autem morandi ubi velint potestatem, praeterquam in eis locis, quibus specialiter arcentur.

[4] Imp. Alexander A. Attico. Defunctorum in desertione bona confiscari divus Marcus et Antoninus pater meus constituit.

[5] Imp. Gordianus A. Valentino et aliis militibus. pr. Cum adlegatis septem annos in desertione egisse maritum sororis vestrae et indulgentia nostra esse restitutum, non recte desideratis, ut id tempus, ac si in castris fuerit, habeatur. 1. Proinde excepto eo tempore, quod ad desertores pertinet, restitutus nostra indulgentia residuo militare debebit: ideoque nec stipendia temporis, quo in desertione fuerit, exigere poterit.

and to retain their position, in the knowledge that if they should thereafter again become merchants they will be deprived of their position. 3. We want this to apply also to the sellers of silver in this Generous City who have already been enrolled in the armed military service, so that if they abandon their calling as merchants they may remain in that service. 4. Those who become merchants after the enactment of this law will be excluded from positions of this kind. Those whose work, however, consists in the manufacture of arms are not prohibited from service consistent with their profession and may continue to practice their trade.

(528–529).

Thirty-Fifth Title Military Matters

[1] Emperor Antoninus Augustus to Annaeus, a soldier. You do not rightly ask that the pay and donatives of the period during which you say you were in the hands of the enemy should be reinstated for you once you had returned and recovered your status through the resumption of civil rights (postliminium).

(211–213).

[2] The same Augustus to the soldiers of the First Cohort. If you have served for twenty years, no menial duties of the service (sordida munera militiae) shall be imposed on you.

(211–213).

[3] The same Augustus to Julian. Soldiers dismissed in disgrace shall not, because they are branded by infamy, enjoy any honors which are customarily paid to men of spotless standing (dignitas). They shall have the ability (potestas), however, of living where they desire, except in those places which are specially forbidden them.

(213–217).

[4] Emperor Alexander Augustus to Atticus. The blessed Marcus and my father Antoninus decreed that the goods of deceased persons who were guilty of desertion should be confiscated.

(222–235).

[5] Emperor Gordian Augustus to Valentinus and other soldiers. pr. Since you state that the husband of your sister was for seven years a deserter and was restored by Our indulgence, you do not rightly desire that that time should be considered (the same) as if he had lived in camp. 1. Hence after deducting the time of the desertion, the person restored by Our indulgence must perform military service for the remainder of the time. And therefore he will not be able to demand the pay of that time during which he was a deserter.

(238–244).

[6] Idem A. Bruto militi. Semel causaria missis militibus instauratio non solet concedi obtentu recuperatae valitudinis melioris, quando non temere dimittantur, nisi quos constet medicis denuntiantibus et iudice competente diligenter etiam investigante vitium contraxisse.

[7] Idem A. Domno veterano. Frustra vereris, ne nota, quae propter delictum militare intercessit, existimationem tuam iam veterani laesisse videatur, maxime cum nec ex eo delicto, quod et in paganorum potest cadere personam, notatos milites post missionem placuerit esse famosos.

[8] Imp. Philippus A. et Philippus C. Maccio. Causaria missus nulla existimationis macula adspergitur.

[9] Imp. Constantinus A. Aelio pp. Si quis barbaris scelerata factione facultatem depraedationis in Romanos dederit, vel si quis alio modo factam diviserit, vivus amburatur.

D. IIII k. Mai. Severo et Rufino conss.

[10] Imp. Constans A. Titiano pp. Quicumque militum ex nostra auctoritate familias suas ad se venire meruerint, non amplius quam coniugia liberos, servos etiam de peculio castrensi emptos neque adscriptos censibus ad eosdem excellentia tua dirigi faciat.

D. III k. Iun. Limenio et Catullino conss.

[11] Imppp. Gratianus, Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. Cynegio pp. Tribuni vel milites nullam evagandi per possessiones habeant facultatem: cum signis propriis in mansionibus solitis ac publicis maneant: aut si quis tam necessaria scita contempserit, de eo ac tribuno eius ad nostram scientiam rectorum ac defensorum relationibus protinus referatur, quatenus severissime in eos animadvertatur.

D. IIII id. April. Constantinopoli Ricomere et Clearcho conss.

[6] The same Augustus to Brutus, a soldier. Soldiers once dismissed on account of sickness are not usually eligible for reinstatement on the pretence of recovered health, since they are not routinely dismissed unless it clearly appears, after a report from physicians and careful investigation by an appropriate judge, that they have contracted a disease.

(238–244).

[7] The same Augustus to Domnus, a veteran. Your fear is groundless that the disgrace incurred on account of a military offense will appear to have harmed your good name now that you are a veteran, especially since it is understood that soldiers disgraced on account of an offense that civilians (pagani) are also capable of committing shall not be considered infamous upon their discharge.

(238–244).

[8] Emperor PHILIP Augustus and the Caesar PHILIP to Maccius. A dismissal on account of sickness is not an aspersion on the good name of anyone.

(244–247).

[9][138] Emperor CONSTANTINE Augustus (and the Caesar) to Aeli(an)us, Praetorian Prefect(?). If anyone by any wicked conspiracy gives opportunity to the barbarians to plunder Romans, or if anyone divides (with them) spoils obtained in any other manner, he shall be burned alive.

Given April 28, in the consulship of Serverus and Rufinus (323).

[10][139] Emperor CONSTANS Augustus to Titianus, Praetorian Prefect (of the Gauls). Whenever soldiers are permitted by Our order to have their households come to them, Your Excellency will see to it that only their wives and children, as well as slaves purchased out of the military peculium, but no enrolled tenants (adscripti censibus), are sent to them.

Given May 30, in the consulship of Limenius and Catullinus (349).

[11][140] Emperors GRATIAN, VALENTINIAN, and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Cynegius, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). The tribunes and the soldiers shall have no opportunity to roam about through private property; they shall remain with their own standards in the customary public encampments. And if anyone shall defy these necessary orders, he and his tribune must immediately be brought to Our attention in the reports of the governors (rectores) and defenders (defensores), so that the heaviest of punishments may be inflicted on them.

Given April 10, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Richomer and Clearchus (384).

[138] = C.Th. 7.1.1, which includes the Caesar (Constantine II) as an author. Combine with C. 12.42.1 (= C.Th. 7.12.1). The addressee's identity is uncertain.

[139] = C.Th. 7.1.3.

[140] = C.Th. 7.1.12. Combine with C.Th. 8.5.45.

[12] Imppp. Theodosius Arcadius et Honorius AAA. Ricomeri comiti et magistro utriusque militiae. Cum supra virentes fluminum ripas omnis legionum multitudo consistit, id provida auctoritate decernimus, ut nullus omnino immundo fimo sordidatis fluentis commune poculum polluat, neve abluendo equorum sudore deproperus publicos oculos nudatus incestet, sed procul a cunctorum obtutibus in inferioribus partibus fluviorum hoc ipsum faciat.

D. VI k. Iun. Vincentiae Tatiano et Symmacho conss.

[13] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Romuliano pu. pr. Nemo miles ex his, qui praesentes divino obsequio nostrae clementiae deputati sunt et qui in hac esse urbe praesente comitatu concessi sunt quive de aliis numeris vel legionibus sunt, vel sibi vacet vel aliena obsequia sine nutu principali peragere audeat. qui autem in huiusmodi facinore fuerint convicti, militia exuti poenas consentaneas luere compellantur: ii autem, qui in privato obsequio militem retinere fuerint reperti, quinque libris auri multae nomine feriantur. 1. Sin vero quisquam missus a numero vel a tribuno ad comitatum serenitatis nostrae pervenerit (aliter enim eos hoc facere vetamus), ilico se viris illustribus comitibus, sub quorum regimine constituti sunt, offerre festinet et causas profectionis exponat, ut et responsum caeleste mereatur et citam remeandi accipiat facultatem. 2. Si quos autem milites per provincias relictis propriis numeris passim vagari praesides earum cognoverint, correptos faciant custodiri, donec de his clementiae nostrae auribus intimetur et, quid fieri oporteat, decernamus.

D. k. Febr. Constantinopoli Honorio A. IIII et Eutychiano conss.

[14] Idem AA. Stilichoni magistro militum. pr. Contra publicam utilitatem nolumus a numeris ad alios numeros milites nostros transferri. sciant igitur comites vel duces, quibus regendae militiae cura commissa est, non solum de comitatensibus ac palatinis numeris ad alios numeros milites transferri non licere, sed ne ipsis quidem seu de

[12][141] Emperors THEODOSIUS, ARCADIUS, and HONORIUS Augusti to Richomer, Count and Master of Both Infantry and Cavalry. By Our provident authority We order that when the whole multitude of the legions stands on the green banks of the rivers, no one at all shall pollute the common cup by defiling the flowing streams with his foul ordure, nor while he is hastening to wash off the sweat from his horses shall he appear naked and offend the public gaze, but must do this in lower parts of the river away from the sight of everyone.

Given May 27, at Vincentia (Vicenza), in the consulship of Tatianus and Symmachus (391).

[13][142] Emperors ARCADIUS and HONORIUS Augusti to Romulianus, City Prefect (of Constantinople). pr. No one of the soldiers who have been assigned to the imperial service (divinum obsequium) in the presence of Our Clemency and who have been permitted to be in this City when Our court is here or who belong to other troops and legions shall be at leisure or dare to perform services for others (aliena obsequia) without imperial consent. Those who are convicted of such an offense shall be compelled to leave the military (militia) and to suffer suitable punishments; and[143] whoever is found to have employed a soldier in his own service (obsequium) shall be punished by a fine of 5 pounds of gold. 1. If a soldier is sent by his troop or by a tribune to the court of Our Serenity – for We forbid them to do this otherwise – he shall proceed at once to present himself to those viri illustres Counts to whose commands he is subject and explain the reasons for his mission, in order that he might deserve Our imperial answer and receive immediate permission to return. 2.[144] If the governors (praesides) learn that these soldiers have left their own units and are roaming about in the provinces, they shall cause them to be arrested and guarded until a report about them reaches the ears of Our Clemency and We decide what ought to be done.

Given February 1, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Honorius Augustus, for the fourth time, and Eutychianus (398).

[14][145] The same Augusti to Stilicho, Master of Soldiers. pr. We do not want Our soldiers to be transferred from one unit to another contrary to the public advantage. Let the Counts and Dukes, therefore, to whom the responsibility of commanding the soldiery is entrusted, take notice that not only is it impermissible for soldiers to be transferred from the field and palatine units (comitatenses ac palatini numeri) to other units, but neither has the prerogative

[141] = C.Th. 7.1.13.
[142] = C.Th. 7.1.17 (altered).
[143] This sentence = C.Th. 7.1.15 (altered).
[144] = C.Th. 7.1.16.
[145] = C.Th. 7.1.18.

comitatensibus legionibus seu de riparensibus castricianis ceterisque cuiquam eorum transferendi militem copiam attributam, nisi hoc augusta maiestas publicae utilitatis gratia fieri iusserit: quia honoris augmentum non ambitione, sed labore ad unumquemque convenit devenire. 1. Quod si qui contra fecerint, per singulos milites singulas auri libras a se noverint exigendas.

D. XIIII k. April. Mediolani Stilichone et Aureliano conss.

[15] Imp. Leo A. Aspari magistro militum. pr. Milites, qui a re publica armantur et aluntur, solis debent publicis utilitatibus occupari nec agrorum cultui et custodiae animalium vel mercimoniorum quaestui, sed propriae muniis insudare militiae. 1. Nullam praeterea ex militibus posthac praedictis obsequiis vacare magnitudo tua patiatur, sed frequentes esse in numero suo iubeat, ut armorum quotidiano exercitio ad bella se praeparent. 2. Quod si quis ex militaribus iudicibus ullos militum tam divinis quam regiis vel privatis domibus ac possessionibus diversisque aliis obsequiis contra interdictum serenitatis nostrae crediderit deputandos, sciat ab eo, qui contra vetitum fecerit, et ab eo, qui ausus accipere militem fuerit, per singulos milites singulas libras auri protinus exigendas.

D. prid. non. Iul. Constantinopoli Leone A. cons.

[16] Idem A. Dioscoro pp. Militares viros civiles curas adripere prohibemus, aut si aliquam huiusmodi sollicitudinem forte susceperint, et militia statim et privilegiis omnibus denudari decernimus: formidantibus his motum nostrae serenitatis, qui temeritate saluberrimis statutis obviam ire temptaverint.

[17] Imp. Zeno A. Marciano magistro militum. pr. Neminem in ullo numero equitum vel peditum vel in quolibet limite sine nostri numinis sacra probatoria in posterum sociari concedimus, consuetudine quae hactenus tenuit antiquata, quae magisteriae potestati vel ducibus probatorias militum facere vel militibus adiungere licentiam tribuebat, ut ii tantum in numeris vel in limitibus militent, qui a nostra divinitate probatorias consequuntur. 1. Viros autem eminentissimos pro tempore been accorded to any of them of transferring a soldier from the field legions (comitatenses legiones) or from the riparian or the garrison or any other forces (riparenses castriciani ceterique), unless Our August Majesty has ordered this to be done for the public good, because an increase in honor should come to each and every one not by corrupt solicitation, but by labor. 1. Those who act to the contrary may know that a pound of gold will be demanded of them for every soldier (so illegally transferred).

Given March 19, at Milan, in the consulship of Stilicho and Aurelianus (400).

[15] Emperor Leo Augustus to Aspar, Master of Soldiers. pr. Soldiers who are armed and sustained by the state should be used only for the public good and not employed in cultivating fields, guarding animals, or seeking profit in trade, but only in the assiduous performance of the duties of their service. 1. Your Greatness shall not hereafter afford soldiers leisure to engage in the aforementioned employments (obsequia), but order them to be present in their unit, so that by daily exercise in arms they may prepare themselves for war. 2. But if any military judge (militaris iudex) assigns any of the soldiers to imperial, royal, or private households and properties or to employments (obsequia) of any other kind contrary to the prohibition of Our Serenity, he shall know that both he who violated the order and the person who dared to receive a soldier will be immediately compelled to pay a pound of gold for each soldier (so received).

Given July 6, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Leo Augustus (458).

[16] The same Augustus to Dioscorus, Praetorian Prefect (of the East?). We forbid military officials (militares viri) from assuming civil responsibilities; and if they, perchance, have taken any charge of that kind upon themselves, We decree that they shall be immediately dismissed from military service and deprived of all their privileges. Whoever rashly ventures to thwart these most salutary regulations has the displeasure of Our Serenity to fear.

(472–474).

[17][146] Emperor Zeno Augustus to Marcianus, Master of Soldiers. pr. We permit no one hereafter to be enrolled in any unit of cavalry or infantry, or on any frontier, without an imperial certificate of appointment (probatoria) from Our Divine Majesty. The custom heretofore in force, which gave the Master of Soldiers (magisteria potestas) and the Dukes the right to issue military certificates of appointment or to enlist anyone in the army, is obsolete, so that only persons who have obtained certificates of appointment from Our Divinity may serve in the field units or on the frontiers. 1. It is for the currently serving Most Eminent Masters of Soldiers and the viri spectabiles Dukes, if they think magistros militum nec non etiam viros spectabiles duces, si supplere numeros pro his qui fatalibus sortibus decrescent necessarium esse putaverint, veritate discussa per suggestionem suam nostrae mansuetudini declarare, qui et quanti et in quo numero vel limite debeant subrogari, ut ita demum, prout nostrae sederit maiestati, divina subnotatione subnixi militiam sortiantur: officio, quod tuae sublimitatis actibus obsecundat, centum librarum auri dispendio feriendo, si ex aliqua parte quae statuit nostra serenitas fuerint violata.

[146] The date is corrected to 474–491.

[18] Imp. Anastasius A. Iohanni magistro militum praesentalium. pr. Tam collatores et provinciales quam fortissimos milites prout oportet gubernari minimeque laesionem aliquam seu dispendium perpeti properantes necessarium esse perspeximus dicatissimos milites, qui de diversis praesentalibus numeris per Orientis partes noscuntur consistere, virorum spectabilium ducum iussionibus oboedire, ut, quidquid emerserit, quod pro communi securitate curandum est, hoc protinus utpote militari praesidio in proximis locis constituto competens possit mereri remedium: ita videlicet, ut etiam agentibus causas tam criminaliter quam civiliter praefati milites iam non apud magnificam magisteriam per Orientem potestatem vel ex sententiis seu praeceptionibus eius, sed per interlocutiones seu dispositiones tam excelsae tuae sedis, sub cuius iurisdictione consistunt, quam eorundem ducum respondeant.

1. Eo scilicet observando, ut ad responsum, qui de officio tuae sublimitatis huc usque ad praedictam magisteriam per Orientem potestatem moris erat destinari, viris spectabilibus ducibus inhaesurus mittatur tam per se quam per adiutores suos eosdem iudices observare et iussiones eorum implere curaturus: licentia ei non deneganda, etiam ad responsum, qui de officio alterius viri excelsi magistri militum praesentalis pro hac nostra dispositione destinatur, in locis, in quibus apparitionis tuae sublimitatis ad responsum non contigerit reperiri, suam sollicitudinem pro emergentibus maxime causis peragere. 1a. Cuius etiam illi qui de altero officio mittendus est praebemus facultatem, ut non tantum per adiutores suos, id est ad responsum, sed etiam invicem se adiuvando nec publicis nec privatis causis vel exsecutionibus abesse videantur. 1b. Ad singulos etenim duces ad responsum de apparitionibus vestris non prospeximus oportere destinari, ne per multitudinem eorum qualibet machinatione damna contra milites nostros augeri contingat.

it necessary to replenish units on account of losses sustained through fatalities, to declare in their recommendation to Our Clemency, after investigating the facts, which soldiers ought to be enlisted and how many and in what unit or on what frontier, so that only those who are endorsed by the imperial signature in the manner resolved upon by Our Majesty shall join the military. The official staff that carries out the acts of Your Sublimity will be punished by a fine of 100 pounds of gold if any part of these provisions made by Our Serenity is violated.

(472?).

[18] Emperor ANASTASIUS Augustus to John, Master of Soldiers in the Imperial Presence. pr. Hastening to ensure that taxpayers and provincials, as well as the most stalwart solders, are properly governed and do not suffer any injury or damage, We have deemed it necessary that the most devoted soldiers stationed throughout the Eastern prefecture who are acknowledged to belong to various units under your command (presentales numeri) should obey the orders of the viri spectabiles Dukes, so that, when anything occurs that requires attention for the common safety, it may immediately receive an appropriate remedy from the garrisons situated in neighboring places. The aforesaid soldiers need not, however, answer those bringing criminal or civil cases in the court of the Magnificent Master of Soldiers in the East on his orders or injunctions (sententiae seu praeceptiones), but shall answer only the preliminary orders and judgments (interlocutiones seu dispositiones) of the tribunal of Your Highness, under whose jurisdiction they are, and those of their own Dukes (under you).

1. But it is to be observed that the liaison officer (ad responsum) heretofore customarily sent from the official staff of Your Sublimity to the aforementioned Master of Soldiers in the East shall henceforth be sent to be attached to the Dukes of spectabilis rank and to be concerned, personally as well as through his assistants, to attend these same judges and carry out their orders. We do not, however, deny permission to a liaison officer who is appointed, pursuant to this order of ours, from the staff of another vir excelsus Master of Soldiers in the Imperial Presence, to take his own initiative in those cases, most particularly, that may arise in places in which there happens to be no liaison officer from your staff. 1a. We give the same prerogative also to a liaison officer sent from any other staff, so that a liaison officer may be seen to be present at all public and private cases and judgment proceedings (exsecutiones), not only through his own assistants but also by one of them acting as substitute for the other. 1b. For We have not deemed it best to send a liaison officer from your staff to every Duke, lest by reason of their multitude the injuries to the soldiers might, by some trickery, be increased.

2. Ut autem omnifariam tam publicae commoditati quam fortissimis prospiciatur militibus, sportularum nihilo minus exactionem merito censuimus moderandam. et iubemus nec ipsis ad responsum nec adiutoribus eorum pro criminalibus seu civilibus causis, etsi ex publicis causis descendere vel ad publicam causam pertinere dicantur, licere aliquid plus quam unum solidum a singulis vel nolentibus vel spontanea voluntate offerentibus suscipere militibus, ita ut, si universitas numeri seu principiorum monenda sit, duplicata quantitate tantummodo sportulas accipiant: in his etenim causis nec plures quam duos primates, quorum nomina semel ac primum gestis intervenientibus fuerint publicata, patimur conveniri, syndico videlicet, prout consuetudo deposcit legibusque cautum est, ordinando. 2a. Hoc quoque adiecto, ut pro omnibus quibuslibet expensis ingressus in iudicio duciano faciendi unum tantum solidum nihilque amplius milites vel syndici litigantes dependere compellantur, ut huiusmodi solacium ad commodum ad responsum et eius adiutor*um* et exceptorum proficiat: nihil sibi usurpare vel suo nomine poscere vel viris devotis principibus, qui ducianum observant iudicium, vel duciana apparitione de praefatis litibus concedendis: ita videlicet, ut super litis expensis in personis etiam eorum, quicumque milites pulsare maluerint, eadem forma servetur.

3. Erit autem arbitrii atque aestimationis virorum spectabilium ducum pro qualitate negotiorum vel quantitate, quae devotissimis militibus ab adversariis eorum ingeritur, vel suam audientiam interponere litigiis vel eorum discussionem dicatissimis principiis seu arbitris in locis degentibus committere.

4. Quibus viris spectabilibus ducibus et eos observantibus ad responsum seu adiutoribus eorum curae sit, si quando ad eosdem duces milites fuerint arcessiti vel de locis in quibus constituti sunt movere praecepti, ne quolibet modo curiales seu collatores quibusdam adficiantur dispendiis, ita scilicet, ut pro militibus inspiciendis, quandocumque voluerint viri spectabiles duces etiam praesentales devotissimos milites adhibere, non immodicam multitudinem eorum tempore pacis convocare procurent. 5. Sin vero etiam necessitate poscente milites ad alia perveniant loca, laesionibus contra curiales seu collatores nihilo minus modis omnibus abstineant. 5a. Et si tam eundo quam redeundo triginta tantum dies oportet eos proficisci, ipsi suas expensas sibi praebendas collatoribus seu curialibus minime praegravandis suscipere non cessent: sin autem ulteriore tempore in aliis locis necesse sit eos commorari, expensas eis ulterioris ut dictum est temporis, ad quae pervenerint loca, ministrari.

2. To provide, moreover, in every way for the common good and for the most stalwart soldiers, We have deemed it best also to limit the exaction of fees (sportulae). And We order that neither the liaison officers themselves nor their assistants shall in any criminal or civil case, although it is alleged to arise out of or to touch upon a public matter, be permitted to receive more than 1 solidus from each soldier, whether unwillingly or willingly offered; and if the whole of a unit or all of the staff officers (principia) are to be summoned, they shall accept only double the amount of fees; for in such cases We allow no more than two of the staff officers (primates) to be summoned, the names of whom will first of all have been made public in the record of the proceedings, a representative (syndicus) being appointed according to custom and as is provided for by law. 2a. This, too, is to be added, that the litigating soldiers or their representatives (syndici) are obliged to pay only 1 solidus and no more for all expenses involved in going into the ducal court, and this compensation shall inure to the benefit of the liaison officer and his assistants and shorthand writers (exceptores); and neither the devoted Chiefs of Staff (principes) who serve in the ducal court nor the other members of the ducal staff (apparitio) shall be permitted to appropriate for themselves or demand in their own name anything in connection with the aformentioned litigation; the same rules as to expenses of litigation shall, moreover, govern where other persons want to sue soldiers.

3. It will be left to the discretion and judgment of the Dukes of spectabilis rank, once they have considered the nature of the claims brought against the most devoted soldiers by their adversaries and the amount involved, whether to hear these cases personally or to refer them to the most devoted Chiefs of Staff (principes) or to arbitrators resident in the area.

4. The Dukes of spectabilis rank and the liaison officer in attendance on them, or the latter's assistants, shall take care that if soldiers are at any time ordered to present themselves before these aforesaid Dukes, or are directed to move from the places in which they are stationed, the decurions or the taxpayers are not afflicted with any loss; and whenever the Dukes of spectabilis rank desire also to summon the most devoted soldiers under the command of the Masters of Soldiers in the Imperial Presence (presentales) for the purpose of inspecting the troops, they shall take care not to gather together too great a number in time of peace. 5. Whenever necessity indeed requires soldiers to go to another place, they must abstain from inflicting injuries in any way upon the decurions and taxpayers. 5a. And if it takes them only thirty days to go and return they must pay their own expenses and not burden the decurions and taxpayers therewith; but if it is necessary for them to stay in other places longer than that time, their expenses of this so-called extra time shall be paid by the places where they stay.

6. Quoniam vero comperimus quosdam temerario atque iniquo proposito anteriore tempore certos e memoratis militibus tam in iudicio sublimitatis tuae quam apud excelsam magisteriam per Orientem potestatem in accusationem deduxisse et eos eodem tempore ad diversa quoque protraxisse iudicia diversasque super isdem personis isdemque causis et negotiis prolatas fuisse sententias, ne postea nihilo minus tantae contra milites nostros insidiae tantaque confusio querellis, quas eis ingeri contingit, generetur, nemini licere apud sedem magnitudinis tuae accusation*e* contra militem seu milites praesentales deposita conventioneque oblata eundem vel eosdem milites criminaliter seu civiliter per iussionem virorum spectabilium ducum inquietare, antequam negotium ex priore actione prioreque conventione finem legitimum sortiatur. 6a. Idemque versa vice observari, ut, si quidam miles seu milites praesentales iussione viri spectabilis ducis incusati ac moniti fuerint, licentia denegetur agenti postulationem seu accusationem in iudicio tuae sublimitatis contra eundem militem vel eosdem milites deponere. 6b. Nec si eundem vel eosdem tam criminaliter quam civiliter obnoxios esse firmaverit, facultatem eidem agenti superesse separatis intentionibus suis pro criminalibus quidem iudicium tuae celsitudinis, pro civilibus autem viri spectabilis ducis seu versa vice occupare.

7. Si quis vero ad huiusmodi tam audacissimum tamque aequitati contrarium conamen prosiluerit, eum pro pecuniariis quidem negotiis iactura litis et damnorum quae vitio eius contigerunt solutione percelli, pro criminalibus autem quasi calumniatorem convictum legum aculeos sentire.

8. Dispositiones autem ante latas non ad imminuendam potestatem magisteriae per orientem administrationis, sed pro tuitione locorum ac securitate publica noscimur praestitisse, cum non dubium sit ipsos etiam duces, quibus fortissimi praesentales milites parere praecepti sunt, sub eadem excelsa potestate esse constitutos.

D. k. Ian. Constantinopoli Anastasio A. et Rufo conss.

XXXVI De Castrensi Peculio Militum et Praefectianorum

[1] Imp. Alexander A. Prisciano. pr. Si in potestate tua filius tuus fuit eo tempore, quo quaedam nomine eius emisti, ea tua esse non dubitatur.

6. We have discovered that formerly some persons audaciously and with a wicked purpose sued some of the aforementioned soldiers in the tribunal of Your Sublimity and before the Exalted Master of Soldiers in the East, and at the same time have haled them into other tribunals, and hence several judgments were rendered against the same persons in the same cases and claims. In order that hereafter no such snares can be set for Our soldiers and no such confusion arise in connection with complaints brought against them, no one is permitted, once an accusation has been lodged before the tribunal Your Greatness against a soldier or soldiers under your command (praesentales) and a summons has been issued, to sue the same soldier or soldiers criminally or civilly by the order of the Dukes of spectabilis rank until the claim involved in the prior action and summons has been properly concluded. 6a. So conversely it must be observed that, if any soldier or soldiers under the command of the Master of Soldiers in the Imperial Presence (praesentales) have been accused and summoned by order of a Duke of spectabilis rank, permission is denied to anyone seeking to lodge a complaint (postulatio seu accusatio) in the tribunal of Your Sublimity against the same soldier or soldiers. 6b. And if the complainant affirms that the same soldier or soldiers are liable criminally as well as civilly, he shall have no prerogative to separate the charges and use the tribunal of Your Highness in the criminal case and that of the Duke of spectabilis rank for the civil case, or vice versa.

7. And if anyone shall most rashly and inequitably attempt anything of the kind, he shall, in a civil case, be smitten with the loss of his suit and payment of the damages caused by his offense, and, in a criminal case, feel the stings of the law as if convicted as a false accuser.

8. We know that the foregoing arrangements have been made not to diminish the power of the office of the Master of Soldiers in the East, but for the protection of places and for the public safety, since it is clear that the Dukes themselves, whom the most stalwart soldiers under the command of the Master of Soldiers in the Imperial Presence (praesentales) are directed to obey, are subject to that same exalted office (potestas; i.e., that of the Master of Soldiers in the East).

Given January 1, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Anastasius Augustus and Rufus (492).

Thirty-Sixth Title The Military Peculium of Soldiers and of the Staff of the Praetorian Prefecture[147]

[1] Emperor ALEXANDER Augustus to Priscianus. pr. If your son was in your (paternal) power at a time when you bought property on his account, it is clear

[147] See D. 49.17.

1. Peculio autem castrensi cedunt res mobiles, quae eunti in militiam a patre vel a matre aliisve propinquis vel amicis donatae sunt, item quae in castris per occasionem militiae quaeruntur. 2. In quibus sunt etiam hereditates eorum, qui non alias noti esse potuerunt nisi per militiae occasionem, etiamsi res immobiles in his erunt. 3. Matris autem hereditas, quamvis in militia delata sit, ad peculium castrense non pertinet. 4. In castrensi vero peculio praedium donatum non esse constat, quamvis empta ex castrensi peculio praedia eius condicionis efficiantur.

PP. id. Nov. Maximo II et Aeliano conss.

[2] Idem A. Felici. Filius familias alienationem nullius rei sine voluntate patris habet, nisi si castrensi peculium habeat.

PP. VIII k. Iul. Iuliano et Crispino conss.

[3] Idem A. Feliciano militi. Errat, qui tibi persuasit, quod nexu paternae potestatis iure sacramenti solutus es. manent enim nihilo minus milites in potestate parentium, sed peculium castrense proprium habent nec in eo ius ullum patris est.

PP. III id. Oct. Iuliano et Crispino conss.

[4] Imp. Gordianus A. Gallo militi. pr. Cum adlegas te a fratre tuo eodemque commilitone in isdem castris institutum heredem, successionem eius potius ex castrensi peculio tuo quam patri cuius in potestate es per te quaesitam videri rationis est. 1. Etenim peregrinationis labor sociatus commilitii eius et obeundorum munerum consortium adfectioni fraternae nonnihilum addidisse, quin immo vice mutua cariores invicem sibi reddidisse credendum est.

[5] Impp. Diocletianus et Maximianus AA. et CC. Philostrato. Intellegis filio qui militavit defuncto peculium eius penes patrem remansisse, non hereditatem patri quaesitam.

that it belongs to you. 1. Movable property, however, which was given to a person enlisting in military service by his father, mother, relatives or friends, and the things acquired in camp by reason of the service are part of his military peculium. 2. In this class also belong inheritances from parties with whom he could not have become acquainted except through the opportunity afforded by military service, even if immovable property will be part of it. 3. But an inheritance from his mother, although acquired during service, is not part of the military peculium. 4. And it is clear that a landed estate received as a gift is not part of the military peculium, although estates bought out of the military peculium are accorded this status.

Posted November 13, in the consulship of Maximus, for the second time, and Aelianus (223).

[2] The same Augustus to Felix. A son in his father's power has no right to alienate any property without the consent of his father, except when he has a military peculium.

Posted June 24, in the consulship of Julian and Crispinus (224).

[3] The same Augustus to Felicianus, a soldier. He errs who persuaded you that you were freed from the bond of paternal power when you took your oath (as a soldier). Soldiers remain under paternal power nonetheless, but they have the military peculium as their own, over which the father has no control.

Posted October 13, in the consulship of Julian and Crispinus (224).

[4] Emperor GORDIAN Augustus to Gallus, a soldier. pr. Since you claim that you were appointed as heir by your brother, your military comrade in the same camp, it seems reasonable that you acquired the inheritance rather out of your military peculium than for the benefit of your father in whose power you are. 1. And indeed it is plausible that the shared effort of marches, his comradeship in the service, and cooperation in the performance of duties not only added to his brotherly affection, but also made each mutually dearer to the other.

(238–241).

[5] Emperors DIOCLETIAN and MAXIMIANUS Augusti and the Caesars to Philostratus. You understand that when a son in military service dies, his peculium remains in control of the father; it is not acquired by the latter as an inheritance.

(293–305).

[6] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Zoilo pp. Ius castrensis peculii tam scriniarios quam exceptores ceterosque, qui in officio tui culminis merendi licentiam habere noscuntur, ac si in legione prima adiutrice nostra militent, inviolatum habere praecipimus.

XXXVII De Erogatione Militaris Annonae

[1] Imp. Constantius A. et Iulianus C. Helpidio pp. Repetita consuetudo monstravit expeditionis tempore buccellatum ac panem, vinum quoque atque acetum, sed et lardum, carnem vervecinam etiam milites nostros ita solere percipere: biduo buccellatum. tertio die panem: uno die vinum, alio die acetum: uno die lardum, biduo carnem vervecinam.

D. XVI k. Iun. Hierapoli Constantio X et Iuliano C. III conss.

[2] Impp. Valentinianus et Valens AA. Secundo pp. E vicesimo, non amplius, lapide milites sibi iubemus paleas convectare.

D. V k. Oct. Edessa Ioviano et Varroniano conss.

[3] Idem AA. ad Victorem magistrum militum. Cenaticorum nomine milites et eorum superstantes nihil penitus a provincialibus accipere audeant. sciant enim milites, quod oportet eos commoda sua, quae in annonarum perceptione adipiscuntur, accipientes extrinsecus detrimentis provinciales non adficere.

D. VI k. Ian. Bonamansione divo Ioviano et Varroniano conss.

[4] Idem AA. et Gratianus A. ad Auxonium pp. Sicut fieri per omnes limites salubri prospectione praecipimus, species annonarias vicinioribus limitibus a provincialibus ordinabis ad castra conferri. sed in veteranis castris constituti milites duas alimoniarum partes ibidem

[6][148] Emperors THEODOSIUS and VALENTINIAN Augusti to Zoilus, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). We direct that the bureau employees (scriniarii), as well as the shorthand writers (exceptores) and others, who are known to have permission to serve on the staff of Your Highness, have the undiminished right to a military peculium, just as they they serve in Our First Assistant Legion (Legio I Adiutrix).

(444).

Thirty-Seventh Title Distribution of Military Provisions

[1][149] The Emperor CONSTANTIUS Augustus and the Caesar JULIAN to Helpidius, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). Established practice has shown that Our soldiers while on an expedition receive hard biscuits and bread, wine also and sour wine, as well as pork and mutton as follows: biscuits for two days, bread on the third day; wine on one day, sour wine on the other; pork for one day, mutton for two days.

Given May 17, at Hierapolis, in the consulship of Constantius Augustus, for the tenth time, and the Caesar Julian, for the third time (360).

[2][150] Emperors VALENTINIAN and VALENS Augusti to Secundus, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). We order that soldiers shall gather their fodder (paleae) from as far away as the twentieth milestone and no farther.

Given September 27, at Edessa, in the consulship of Jovianus and Varronianus (364).

[3][151] The same Augusti to Victor, Master of Soldiers. Soldiers and their superiors must not dare to receive anything from the provincials on the pretext that it is commutation money for rations (cenatica). Indeed, soldiers should realize that they, receiving their pay (commoda sua), which they acquire in the receipt of provisions (annonae), must not subject provincials to inappropriate burdens.

Given December 27, at Bonamansio, in the consulship of the blessed Jovianus and Varronianus (364).

[4][152] The same Augusti and the Emperor GRATIAN Augustus to Auxonius, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). You will order provisions in kind (species annonariae) to be brought to the camps by the provincials nearest the frontiers, just as We in Our beneficial foresight have directed to be done on all frontiers. Soldiers stationed in veteran camps may take two-thirds of their [148] Combine with C. 12.52.3. Seeck gives February 26, 444.

[149] = C.Th. 7.4.6. Seeck gives December 17, 360.
[150] = C.Th. 7.4.9. Probably issued in 363, while Jovian was emperor.
[151] = C.Th. 7.4.12. The date is probably May 27 (Seeck).
[152] = C.Th. 7.4.15.

de conditis sumant nec amplius quam tertiam partem ipsi vehere cogantur.

D. v non. Mai. Marcianopoli Valentiniano np. et Victore conss.

[5] Idem AAA. ad Probum pp. Actuarii nisi expleto triginta dierum spatio pittacia authentica confestim tradiderint, species, quas ex fiscalibus conditis dissimulaverint excludere vel numero cuius ratiocinia pertractant supersederint erogare, de propriis facultatibus vel militibus ipsis vel fiscalibus horreis adigantur inferre.

D. vi id. April. Sirmio Valentiniano et Valente AA. conss.

[6] Imppp. Valens Gratianus et Valentinianus AAA. ad Modestum pp. Fortissimi ac devotissimi milites annonas et capita singulis diebus aut certe competenti tempore, id est priusquam annus elabatur, de horreis consequantur: aut si perceptionem suam ac si debitam studio voluerint protelare, id, quod competenti tempore minime perceperint, fisci nostri commodis vindicetur.

D. prid. non. April. Antiochiae Gratiano A. IIII et Merobaude vc. conss.

[7] Imppp. Valentinianus Theodosius et Arcadius AAA. Rufino pp. Nulli militarium pro his annonis, quae in provinciis delegantur, repudiata ad tempus specierum copia et inopiae occasione captata pretia liceat postulare: ita ut, si quis propter anni abundantiam suscipere oblata neglexerit ac postea impositis pro necessitate rerum pretiis repudiata taxaverit, neque id quod contra hanc legem expetit sinatur exigere, neque id quod accipere dissimulaverit consequatur.

D. III k. Aug. Constantinopoli Theodosio A. III et Abundantio vc. conss.

[8] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Hilario pp. Provincialium commodis nos convenit subvenire. ad omnium itaque numerorum sive vexillationum aut etiam scholarum tribunos vel viros illustres comites allowances from storehouses there, and they shall not be compelled to haul more than one-third themselves.

Given May 3, at Marcianopolis, in the consulship of Valentinian, Most Noble Boy, and Victor (369).

[5][153] The same Augusti to Probus, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy, Africa, and Illyricum). Unless the quartermasters (actuarii) deliver their original warrants (pittacia) immediately at the expiration of thirty days, they must make good from their own property, either to the soldiers themselves or to the state storehouses, the supplies which they neglected to draw from the state stores or failed to issue to the unit (numerus) whose accounts they keep.

Given (posted?) April 8, at Sirmium, in the consulship of Valentinian and Valens, Augusti (368, 370, or 373).

[6][154] Emperors VALENS, GRATIAN, and VALENTINIAN Augusti to Modestus, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). Our most stalwart and devoted soldiers shall obtain their own provisions and fodder for their horses from the storehouses each day, or at least within the proper time, that is, before the expiration of the year; and if they intentionally delay to take what is due them, the supplies not taken at the proper time shall become the property of Our Treasury.

Given April 4, at Antioch, in the consulship of Gratian Augustus, for the fourth time, and the vir clarissimus Merobaudes (377).

[7][155] Emperors VALENTINIAN, THEODOSIUS, and ARCADIUS Augusti to Rufinus, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). No one of the military officials (militares), upon declining to receive the provisions levied in the provinces at a time when there is an abundance of supplies, shall be permitted to take advantage of a period of scarcity by demanding their monetary value. Accordingly, if anyone neglects to accept the provisions allocated to him on account of abundance during the year and subsequently values the property previously rejected at a price fixed by the scarcity of the times, he shall not be allowed to collect what he demands contrary to this law, nor shall he receive what he previously failed to accept.

Given July 30, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Theodosius Augustus, for the third time, and the vir clarissimus Abundantius (393).

[8][156] Emperors ARCADIUS and HONORIUS Augusti to Hilarius, Praetorian Prefect (of the Gauls?). It is right for Us to look after the interests of the provincials. Your Sublimity will therefore notify the tribunes of all the military units or cavalry [153] = C.Th. 7.4.16. The date and other details in the subscription are uncertain; Seeck gives April 8, 368, Schmidt-Hofner thought it was received or posted April 8, 370 or 373.

[154] = C.Th. 7.4.17.

[155] = C.Th. 7.4.20; possibly combine with C.Th. 5.14.33.

[156] = C.Th. 7.4.23.

sublimitas tua faciat pervenire, ut meminerint fenum militibus iustis capitibus praestandum iuxta legem divi Valentiniani nec tamen ad oppidum deferendum.

D. XVI k. Iul. Arcadio IIII et Honorio III AA. conss.

[9] Idem AA. pr. Excellentia tua erogationis per susceptores factae modum quantitate brevium conferri perficiat, ita ut, quo die numeris datum sit, diligentius exploretur ac, si quid amplius actuarios vel optiones accepisse constiterit, quam brevium datorum scriniis nostris veritas continet, memorati in duplum reddere compellantur: susceptoribus ea summa imputanda, quam semel flagitantibus eisdem erogasse monstraverint. 1. Nam ad illustres quoque magistros utriusque militiae sacri apices cucurrerunt, quibus provida sanctione decrevimus, ut breves ante indictionis principium summa fide ac veritate confecti ad nostra scrinia dirigantur, secundum quos a susceptoribus erogatio celebretur.

D. VIII k. April. Constantinopoli Honorio A. IIII et Eutychiano vc. conss.

[10] Idem AA. Eutychiano pp. Iubemus per omnes provincias cunctis numeris ac militibus a Novembri mense de novello vino annonam dari, quoniam veteris dispendiosa videtur erogatio.

D. X k. Iun. Constantinopoli Honorio A. IIII et Eutychiano vc. conss.

[11] Idem AA. provincialibus provinciae proconsularis. Opinatoribus, id est exactoribus militaris annonae, nullum sit cum provinciali commercium, ita ut a iudicibus vel officio provinciali omnis summa debiti postuletur intra anni spatium conferenda.

D. prid. k. April. Mediolani Vincentio et Fravito conss.

squadrons (numeri sive vexillationes) as well as those of the imperial guard (scholae) or the Counts of illustris rank to remember that hay is to be furnished to the soldiers for the proper fodder allotments (iustis capitibus) according to the law of Valentinian of blessed memory[157] and is not to be hauled to town.

Given June 16, in the consulship of Arcadius, for the fourth time, and Honorius, for the third time, Augusti (396).

[9][158] The same Augusti. pr. Your Excellency will cause the amount of distribution made by the tax receivers (susceptores) to be compared with the quantity stated in the registers (breves); accordingly, on the day on which distribution has been made to the military units (numeri) a careful examination must take place, and if it appears that the senior or junior quartermasters (actuarii vel optiones) have received more than the value recorded in the registers submitted to Our bureaux, the aforementioned persons shall be compelled to return twice the amount, while the tax receivers shall be credited with the amount which they document as having been distributed upon demand of the aforementioned quartermasters. 1. For imperial orders have also gone out to the Masters of Both Infantry and Cavalry of illustris rank, in which We by Our prescient ordinance have ordered that registers made with the greatest fidelity and accuracy should be sent to Our bureaux before the beginning of the tax cycle (indictio), in conformity with which distribution should be made by the tax receivers.

Given March 25, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Honorius Augustus, for the fourth time, and the vir clarissimus Eutychianus (398).

[10][159] The same Augusti to Eutychianus, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). We order that from the month of November new wine shall be supplied as a provision (annona) to all military units (numeri) and soldiers throughout the provinces, since distribution of old wine appears to be expensive.

Given May 23, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Honorius Augustus, for the fourth time, and the vir clarissimus Eutychianus (398).

[11][160] The same Augusti to the provincials of the province of Proconsularis. The military tax officers (opinatores), that is to say, those who draw upon the taxes levied for military provisions (exactores militaris annonae) shall have no dealings with the provincials; accordingly, the whole amount of the sum due to be collected within the space of a year shall be demanded by the governors (iudices) or the provincial official staff (officium).

Given March 31, at Milan, in the consulship of Vincentius and Fravitus (401).

157 This law is not extant.
158 = C.Th. 7.4.24.
159 = C.Th. 7.4.25 (altered).
160 = C.Th. 7.4.26. Combine with C.Th. 8.5.63, 11.1.29; compare C.Th. 11.5.1.

[12] Idem AA. et Theodosius A. Anthemio pp. Septem dierum, per quas tribuni emolumenti gratia sollemniter stillaturae nomine consequuntur resistentes species, non aliter adaerentur, nisi ut in foro rerum venalium distrahuntur.

D. v id. April. Constantinopoli Arcadio A. vi et Probo vc. conss.

[13] Idem AA. Anthemio pp. Lege repetita censemus, ut, si quis militum interclusam specierum exactionem refricare temptaverit vel adaerationes statutas ausus fuerit immutare, tam vir spectabilis dux centum librarum auri quam etiam eius officium pari condemnationis summa quatiatur, adiecta sacrilegii poena, quae divalium scitorum violatores palam insequitur.

D. x k. April. Constantinopoli Honorio viii et Theodosio iii AA. conss.

[14] Idem AA. Constantio magistro militum. His scholaribus, quibus laborum intuitu regendos numeros dederimus, de aerariis annonis singulos solidos per opinatores, caballationis quoque rationem pro administrato tempore debitam, quando militibus erogatur, sine mora praeberi oportet vel, si quis eorum antequam accipiat in fata concesserit, quod ex utraque causa ei debebatur, heredibus eius restituti.

D. xiii k. Dec. Constantio et Constante vv. cc. conss.

[15] Idem AA. Asclepiodoto pp. Annonas omnes, quae universis officiis atque sacri palatii ministeriis et sacris scriniis ceterisque cunctarum adminiculis dignitatum adsolent delegari, quasque ii, qui ad earum exactionem mittuntur, pro cupiditate et libidine sua graviter ex provincialium visceribus eruebant, ad similitudinem militum, quibus aerariae praebentur annonae, adaerari praecipimus, ut omnibus superius

[12][161] The same Augusti and THEODOSIUS Augustus to Anthemius, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). The seven-days' reserve of provisions in kind (septem dierum resistentes species), which the tribunes are accustomed to receive as a perquisite under the name of stillatura ("drippings, droppings"; also stellatura), shall not be commuted into cash at a valuation other than that of the goods in the open market.

Given April 9, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Arcadius Augustus, for the sixth time, and the vir clarissimus Probus (406).

[13][162] The same Augusti to Anthemius, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). We reiterate with the present law that if any soldier shall attempt to press again the prohibited demand for provisions in kind or shall dare to alter the fixed rates of commuting provisions in kind into cash, the vir spectabilis Duke shall be discomposed by a fine of 100 pounds of gold, and his staff shall meet with a like condemnation, in addition to the punishment for sacrilege which clearly follows the violators of imperial orders.

Given March 23, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Honorius, for the eighth time, and Theodosius, for the third time, Augusti (409).

[14][163] The same Augusti to Constantius, Master of Soldiers. It is proper that those imperial guardsmen (scholares) whom, in view of their labors, We place in command of military units shall without delay receive through the military tax officers (opinatores), whenever a distribution is made to the soldiers, 1 solidus from cash provisions (aerariae annonae) and also the amount of the fodder allowance for their horses (caballatio) due them in accordance with the length of time of their administration, and if any of them shall meet his fate before receiving payment, the amount due from either source shall be paid to his heirs.

Given November 19, in the consulship of the viri clarissimi Constantius and Constans (414).

[15][164] The same Augusti to Asclepiodotus, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). We decree that all provisions (annonae) usually assigned to all of the official staffs (officia) and the departments (ministeria) of the imperial palace and the imperial bureaus (sacra scrinia) and the other functionaries (adminicula) of every position of rank (dignitates), which those sent to collect them have on account of their own greed and lack of restraint been rooting brutally out of the vitals of the provincials, shall, by analogy with the soldiers who are provided with cash provisions (aerariae annonae), be commuted into cash; therefore let a directive

161 = C.Th. 7.4.28.
162 = C.Th. 7.4.30.
163 = C.Th. 7.4.34.
164 = C.Th. 7.4.35. Combine with C. 11.75.4 (= C.Th. 15.3.6).

designatis emolumenta debita in pretiis dispositio culminis tui pro publica utilitate taxatis praecipiat erogari.

D. XVI k. Mart. Constantinopoli Asclepiodoto et Mariniano conss.

[16] Imp. Anastasius A. Longino magistro equitum ac peditum. pr. Per hanc divinam dispositionem iubemus eos, quibus ex officio tuae sublimitatis militarium meritorum seu cuiuslibet praestationis committitur erogatio, in primis iurare pro iustitiae ratione iniunctam sibi sollicitudinem peracturos.

1. Et secundum praesentem saluberrimae nostrae dispositionis observationem solacium, sicut dictum est, publicum erogator manu sua sine ullo dolo vel fraude singulis militibus numeret, quatenus unusquisque miles accepto per suam manum solacio ipse cum actuario de negotiatione actuariis permissa secundum rationem agat iustitiae. 1a. Hoc videlicet observando, ut pro singulis solidis actuario, sive statim sive post unum duosve seu amplius annos restitutum fuerit debitum, minus quidem uno tremisse, pro temporis scilicet brevitate, pacisci liceat. 1b. Amplius autem quam unum tremissem nullus actuarius pro quoquo tempore seu annorum spatio pacisci penitus permittatur, nec ulla possit actuarius machinatione pro temporis prolixitate unius quantitatem tremissis excedere. 1c. Si qua tamen inter actuarium et militem super pactione seu negotiatione tempore erogationis emerserit dubitatio, iubemus eidem militi dandas pecunias ab erogatore principiis dari et non secundum obtinentem hactenus consuetudinem easdem pecunias vel ab erogatore vel ab actuario retineri, quatenus causa apud devotissima principia propositis sacrosanctis scripturis inter actuarium et militem tractetur, ut ex omni parte miles nullum damnum sub quacumque occasione praeterquam id, quod eum ex iusta et permissa actuariis negotiatione debere constiterit, patiatur.

2. Super his vero, quos datis forte commeatibus abesse contigerit, haec volumus observari, ut pecuniae quae erogandae sunt usque ad triginta milites, quos tantummodo datis commeatibus dimitti sacra constitutio continet, apud devotissima principia sequestrentur, illorum scilicet tantummodo militum, quorum intra triginta commeatales viros constitutorum actuarius tempore erogationis pittacia utpote habita super pactione protulerit, quatenus, cum idem redierint milites, causa apud devotissima principia secundum praefatum modum tractata utriusque partis indemnitati similiter consuletur: non danda pro tempore tribuno licentia triginta viris amplius sub of Your Highness require that the emoluments due to the above-mentioned persons shall be paid in money valued in accord with the public good.

Given February 14, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Asclepiodotus and Marinianus (423).

[16] Emperor Anastasius Augustus to Longinus, Master of the Cavalry and Infantry. By this imperial order We direct that the members of the official staff of Your Sublimity to whom the distribution of military benefits (militaria merita) or any other payment (praestatio) is committed shall first swear that they will execute the charge enjoined upon them in accordance with the principle of justice.

1. And the paymaster (erogator) shall, pursuant to attentive compliance with Our most beneficent order, as has been said, count out the public remuneration to each soldier with his own hand and without any deceit or fraud, so that each soldier may, when he has received his pay with his own hand, act in accordance with the principle of justice in transactions with the quartermaster (actuarius) in which the latter is permitted to engage. 1a. And this, too, is to be observed, that the quartermaster is permitted, whether the debt is paid immediately or in a year or in two or more years, to bargain for interest at less than 1 tremissis per solidus (33⅓ percent) in proportion to the shortness of time. 1b. But no quartermaster is permitted to bargain for more than 1 tremissis for any length of time or period of years whatever, and he cannot exceed the amount of 1 tremissis by any trickery on account of any length of time. 1c. If at the time of the distribution of pay a dispute arises between the quartermaster and the soldier as to an agreement or transaction, We order the money due to the soldier to be given by the paymaster to the staff officers of the unit (principia) and not, in accordance with past custom, retained by the paymaster or the quartermaster, in order that the dispute between the quartermaster and the soldier may, with the holy scriptures placed before them, be investigated by the most devoted staff officers of the unit, and the soldier may not in any way be compelled under any pretext to pay anything except the amount that it is determined he owes pursuant to a just and permissible transaction with the quartermaster.

2. In the case of those who happen to be away on leave of absence, We desire these procedures to be observed: namely, that that the money to be paid to the thirty soldiers whom (this) imperial constitution permits to be sent away on leave of absence shall be deposited with the most devoted staff officers of the unit, it being the money, obviously, of only those soldiers for whom, having been included among the thirty men granted leave, the bookkeeper produced records (pittacia) at the time of payment concerning the agreement that was made, so that, when these soldiers return, the interests of both parties may be protected upon investigation of the case before the most devoted staff officers of the unit in the manner above set forth. No permission is to be given to the commeatus occasione dimittere. 3. Sin vero saluberrimam constitutionem offendendo amplius quam triginta viros datis commeatibus tribunus dimittere ausus fuerit, pecunias quidem, quae post praefatorum triginta virorum numerum per commeatus dimissis militibus erogandae fuerant, publicae rationi erogator non dubitet reportandas. 4. Sciat vero tribunus praeter iam constitutas super huiusmodi facinore interminationes sese de propriis facultatibus singulis militibus, quibus ultra numerum triginta virorum sub nomine commeatuum eos dimittendo causam non consequendi publica solacia dederit, quidquid ob iniquam dimissionem amiserint, soluturum. 4a. Nec prius idem tribunus ab eodem discedat numero, nisi omnes huiusmodi milites, id est quos post permissam triginta virorum quantitatem commeatus nomine dimiserit, indemnes in hac parte atque illaesos reddiderit. 5. Hoc etiam adiciendo, ut sub gestorum testificatione tam decem ex devotissimis principiis, primates eorum videlicet, quam unusquisque caput scholae iuratus deponat, sub sua praesentia rem sicut superius dispositum est fuisse subsecutam, et sub obtutibus suis unumquemque militem solacium suum manu sua ab erogatoris dextera suscepisse: et huiusmodi gesta relatione a viro clarissimo tribuno vel devotissimis principiis intra tres menses mittenda, ex quo profectus fuerit, numerandos ad nostram referat pietatem. 6. Hoc videlicet ante omnia curando, ut pro tempore erogator, postquam datae fuerint ex publico pecuniae, intra duos vel tres menses seu quattuor, pro qualitate scilicet spatiorum, commissam sibi sollicitudinem erogationis non dubitet faciendam: vel si ulterius apud se pecunias publicas differendo erogationem ausus fuerit retinere, sciat se modis omnibus damnum, quod ex negotiatione miles sustinuerit, ex propriis facultatibus militi soluturum.

7. Scientibus his, qui praefatae dispositionis observantiam sive in differenda ultra sigillatim definitum temporis spatium erogatione sive in qualibet alia parte fuerint egressi, non solum sese militiae cinguli amissionem, verum etiam facultatum quoque suarum publicationem pro tanto subituros flagitio: et insuper erogationum quoque sollicitudinem ab officio tuae celsitudinis, si imperatoria violata fuerit dispositio, ad alios transferendam, si non idem officium, simulac huiusmodi fuerit a quolibet facinus perpetratum, ad notitiam nostrae mansuetudinis vel certe ad scientiam illustrissimae magisteriae referre curaverit potestatis, ut eiusdem apparitionis periculo tale flagitium principales minime possit aures latere, quatenus ex omni parte eodem delicto revelato, quicumque saluberrimas nostrae pietatis ordinationes ausus

then-serving tribune to send away more than thirty men on leave of absence. 3. But if the tribune shall dare to send away more than thirty men on leave of absence, contrary to this most beneficial constitution, then the paymaster should not hesitate to return to the public Treasury the money which was to be paid to men sent away on leave in excess of the aforementioned number of thirty. 4. And the tribune should realize that aside from the punishments already fixed for such offenses, he must from his own means pay to every soldier above the number of thirty, whom he has caused to lose their regular pay by sending them away on leave of absence, whatever they may have lost by reason of such unlawful leave of absence. 4a. Nor shall the tribune leave that same unit until he has in this respect indemnified and made whole all the soldiers of this kind, that is to say, those whom he sent away on leave of absence beyond the permitted number of thirty. 5. This, too, is to be added, that, with reference to the documentary record, ten of the most devoted staff officers of the unit, that is to say, the senior staff officers (primates) and so too the head (caput) of each troop of imperial guards (schola), shall certify under oath that the matter has been carried out in their presence as above directed, and that under their gaze each of the soldiers has received his pay with his own hand from the right hand of the paymaster. Documents of this kind shall be referred to Our Piety, together with a report submitted by the tribune of clarissimus rank or by the most devoted staff officers, within three months as counted from the time that he (the tribune) has departed. 6. This above all must be attended to, that the then-serving paymaster, after receiving the money from the Treasury, must within two, three, or four months, depending on the distance, not hesitate to make the payment committed to his charge; and if he shall dare to retain public money by deferring payment beyond that time, he should know that he must pay out of his own property any damages sustained by a soldier arising out of a business transaction.

7. Let all who fail in the observance of the aforesaid regulation by deferring payment in any instance beyond the appointed time or in any other manner take notice that for so great a crime they will not only suffer the loss of the belt of their office (militiae cingulum) but also confiscation of their property; and furthermore the responsibility of making payments shall, if this imperial order is violated, also be transferred from the official staff of Your Highness to others – especially if that same staff, as soon as such a crime is committed by anyone, does not scruple to bring it to the attention of Our Clemency or at least to the knowledge of the Most Distinguished Master of Soldiers (illustrissima magisteria), so that at the peril of the same officials such a crime cannot be hidden from the imperial ears – to the end that when such crime is clearly exposed the person who had dared to violate these most beneficent ordinances of Our Piety will not be able to evade the threatened punishment. Accordingly the soldiers who have been injured by reason of non-compliance with the tenor of fuerit violare, interminatas minime possit poenas evadere: ita ut in singulis militibus, qui non observato in eorum persona tenore datae dispositionis laesi fuerint, liceat sacratissimum nostrum, per unum forte vel etiam binos milites pro omnibus verba facturos, petere comitatum et porrectis precibus quod contra nostram dispositionem passi sunt approbare, eoque facto statutis violator imperatoriae dispositionis suppliciis percellatur.

8. Illud praeterea modis omnibus observari decernimus, ut erogator omnes pecunias, quae mortuis militibus usque ad diem mortis eorum debitae fuerant, secundum datam iam divalem dispositionem uxoribus vel liberis eorum non dubitet ministrandas.

[17] Idem A. Arcadio pp. pr. Cum saepe contingit propter quasdam maximas et inexcusabiles rationes quibusdam ad custodiam vel aliam huiusmodi causam milites deputari vel etiam deputatos esse, et non convenit hoc modo publicum aliquod damnum seu dispendium sustinere, iubemus, si qui fortissimi milites ex quocumque numero curiis vel quibusdam corporibus vel sacrosanctis ecclesiis vel aliis personis pro custodia, ut dictum est, vel tali alia causa a nostro numine deputati sunt vel fuerint, ne per eorum translationes circa annonarum vel capitum eis praebendorum erogationem publicis rationibus quaedam laesio ingeratur, eadem de proprio personam seu personas, cui et quibus deputati sunt vel fuerint, modis omnibus agnoscere: hoc tantummodo de publico pro isdem annonis et capitu praebendo et imputando, quod in locis, ex quibus praefati milites perveniunt seu pervenerunt, imputabatur, vel si antelatam praestationem supradictae personae recusaverint, eosdem milites de suis locis non recedere, vel eos qui recesserint ad ea sine quadam mora redire.

1. Hoc omnifariam custodiendo, ut nemo devotissimorum militum cuicumque personae seu corpori sine speciali nostrae serenitatis iussione scriptis proferenda deputetur. 2. Officio tuae celsitudinis, si hanc nostrae mansuetudinis formam, quotiens super militibus quibusdam deputandis aliquid statutum fuerit, gestis insinuare et, quid eos, quibus dati sunt, prout nobis placuit, agnoscere oportet, itidem publicare minime curaverit, tam dispendium, quodcumque publicum hac ex causa sustinuerit, ei de proprio resarcire, quam triginta librarum auri multam propter suam desidiam, immo magis conivemtiam dependere cogendo. 3. Rectoribus nihilo minus provinciarum et apparitionibus eorum, si statuta nostra violaverint seu violari concesserint, eiusdem condemnationis solutione percellendis.

the foregoing order insofar as it relates to them may come to Our most imperial court, represented perhaps by one or even two soldiers speaking for all, and having pressed their claims they may demonstrate what they have suffered in contravention of Our decree, and once this is accomplished the violator of the imperial decree shall be beset with the prescribed penalties.

8. We resolve that this too must be in every respect observed, according to an imperial order heretofore given, namely that a paymaster should not hesitate to pay over to their wives or children all money owing to deceased soldiers up to the day of their death.

(491–505).

[17] The same Augustus to Arcadius, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). pr. Since it often happens, for certain substantial and unavoidable reasons, that soldiers are or have been assigned to certain persons for guard duty or some such similar thing, and since it is improper that the Treasury should suffer any damage or loss in this way, We order that if any of the most stalwart soldiers from any unit have been or shall be assigned by Our Divine Majesty to city councils, certain corporate bodies, holy churches, or other parties in order to serve as a guard, as has been stated, or for any such reason, the party or parties to whom they have been or shall be assigned assume responsibility in all respects out of their own pockets, lest any loss is registered in the public accounts as a result of transfer of these soldiers with respect to the distribution of the provisions and fodder to be provided for them. Only as much in the way of provisions and fodder shall be provided and assigned from the public Treasury as was customarily assigned in the places from which the aforementioned soldiers come or have come. If the above-mentioned parties refuse to guarantee their fulfillment of their obligation, the soldiers shall not leave their places, or if they have left they shall immediately return to them.

1. It is to be observed in all cases that not one of the most devoted soldiers shall be assigned to any party or corporate body without a special decree of Our Serenity, evidenced in writing. 2. If the staff of Your Highness fails to register an order of Our Clemency making an assignment of soldiers to any parties or fails to make known the amount that should be paid, in accordance with Our order, by those persons to whom the soldiers are assigned, they shall reimburse the public Treasury for all damages sustained by reason thereof out of their own property and shall also pay a fine of 30 pounds of gold on account of their negligence, or rather complicity. 3. The governors (rectores) of the provinces, too, and their staff (apparitiones), shall, if they violate Our orders or permit them to be violated, be punished by the same fine.

(491–505).

[18] [Ὁ αὐτὸς βασιλεύς.] Ἡ διάταξις κελεύει πρότερον ἐπὶ χώρας παρακρατεῖσθαι τὸ εἰς στρατιώτας δαπανώμενα καὶ τηνικαῦτα τὰς λοιπὰς αἰτίας τοῦ δημοσίου προβῆναι. οὐδὲ γὰρ χρὴ μόνας τὰς ἐκπομπὰς κατεπείγεσθαι, ῥαθυμεῖσθαι δὲ τὸ στρατιωτικὰ δαπανήματα. τοὺς δὲ ἄρχοντας καὶ τὰς πόλεις καὶ πάντα τὸν ἕτερον δημοσιεύοντα, εἴ τι παραβαθῇ τῶν θεσπισθέντων, καὶ τὰ χρήματα παρέχειν οἴκοθεν τοῖς στρατιώταις καὶ πρόστιμον ἑκατὸν λιτρῶν χρυσίου θεσπίζομεν.

[19] [Ὁ αὐτὸς βασιλεύς.] ... ||. pr. Θεσπίζομεν ... Ἡ διάταξις κελεύει, ἵνα, ἐὰν στρατιῶται ὑφεστῶτες μὴ ὦσιν ἐν ταῖς οἰκείαις ἀγγαρείαις, ἀλλ' ἢ εἰς βοήθειαν ἠφορίσθησαν προσώποις τισὶν ἢ κατὰ ἄφεσιν ἀπελύθησαν, μὴ λαμβάνειν τὰς ἀννόνας αὐτῶν τὸν ὑπομνηματοφύλακα ἐν εἴδει διὰ τὸ μὴ φθείρεσθαι, ἀλλ' ἐν χρυσῷ διατιμωμένου τοῦ εἴδους κατὰ τὴν τράπεζαν, ὅρκου παρεχομένου παρά τε τῶν τριβούνων καὶ τῶν βικαρίων καὶ τῶν δομεστίκων καὶ ὑπομνηματοφυλάκων καὶ ὀπτιώνων, οὐδὲν ἧττον καὶ μετὰ τὸν ὅρκον λογοθετουμένων καί, εἴτε ἂν εὑρεθείησαν ψευσάμενοι, ἐν διπλῷ καταβαλλόντων.

1. Εἰ δὲ καὶ στρατιώτης ἐξαργυρίσαι βουληθείη τὰς παρεχομένας αὐτῷ ἀννόνας, λήψεται τὸ χρήματα κατὰ τὴν τράπεζαν. εἰ δὲ τὸ εἶδος λαμβάνει, λήψεται τὸ ἐν τῇ χώρᾳ χορηγούμενον κατὰ δοκιμασίαν τοῦ θεοφιλεστάτου τῶν τόπων ἐπισκόπου καὶ τοῦ λαμπροτάτου ἐκδίκου τῆς πόλεως. 1a. Εἰ δὲ καὶ ὁ ὑπομνηματοφύλαξ ἀγοράσῃ παρὰ στρατιώτου τὰς ἀννόνας αὐτοῦ καὶ αὐτὸς λαμβάνει αὐτὰς παρὰ τοῦ συντελεστοῦ ὡς ἐκχωρηθείσας αὐτῷ, πάλιν κατὰ τὴν τράπεζαν λαμβάνειν αὐτόν, εἰ μὴ παρὰ τὸ εἶδος βούλεται ὁ συντελεστὴς προσαγαγεῖν. 1b. Εἰ δὲ καὶ οἱ συντελεσταὶ βουληθείησαν ἑκουσίως πωλῆσαί τινα τοῖς στρατιώταις, οὐ κωλύομεν τοῦτο γίνεσθαι, εἰ καὶ μέλλουσιν ἐκ τούτου κερδαίνειν, ἥττονα ποσότητα εἰδῶν παρέχοντες αὐτοῖς παρὰ τὴν δημοσίαν τράπεζαν. μὴ ἐξέστω δὲ τοῖς πολίταις[vi] ἐκ τούτου βλάπτειν τὸν συντελεστήν, ἵνα, ἐὰν αὐτοὶ κακῶς συμφωνήσωσιν, ἀναγκάζωσι τὸν συντελεστὴν καθὼς συνεφώνησε[vii] παρασχεῖν τὰ εἴδη.

2. Εὑροῦσα δὲ ἡ διάταξις, ὅτι καί τινες τῶν χαρτουλαρίων τῶν γενναιοτάτων ἀριθμῶν ἤτοι φοιδεράτων συνωνοῦνται ἑαυτοῖς σῖτον, ἵνα τὸ μὲν δημόσιον δίδωσιν αὐτοῖς κατὰ τὴν τράπεζαν τὰ τοῦ σίτου τιμήματα,

[vi] στρατιώταις
[vii] καὶ ὧν συνεφωνήνη

[18][165] (The same Emperor.) The constitution directs that whatever is to be paid to the soldiers in the respective localities should have top priority, and that subsequently the remaining obligations of the public Treasury shall be sent out. Nor would it be proper to hasten only the payment of revenues to the Treasury and to neglect payments to the soldiers. We order, moreover, that officials, cities, and all other public persons must, if any violation of what has been decided occurs, pay the money due to the soldiers and a fine of 100 pounds of gold.

(491–505).

[19][166] (The same Emperor.) pr. We decree ... The constitution directs that if soldiers are not engaged in their own duties, but are either assigned to private parties for the sake of rendering assistance or are sent away on leave of absence, the quartermaster (actuarius) shall not accept their provisions in kind, lest they perish, but in cash at the official commutation rate, upon an oath taken by the tribunes, their deputies (vicarii), their personal assistants (domestici), and the senior and junior quartermasters (hypomnêmatophylakes and optiones), who shall after the oath nonetheless render due account, and if they shall be convicted of perjury in the matter they shall pay double the amount.

1.[167] And if a soldier wants the provisions owing him commuted into cash, he shall receive it at the official commutation rate. If he prefers provisions in kind, he shall receive those that the region supplies as the most reverend bishop and the city defender of clarissimus rank may determine. 1a. And if a quartermaster has purchased a soldier's provisions and as assignee demands them from the taxpayer, he, too, shall receive them at the official commutation rate unless the taxpayer prefers to pay them in kind. 1b. And if taxpayers want to engage in private trade with the soldiers, We do not forbid them to do so, although they may profit from the fact that they deliver a smaller quantity of goods in kind to the soldiers than the latter would obtain at the official commutation rate. Nor shall the soldiers inflict any damage on the taxpayer on account of the fact that they made a bad bargain nor compel the taxpayer to deliver goods in kind contrary to the agreement.

2. Since, moreover, the constitution found that some of the secretaries (chartularii) of the most stalwart military units and of the federates (foederati)[168] were making purchases of grain for themselves, so that the Treasury might buy [165] From Bas. 57.4.18, summarizing the constitution. For this and the following law, see C. 1.4.18.

[166] From Bas. 57.4.19, summarizing the constitution. Lounghis et al. date to between 491 and 518.

[167] The conclusion of this section = C. 1.4.18.

[168] Originally, foederati were barbarian soldiers serving as allies under the terms of a treaty (foedus); by the sixth century the term designated regular troops, but the basis of the distinction between federates and ordinary soldiers of the field army (comitatenses) is obscure.

αὐτοὶ δὲ ὡς προηγορακότες εἴδη κερδαίνουσι, κελεύει ἡ διάταξις μηδένα συντελεστὴν ἄκοντα ἀπαιτεῖσθαι παρέχειν αὐτοῖς συνωνήν. 2a. Εἰ δὲ ἑκουσίως πωλῆσαι ζητήσῃ τις αὐτοῖς, μὴ ὑπερβαίνειν αὐτοὺς τὰ τιμήματα τῆς τραπέζης εἰς τὴν ποσότητα τὴν μέλλουσαν λόγῳ ἀννόνων τοῖς στρατιώταις χορηγεῖσθαι. 2b. Εἰ γὰρ ἔξωθεν ἑτέραν ποσότητα βουληθῇ ἀγοράσαι, τότε κεκώλυται πραγματεύσασθαι, ὡς καὶ πᾶς στρατιώτης. 2c. Ταῦτα δὲ πάντα δείκνυσι μέλλουσα γίνεσθαι ἀναψηλάφησις, ἀναγκάζουσα πάντα ἄνθρωπον τὸν ὁτεδήποτε ψευσάμενον σφετερισάμενον διπλάσιον καταθεῖναι, ἵνα τὸ μὲν ἁπλοῦν λάβῃ ὁ ἐκδικηθείς, τὸ δὲ ἕτερον ἁπλοῦν τὸ δημόσιον.

3. Πάντες δὲ οἱ στρατιῶται οἱ προσπαραμένοντες προσώποις τισὶν ἐν ἐξαργυρισμῷ λαμβανέτωσαν τὰς ἰδίας ἀννόνας κατὰ τὸν ἐξαργυρισμὸν τῆς τραπέζης, ὁμοίως δὲ καὶ τοὺς κεφαλιτίονας· καὶ μὴ ζητείτωσαν τὰ εἴδη, εἰ μὴ ἑκὼν ὁ συντελεστὴς ταῦτα καταβάλοι.

4. Τοῦ παραβῆναί τί ποτε τῶν προειρημένων τολμῶντος μέγιστον κίνδυνον ὑφορωμένου, εἴτε τριβοῦνος εἴτε βικάριός ἐστιν εἴτε δομέστικος εἴτε ὑπομνηματοφύλαξ εἴτε ὀπτίων εἴτε πρῶτος ἀριθμοῦ εἴτε ταξεώτης τοῦ στρατηλάτου, ἐὰν συμβῇ τί ποτε παρὰ τὸ ἀληθὲς γνωρισθῆναι ἢ ἐπιχειρισθῆναι, καὶ μη παραχρῆμα δηλωθῇ καὶ ἀνασταλῇ· ἡ γὰρ ἀναψηλάφησις πάντα τὰ παρὰ τὴν διάταξιν γινόμενα ἀπελέγξει.

XXXVIII De Excoctione et Translatione Militarium Annonarum

[1] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Stilichoni comiti et magistro utriusque militiae. pr. Opinatores, quibus species in diversis provinciis delegantur, contra omnem consuetudinem nullis consistentibus familiis excoctionem panis efflagitant. 1. Illustris igitur auctoritas tua novam usurpationem congrua auctoritate repellat, ut, cum opinatores in provinciis delegantur, vetus consuetudo servetur.

D. id. Sept. Mediolani Theodoro vc. cons.

[2] Idem AA. et Theodosius A. Hadriano pp. pr. In excoctione buccellati, quod devotissimis militibus convenit praeparari, in translatione etiam annonae nullius excipiatur persona, videlicet ut ne nostra the grain from them at the official commutation rate and make them a profit on the goods in kind already purchased, the constitution prohibits compelling the taxpayer to sell against his will. 2a. But if anyone wants to sell to them voluntarily, they shall not depart from the price fixed by the official commutation rate so far as the quantity which is subsequently to be furnished to the soldiers in the way of their provisions is concerned. 2b. For if he wishes to purchase an additional quantity (for resale), he is forbidden to engage in trade just like every soldier. 2c. All of which will be disclosed by a future investigation, and whatever anyone has unlawfully gained he shall return twofold, the informer receiving one half and the Treasury the other.

3. All soldiers, moreover, who are assigned to certain parties shall receive their provisions in cash at the official commutation rate and in the same way their fodder allowance; nor shall they demand goods in kind unless the taxpayer voluntarily brings them.

4. Whoever dares to neglect any of the foregoing provisions will incur the utmost peril, be he a tribune, deputy tribune, personal assistant, a senior or junior quartermaster, chief of a unit, or member of the staff of the Master of Soldiers, whenever it happens that anything contrary hereto becomes known or is attempted and it is not immediately publicized and reported, for an investigation will show whatever has been done in violation of this constitution.

Thirty-Eighth Title Baking and Transport of Military Provisions

[1][169] Emperors Arcadius and Honorius Augusti to Stilicho, Count and Master of Both Infantry and Cavalry. pr. The military tax officers (opinatores) to whom the (collection of) goods in kind (species) in the different provinces is assigned are demanding the baking of bread, contrary to all custom, even though no troops (familiae; perhaps "soldiers' families") are stationed there. 1. Your Authority, of illustris rank, will therefore repulse this novel abuse with a suitable directive (congrua auctoritate), so that when military tax officers are sent into the provinces the established custom is observed.

Given September 13, at Milan, in the consulship of the vir clarissimus Theodorus (399).

[2][170] The same Augusti and Theodosius Augustus to Hadrianus, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy and Africa). pr. No person shall be exempt, and not even Our own household (domus) shall be considered immune, in connection with the baking of hard biscuit (buccellatum), which must be prepared for the most quidem domus ab his habeatur immunis. 1. Et si quisquam, quod non opinamur, implere quae sunt praecepta neglexerit, in procuratorem eius severissime vindicetur, ita ut, si huiusmodi contumaciae dominum conscium esse constiterit, quadruplum id, quod pro eius capitatione poscitur, posthabita dilatione solvatur.

[169] = C.Th. 7.5.1.
[170] = C.Th. 7.5.2.

D. VIIII k. April. Romae Honorio A. VI et Aristaeneto conss.

XXXVIIII De Militari Veste

[1] Impp. Valentinianus et Valens AA. Auxonio pp. Omnem canonem vestium ex kalendis Septembribus ad kalendas Apriles nostris largitionibus tradi praecipimus: proposita poena rectori provinciae vel eius officio condemnationis, quae tuae iustitiae videbitur.

D. XIIII k. Dec. Marcianopoli Valentiniano et Valente conss.

[2] Imppp. Valens Gratianus et Valentinianus AAA. Modesto pp. Provinciae Thraciarum per viginti iuga seu capita conferant vestem: Scythia et Mysia in triginta iugis seu capitibus interim annua solutione dependant: per Aegyptum et Orientis partes in triginta terrenis iugis, per Asianam vero et Ponticam dioecesim ad eundem numerum in capitibus seu iugis annuae vestis collatio dependatur, ita ut per Orientem provinciae in titulo auri comparaticii, quod per iugationem redditur, compensationis gratia perfruantur, exceptis Osrhoena et Isauria: nam easdem constat aurum comparaticium minime redhibere.

D. V id. Aug. Hierapoli Gratiano A. IIII et Merobaude vc. conss.

[3] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Martiniano comiti sacrarum largitionum. Fortissimis militibus nostris per Illyricum non binos tremisses pro singulis chlamydibus, sed singulos solidos dari praecipimus.

D. XVI k. Febr. Constantinopoli Arcadio IIII et Honorio III AA. conss.

devoted soldiers, or from the transport of provisions. 1. If anyone fails to comply with what has been decreed, which We do not believe will happen, his procurator will be severely punished, and if it is determined that the owner has knowledge of such affrontery, fourfold the amount assessed for his capitation tax shall be paid without delay.

Given March 24, at Rome, in the consulship of Honorius Augustus, for the sixth time, and Aristaenetus (404).

Thirty-Ninth Title Military Clothing

[1][171] Emperors VALENTINIAN and VALENS Augusti to Auxonius, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). We direct that the entire tax for clothing (canon vestium) shall be paid to Our department of Imperial Benefactions (largitiones) between the first of September and the first of April, at the peril of a fine imposed on the governor (rector) of the province or his official staff in an amount which may seem best to Your Justice.

Given November 18, at Marcianopolis, in the consulship of Valentinian and Valens (368).

[2][172] Emperors VALENS, GRATIAN, and VALENTINIAN Augusti to Modestus, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). The provinces of Thrace shall contribute one suit of clothing (vestis) per twenty land or capitation tax units (iuga seu capita); Scythia and Moesia shall meanwhile annually contribute (one such suit) for thirty land or capitation tax units; throughout Egypt and the parts of the East (Oriens), thirty land tax units (terrena iuga); throughout the Dioceses of Asiana and Pontica the annual clothing tax (vestis collatio) shall be paid up to the same number (i.e., thirty) of capitation or land tax units, in such a manner that the provinces of the East shall enjoy the privilege of contributing commutation money in gold (titulus auri comparaticii), payable per land tax unit, with the exception of Osrhoene and Isauria, for it is established that these do not pay in gold.

Given August 9, at Hierapolis, in the consulship of Gratian Augustus, for the fourth time, and the vir clarissimus Merobaudes (377).

[3][173] Emperors ARCADIUS and HONORIUS Augusti to Martinianus, Count of the Imperial Benefactions. We direct that to Our most stalwart soldiers in Illyricum shall be given, not two-thirds of a solidus (two tremisses) for each military tunic (chlamys), but 1 solidus.

Given January 17, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Arcadius, for the fourth time, and Honorius, for the third time, Augusti (396).

171 = C.Th. 7.6.2.
172 = C.Th. 7.6.3.
173 = C.Th. 7.6.4. Combine with C.Th. 6.30.14; compare also C.Th. 6.26.6, 6.30.13.

[4] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Asclepiodoto pp. Militaris adaeratio vestis a collatoribus exigatur, sacratissimis videlicet largitionibus inferenda, ita ut quinque eius partes fortissimis militibus erogentur in pretio, sexta vero portio a gynaeciariis clementiae nostrae absque ulla vel ipsorum vel publica incommoditate pro eadem contextione suscepta iunioribus gregariisque militibus in ipsa, quam maxime eos desiderare constitit, specie praebeatur.

D. VII id. Mart. Constantinopoli Asclepiodoto et Mariniano conss.

XXXX De Metatis et Epidemeticis

[1] Imppp. Valentinianus Theodosius et Arcadius AAA. Theodoto magistro officiorum. Si quis mensorum nostrorum manum, qua deputatas singulis quibusque domus enotant et postibus hospitaturi nomen adscribunt, delere non dubitaverit, ad instar falsi reus ex hac auctoritate teneatur.

D. VI k. Nov. Constantinopoli Theodosio A. III et Abundantio vc. conss.

[2] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Hosio magistro officiorum. pr. In qualibet vel nos ipsi urbe fuerimus vel ii qui nobis militant commorentur, omni tam mensorum quam etiam hospitum iniquitate submota duas dominus propriae domus, tertia hospiti deputata, eatenus intrepidus ac securus possideat portiones, ut in tres domus divisae partes primam eligendi dominus habeat facultatem, secundam hospes quam voluerit exsequatur, tertia domino relinquenda. plenum enim aequitate atque iustitia est, ut, qui aut successione fruitur aut empto vel extructione gaudet, electam praecipue iudicio suam rem teneat et relictam.

1. Ergasteria vero, quae mercimoniis deputantur, ad praedictam divisionis iniuriam non vocentur, sed quieta sint et libera et ab omni

[4][174] Emperors Honorius and Theodosius Augusti to Asclepiodotus, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). The military clothing tax, commuted into cash, shall be collected from the taxpayers and remitted, obviously, to the department of the Most Imperial Benefactions (sacratissimi largitiones). Five-sixths of this amount shall be distributed to the most stalwart soldiers in cash, and the remaining sixth, having been received by the weavers of Our Clemency for weaving, shall, without any burden either on them or the public (treasury), be provided to the recruits and common soldiers (iuniores gregariique milites) in the form of clothing of which, it is clear, they stand greatly in need.

Given March 9, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Asclepiodotus and Marinianus (423).

Fortieth Title Compulsory Quartering (Metata) and the Commutation Payments Therefor

[1][175] Emperors Valentinian, Theodosius, and Arcadius Augusti to Theodotus, Master of Offices. If anyone should not shrink from erasing the handwriting of Our quartering masters (mensores), by which they designate the houses assigned to individual persons and write on the doorposts the name of the person to be quartered there, the perpetrator shall, pursuant to this order, be considered guilty of an offence commensurate with forgery.

Given October 27, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Theodosius Augustus, for the third time, and the vir clarissimus Abundantius (393).

[2][176] Emperors Arcadius and Honorius Augusti to Hosius, Master of Offices. pr. In order that all annoyance on the part of quartering masters and the persons quartered may be removed in any city where We ourselves may be or those in Our service may lodge, (We decree that) the owner may reserve two-thirds of his house for his own use upon assigning a third part to the person quartered, and will remain free from fear or trouble to the extent that, once the house has been demarcated into three zones, the owner shall have the privilege of choosing the first part, the person quartered shall have as the second part whichever (of the two remaining) he may choose, and the third part shall be left to the owner. For it is the full measure of equity and justice that one who enjoys an inheritance or delights in the purchase or construction of a house should have his choice of the parts as well as the remaining third part.

1. Workshops used for trade shall not be subject to the aforementioned annoyance of division, but shall be safe, secure, and exempt from any

[174] = C.Th. 7.6.5.
[175] = C.Th. 7.8.4.
[176] = C.Th. 7.8.5.

hospitum iniuria defensata solis dominis conductoribusque deserviant. sane si stabulum, ut adsolet, militari viro in tertia domus parte defuerit, ex ergasteriis, nisi id dominus qualibet occasione providerit, pro animalium numero vel domus qualitate deputabitur.

2. Illustribus sane viris non tertiam partem domus, sed mediam hospitalitatis gratia deputari decernimus: ea dumtaxat condicione servata, ut alter ex his quilibet, quive maluerit, divisionem arbitraria aequitate faciat, alter eligendi habeat optionem.

3. Et firmissimum perpetuo quod iussimus perseveret, ita ut triginta libras auri qui illustri sunt praediti dignitate fisco nostro se illaturos esse cognoscant, ceteri vero militia sciant se esse privandos, si generale praeceptum amplius usurpando quam iussimus reprehensibili temeritate violaverint.

D. VIII id. Febr. Constantinopoli Honorio IIII et Eutychiano conss.

[3] Idem AA. Vincentio pp. Cunctos iudices scire volumus a praetoriis ordinariorum iudicum his praesentibus abstinendum.

D. XVI k. Febr. Mediolani Stilichone et Aureliano vv. cc. conss.

[4] Idem AA. Aemiliano magistro officiorum. Fabricensium domibus ubique constitutis omnem molestiam hospitum praecipimus amoveri, quo et Antiochensibus et ceterarum civitatum fabricis similis domorum excusatio praebeatur, absente scilicet sacro comitatu.

D. XI k. Febr. Constantinopoli Stilichone et Aureliano conss.

[5] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Iohanni pp. pr. Devotum possessorem ab omni inquietudine liberamus. 1. Primo igitur omnium ad nullum praedium publicum vel privatum domus nostrae vel cuiuscumque annoyance of quartering and reserved for the exclusive use of the owners or lessees. Of course, if there is no stable, as happens, in the third part of the house allotted for a military official (militaris vir), room shall be assigned in the shops, unless the owner makes other arrangements, in accordance with the number of animals and the nature of the house.

2. We decree that persons of illustris rank, however, shall be assigned for their quartering not a third but a half of the house, provided that either the owner of the house or the person quartered, whoever wishes, shall make an equitable division of the house according to his discretion, while the other shall have the right of making the selection.

3. Let this most inviolable order of ours abide in perpetuity; accordingly, persons who have been awarded illustris rank should understand that they will pay 30 pounds of gold to Our Treasury, and others should know that they must be deprived of their position in the imperial service, if they defy this general order by reprehensibly venturing to claim more room than We have authorized.

Given February 6, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Honorius, for the fourth time, and Eutychianus (398).

[3][177] The same Augusti to Vincentius, Praetorian Prefect (of the Gauls). We want all (superior) magistrates to know that they must not lodge in the official residences (praetoria) of ordinary magistrates (ordinarii iudices; i.e., provincial governors), if these are present.

Given January 17, at Milan, in the consulship of the viri clarissimi Stilicho and Aurelianus (400).

[4][178] The same Augusti to Aemilianus, Master of Offices. We direct all the inconvenience of quartering persons to be withdrawn from the houses of armorers (fabricenses) wherever located. This exemption extends to the houses of the armorers at Antioch and other cities, provided that the imperial retinue (comitatus) is not present.

Given January 22, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Stilicho and Aurelianus (400).

[5][179] Emperors Honorius and Theodosius Augusti to John, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy). pr. We liberate the devoted landowner from all disturbances. 1. First of all, therefore, no quartering master (metator), by whomever sent,

[177] = C.Th. 7.8.6.
[178] = C.Th. 7.8.8 (altered). Seeck corrects the date to January 22, 405.
[179] = C.Th. 7.8.10.

iuris nullus metator accedat, si a quoquam fuerit destinatus. 1a. Licentiam enim domino actori ipsique plebi serenitas nostra commisit, ut eum, qui praeparandi gratia ad possessionem venerit, expellendi habeat facultatem nec crimen aliquod pertimescat, cum sibi arbitrium ultionis suae sciat esse concessum: recteque sacrilegium prior arceat, qui primus invenerit. 1b. Administrantem vero eiusque officii proceres, quorum praecepto inhibitam personam ad agrum aliquem destinaverit, in tempore proscribi debere censuimus. 2. Solam sane hospitalitatem sub hac observatione concedimus, ut nihil ab hospite, quod vel hominum vel animalium pastui necessarium creditur, postuletur, omniumque sit acceleratum iter atque continuum nec ulli liceat residere, ne diuturnitas commanentium ulla ex parte praedium vexet.

3. Decem etiam librarum auri multa ferietur, quisquis administrator togatus apparitor ullus aut militans vel iter agens ullo in loco aliquid ab hospite postulaverit. 4. In tantum enim inhiberi sceleratum morem iubemus, ut ipsis quoque praebentibus impunitum esse non patiamur, si quid sponte contra praeceptum nostrum probati fuerint obtulisse.

D. prid. id. Iun. Ravennae post consulatum Honorii VIIII et Theodosii V AA.

[6] Idem AA. Hadriano pp. Africae hoc prospectum est, ut infausta hospitalitatis praebitio tolleretur nec balneum quisquam a domino aedium postulet.

D. V non. Mart. Ravennae Constantio et Constante conss.

[7] Idem AA. Eustathio pp. Devotissimos milites ex procinctu redeuntes vel proficiscentes ad bella muri novi sacratissimae urbis singulae turres in pedeplanis suis suscipiant.

D. V non. Mart. Constantinopoli Honorio XIII et Theodosio X AA. conss.

shall enter any landed estate, public or private, belonging to the imperial household or to anyone else. 1a. Indeed, Our Serenity gives permission to the owner, his agent and even his tenants (plebs), that these persons have the prerogative of expelling one who comes on the property to prepare quarters, nor need they be in fear of any prosecution, inasmuch as they may rest assured that the right to protect themselves has been accorded to them; for whoever first discovers a violation of imperial law (sacrilegium) may forthrightly protect himself against it. 1b. We have ordered that the presiding official (administrans) and the senior members (proceres) of his staff, by whose direction a prohibited person is sent onto any property, ought to be proscribed for a limited time. 2. We permit the simple right of quartering (hospitalitas), of course, but with the limitation that no food which is considered essential for either men or animals shall be demanded from the host; that all make their journey quickly and continuously; and that no one fixes his residence there, lest the length of the stay of the guests in any way burden an estate.

3. Any official (administrator), advocate (togatus), subordinate official (apparitor), member of the imperial service (militans), or traveler who demands anything from a host in any place shall be punished by a fine of 10 pounds of gold. 4. Indeed, We so unequivocally order this disgraceful custom to be suppressed that We do not allow even those providing supplies to be exempt from punishment, if it is shown that they have offered anything voluntarily in violation of this order.

Given June 12, at Ravenna, in the post-consulate of Honorius, for the ninth time, and Theodosius, for the fifth time, Augusti (413).

[6][180] The same Augusti to Hadrianus, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy and Africa). It has been provided for the benefit of Africa that the repugnant provision of compulsory quartering (hospitalitas) must cease; nor shall anyone demand a bath from the owner of the houses.

Given March 3, at Ravenna, in the consulship of Constantius and Constans (414).

[7][181] The same Augusti to Eustathius, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). The ground floor rooms of each tower of the new wall of this Most Imperial City shall be for the use of the most stalwart soldiers returning from an engagement or going off to war.

Given March 3, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Honorius, for the thirteenth time, and Theodosius, for the tenth time, Augusti (422).

[180] = C.Th. 7.8.12. Combine with C.Th. 6.29.11, 7.4.33.
[181] = C.Th. 7.8.13.

[8] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Helioni magistro officiorum. Archiatros nostri palatii nec non urbis Romae et magistros litterarum pro necessariis artibus et liberalibus disciplinis nec non picturae professores, si modo ingenui sunt, hospitali molestia quoad vivent liberari praecipimus.

D. XIIII k. Sept. Hierio et Ardaburio conss.

[9] Idem AA. Nomo magistro officiorum. pr. Omnes, qui metata in suis domibus praestant, sive hospitia praebuerint metatoribus seu quolibet pacto satis eis fecerint, nullam vel pensionis vel discussionis domus gratia molestiam sustinere cogantur.

1. Deinde neminem volumus cuiuslibet loci vel ordinis in hac florentissima urbe domum propriam excusantem metatum sibi in alienis aedibus privilegio militiae vindicare. quod et in provinciis observari oportet. 2. Ceteris vero, quibus illustris dignitas sub cingulo vel citra cingulum pro solo honore delata est, excusandarum aedium licentiam penitus denegamus. 3. Hoc iuris in his etiam praecipimus observari, quos ipsa quidem administrationis condicio spectabiles novit, honor tamen additus a nostra liberalitate reddit illustres.

4. Scituris omnibus, quod si quis, cum cingulo perfruatur et excusationem ita propriae domus impetraverit, ut a pensione etiam portionis tertiae sit immunis, et militiae causa metatum in alienis domibus sibi crediderit vindicandum, si quidem honore praeditus excusationis ius habeat, carebit legum privilegiis, quas fraudare conatus est: si vero inter eos quibus nulla suffragatur dignitas numeretur, centum librarum auri sacratissimis largitionibus pendendarum illatione multabitur.

D. XVII k. Febr. Constantinopoli Theodosio A. XVIII cons.

[10] Impp. Valentinianus et Marcianus AA. ... magistro officiorum. pr. Hac lege sancimus, ut, si quis consularem et patriciam meruerit dignitatem, tres domos proprias dum superest habeat hospitum

[8][182] Emperors THEODOSIUS and VALENTINIAN Augusti to Helion, Master of Offices. We direct that the chief physicians of Our palace as well as those of the City of Rome and the masters of letters, as well as the teachers of the art of painting, shall for the benefit of the necessary arts and liberal instruction be exempt from the burden of quartering as long as they live, provided they are free-born.

Given August 19, in the consulship of Hierius and Ardaburius (427).

[9][183] The same Augusti to Nomus, Master of Offices. Those who furnish quarters (metata) in their own houses, whether they provide services (hospitia) for the quartering masters (metatores) or satisfy them by some other arrangement, shall not be compelled to put up with any annoyance on account of the house either over a payment (pensio) or an audit (discussio).

1. We want no one, moreover, of any position or rank (locus vel ordo) whatever, who exempts his own house in this Most Flourishing City from quartering to exercise the right of quartering in the house of another as a perquisite of the imperial service; which regulation shall apply also to the provinces. 2. We deny, however, to those upon whom illustris rank has been bestowed only as an honor (pro solo honore), either with or without the belt of office (cingulum), permission to exempt their houses from quartering altogether. 3. We direct that this provision of the law apply also in the case of those whom the very status of holding an official position (administrationis condicio) has acknowledged to be persons of spectabilis rank, yet the honor conveyed through Our liberality renders illustres.

4. And let all take notice that if anyone, while he enjoys the belt of office (cingulum), should obtain exemption from quartering for his own house, to the extent that he is not liable for the payment (pensio) for even a third part thereof, and claim for himself the right of quartering in the houses of others on account of the imperial service, he shall be deprived of the privileges of the laws which he tried to cheat, if he has been bestowed with an honor and has the right of exemption; if he is numbered among those whom no official position of rank (dignitas) recommends, he will be punished by a fine of 100 pounds of gold to be paid into the department of the Imperial Benefactions.

Given January 16, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Theodosius Augustus, for the eighteenth time (444).

[10] Emperors VALENTINIAN and MARCIAN Augusti to Vincomalus,[184] Master of Offices. pr. We ordain by this law that anyone who shall deserve both consular and patrician rank may have three of his own houses free from the burden

[182] = C.Th. 13.3.18 (altered).
[183] = Nov. Theod. 25.
[184] The name is restored from confused manuscript reports; John Vincomalus was Master of Offices 450?–452 (see Theodoret, Epp. 3.141), Consul 453.

immunitate securas, heredes vero eius filii aut pater aut mater nepotes aut frater aut soror aut uxor duarum domorum suarum excusatione potiantur. 1. Si quis vero consulatu tantummodo gloriatur, duas semis domos suas immunes habeat: post fata vero eius memorati heredes unam semis domum suam habeant nullis hospitiis praegravatam. 2. Pari privilegio perfruatur cum memoratis heredibus, qui solius patriciae dignitatis sine consulatu decoratur insignibus. 3. Praefectorii vero nec non et magistri militum duas domus suas habeant quoad vixerint hospitibus liberatas: heredes vero eorum memorati unam defendant domum suam simili excusatione munitam. 4. Magistri vero officiorum vel quaestores unam semis domum suam quoad vixerint habeant hospitum onere liberatam: heredes vero eorum praedicti unam ab hospitibus iure defendant. 5. Comites autem domesticorum et protectorum et sacrarum largitionum et privatarum et vir spectabilis primicerius notariorum singulas domus suas ab hospitum gravamine dum vivunt gaudeant esse securas: memorati vero heredes eorum mediam partem unius domus suae sciant excusatione muniri, residuae vero dimidiae partis tertiam portionem hospitibus deputandam esse cognoscant. 6. Si qui illustres honorarias dignitates quascumque sine actu caelitus impetrarunt, aequo animo suas domus hospitibus post hanc legem pandant pro tertia quae legibus praefinita est portione: exceptis videlicet ergasteriis, quae in plateis vel angiportis esse noscuntur. 7. Quod in omnibus domibus quae hospitales sunt observari iubemus: ita ut nemo vel ex sacro rescripto vel ex divina adnotatione seu pragmatica sanctione contra hanc legem uti possit excusationis auxilio. 8. His omnibus, quae per hanc legem constituimus, in hac aeterna urbe observandis.

[11] Imp. Zeno A. Illyriciano magistro officiorum. Decem post primicerium tribunos in domibus, quas in hac regia urbe possident, metatorum iussimus vacationem mereri.

[12] [Αὐτοκράτωρ Ἰουστινιανὸς Α. Ἰουλιανῷ ἐπάρχῳ πραιτορίων.] Μηδεὶς ἄρχων ἐν τῷ περινοστεῖν ζητείτω προφάσει ἐπιδημητικῶν ἢ προφάσει of quartering during his life; and his heirs – namely, his sons, father, mother, grandsons, or brother, or sister, or wife – may receive exemption of two of their houses. 1. A person who boasts only of consular rank shall have two and one-half houses exempt; after his death his heirs, above enumerated, shall have one and one-half houses unburdened by quartering. 2. He and his above-enumerated heirs shall enjoy an equal privilege, who is decorated with the insignia of only the patriciate without the consulate. 3. But Prefects (praefectorii) and Masters of the Soldiers shall have two of their houses freed from quartering as long as they live; their heirs, as above enumerated, shall defend one house fortified with a similar exemption. 4. The Masters of Offices and Quaestors shall have one and one-half houses freed from the burden of quartering as long as they live; their above-mentioned heirs shall defend one from quartering. 5. The Counts of the Household Garrison and Guards (comites domesticorum et protectorum) and of the Imperial Benefactions and of the Privy Purse, and the Chief Secretary (primicerius) of the Notaries, a person of spectabilis rank, may rejoice while they live that one house is unburdened by the bothersomeness of quartering; their heirs, as above enumerated, may know that one-half of their house is protected by such exemption, but they should acknowledge that the third part of the remaining half is assignable for quartering. 6. Persons who have obtained any honorary official position of illustris rank from the Emperor (caelitus; lit., "from on high") without performing the duty thereof must hereafter willingly open for quartering one-third of their houses, the proportion fixed by law, with the exception however of shops which are known to be situated in streets and alleys.

7. We order this to apply to all houses fit for quartering; accordingly, no one may use an imperial rescript, annotation (adnotatio), or pragmatic sanction to exempt him in violation of this law. 8. All the provisions that We have established through this law shall apply to this Eternal City.

(450–455).

[11][185] Emperor ZENO Augustus to Illyricianus (Hilarianus), Master of Offices. We order that the ten tribunes (of the notaries) next in order after the Chief Secretary (primicerius) are entitled to an exemption from quartering for their houses in this Imperial City.

(474).

[12][186] (Emperor JUSTINIAN Augustus to Julian, Praetorian Prefect [of the East].) No governor shall, while traveling about in his province, ask for any money on the pretext that it is commutation money for quartering (prophasei

[185] Combine with C. 12.7.2. This was probably a law of Leo II and Zeno.

[186] From Bas. 57.5.12. Combine with C. 1.4.26.16, from which the inscription and subscription are restored. Seeck gives October 11, 340.

ἀφοπλισμοῦ χρυσίον. εἰ δὲ τοῦτο ποιήσει, καὶ ἐκβάλλεται τῆς ἀρχῆς καὶ δημεύεται καὶ ἐξορίᾳ διηνεκεῖ ὑποβάλλεται.

[D. VIII k. Iul. Chalcedone Lampadio et Oreste vv. cc. conss.]

XXXXI De Salgamo Hospitibus Non Praebendo

[1] Impp. Constantius et Constans AA. Leontio pp. Ne quis comitum vel tribunorum aut praepositorum aut militum nomine salgami gratia, id est culcitas lignum oleum a suis extorqueat hospitibus: sed nec volentibus hospitibus in praedictis speciebus aliquid auferant: sed provinciales sint nostri ab hac praebitione securi: comitibus tribunis vel certe praepositis militibusque gravi vexationi subiacentibus.

D. V id. Oct. … conss.

XXXXII De Commeatu

[1] Imp. Constantinus A. et C. Aeliano. pr. Ne cui liceat praepositorum vel tribunorum cohortium vel vicariorum et familiarium eorum tempore expeditionis quocumque genere cuiquam de militibus a castris atque signis vel his etiam locis, in quibus pertendant, discedendi commeatum dare. 1. Si quis vero contra hanc legem facere ausus fuerit et militem contra interdictum commeatu dimiserit eo tempore, in quo barbarorum incursio extiterit, et tunc, cum praesentes in castris atque apud signa milites esse debeant, quisquam afuerit, capite vindicetur.

D. IIII k. Mai. Severo et Rufino conss.

[2] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. ad Syagrium magistrum officiorum. Quicumque de scriniis aut agentibus in rebus vel etiam ex officiis palatinis, his videlicet, qui sacrarum et privatarum remunerationum comitibus obsecundant, sex mensium spatium supra diem commeatus aut iussionem evectionis afuerit, is in inferiorem epidêmêticôn) or that it is for permission to carry arms (prophasei aphoplismou). If he does so, he shall be removed from office, have his property confiscated, and be subjected to perpetual banishment.

<Given June 24, at Chalcedon, in the consulship of the viri clarissimi Lampadius and Orestes (530).>

Forty-First Title Accoutrements Not to Be Furnished to Quartered Persons

[1][187] Emperors Constantius and Constans Augusti to Leontius, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). No one shall in the name of the Counts, tribunes, commandants (praepositi), or soldiers demand anything in the way of accoutrements (salgamum), that is to say, mattresses, wood, or oil, from his host. They shall not take any of the aforementioned things even from a willing host. Our provincials shall be free from furnishing these things. The Counts, tribunes, and certainly the commandants and soldiers, will be subject to severe punishment (in case of violation of this law).

Given October 11, in the consulship of ... (340?; 344?).

Forty-Second Title Leave of Absence

[1][188] Emperor Constantine Augustus and the Caesar (Constantine) to Aelianus. pr. None of the commandants (praepositi), or tribunes of the cohorts, or their deputies (vicarii), or any person associated with them (familiares) shall, during an expedition, be permitted in any way to grant any soldier a leave of absence to depart from the camp or his standards or even the places where soldiers are stationed. 1. If anyone dares to violate this law and sends away a soldier on a prohibited leave of absence at a time when an incursion of the barbarians is occurring, or if any soldier is absent when the soldiers should be in camp and with their standards, such act will be punished by death.

Given April 28, in the consulship of Severus and Rufinus (323).

[2][189] Emperors Gratian, Valentinian, and Theodosius Augusti to Syagrius, Master of Offices. If anyone from the bureaus (scrinia) or the couriers (agentes in rebus) or indeed the palatine departments (officia palatina), that is to say, those under the Counts of the Imperial Benefactions and of the Privy Purse, is absent for six months beyond the expiration of his leave of absence or the validity of his warrant for the public post (evectio), he shall be demoted and

[187] = C.Th. 7.9.2.
[188] = C.Th. 7.12.1. Combine with C. 12.35.9 (= C.Th. 7.1.1). The addressee's identity is uncertain.
[189] = C.Th. 7.12.2. Seeck gives October 1, 378.

locum quinque antelatis posterioribus devolvatur: is vero, qui anni vacationem arbitratu proprio iudiciarii praecepti oblitus adsumpserit, a decem post se militantibus transeatur: ac deinde cum iam aliquis desidia quadriennio officium proprium adire neglexerit, quadraginta de sequentibus postferatur: qui vero nec post quadriennii quidem tempus, militantum non immerito matriculis auferatur.

D. k. Oct. Ausonio et Olybrio conss.

[3] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Gaisoni comiti et magistro militum. Si qui sine commeatu aliquo annum in penatibus propriis vel in quibuslibet locis desidiosa quiete transegerit, decem sequentibus postponatur: in quo vero biennium talis culpa deprehenditur, viginti sibi antepositos congemiscat: tertius autem annus triginta praelatos iure deflebit, ita ut quartus exempto matriculae nullam veniam derelinquat.

D. prid. id. Iun. Ravennae post consulatum Honorii VIIII et Theodosii V AA.

XXXXIII De Tironibus

[1] Impp. Valentinianus et Valens AA. Modesto pp. Nullus tiro vagus aut veteranus aut censibus obnoxius ad militiam accedat.

D. XIIII k. Oct. Hierapoli Valentiniano et Valente III AA. conss.

[2] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. Eutropio pp. Quisquis mancipium iuris alieni in tirocinio militiae scribi curaverit, convictus ac proditus auri libram aerario nostro cogatur inferre, mancipio scilicet domino, si factum ignoraverit, reddendo.

D. id. Mai. Tyro metropoli. pp. Beryto Antonio et Syagrio conss.

[3] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. ... comiti sacrarum largitionum. Tirones in scholis loco semper posteriore ponantur. nec enim patimur five more junior colleagues advanced ahead of him. A person who is forgetful of the order giving him leave of absence and takes a vacation of a year on his own responsibility shall give way to ten colleagues in the imperial service more junior than he; and if anyone indolently fails to attend to his own duty for four years he shall be reduced below the forty following him; and if anyone fails to come back even after the period of four years, he shall deservedly be stricken from the roll of officials.

Given October 1, in the consulship of Ausonius and Olybrius (379).

[3][190] Emperors HONORIUS and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Gaiso, Count and Master of Soldiers. If anyone (who is an official) passes a year without any leave of absence in indolence and idleness at his own hearth or in any other place, he will be reduced in precedence below the ten following him; one in whom such an offense is detected for the period of two years may deplore the fact that twenty have preceded him; the third year will bewail the thirty rightly advanced above him; and the fourth year, once he has been stricken from the roll, shall leave behind no hope of pardon.

Given June 12, at Ravenna, in the post-consulate of Honorius, for the ninth time, and Theodosius, for the fifth time, Augusti (413).

Forty-Third Title Recruits

[1][191] Emperors VALENTINIAN and VALENS Augusti to Modestus, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). No errant recruit, veteran, or bound tenant (censibus obnoxius) shall enter the army.

Given September 18, at Hierapolis, in the consulship of Valentinian and Valens, for the third time, Augusti (370).

[2][192] Emperors GRATIAN, VALENTINIAN, and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Eutropius, Praetorian Prefect (of Illyricum). Anyone who has caused another's slave to be enrolled in the army as a recruit shall, when discovered and convicted, be compelled to pay 1 pound of gold into Our Treasury, and the slave, if his master did not know of it, shall be returned to the owner.

Given May 15, at Tyre the metropolis, and posted in Beirut, in the consulship of Antonius and Syagrius (382).

[3][193] Emperors HONORIUS and THEODOSIUS Augusti to ..., Count of the Imperial Benefactions. Recruits in the imperial guard (scholae) shall always be [190] = C.Th. 7.18.16. Gaiso was actually Master of Offices; the date is corrected to 410.

[191] = C.Th. 7.13.6 (altered). Combine with C.Th. 16.2.19.
[192] = C.Th. 7.13.11. This "law" evidently originated as part of an edict issued by the Praetorian Prefect of the East.
[193] = C.Th. 7.13.19.

quemquam celsiorem gradum obtinere, nisi cui et laborum adsiduitas et stipendiorum prolixitas suffragatur.

D. VII k. Dec. Ravenna Basso et Philippo conss.

XXXXIIII De Litorum et Itinerum Custodia

[1] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Eustathio pp. Saluberrima sanctione censemus, ne merces illicitae ad nationes barbaras deferantur. et quaecumque naves ex quolibet portu seu litore dimittuntur, nullam concussionem vel damna sustineant: ita tamen, ut earum naucleri deponant, in quam provinciam ituri sunt, ut hoc manifestato nulla contra eos postea indignatio seu concussio procedat.

D. XIIII k. Oct. Constantinopoli Theodosio A. VIIII et qui fuerit nuntiatus.

XXXXV De Desertoribus et Occultatoribus Eorum

[1] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. ad Syagrium pp. pr. Si quis forte desertorem agro tectoque susceperit atque apud se diu passus fuerit delitescere, actor quidem vel procurator loci, qui hoc sciens prudensque commiserit, capitali supplicio subiugetur, dominus vero, si huius rei conscius fuerit, praedii, in quo latuerit desertor, amissione puniatur. 1. Si quis autem desertorem prodiderit mediocris loci ingenuus, immunitate potiatur. 2. Neque solum de his loquimur, qui proxime signis felicibus applicati militiae rudimenta timuerunt, verum etiam qui stipendiis militaribus degenerem latebram praebuisse monstrantur. 3. Desertor autem habebitur quisquis belli tempore aberit a signis. horum qui sponte processerit, peccati anterioris supplicium non timebit. sin vero flagitiosa ignavia delitescat, per eum, in cuius domo fuerit, invigilantibus extrinsecus quoque officiis publicis, ubicumque correptus severitati iudicis offeratur, degeneri morte gladium subiturus. 4. Si autem rector provinciae propositam severitatem vel gratia vel dissimulatione distulerit, patrimonii atque existimationis damno subiciatur et in officii primores capitaliter vindicetur.

placed last in the list, nor indeed do We allow anyone to attain a higher grade (gradus) unless diligence and length of service recommend him.

Given November 25, at Ravenna, in the consulship of Bassus and Philippus (408).

Forty-Fourth Title Custody of the Shores and the Roads

[1][194] Emperors HONORIUS and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Eustathius, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). We decree by this most beneficial sanction that no forbidden goods shall be carried to barbarous peoples. No ships that leave any port or shore shall suffer any extortion or losses, but their masters shall state into what province they are about to sail, and when that is done they shall be subject to no insult or extortion.

Given at September 18, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Theodosius Augustus, for the ninth time, and the one who is to be announced (420).

Forty-Fifth Title Deserters and Those Who Conceal Them

[1][195] Emperors GRATIAN, VALENTINIAN, and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Syagrius, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy). pr. If any person, perchance, receives a deserter into his farm or house and permits him to hide for a long time with him, the manager (actor) or procurator of the place who does so knowingly and wittingly shall be subjected to capital punishment, and the owner who was complicit in the matter shall be punished by the loss of the estate where the deserter hid. 1. If any free-born person of low station (mediocris loci ingenuus) exposes a deserter he shall receive immunity (from compulsory public services). 2. Nor do We speak only of those who were just recently enrolled under the fortunate standards and feared the beginning of the service, but also of those who are shown to have furnished a disgraceful hiding place for military service (stipendia militaria; i.e., to have evaded enrollment through subterfuge). 3. A person, moreover, who is absent from the standards in time of war will be considered a deserter. If such a person reports voluntarily, he need not fear punishment for his previous offense. But if, with disgraceful cowardice, he conceals himself, (then,) with the assistance of the person in whose house he had been and while the public officials also keep watch outside, he shall be arrested wherever he might be, offered up to the severity of a judge, and meet a shameful death by the sword. 4. And if the governor (rector) of the province defers the lawful punishment, either through favor or negligence, he shall lose his patrimony and public standing (existimatio), and the senior members (primores) of his official staff shall be punished by death.

[194] = C.Th. 7.16.3 (altered). The Consul to be announced is Constantius, for the third time.
[195] = C.Th. 7.18.4, with the pr. added from 7.18.5. Combine with C. 7.13.4.

PP. id. Iul. Romae Gratiano v et Theodosio AA. conss.

[2] Imppp. Arcadius Honorius et Theodosius AAA. Hadriano pp. Si desertores inventi resistendum atque armis obtinendum putaverint, tamquam rebelles in ipsis temeritatis suae conatibus opprimantur: ita tamen, ut provinciarum iudices sollicita cautione disquirant, ne sub falsarum tractoriarum nomine desertionis suae crimen defendere moliantur, nec suppositis aut commentis epistulis evadendi habeant facultatem.

D. vi k. Mart. Ravennae Theodosio A. et Rumorido conss.

[3] Idem AAA. Longiano pp. Qui relictis militaribus castris se ad depraedationes vel latrocinium contulerint, severitatem iudicis non evadant.

D. viiii k. April. Ravennae Arcadio A. vi et Probo vc. conss.

XXXXVI De Veteranis

[1] Imp. Constantinus A. cum introisset principia et salutatus esset a praefectis et tribunis et viris eminentissimis, acclamatum est: pr. Auguste Constantine, deus te nobis servet: vestra salus nostra salus: vere dicimus, iurati dicimus. 1. Adunati veterani exclamaverunt: Constantine Auguste, quo nos veteranos factos, si nullam indulgentiam habemus? Constantinus A. dixit: Magis magisque conveteranis meis beatitudinem augere debeo quam minuere. 2. Victorinus veteranus dixit: Muneribus et oneribus universis locis conveniri non sinamur. Constantinus A. dixit: Apertius indica: quae sunt maxime munera, quae vos contumaciter gravant? 3. Universi veterani dixerunt: Ipse perspicis scilicet.

Constantinus A. dixit: Iam nunc magnificentia mea omnibus veteranis id esse concessum perspicuum sit, ne quis eorum in nullo munere civili neque in operibus publicis conveniatur neque in nulla collatione

Posted July 15, at Rome, in the consulship of Gratian, for the fifth time, and Theodosius, Augusti (380).

[2][196] Emperors Arcadius, Honorius, and Theodosius Augusti to Hadrianus, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy and Africa). If deserters when discovered shall undertake to resist and to resort to arms they shall be crushed as rebels in the rashness of their very attempt. The governors (iudices) of the provinces must carefully investigate lest the accused struggle to defend their crime of desertion on the pretext of forged post warrants (tractoriae) or have the opportunity of acquittal through falsified and fictitious letters (epistulae).

Given February 24, at Ravenna, in the consulship of Theodosius Augustus and Rumoridus (403).

[3][197] The same Augusti to Long(in)ianus, Praetorian Prefect (in Gaul or Italy). Persons who desert military camps and engage in depredations and robberies shall not escape the severity of the judge.

Given March 24, at Ravenna, in the consulship of Arcadius Augustus, for the sixth time, and the vir clarissimus Probus (406).

Forty-Sixth Title Veterans

[1][198] When the Emperor Constantine Augustus had entered the imperial military headquarters (principia) and had been saluted by the prefects, the tribunes and persons of Most Eminent rank, this acclamation was made: Constantine Augustus, may God preserve you for us; your safety is our safety; we speak truly; we say so, on our oath. 1. The veterans exclaimed in unison: Constantine Augustus, for what purpose have we been made veterans, if we have no special grant (indulgentia) (of privileges)? Constantine Augustus said: I should rather increase again and again the happiness of my fellow-veterans than diminish it. 2. Victorinus, a veteran, said: We should not be allowed to be called upon to perform compulsory public duties and burdens (munera et onera) in all the various places. Constantine Augustus said: Indicate more clearly; what especially are the public duties (munera) that weigh upon you so stubbornly? 3. All the veterans said: Surely you know them yourself.

Constantine Augustus said: Let it now be plain, that by my magnificence this (privilege) is granted to all the veterans, that none of them shall be called on for any compulsory municipal duty (munus civile), nor for any public works, nor for any tax assessment (collatio), nor by any magistrate (magistratus), nor

[196] = C.Th. 7.18.11.
[197] = C.Th. 7.18.15. The recipient's name is corrected.
[198] = C.Th. 7.20.2. The date and place of issue are unclear; Seeck has March 1, 326, while Barnes conjectures March 1, 307. For "God," C.Th. has "the gods."

neque a magistratibus neque vectigalibus. 4. In quibuscumque nundinis interfuerint, nulla ad venditionem proponenda dare debebunt. 5. Publicani quoque, ut solent agentibus super compellere, ab isdem veteranis amoveantur. quiete post labores suos perenniter perfruantur. 6. Fisco nostro quoque eadem epistula interdiximus, ut nullum omnino ex his inquietaret: sed liceat eis emere et vendere, optimis negotiis pecuniam tractare et mercimonia agitare, ut integra beneficia eorum sub saeculi nostri otio et pace perfruantur. 7. Sed etiam nullo munere civili, id est corporali sive personali, vel de portorio onere eos adfici concedimus.

D. k. Mart. in civitate Velovocorum Constantino A. VI et Constantino C. conss.

[2] Idem A. Maximo pp. Providendum est, ne veterani protectoria dignitate cumulati, aut qui honores varios pro meritis suis consecuti sunt, incongruis pulsentur iniuriis, cum, si quis in hoc crimine fuerit deprehensus, rectores provinciarum pro iurisdictione sua examinantes factum pro sui qualitate eos coerceant.

D. IIII k. Ian. Triveris Ianuarino et Iusto conss.

[3] Idem A. ad Euagrium pp. Veterani, qui ex neglegentia vitae neque rus colunt neque aliquid honestum peragunt, sed latrociniis sese dederunt, omnibus veteranorum privilegiis exuti poenis competentibus a provinciarum rectoribus subiciantur.

D. III id. Aug. Constantio A. VI et Constante II conss.

[4] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Eustathio pp. et Nestorio pp. Illyrici. Nullus eorum, qui sacramentis inhaerere desierit, vel volens permittatur vel invitus militari cogatur observare iudicium: sententiis, quae non his observatis latae fuerint, nullam firmitatem habentibus, nisi forte reperiatur ibi tempore militiae coepta cognitio: tunc enim velut necdum cingulo deposito sub militari iudice rem tractari finirique for any impost (vectigalia). 4. In whatever public markets they participate, they shall not be compelled to pay any taxes (proponenda) to sell their property. 5. The tax collectors (publicani) also, who are accustomed to overtax the tradespeople, shall be kept away from these same veterans. They shall enjoy perpetual peace after their labors. 6. We also, by the same letter (epistula), have forbidden Our Treasury to disturb any of them at all; but they may sell and buy, use their money for advantageous bargains, and carry on trade, so that they may enjoy their unimpaired privileges in the leisure and peace of Our time. 7.[199] And We grant also that they shall not be compelled to perform any municipal duty (munus civile), that is to say, any corporal or personal one, or be burdened by any duty of conveying (deportorium onus).

Given March 1, in the city (civitas) of the Velovoci (?), in the consulship of Constantine Augustus, for the sixth time, and the Caesar Constantine (320?).

[2][200] The same Augustus to Maximus, Praetorian Prefect (of the East?). Care must be taken to ensure that veterans who have been elevated through the rank of the protectorate (protectoria dignitas) or who have received various honors in recognition of their merits shall not be beset by unseemly affronts (iniuriae), since, if anyone should be apprehended in such a crime, the governors (rectores) of the provinces, examining the deed within their jurisdiction, shall punish them in accordance with the magnitude of the offence.

Given December 29, at Trier, in the consulship of Januarinus and Justus (328).

[3][201] The same Augustus to Evagrius, Praetorian Prefect. Veterans who through dissipation neither cultivate the soil nor pursue anything respectable, but devote themselves to brigandage (latrocinium), shall be deprived of all their privileges as veterans and subjected to suitable punishment by the governors (rectores) of the provinces.

Given August 11 in the consulship of Constantius, for the sixth time, and Constans, for the second time, Augusti (353).

[4][202] Emperors HONORIUS and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Eustathius, Praetorian Prefect (of the East), and Nestorius, Praetorian Prefect of Illyricum. No one who has ceased to abide by the (military) oath (upon discharge) shall be permitted voluntarily, or compelled involuntarily, to obey a military court. Rulings made in disregard of these principles shall have no effect, unless perchance the trial is found to have commenced during the time of service; for in that case We 199 This sentence does not appear in C.Th.

200 = C.Th. 7.20.5. Combine with 1.40.2 (= C.Th. 1.16.4).
201 = C.Th. 7.20.7 (altered). The date is corrected by Seeck to March 1, 339.
202 The dates are corrected.

praecipimus, nisi principali beneficio specialiter indulto quidam ex his sese defendant.

XXXXVII De Filiis Officialium Militarium Qui in Bello Moriuntur

[1] Imp. Constantinus A. ad Euagrium pp. Ii, qui ex officialibus quorumcumque officiorum geniti sunt, sive eorundem parentes adhuc sacramento tenentur sive iam dimissi erunt, in parentum militiam vocentur.
D. prid. non. Aug. Basso et Ablabio conss.

[2] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. Neoterio. Filios primipilariorum paternam sequi condicionem oportet.

[3] Ἐάν τις ἐν πολέμῳ τελευτήσῃ ὁπωσδήποτε στρατευόμενος, ὁ υἱὸς αὐτοῦ, ἐὰν εἷς ἐστιν, ἢ πολλῶν παίδων ὁ μείζων παραχρῆμα εἰς τὸν τόπον τοῦ πατρὸς ὑπεισερχέσθω καὶ τὰς ἀννόνας τὰς αὐτὰς λαμβανέτω, εἰ μέχρι βιάρχου ἦν ὁ πατήρ. εἰ δὲ ἀνώτερος ἦν τοῦ βιάρχου, βίαρχον μόνον γίνεσθαι τὸν παῖδα. πρόδηλον γάρ, ὅτι ὁ μείζων ταύτην ἔχων τὴν παραμυθίαν φροντίζει καὶ τῶν ἰδίων ἀδελφῶν.

XXXXVIII De Oblatione Votorum

[1] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Basilio pu. Quando votis communibus felix annus aperitur, in una libra auri et solidis obryziacis principibus offerendi devotionem animo libenti suscipimus statuentes, ut deinceps sequentibus annis uniuscuiusque sedulitas principibus suis talia ingerant semper et deferant.
D. III non. Mart. Mediolani Olybrio et Probino conss.

decree that the matter shall be handled and concluded by the military judge, as though the belt of military service had not yet been laid aside, unless certain persons protect themselves against it by reason of an imperial benefit exceptionally conferred.

(421–423).

Forty-Seventh Title Sons of Military Officials Who Die in War

[1][203] Emperor Constantine Augustus to Evagrius, Praetorian Prefect. Those who are begotten of members (officiales) of any official staff whatever, whether their parents are still bound by their oath (of office) or have already been discharged, are called into the service of their parents.

Given August 4, in the consulship of Bassus and Ablabius (331).

[2][204] Emperors Gratian, Valentinian, and Theodosius Augusti to Neoterius. The sons of a quartermaster-general (primipilarius) should follow the status (condicio) of their father.

(380?).

[3][205] If anyone serving in the army should die in war in any manner, his son if there is only one, or the elder of several, shall immediately take his father's place and receive his pay (annonae), if the father has not advanced higher than the rank of biarchus ("commissary"; roughly, "corporal"); but if his father attained a higher rank than biarchus, the son shall only become a biarchus. For it is clear that the elder son who receives this emolument will also care for his brothers.

Forty-Eighth Title Bestowal of Votive Offerings (Oblatio Votorum)

[1][206] Emperors Arcadius and Honorius Augusti to Basilius, City Prefect (of Rome). When the happy New Year opens with common prayers (vota communia), We receive with an eager heart the devotion expressed by an offering to the Emperors in the amount of 1 pound of gold, consisting of (72) solidi of pure gold, and We direct that henceforth in subsequent years the zeal of each and every person should always bring and present such offerings to his Emperors.

Given March 5, at Milan, in the consulship of Olybrius and Probinus (395).

[203] = C.Th. 7.22.3. Combine with C.Th. 12.1.19, 20.

[204] Compare C.Th. 7.22.11 on the same subject, addressed "to Our dearest friend, Neoterius, greetings," the subscription of which states that it was given (?) September 8, 380, at Sirmium. Seeck prefers that date here.

[205] From Bas. 57.7.3. This law has been identified as coming from the Emperor Maurice (582–602).

[206] = C.Th. 7.24.1.

XXXXVIIII De Numerariis Actuariis et Chartulariis et Adiutoribus Scriniariis et Exceptoribus Sedis Excelsae Ceterorumque Iudicum Tam Civilium Quam Militarium

[1] Imp. Constantinus A. Veroniciano vicario Asiae. Vorax et fraudulentum numerariorum propositum, qui diversis obsequiis rectoribus obsequuntur, ita inhibendum est, ut antea sanximus et nunc itidem sancimus condicioni eos subdi tormentorum et eculeis atque lacerationibus subiacere.

D. XIIII k. Iun. Optato et Paulino conss.

[2] Impp. Valentinianus et Valens AA. ad Clearchum. pr. Qui numerarii appellari consueverant consularium ac praesidum dumtaxat, tabularii post hanc nostram sanctionem vocabuntur, scientes se tormentis esse subiectos, nisi iudicibus vel his, qui provecti nostro iudicio ad provincias venerint, vel exactoribus debitorum aut reliquorum modum frequenter ingesserint sub actorum testificatione: quos scire oportet cum his qui debitores sunt sese ad solutionem esse retinendos, nisi omnia debita ipsis fuerint indicantibus persoluta. 1. Triennii tamen spatio tabulariorum decet tempus omne concludi.

D. XIIII k. Mart. Constantinopoli Valentiniano et Valente AA. conss.

[3] Idem AA. Rufino pp. Numerarios amplissimae tuae sedis cingulum habere et militiae ordinem tenere iubemus.

D. prid. id. Dec. Parisiis Valentiniano et Valente AA. conss.

[4] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. omnibus rectoribus provinciarum. In provinciis singulis duo numerarii, qui

Forty-Ninth Title Chief Accountants, Quartermasters, Secretaries, Principal Assistants, Accountants, and Shorthand Writers of the Exalted Seat (of the Praetorian Prefect) and of the Other Judges, Civil and Military

[1][207] Emperor CONSTANTINE Augustus to Veronicianus, Vicar of the Diocese of Asia. The greedy and fraudulent conduct of the chief accountants (numerarii) who perform various services (obsequia) under the governors (rectores) must be restrained in such a manner that, as We formerly ordained and now again ordain, they shall be subjected to the status (condicio) of those liable to be tortured and submitted to the rack and to lacerations.

Given May 19 in the consulship of Optatus and Paulinus (334).

[2][208] Emperors VALENTINIAN and VALENS Augusti to Clearchus. pr. Those who have heretofore been accustomed to be called chief accountants (numerarii) of provincial governors (consulares ac praesides, of clarissimus rank) shall, after this Our ordinance, be called tabularii. They must take notice that they are subject to torture unless they routinely, with the corroboration of their records, inform the governors (iudices), or those who are sent on Our order and come to the provinces, or the tax collectors (exactores) of the amount of taxes due or delinquent; and they should know that they will be liable for the payment of taxes along with the debtors themselves unless, according to their reports, all such taxes have been paid. 1. It is proper, moreover, that the entire period of service of the chief accountants (tabularii) should be limited to three years.

Given February 16, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Valentinian and Valens Augusti (365).

[3][209] The same Augusti to Rufinus, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy, Africa, and Illyricum). We direct that chief accountants (numerarii) of your most magnificent seat may wear the belt of office (cingulum) and hold rank in the imperial service (militiae ordinem tenere).

Given December 12, at Paris, in the consulship of Valentinian and Valens Augusti (365).

[4][210] Emperors GRATIAN, VALENTINIAN, and THEODOSIUS Augusti to all the governors (rectores) of provinces. Two chief accountants (numerarii), also called tabularii, shall be stationed in each province, so that one may be ordered to

[207] = C.Th. 8.1.4. Combine with C.Th. 8.15.2.
[208] = C.Th. 8.1.9. The recipient was Vicar of the Diocese of Asia.
[209] = C.Th. 8.1.11 (altered).
[210] = C.Th. 8.1.12.

et tabularii, collocentur, quo ad unum fiscalis arcae ratiocinium, ad alterum largitionales pertinere tituli iubeantur: scituri, quod, si ex alienis quicquam actibus ad alteram partem illicita fuerit usurpatione translatum, is, qui iudicis culpam dissimulatione texerit, gravissimo sit supplicio subiugandus.

D. III k. April. Constantinopoli Antonio et Syagrio conss.

[5] Idem AAA. et Arcadius A. Principio pp. Exceptores omnes iudicibus provincialibus obsequentes, qui nec cohortalem militiam sustinere videntur neque a fisco ullas consequuntur annonas, absque metu dare coeptis operam, etiamsi decuriones sint, minime prohibemus, dummodo munia propriae civitatis agnoscant et peracto secundum morem exceptionis officio ad propriam sibi curiam redeundum esse non nesciant.

D. IIII id. Dec. Aquileiae Arcadio A. et Bautone conss.

[6] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Severo pu. pr. Ne diutius ad cunctorum perniciem actuarii numerariorum consortiis adiuventur, illustris auctoritas tua cunctos ex numerariis actuariorum societate praecipiat abstinere atque ab eorum communione discedere. 1. Quod si haec moniti custodire neglexerint, isdem poenis se quibus actuarios non ambigant subiacere.

D. IIII k. Iul. Nicaeae Honorio A. IIII et Eutychiano conss.

[7] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Hierio pp. pr. Actuarios tam classium urbis Constantinopolitanae quam thymelae equorumque curulium civitatum diversarum non aliter nisi, ut consueverat, manus sanxerit principalis, sublimitas tua praecipiat ordinari. 1. Quod si quis talis sub tua fuerit iudicatione convictus, profecto irritis his, quae vetita contrectavit, etiam congruam indignationem incurret.

manage the account of the prefectural treasury (fiscalis arca) and the other the revenues of the department of Imperial Benefactions (tituli largitionales). They shall know that if anything is by an unlawful appropriation transferred from the accounts of the one to the other, he who deceitfully conceals the guilt of the governor (iudex) shall be subjected to a most severe punishment.

Given March 30, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Antonius and Syagrius (382).

[5][211] The same Augusti and ARCADIUS Augustus to Principius, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy). We do not at all forbid any shorthand writers (exceptores) serving provincial governors (iudices) who do not appear to have joined a provincial staff in the imperial service (cohortalis militia) nor draw any provisions (annonae) from the Treasury, to act in the capacity they have undertaken without fear, even though they are decurions, provided that they acknowledge the compulsory duties of their own city and do not forget that they must return to their own municipal council (curia) as is customary after their duties as shorthand writers are concluded.

Given December 10, at Aquileia, in the consulship of Arcadius and Bauto, Augusti (385).

[6][212] Emperors ARCADIUS and HONORIUS Augusti to Sever(in)us, City Prefect (of Constantinople). pr. Lest quartermasters (actuarii) be abetted any longer by their collusion with chief accountants (numerarii) to the detriment of all, Your Authority, of illustris rank, should direct that all chief accountants must refrain from association with quartermasters and avoid contact with them. 1. If they fail to obey these provisions after admonishment, they should not doubt that they will meet with the same punishment as the quartermasters.

Given June 28, at Nicaea, in the consulship of Honorius Augustus, for the fourth time, and Eutychianus (398).

[7][213] Emperors THEODOSIUS and VALENTINIAN Augusti to Hierius, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). pr. Your Sublimity will direct that the quartermasters (actuarii) of the fleets (classes) of the city of Constantinople, as well as those of the theater and of the racehorses of the various cities, shall not be appointed unless the imperial hand has sanctioned it, as has been the custom. 1.[214] If any such person is convicted by your judgment, his unlawful acts shall immediately be void, and he shall also bring appropriate displeasure down upon himself.

[211] = C.Th. 8.7.17. Combine with C.Th. 11.16.17.
[212] = C.Th. 8.1.14. The name of the addressee is corrected; the law probably dates to July 12.
[213] pr. = C.Th. 8.7.21.2.
[214] = C. 12.59.6.1.

D. x k. Iul. Nicomediae Theodosio XII et Valentiniano II AA. conss.

[8] Idem AA. Protogeni pp. Scriniarios vel numerarios officii magnitudinis tuae iubemus nullatenus in posterum aut mutuam pecuniam sumere aut polliceri cuiquam pro publicis cogi expensis: quos nullam post depositam militiam inquietudinem sustinere volumus.

[9] Imp. Leo A. Dioscoro pp. Nemini licere deinceps iubemus in quacumque militia connumerato sollicitudinem actuarii subire vel post depositam eandem curam ad militiam adspirare, quatenus inter privatos agens omnique militari privilegio denudatus nihil nundinationis vel fraudis circa commendanda ratiocinia quibus obnoxius est attemptare valeat.

[10] Imp. Zeno A. Arcadio pp. pr. Nulli scriniario liceat pro tempore numerarios plus quam quaternis vicibus, nec his tamen continuandis, adiuvare: idemque hoc super chartulariis praebenda pro tempore numerariis opera observari decernimus, ita ut adiutorum quidem biennii, chartulariorum vero unius anni intervallo continuatio interrumpatur: nulla adiutoribus ad chartulariorum sollicitudinem, quam semel dedignati sunt, descendendi danda licentia: ita ut Orientalis quidem tractus pro tempore numerariis non nisi ab his scriniariis, qui intra triginta viros a numerario retro numerandos, Asianae vero dioeceseos numerariis non nisi ab his, qui intra quinquaginta a numerario similiter retro numerandos inveniuntur, Ponticae vero et Thracicae dioeceseos passim et pro suo libitu ex omni multitudine eligendorum adiutorum tribuatur facultas.

1. Omnia sane commonitoria vel praeceptiones aut evectiones seu quaelibet publica instrumenta non solum adiutori, verum etiam provinciae illius de qua disponitur tractatori inspiciendi itidemque

Given June 22, at Nicomedia, in the consulship of Theodosius, for the twelfth time, and Valentinian, for the second time, Augusti (426).

[8] The same Augusti to Protogenes, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). We order that the accountants (scriniarii) or the chief accountants (numerarii) of the official staff of Your Greatness shall not hereafter be compelled to make a loan or to make a promise to anyone to defray public expenses. We do not want them to be disturbed after their retirement from the imperial service.

(448–449).

[9][215] Emperor Leo Augustus to Dioscorus, Praetorian Prefect (of the East?). We order that no one enrolled in any branch of the imperial service shall be permitted hereafter either to assume the duties of quartermaster (actuarius) or, after leaving such employment (as an actuarius), to aspire to enter the imperial service, in order that he, acting as a private citizen, (but) denied all official privilege, may not be able to connive at any peculation or fraud in connection with the accounts entrusted to him for which he is responsible.

(472–474).

[10][216] Emperor Zeno Augustus to Arcadius, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). pr. No accountant (scriniarius) shall be permitted to serve as principal assistant (adiuvare) to the then-serving chief accountants (numerarii) more than four times, and this not in succession; and We determine that the same restriction shall apply to the assistance rendered by the secretaries (chartularii) to the then-serving chief accountants. Continuity in these positions, therefore, shall be interrupted by an interval of two years in the case of principal assistants (adiutores) and one year in the case of secretaries. No opportunity is offered to the principal assistants of reverting to the duties of the secretaries, which they had previously disdained. Accordingly, the prerogative is granted to the then-serving chief accountants in the diocese of the East (Orientalis tractus) to select their principal assistants only from those accountants who are found to be among the thirty most senior, counting back from the chief accountant (himself); to the chief accountants of the diocese of Asia, likewise, only from the fifty most senior; but to the chief accountants of the dioceses of Pontica and Thrace, to select as they like from the entire group of accountants indiscriminately.

1. We expect, of course, that the necessity of inspecting and at the same time of subscribing all letters of instruction, directions, warrants for the public post, and any other public documents falls upon not only the principal assistant but [215] The date is corrected.

[216] Possibly combine with 12.60.6. The date is corrected to 490.

subscribendi, aliorum quoque, qui una cum eo tractant, in eadem subscriptione mentione habenda, necessitatem incumbere. 2. Si quid autem sine hac observatione ex Orientali vel Asiano vel Thracico scrinio fuerit emissum, falsi suspicione non careat: exceptis publicis instrumentis, quae ex scrinio Ponticae dioeceseos emittuntur, quod in isdem instrumentis solum numerarium eiusdem dioeceseos eiusque adiutorem et chartularium subscribere magnitudo tua disposuit: ita ut, si quid huius legis fuerit violatum, numerarii quidem tam gradus sui quam sollemnitatum seu solaciorum universi anni iacturam, adiutores vero quinquaginta librarum auri et chartularii quindecim itidem librarum auri poenam subeant.

[11] Idem A. Catoni magistro militum. Officio magnitudinis tuae datis precibus postulante, ut numerariorum actus non in biennium, sed in unum annum statuatur, nostra pietas huiusmodi petitionibus adnuens dispositionem, quae promulgata fuerat super biennio, super uno tantummodo anno revocavit.

[12] Imp. Anastasius A. Spartiatio pp. Illyrici. pr. Per hanc divinam pragmaticam sanctionem decernimus, quod antea, dum tribuni praetoriani dignitas eis, qui in scriniis seu gradibus officii tuae celsitudinis deponunt militiam, praebeatur, custoditum fuisse dignoscitur, hoc super honore quoque comitivae dignitatis eis impertiri, ut sententia pro fine eorum militiae proferenda dignitatis etiam mentionem contineat, haec quoque tantummodo et sine speciali codicillorum vel divinorum apicum sanctione ad eandem dignitatem adipiscendam et privilegia eam sequentia sufficiat: ita tamen, ut primi ordinis comitivam per interlocutionem eiusdem potestatis mereantur cornicularius et primiscrinius et numerarius scrinii Macedoniae et scrinii Daciae et scrinii operum et scrinii auri. 1. Hoc eodem in his etiam, qui post novellam dispositionem divae memoriae Zenonis, quae de isdem personis loquitur, deposuerunt militiam, obtinente.

also the financial manager (tractator) of the province concerned, with those who cooperate with the latter noted also in the same subscription. 2. If any document shall be issued from the bureau (scrinium) of the Eastern diocese, or from those of Asia or Thrace, without obeying these directions, it shall not lack the suspicion of forgery, excepting the public documents that are issued by the bureau for the diocese of Pontica, because Your Greatness has ordered these to be subscribed only by the chief accountant of the diocese and his principal assistant and secretary. If any provision of this law is violated, accordingly, the chief accountants shall not only lose their rank (gradus) but also their customary emoluments for the whole year, and the principal assistants shall incur a penalty of 50 pounds of gold and the secretaries at the same time a penalty of 15 pounds of gold.

(485–486?).

[11][217] The same Augustus to Cato, Master of Soldiers. Since the official staff of Your Greatness has presented a petition asking that the term of office of the chief accountants (numerarii) should be fixed at one year instead of two, Our Piety, granting approval to petitions of this kind, has recalled the order which had been promulgated as to two years, instead of one.

(485–486?).

[12] Emperor Anastasius Augustus to Spartiatius, Praetorian Prefect of Illyricum. By this imperial pragmatic sanction We direct that the custom known to have been observed when the rank (dignitas) of Praetorian Tribune is bestowed on persons retiring from the imperial service in the bureaus and the grades (gradus) of the official staff of Your Highness, shall also be followed in bestowing the honor of the rank of Count (comitiva dignitas) upon such persons, so that the citation executed at the conclusion of their service shall contain as well the mention of this rank; this alone, without the distinctive sanction of diplomas (codicilli) or imperial decrees, shall suffice for the bestowal of that same rank and the privileges appertaining thereto. Accordingly, the persons who shall merit the Countship of the First Order by order of the same authority (per interlocutionem eiusdem potestatis) are the Department Head (cornicularius) and the First Assistant Head (primiscrinius) and the Chief Accountant (numerarius) of the bureau of the diocese of Macedonia, of that of Dacia, of (public) works, and of gold. 1. This same provision shall also apply to those who have retired from the service subsequent to the recent order of Zeno, of blessed memory, which speaks of the same persons.

(491–518).

[217] The date is corrected to 490–491.

[13] pr. Ἡ διάταξις κελεύει τὰς παραμυθίας, ἃς ἐλάμβανεν ὁ ταβουλάριος ἐν τοῖς μεγάλοις τρισὶ σκρινίοις, τοῦτ᾽ ἔστι τῆς ἀνατολικῆς καὶ Ποντικῆς διοικήσεως, δίδοσθαι τῷ πρώτῳ καὶ δευτέρῳ καὶ τρίτῳ ταβουλαρίῳ, οὐκ ἐξ ἴσου μέρους, ἀλλὰ τοῦ μὲν ἡμίσεος τῷ πρώτῳ διαφέροντος, τοῦ δὲ τρίτου τῷ δευτέρῳ, τῷ δὲ τρίτῳ τοῦ ἕκτου, ὥστε καὶ τὸ δημόσιον ἔχειν τὸ ἀσφαλές, καὶ ἕκαστον αὐτῶν διὰ τῶν ἐνιαυτῶν λαμβάνειν ἐνιαυτοῦ τελείου ἀννόνας. 1. Κελεύει δὲ τὸν τρακτεύοντα ἐπαρχίαν ἅμα τῷ γενέσθαι ταβουλάριον ἀφίστασθαι τοῦ τρακτάτου τῆς ἐπαρχίας, ἵνα μήτε περὶ πλείονα ἀπησχόληται καὶ βλάπτηται ἐκ τούτου τὸ δημόσιον, μήτε ἀμελῶν, ὡς εἰκός, τῶν ἐπαρχιῶν ἐγκαλῇ τοῖς ἅμα αὐτῷ νουμεραρίοις ὡς αἰτίοις γενομένοις. 2. Αὐτοὶ δὲ οἱ τρεῖς ἐπιλεγέσθωσαν τοὺς ὀφείλοντας αὐτοῖς ὑπουργεῖν εἰς τὴν τῶν δημοσίων ἐξάνυσιν, ἵνα, ἐὰν οἱ τρακτευταὶ τῶν ἐπαρχιῶν ὑπέρθωνται καταβάλλειν ἐπὶ αὐτοὺς τὰ δημόσια, τοῦ τρακτάτου ἐκπίπτωσιν. 3. Οἱ μέντοιγε τῶν ὅπλων ταβουλάριοι ἐν τοῖς ἄλλοις πᾶσι δουλευέτωσαν τῇ τάξει χωρὶς τῶν ἰδίων ἀννόνων· ταύτας γὰρ λήψονται κατὰ τὴν μέχρι νῦν κρατοῦσαν συνήθειαν τὴν βουλομένην εἰς πολλοὺς διαιρεῖσθαι τὰς τῷ πρώτῳ ἀνηκούσας συνηθείας.

L De Cursu Publico Angariis et Parangariis

[1] Imp. Constantinus A. ad Titianum. Equos, qui publico cursui deputati sunt, non lignis vel fustibus, sed flagellis tantummodo agitari decernimus: poena non defutura contra eum, qui aliter fecerit.
D. prid. id. Mai. Sabino et Rufino conss.

[2] Idem A. ad Acyndinum pp. pr. Praesidibus et rationalibus ceterisque, quibus propterea res publica et annonas et alimenta pecoribus subministrat, usurpandi paraveredi licentia derogetur. 1. Sed nec alia via eundi quisquam habeat facultatem, nisi per quam cursus publicus stare [13][218] pr. The constitution directs that the emoluments which the Chief Accountant (tabularius) receives in each of the three great bureaus (scrinia) – that is to say, (rather,) those of the dioceses of the East and of Pontus – shall be divided between the first, second, and third tabularius (i.e., the numerarius, adiutor, and chartularius?) not in equal parts, but so that half is allocated to the first, a third to the second, and a sixth to the third; thus the Treasury may be safe, and each of them may receive a full year's pay (annonae) every year. 1. It also orders that the financial manager (tractator) of a province, as soon as he becomes Chief Accountant, shall lay down his duties as financial manager of the province, lest he be preoccupied with several things whereby the Treasury would suffer damage, and lest he be in a position to accuse the accountants (numerarii) with him of responsibility for the damage if the provinces, as happens, are neglected. 2. These three shall themselves select those who ought to aid them in exacting taxes, so that if the financial managers in the provinces delay remitting the taxes due to them, the financial managers shall lose their position. 3. The Chief Accountants (tabularii) (of the bureau) of arms, however, shall comply with the official staff in all things except in regard to pay (annonae); they shall receive this according to the custom heretofore prevailing which prefers the emoluments belonging to the first (Chief Accountant) to be divided into several parts.

Fiftieth Title The Public Post and Transport and Supplementary Transport

[1][219] Emperor CONSTANTINE Augustus to Titianus. We decree that the horses assigned to the public post shall not be struck by sticks or cudgels, but only by whips. Punishment will not be wanting on the person who does otherwise.

Given May 14, in the consulship of Sabinus and Rufinus (316).

[2][220] The same Augustus to Acyndinus (Acindynus), Praetorian Prefect (of the East). pr. The prerogative of appropriating an extra post-horse (paraveredus) shall be restricted in the case of governors (praesides) and comptrollers (rationales) and others to whom the state (res publica) furnishes both allowances for provisions and fodder for livestock (annonae et alimenta pecoribus) for that very purpose. 1. And no one shall have the privilege of traveling by any route other than that which the public post is known to use, excepting, of course, the [218] Summary from Bas. 6.35.13. In the principium, it is likely that the name of a "great bureau" (possibly Asia or Thrace) has fallen out of the text. Lounghis et al. date to between 491 and 518.

[219] = C.Th. 8.5.2 (altered).

[220] = C.Th. 8.5.3 (altered). The date is corrected by Seeck to 339.

dignoscitur: excepta videlicet tua sublimissima sede, cui cursus publicus et proficiscendi per eum licentia et ubi ratio exegerit praesto est.

PP. XV k. Mart. Constantino A. VII et Constantio C. conss.

[3] Imp. Constantius A. ad Taurum pp. pr. Evectiones ab omnibus postulentur, et tam iudices quam custodes publici cursus minime transire patiantur, antequam seriem evectionis adspexerint. 1. Quod si quis putaverit resistendum et sine evectione iter facere detegitur, vel ultra tempus quod evectioni insertum est publico cursu uti conatus sit, ubi repertus fuerit, eundem iussimus detineri et, si quidem dignitate praeditus sit, de eius nomine ad prudentiam tuam et ad illustrem virum comitem et magistrum officiorum referri. adversus ceteros vero protinus indignatio competens exercenda est, quos sinceritas tua pro loco graduque militiae ibidem coerceri posse crediderit.

D. VIII k. Iul. Mediolani Constantio A. VIIII et Iuliano C. II conss.

[4] Imp. Iulianus A. ad Mamertinum pp. pr. Parhippum eum videri et habendum esse, si quis usurpato uno vel duobus veredis, quos solos evectio continebit, alterum tertiumve extra ordinem commoveat. 1. Nihil autem interesse debet nec ad crimen vocari, utrum agens in rebus suo anne mulionis itineris subiugando, modo[viii] evectionis datae formam et licentiam non excedat.

D. V id. Sept. Mamertino et Nevitta conss.

[5] Impp. Valentinianus et Valens AA. ad Symmachum correctorem Lucaniae et Brittiorum. Si quis per publicum cursum iter faciens cuiuscumque dignitatis vel militiae ab itinere recto deverterit, poena in eum competens proferatur.

D. VIII k. April. Mediolani Valentiniano et Valente AA. conss.

[viii] suo anne mulionis itineri subiungat (sc. veredum) dummodo seat of Your Sublimity, at whose disposal is the public post and the prerogative of traveling on it wherever the occasion may demand.

Posted February 15, in the consulship of Constantine Augustus, for the seventh time, and the Caesar Constantius (326).

[3][221] Emperor CONSTANTIUS Augustus to Taurus, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy and Africa). pr. Warrants for the public post (evectiones) shall be demanded from all, and neither the governors (iudices) nor the custodians of the public post should allow anyone to pass before inspecting the contents of the warrant. 1. If anyone thinks of resisting this and is found to be traveling without a warrant, or has attempted to use the public post beyond the time specified in the warrant, We order him to be detained whenever he was discovered, and if he is a man of rank (dignitate praeditus) his name shall be reported to Your Prudence and to the vir illustris Count and Master of Offices. But suitable punishment shall be immediately visited upon all others whom Your Sincerity believes, in consideration of their position and grade of service (pro loco graduque militiae), to be able to be punished there.

Given June 24, at Milan, in the consulship of Constantius Augustus, for the ninth time, and the Caesar Julian, for the second time (357).

[4][222] Emperor JULIAN Augustus to Mamertinus, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy, Africa, and Illyricum). pr. If a person who has appropriated one or two public post-horses (veredi), which alone are authorized by his warrant (evectio), should lay hold of a second or a third in excess of the prescribed number, (it is obvious that) such a horse appears to be and should be considered a supplementary horse (parhippus). 1. But it should not make any difference or be called a crime whether a courier (agens in rebus) adds such a horse for his own journey or for that of the groom, provided he does not exceed the express and implicit authority (forma et licentia) of the warrant issued to him.

Given September 9, in the consulship of Mamertinus and Nevitta (362).

[5][223] Emperors VALENTINIAN and VALENS Augusti to Symmachus, Governor (Corrector) of Lucania and Bruttium. If anyone, of whatever rank or branch of the imperial service (dignitas vel militia), travels by the public post and detours from the direct route, proper punishment shall be visited upon him.

Given March 25, at Milan, in the consulship of Valentinian and Valens Augusti (365).

[221] = C.Th. 8.5.8 (adding the Caesar Julian as author), 22. The date is corrected by Seeck to 356.
[222] = C.Th. 8.5.14.
[223] = C.Th. 8.5.25.

[6] Idem AA. et Gratianus A. ad Ampelium pu. pr. Evectionum copiam senatui, cum proficiscendi ad nos necessitas fuerit, serenitas nostra largita est, ita tamen, ut cum a nobis evocatur aut a clementiae nostrae veneratione discedat. 1. Si quis ergo posthac contra vetitum sibi cursum publicum illicita temeritate praesumpserit, motum in se nostrae mansuetudinis excitabit.

D. III id. Dec. Triveris Gratiano A. II et Probo conss.

[7] Idem AAA. ad Hesperium pp. pr. In omnibus provinciis veredorum pars quarta reparetur. 1. Stabula autem ut impensis publicis extruantur, contra rationem est, cum provincialium sumptu, in quorum locis stabula constituta sunt, citius arbitremur apparanda et utilius tam publico quam his, quos stercus animalium pro suo solacio habere concedimus.

D. III k. Mart. Triveris Gratiano A. IIII et Merobaude conss.

[8] Imppp. Valens Gratianus et Valentinianus AAA. ad Ausonium pp. Ut agendi itineris possit esse moderatio, deni veredi per dies singulos ex utraque parte dimittantur: poena quinque librarum auri minime defutura contra eos, qui statuta nostra neglexerint.

D. XII k. Mai. Triveris Valente VI et Valentiniano II AA. conss.

[9] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. Floro pp. pr. Iudicibus faciendae evectionis copiam denegamus, cum id tantum nostro numini et tuae sedi nec non viro illustri magistro officiorum sit reservandum, cum neque praefecto urbis neque magistris militum neque ducibus neque vicariis nec cuiquam alii praeter memoratas duas potestates hoc a nobis concessum sit. 1. His enim tantum ambulandi facultatem iudices ex suo arbitrio praebituri sunt, quos in transmissione publicarum functionum prosecutores viderint constitutos: scituri, si

[6][224] The same Augusti and GRATIAN Augustus to Ampelius, City Prefect (of Rome). pr. Our Serenity has lavished an abundance of warrants for the public post (evectiones) upon the Senate whenever it has been necessary for them to come to Us, whether it is summoned by Us or departs once it has paid its respects to Our Clemency. 1. If anyone, therefore, by impermissible indiscretion, presumes hereafter to use the public post contrary to law, he will spur Our Clemency into action against him.

Given December 11, at Trier, in the consulship of Gratian Augustus, for the second time, and Probus (371).

[7][225] The same Augusti to Hesperius, Praetorian Prefect. pr. A quarter of the post-horses shall be replaced (annually) in all of the provinces. 1. It is, moreover, unreasonable that the stables should be built at public expense since We suppose that they can be constructed more quickly at the expense of the provincials in whose territory they are situated. That is more advantageous to the Treasury as well as to those to whom We have granted the right of manure in the stables (stercus animalium) as compensation.

Given February 27, at Trier, in the consulship of Gratian Augustus, for the fourth time, and Merobaudes (377).

[8][226] Emperors VALENS, GRATIAN, and VALENTINIAN Augusti to Ausonius, Praetorian Prefect (of the Gauls). In order that there may be regularity in connection with traveling, ten post-horses shall be sent each day from each direction, and a penalty of 5 pounds of gold will scarcely be wanting from those who fail to comply with Our statute.

Given April 20, at Trier, in the consulship of Valens, for the sixth time, and Valentinian, for the second time, Augusti (378).

[9][227] Emperors GRATIAN, VALENTINIAN, and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Florus, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). pr. We deny governors (iudices) the prerogative of issuing warrants for the public post. This prerogative is reserved solely for Our Divine Majesty, for your office, and for the Master of Offices of illustris rank; and it is granted by Us neither to the Prefect of the City, to the Masters of Soldiers, to the Dukes, to the Vicars (vicarii), nor to anyone else apart from the two aforementioned officials (potestates). 1. Governors in accordance with their own judgment shall grant permission to travel only to those whom they see appointed as escorts (prosecutores) for the transportation of public

[224] = C.Th. 8.5.32. Combine with C.Th. 9.16.10.
[225] = C.Th. 8.5.34. The recipient was actually Proconsul of Africa.
[226] = C.Th. 8.5.35 (altered).
[227] = C.Th. 8.5.40. The date was corrected by Seeck to July 16, 382.

definitionem nostram excesserint, se quidem viginti quinque auri libris, officia vero quinquaginta esse multandos.

D. x k. Aug. Constantinopoli Antonio et Syagrio conss.

[10] Idem AAA. Philagrio comiti Orientis. Gravissimae poenae acerbitate proposita evectionum contractus, animalium quoque publicorum merces et ementis et distrahentis coercitione prohibemus.

PP. Beryto. d. XII k. Oct. Antonio et Syagrio conss.

[11] Idem AAA. Cynegio pp. Nullus evectione utatur privatus, tametsi valuerit impetrare.

D. VI non. Mart. Constantinopoli Ricomere et Clearcho conss.

[12] Impppp. Valentinianus Theodosius et Arcadius AAA. Cynegio pp. Quoniam veredorum quoque cura pari ratione tractanda est, sexaginta libras sella cum frenis, sexaginta itidem averta non transeat: ea condicione, ut, si quis praescripta moderaminis imperatorii libramenta transcenderit, eius sella in frusta caedatur, averta vero fisci viribus deputetur: exceptis auri centenariis, quae necesse est ab hippocomis in solitis sacculis reportari.

D. XV k. Iul. Constantinopoli Arcadio A. et Bautone conss.

[13] Idem AAA. Floro pp. pr. Non patimur hippocomos per eos qui veredis uterentur indigna spoliatione vexari, si quidem nonnulli veredarii saga eorum dicuntur auferre vel praecidere. 1. Quocirca per omnes iudices et curiosos miserabilis removeatur iniuria, scientibus cunctis, revenues (functiones), and they shall know that if they violate Our restriction they will be punished by a fine of 25 pounds of gold, and their official staff by a fine of 50 pounds.

Given July 23, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Antonius and Syagrius (382).

[10][228] The same Augusti to Philagrius, Count of the East. Under the bitterness of a most weighty punishment imposed as a threat on both purchasers and vendors, We prohibit contracts concerning warrants for the public post and also trade in public animals.

Posted at Beirut. Given September 20 in the consulship of Antonius and Syagrius (382).

[11][229] The same Augusti to Cynegius, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). No person in private station (privatus) shall make use of a warrant for the public post, even if he has succeeded in procuring one.

Given March 2, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Richomer and Clearchus (384).

[12][230] Emperors VALENTINIAN, THEODOSIUS, and ARCADIUS Augusti to Cynegius, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). Since the care of post-horses must be undertaken in like manner (as other property of the public post), the saddle and bridle shall not weigh more than 60 pounds; the saddlebag (averta) likewise. And it is provided that if anyone exceeds the weight limits fixed in this imperial regulation, his saddle shall be cut to pieces and his saddlebag assigned to the account of the Treasury,[231] excepting from this restriction, however, centenaria of gold (weighing 100 pounds), which must necessarily be carried back by the grooms (hippocomi) in the usual sacks.

Given June 17, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Arcadius Augustus and Bauto (385).

[13][232] The same Augusti to Florus, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). pr. We do not permit the grooms (hippocomi) to be vexed by shameful pilfering on the part of those who use post-horses, inasmuch as some of the horse couriers (veredarii) are said to be carrying off or tearing away their cloaks. 1. Such deplorable outrage must be stopped by all the governors (iudices) and the inspectors of the public post (curiosi), and all may know that if Our ordinance has not

228 = C.Th. 8.5.41.
229 = C.Th. 8.5.44.
230 = C.Th. 8.5.47.
231 C.Th. ends here.
232 = C.Th. 8.5.50. The name of the addressee is missing in C.Th.

quod, si observata non fuerit nostra sanctio, non solum damna resarcire, verum etiam notam et multam qui neglexerit subire cogetur.

PP. XV k. Iul. Triveris Valentiniano A. IIII et Neoterio conss.

[14] Idem AAA. Potamio praefecto Augustali. Publici cursus exhibitio secundum locorum consuetudinem vel curialibus vel cohortalibus debet committi vel his, qui suo periculo ab eminentissima praefectura sub competenti cautela excipiunt.

D. III k. Aug. Constantinopoli Arcadio A. II et Rufino conss.

[15] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Dextro pp. Si quis vel per unam mutationem veredum superducendum esse crediderit, in quadruplum superductorum animalium pretium fisci viribus inferat.

D. XV k. April. Mediolano Olybrio et Probino conss.

[16] Idem AA. Remistheo duci Armeniae. His tantummodo utendi cursus publici facultas concessa est, qui legati de diversis gentibus ad nostram clementiam properare festinant.

D. VI k. Mart. Constantinopoli Caesario et Attico conss.

[17] Idem AA. Vincentio pp. Nemo mulionem mutationibus deputatum vel per sollicitationem vel per receptionem subtrahere audeat, decem libras argenti poenae nomine reformidans inferre.

D. XII k. Mart. Mediolani Honorio A. IIII et Eutychiano conss.

[18] Idem AA. Messalae pp. Animalia publica, dum longe maiore ac periniquo pretio pabula aestimantur per mancipes atque apparitores, aperte vexantur. ne id contingat, sublimitas tua disponat, ut neque been obeyed, the violator will be compelled not only to pay the damages but also to suffer infamy and the payment of a fine.

Posted June 17, at Trier, in the consulship of Valentinian Augustus, for the fourth time, and Neoterius (390).

[14][233] The same Augusti to Potamius, Augustal Prefect. The maintenance of the public post must, in accordance with the custom of the places, be entrusted either to the decurions, or to the members of the provincial administration (cohortales), or to those who take it over, under proper guaranty and at their risk, from the most eminent prefecture.

Given July 30, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Arcadius Augustus, for the second time, and Rufinus (392).

[15][234] Emperors ARCADIUS and HONORIUS Augusti to Dexter, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy). If anyone believes he may use a post-horse in excess of the number authorized, even over merely the distance of one stage between two post-stations (per mutationem), he shall pay to the account of the Treasury fourfold the value of the misappropriated animals.

Given March 18, at Milan, in the consulship of Olybrius and Probinus (395).

[16][235] The same Augusti to Remistheus, Duke of Armenia. The privilege of using the public post has been conceded only to those persons who waste no time in hastening to Our Clemency as delegates (legati) of various nations (gentes).

Given February 24, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Caesarius and Atticus (397).

[17][236] The same Augusti to Vincentius, Praetorian Prefect (of the Gauls). Let no one dreading the prospect of paying 10 pounds of silver as a penalty dare to carry away a groom (mulio) assigned to the post-stations (mutationes), either by enticing him away or simply by receiving him.

Given February 18, at Milan, in the consulship of Honorius Augustus, for the fourth time, and Eutychianus (398).

[18][237] The same Augusti to Messal(l)a, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy and Africa). Public animals are plainly abused when feed is valued at a very high and unjust price by the post-conductors (mancipes) and their subordinates (apparitores).

233 = C.Th. 8.5.51 (altered).
234 = C.Th. 8.5.53 (altered).
235 = C.Th. 8.5.57.
236 = C.Th. 8.5.58 (altered).
237 = C.Th. 8.5.60. Combine with C. 2.14.1 and the other laws cited there.

pabula mutationibus desint, neque provinciales ultra quam iustitiae sinit ratio praegraventur.

D. v k. Dec. Stilichone et Aureliano conss.

[19] Idem AA. et Theodosius A. Septimino proconsuli Africae. pr. Comperimus provinciales et pabula et pecuniam pro equorum cursualium sollemni ratione conferre et extrinsecus etiam paraveredorum onere praegravari. 1. Provinciarum igitur rectores procurent, ne umquam cursus publicus veniat in querellam et occasio deceptionis curiales vel provinciales animalia indebita praestare compellat.

D. vii k. April. Ravennae Theodosio A. et Rumorido conss.

[20] Idem AAA. Anthemio pp. pr. Nemo ducum ingressus semel provinciam suam postmodum itineribus faciendis cursu atque angariis ipse sive suum utatur officium, sed expeditionem militarem iumentis propriis exsequantur. 1. De cohortalinis etiam officiis eadem lege sancimus, ne quis ex his per provinciam suam discurrens veredo uti conetur in posterum, cum sacra prohibitum sanctione cognoscant. 2. Quod si quis ducum vel apparitorum vel cohortalium temerario animo ea quae decernimus contemnenda putaverit, per singula animalia quibus usus fuerit singularum librarum auri illatione multabitur.

D. iiii non. Aug. Constantinopoli Honorio vii et Theodosio ii AA. conss.

[21] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Cyro pp. Nullus penitus cuiuslibet ordinis seu dignitatis vel sacrosancta ecclesia vel domus regia tempore expeditionis excusationem angariarum seu parangariarum habeat.

[22] Imp. Leo A. Pusaeo pp. pr. Cursum clavularem ab omni Orientali tractu nec non ab his civitatibus aliarum regionum, quarum instructio

In order that this may not happen, Your Sublimity must see to it that neither will feed be wanting at the post-stations nor will the provincials be burdened beyond what the reason of justice permits.

Given November 27, in the consulship of Stilicho and Aurelianus (400).

[19][238] The same Augusti and THEODOSIUS Augustus to Septiminus, Proconsul of Africa. pr. We have learned that the provincials are providing both fodder and money for the prescribed account of the horses of the public post and are furthermore weighed down by the burden of furnishing supplementary post-horses (paraveredi). 1. The governors (rectores) of provinces, therefore, will take care that the public post will never give reason for complaint, and that the occasion for fraud will not compel decurions or provincials to furnish animals that they do not owe.

Given March 26, at Ravenna, in the consulship of Theodosius Augustus and Rumoridus (403).

[20][239] The same Augusti to Anthemius, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). pr. No Duke, once he has entered his province, and none of his official staff (officium) shall thereafter use the public post(-horses) or the post-wagons (angariae) for making journeys, but they shall carry out their military mission (expeditio) with their own beasts of burden. 1. And with reference to the members of the provincial administration (cohortalina officia), We ordain by this law that none of them in traveling through his province shall hereafter attempt to use a post-horse (veredus) since they know that this is forbidden by imperial order. 2. If any Duke, or one of his subordinates (apparitores), or a member of the provincial administration should be so rash as to think what We decree to be contemptible, he shall be punished by a fine of one pound of gold for each animal so used.

Given August 2, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Honorius, for the seventh time, and Theodosius, for the second time, Augusti (407).

[21] Emperors THEODOSIUS and VALENTINIAN to Cyrus, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). No person, of whatever order or rank (ordo seu dignitas), nor the holy church, nor the (estates of the) imperial household shall be exempt from furnishing transport or supplementary transport (angariae seu parangariae) during the time of an expedition.

(440–441).

[22] Emperor LEO Augustus to Pusaeus, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). pr. We order that the heavy wagon post (cursus clavularis) shall be suspended and

[238] = C.Th. 8.5.64. Combine with C.Th. 13.1.19.
[239] = C.Th. 8.5.66.

tui culminis meminit, tolli amputarique decernimus, ita tamen, ut in transitu fortissimorum militum (quando nostra serenitas disposuerit ex aliis ad alia eos loca deduci, evectionesque animalium secundum consuetudinem a nostra fuerint aeternitate consecuti) et in armorum tam confectione[ix] quam translatione servata consuetudine, in profectione quin etiam legatorum animalium dominis, qui ea solent accepta mercede locare, praebenda pensio arcae tui culminis imputetur. 1. Tractorias videlicet animalium super memoratis causis nulli alii iudici, cuiuscumque sit dignitatis, nisi tuo tantummodo culmini faciendi licentiam patere decernimus.

[23] Imp. Anastasius A. Armenio pp. pr. Iubemus nemini licere cuiuscumque scholae vel officii vel militiae seu condicionis per totius Orientalis tractus partes ob quamcumque causam proficiscenti seu redeunti supra unum veredum unumque paraveredum, cum evectione tamen iudiciali, movere, nisi specialis ei praestita sit nostrae serenitatis quantitatem animalium continens evectio. 1. Exceptis procul dubio his, qui pecunias publicas devehunt, cum in hac parte sine nostra quoque speciali auctoritate tanta convenit animalia moveri, quanta transvehendae pecuniae summa et eius tuitio deposcit. 2. Quinquaginta librarum auri condemnatione his feriendis, quicumque nostra iussa quolibet modo seu tempore violaverint seu violare concesserint.

LI De Tractoriis et Stativis

[1] Imppp. Theodosius Arcadius et Honorius AAA. Rufino pp. pr. Tractoriae cum stativis solitis bidui tantummodo tempus accipiant. 1. Nulli vero penitus cum necessariis sibi personis praebeantur, nisi his abolished in the entire diocese of the East (Orientalis tractus) and in those cities of other regions mentioned in the recommendation (instructio) of Your Highness; provided, however, that the custom (consuetudo) is preserved when Our most stalwart soldiers are on a march – once Our Serenity has directed them to be transported from one place to another, and post warrants (evectiones) for the use of animals according to custom have been obtained from Our Eternity – and in the stockpiling and shipment of arms, and indeed in connection with the journey of embassies, the rent payable to the owners of animals who are accustomed to lease them out for an agreed price being debited to the treasury (arca) of Your Highness. 1. We decree that the prerogative of issuing post warrants with subsistence (tractoriae) for the use of animals for any of the above-mentioned purposes is open to no other magistrate of any rank whatever except only Your Highness.

[ix] Convectione

(467–468).[240]

[23] Emperor Anastasius Augustus to Armenius, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). pr. We order that no one of any department (schola) or official staff (officium) or branch of the imperial service (militia) or status (condicio) setting out or returning through any part of the diocese of the East (Orientalis tractus) is permitted to travel with more than one saddle horse and one supplementary pack-horse (veredus, paraveredus), and then only with an official post warrant (evectio), unless a special warrant of Our Serenity which specifies the number of animals has been issued to him. 1. Excepted herefrom, of course, are those who transport public revenues, since in such case it is proper that, without Our special authorization, as many animals be employed as the amount of money transported and its safety demands. 2. Whoever shall in any manner or at any time violate Our orders or permit them to be violated shall be punished by a fine of 50 pounds of gold.

(491–518).

Fifty-First Title Post Warrants for Travel with Subsistence and Lodging

[1][241] Emperors Theodosius, Arcadius, and Honorius Augusti to Rufinus, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). pr. Post warrants with subsistence (tractoriae), with the customary provision for lodging (cum solitis stativis),[242] shall limit the time to two days only. 1. No one at all, however, will be furnished with persons [240] Seeck gives c. 465 or 473.

[241] = C.Th. 8.6.2. The date is corrected by Seeck to September 10, 392; combine with C. 9.28.1 (= C.Th. 9.28.1).

[242] Tractoriae and stativae (sc. litterae) are documents authorizing official travelers to requisition meals and lodging at state expense, as distinct from simple post warrants (evectiones) authorizing only the right to travel by the public post.

tantummodo, qui animalia atque equos sacro usui necessarios prosequuntur: ita tamen, ut his dimissis in tractoriarum corpore quinque dierum numerus adscribatur, ut nullus ultra hoc temporis spatium ad residendum in quo libitum fuerit loco copiam nanciscatur.

D. VII k. Sept. Constantinopoli Arcadio A. II et Rufino conss.

LII De Apparitoribus Praefectorum Praetorio et Privilegiis Eorum

[1] Impp. Valentinianus et Valens AA. ad Mamertinum pp. Praefecturae cornicularios, qui annis singulis exeunt post transactos corniculos nostram adorare purpuram volumus: quo honore perfunctis, cum iam missionem tenuerint, liberum otium damus, ut ad susceptionem vel cuiuslibet necessitatis officium minime devocentur.

D. III k. Febr. Mediolani Valentiniano et Valente AA. conss.

[2] Idem AA. ad Zosimum praesidem Epiri novae. pr. Praefectianos ad perniciem provincialium exactionibus in provinciis vel potius lucris et quaestibus suis sese immiscere vetamus: praeterea vel horreorum gerere custodiam vel curarum ius atque arbitrium sibi praesumere his denegamus. 1. Horum si quis praesentis legis temerator existat, volumus eum competenti motu et indignatione percelli.

D. XIIII k. Dec. Mediolani Valentiniano et Valente IIII AA. conss.

[3] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Zoilo pp. pr. Cornicularii et primiscrinii, numerarii insuper, qui in officio tuae sublimitatis per ordinem obsequiis militiae terminatis desideratam laborum requiem sortiuntur, pro multis erga rem publicam sudoribus ab omnibus necessary for himself (i.e., attendants) apart from those persons who tend to the animals and horses necessary for imperial purposes; provided, however, that when these persons are dispatched a limit of five days is expressly written into the body of the post warrants, lest anyone seize the opportunity of lingering longer than that time at any place of his choosing.

Given August 26, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Arcadius Augustus, for the second time, and Rufinus (392).

Fifty-Second Title Subordinate Officials of the Praetorian Prefect, and Their Privileges

[1][243] Emperors VALENTINIAN and VALENS Augusti to Mamertinus, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy, Africa, and Illyricum). It is Our wish that the Department Heads (cornicularii) of the prefecture who retire each year shall, after their term of office has expired, adore Our purple; and We grant to persons who have fulfilled that honor an undisturbed leisure once they have received their discharge (missio), so that they shall not be drafted for the collection of taxes (susceptio) or the performance of any public obligation (necessitas).

Given January 30, at Milan, in the consulship of Valentinian and Valens Augusti (365).

[2][244] The same Augusti to Zosimus, Governor of New Epirus. pr. We forbid members of the official staff of the Praetorian Prefect (praefectiani) to involve themselves in the collection of taxes in the provinces – or, rather, in gain and profit for themselves – to the detriment of the provincials. We further prohibit them from exercising supervision (custodia) over state warehouses or arrogating for themselves the authority and functions of the inspectors of the public post (curarum ius atque arbitrium).[245] 1. If any of these persons should be found to be a violator of the present law, We desire that he be punished with proper force and outrage.

Given November 18, at Milan, in the consulship of Valentinian and Valens, for the fourth time, Augusti (373).

[3][246] Emperors THEODOSIUS and VALENTINIAN Augusti to Zoilus, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). pr. The Department Heads (cornicularii) and the First Assistant Heads (primiscrinii) as well as the Chief Accountants (numerarii) who complete the duties of their service in the regular order in the official staff of Your Sublimity and obtain a desired rest from their labors shall, as a reward

243 = C.Th. 8.7.8. Combine with C.Th. 12.1.70.
244 = C.Th. 12.10.1 (altered). Seeck gives November 18, 364.
245 See also C. 12.22.2 (in curis agendis).
246 Combine with C. 12.36.6.

indictionibus tam militarium quam civilium iudicum semper habeantur immunes, et civilium tantum iudicum, non etiam militarium iurisdictioni subiaceant.

1. Huic sanctioni addendum esse censemus, ut, si quis praefectianus dum militat vel post depositum cingulum sine testamento quod legibus comprobatur nullisque ab intestato successoribus derelictis fati munus impleverit, omnes eius patrimonii facultates provisione magnificae tuae sedis non fisci viribus, sed arcae tui culminis rationibus vindicentur.

2. Scriniariis autem exceptoribus ceterisque, qui in officio tui culminis merent, cum in legione prima adiutrice nostra militant, audientiam tantummodo in causis in quibus pulsantur tuae celsitudinis deputamus. in provinciis vero commorantes rectoribus earum eos respondere iubemus, nisi publicum officium aliquod eis iniunctum sit.

LIII De Apparitoribus Praefecti Urbis

[1] Impppp. Gratianus Valentinianus Theodosius et Arcadius AAAA. ad Principium pp. Praeter eos, qui de officio eminentium potestatum numero stipendiorum et curriculis evolutis urbique praefect*i* serenitatis nostrae annis singulis attingere purpuram venerarique praecepti sunt, nulli prorsus eorum, qui provincialia officia peregerunt, tranquillitatis nostrae muricem adorare sit liberum, omnium suffragiorum obreptione cessante.

D. XIIII k. Oct. Aquileiae Arcadio A. et Bautone vc. conss.

[2] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Palladio pp. Quicumque illustris urbanae sedis apparitor clandestina fraude pistorem concusserit, accusatus atque convictus perpetuis paneficii nexibus addicatur.

for their many efforts in behalf of the state (res publica), always be considered exempt from the imposition of all public obligations (indictiones) by military or civil judges, and they shall be subject only to the jurisdiction of civil, but not of military, judges.

1. We think it right to add to this law that, if any member of the official staff of the Praetorian Prefect (praefectianus), either during his time in the imperial service or after he lays his belt of office (cingulum) aside, discharges his obligation to fate without a legally valid will and without leaving successors upon intestacy, all of the wealth of his inheritance shall be claimed by the prescience of the office of Your Magnificence not for the account of the Treasury (fiscus) but for the accounts of the treasury (arca) of Your Highness.

2. We reserve, moreover, for the accountants (scriniarii), shorthand writers (exceptores) and others employed on the official staff of Your Highness, because they serve in Our First Assistant Legion (Legio I Adiutrix), a hearing exclusively before Your Highness in cases in which they are sued. If they sojourn in the provinces, however, We order them to answer in the courts of the provincial governors (rectores) unless some public duty has been assigned to them.

(444).[247]

Fifty-Third Title Subordinate Officials of the City Prefect

[1][248] Emperors Gratian, Valentinian, Theodosius, and Arcadius Augusti to Principius, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy). Aside from those who have completed the number of their terms of service and the regular pattern of advancement on the official staff of the Eminent authorities (potestates; i.e., the Praetorian Prefects and the Masters of Soldiers) and of the City Prefect and who have been directed each year to touch and venerate the purple of Our Serenity, none of those who are employed on the provincial staffs shall be at liberty to adore the purple of Our Tranquility, and the insidious effect of all forms of influence (suffragia) shall cease.

Given September 18, at Aquileia, in the consulship of Arcadius Augustus and Bauto (385).

[2][249] Emperors Honorius and Theodosius Augusti to Palladius, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy, Africa, and Illyricum). Any subordinate official (apparitor) of the City Prefect, a person of illustris rank, who has extorted money from a baker by a clandestine fraud, shall, when accused and convicted, be condemned to belong forever to the bakers' trade.

[247] Seeck dates to February 26, 444.
[248] = C.Th. 8.7.16.
[249] = C.Th. 14.3.22. Combine with C.Th. 14.4.9.

D. VII k. Ian. Ravennae Honorio A. XI et Constantio II vc. conss.

LIIII De Apparitoribus Magistrorum Militum et Privilegiis Eorum

[1] Impp. Valentinianus et Valens AA. ad Artemium correctorem. Qui sese in officiis magistrorum equitum ac peditum militare monstraverint, ab omni nominationis iniuria excusentur.

D. XIII k. Oct. Aquileiae. acc. XV k. Nov. Salerni divo Ioviano et Varroniano conss.

[2] Idem AA. ad Mamertinum pp. Qui in officio magistrorum equitum ac peditum militiam sortiti sunt, ordinis sint militaris.

[3] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Cyro pp. Probari apparitores magisteriae potestatis neque curiales neque cohortales neque censibus volumus adscriptos.

D. prid. non. Mart. Constantinopoli Cyro vc. cons.

[4] Idem AA. Apollonio magistro militum praesentali et Anatolio magistro militum per Orientem. pr. Numerarios virorum illustrium magistrorum militum tam praesentalium quam orientalium qui ordine stipendiis militiae fuerint decorati, exeuntes tribunis praetorianis partis militaris sudoribus eorum beneficium deferentes sociari praecipimus: ita videlicet, ut post completam militiam ab omnibus indictionibus tam militarium quam civilium iudicum semper habeantur immunes. 1. Principatus vero munere functos tribunis vigilum militaribus volumus adgregari.

Given December 26, at Ravenna, in the consulship of Honorius Augustus, for the eleventh time, and the vir clarissimus Constantius, for the second time (417).

Fifty-Fourth Title Subordinate Officials of the Masters of Soldiers, and Their Privileges

[1][250] Emperors VALENTINIAN and VALENS *Augusti to Artemius, Governor (corrector) (of Lucania and Bruttium).* Whoever shows that they are serving on the official staffs of the Masters of Cavalry and Infantry shall be exempt from the annoyance of any nomination (for a compulsory public service).

Given September 19, at Aquileia; received October 18, at Salerno, in the consulship of the blessed Jovianus and Varronianus (364).

[2][251] The same Augusti to Mamertinus, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy, Africa, and Illyricum). Persons who join the imperial service on the official staff of the Masters of Cavalry and Infantry belong to the military order (ordo militaris).

(364–365).

[3][252] Emperors THEODOSIUS and VALENTINIAN Augusti to Cyrus, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). We want subordinate officials (apparitores) of the Master of Soldiers (magisteria potestas) to be proven to be neither decurions, nor members of the provincial administraton (cohortales), nor enrolled tenants (censibus adscripti).

Given March 6, at Constantinople, in the consulship of the vir clarissimus Cyrus (441).

[4][253] *The same Augusti to Apollonius, Master of Soldiers in the Imperial Presence (magister militum praesentalis), and to Anatolius, Master of Soldiers in the East.* pr. We direct that the Chief Accountants (numerarii) of the Masters of Soldiers in the Imperial Presence and in the East, persons of illustris rank, who have been distinguished by reason of their precedence (ordo) and their terms of service (stipendia militiae), shall upon their retirement be associated with the Praetorian Tribunes of the army (pars militaris), receiving this as the reward of their labors; accordingly, after their service has been completed they shall always be considered exempt from the imposition of all public obligations (indictiones) by military or civil judges. 1. We desire, moreover, that those persons who have discharged the duties of the office of Chief of Staff (principatus munus) shall be grouped with the military tribunes of the watches (vigiles).

(January 28, 443?).

250 = C.Th. 8.3.1. Combine with C.Th. 6.35.6.
251 = C.Th. 12.6.6(?). Seeck dates to April 18, 365; Schmidt-Hofner, to March 18, 365.
252 = Nov. Theod. 7.4.2. Combine with C. 7.62.33.
253 The date is restored conjecturally by Seeck.

[5] Imp. Anastasius A. magistris militum. Eos, qui in officiis vestris merentes statutorum tantummodo numero inserti sunt, fori praescriptione muniri, ceteros vero, qui supra huiusmodi numerum militare noscuntur, quasi nec militantes et apud illustrissimas praefecturas et apud clarissimos provinciarum rectores de quolibet pulsari et conveniri et sine cinguli praescriptione respondere negotio sancimus.

LV De Apparitoribus Proconsulis et Legati

[1] Imppp. Valentinianus Theodosius et Arcadius AAA. ad Flaccianum proconsulem Africae. Officio, quod tuis meritis obsecundat, non curialem quemquam nec ex ceteris corporibus volumus adgregari: ac si qui erunt inter apparitores huiusmodi, restitui eos debitis muniis mox iubemus.

D. non. Oct. Constantinopoli Theodosio A. III et Abundantio conss.

[2] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Victorio proconsuli Africae et Dominatori vicario Africae. Apparitioni tuae et legatorum quadringentos censuimus deputandos de his dumtaxat, quos sibi esse detractos rei publicae membra non queruntur.

D. XII k. Iun. Mediolani Honorio A. IIII et Eutychiano conss.

[3] Idem AA. Messalae pp. In proconsulari provincia officium proconsulare postulet, quod exigere consuevit, nec alienis se partibus impudenter inserat.

D. III k. Oct. Altino Theodoro vc. cons.

[5] Emperor ANASTASIUS Augustus to the Masters of Soldiers. We ordain that only those employed on your official staffs who are included within the complement of established officials (statuti) shall be protected by the right to object to the jurisdiction in which a suit is brought against them (praescriptio fori),[254] while the others who know that they serve as supernumeraries shall be sued and summoned anywhere, as though not in the imperial service (quasi nec militantes), before both the Most Distinguished Prefects (illustrissimae praefecturae) and the provincial governors of clarissimus rank, and must answer the matter without right to object to the jurisdiction, which is conferred by the holding of the belt of office.

(491–518).

Fifty-Fifth Title Subordinate Officials of a Proconsul and a Legate

[1][255] Emperors VALENTINIAN, THEODOSIUS, and ARCADIUS Augusti to Flaccianus, Proconsul of Africa. We desire that no decurion nor member of any other corporate body belong to the official staff that serves Your Excellency; and if any such persons are among your subordinates We order them immediately to be restored to their own duties.

Given October 7, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Theodosius Augustus, for the third time, and Abundantius (393).

[2][256] Emperors ARCADIUS and HONORIUS Augusti to Victorius, Proconsul of Africa, and to Dominator, Vicar of the Diocese of Africa. To your staff of subordinates and that of the legates We have decided that 400 persons ought to be assigned, but only from among those whom the citizens of a muncipality (rei publicae membra) do not protest at having been withdrawn from them.

Given May 21, at Milan, in the consulship of Honorius Augustus, for the fourth time, and Eutychianus (398).

[3][257] The same Augusti to Messal(l)a, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy and Africa). The proconsular official staff in a proconsular province may demand what it has been accustomed to exact, but must not impudently interfere in other areas.

Given September 29, at Altinum, in the consulship of the vir clarissimus Theodorus (399).

[254] For what follows, compare Nov. Theod. 7.4.1.
[255] = C.Th. 1.12.4.
[256] = C.Th. 1.12.6.
[257] = C.Th. 1.12.7. Combine with C. 12.58.2(?); C.Th. 11.7.15, 14.15.6 (= C. 11.23.3.1). The date is corrected to September 28, 400, by Seeck

LVI De Apparitoribus Comitis Orientis

[1] Imppp. Theodosius Arcadius et Honorius AAA. Rufino pp. Orientis. In officio comitis Orientis non amplius quam sescenti apparitores habeantur, quos quidem publicis necessitatibus novimus abunde suppetere.

D. III k. Ian. Heracliae Arcadio III et Honorio II AA. conss.

LVII De Cohortalibus Principibus Cornicularis et Primipilaribus

[1] Imp. Constantinus A. edicto suo ad Afros. Omnes stationarii neque superexactionem audeant neque carcerem habeant, neve quis personam licet pro manifesto crimine apud se habeat in custodia, sciens quod, si quid tale fuerit commissum, capite puniendus est.

PP. VI id. Mai. Karthagine Constantino A. IIII et Licinio IIII conss.

[2] Impp. Constantius et Constans AA. ad Taurum pp. pr. Nullus iudicum quemquam sine sacra probatoria probare audeat vel provehere. 1. Excipimus tamen officia provincialia cursus publici sollicitudinem sustinentia: nec enim tanto muneri adminiculum denegari publica permittit utilitas.

D. VI k. Iun. Mediolani. acc. VIII id. Iul. Datiano et Cereale conss.

[3] Impp. Valentinianus et Valens AA. Festo consulari Syriae. Solita cohortalibus Syriae privilegia, quae a divo Diocletiano porrecta sunt atque concessa, nos quoque porreximus ac iubemus eos non ad sollicitudinem

Fifty-Sixth Title Subordinate Officials of the Count of the East

[1][258] Emperors THEODOSIUS, ARCADIUS, and HONORIUS Augusti to Rufinus, Praetorian Prefect of the East. No more than 600 assistants (apparitores) shall be employed on the official staff of the Count of the East, a number which We know to be amply sufficient for public needs.

Given December 30, at Heraclea, in the consulship of Arcadius, for the third time, and Honorius, for the second time, Augusti (394).

Fifty-Seventh Title Members of the Provincial Administration, Chiefs of Staff, Department Heads, and Quartermasters-General

[1][259] Emperor CONSTANTINE Augustus in his edict to the Africans. Military police (stationarii) should not dare to impose any surcharges, nor maintain a prison, nor should any of them hold a person in custody under his control even for a manifest crime, knowing that if he has done anything of the kind he will be punished with death.

Posted May 10, at Carthage, in the consulship of Constantine Augustus, for the fourth time, and Licinius, for the fourth time (315).

[2][260] Emperors CONSTANTIUS and CONSTANS Augusti to Taurus, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy and Africa). pr. None of the governors (iudices) shall dare to appoint or promote anyone without an imperial certificate of appointment (probatoria). 1. We make an exception, however, in the case of the provincial office staffs who have charge of the public post. For the public welfare does not permit the denial of support to a compulsory public service (munus) of such magnitude.

Given May 27, at Milan; received July 8 in the consulship of Datianus and Cerealis (358).

[3][261] Emperors VALENTINIAN and VALENS Augusti to Festus, Governor (consularis) of Syria. The customary privileges extended and granted to the members of the provincial administration (cohortales) of Syria by Diocletian of blessed memory, We have likewise extended; and We order that they shall not be drafted to take charge of the haulage of public freight (bastaga) or to [258] = C.Th. 1.13.1. Combine with C.Th. 8.4.18, 12.1.139. The date is corrected to May 30; Seeck had May 20.

[259] = C.Th. 8.4.2 (altered).
[260] = C.Th. 8.7.7. The date of issue is corrected to December 27, 356, by Seeck.
[261] = C.Th. 8.4.11.

bastagae, non ad functionem navicularíam devocandos, non invitos curialibus coetibus adscribendos, verum peracto labore militiae, pastus primipili competenti sedulitate functione transacta praerogativam his recusationis offerimus.

D. VI non. Oct. Valentiniano et Valente AA. conss.

[4] Idem AA. et Gratianus A. ad Probum pp. Officia rectorum provinciarum tuae magnificentiae litteris volumus admoneri, ut susceptos in officio proprio vel probatos cohortium nomine legionumve privilegiis aestiment inserendos.

D. XVI k. Iun. Modesto et Arintheo conss.

[5] Idem AAA. Modesto pp. pr. Quicumque per Osdroenam primipilarium maiore laetatur numero filiorum, unum loco suo veluti hereditario iure substituat, alterum pro amore patriae Edessenae curiae tradat obsequiis, ceteris quam voluerit militiam provisurus. sin autem duos tantum procreaverit, cohorti satisfacere cogatur et curiae. quod si unum procreaverit, eundem ordini patriae restituat, nullo contra hanc formam beneficio valituro. 1. Damus sane licentiam tam patribus eorum quam ipsis, qui huius legis auctoritate civitatum obsequio adgregantur, ut, si quos curiales patrocinio principalium invenerint excusari, in medium proferant, ut et ipsi similibus officiis deputati pareant impetratis.

D. III non. Dec. Antiochiae post consulatum Gratiani A. III et Equitii vc.

[6] Impppp. Gratianus Valentinianus Theodosius et Arcadius AAAA. ad Neoterium pp. pr. Si apparitor diffugerit criminosus, edictum, quo revocari possit, adiecta condicione legibus subsequatur: cui nisi fuerit satisfactum, merito in latitantem a iudice pro qualitate peccati sententia public duties as members of the guild of shippers (navicularia functio), nor shall they be enrolled in the curial assemblies against their will. We assuredly grant them the privilege of refusing these obligations, once their work in the imperial service is complete and they have discharged the duties of the office of quartermaster-general for provisions (pastus primipili) with due diligence.

Given October 2, in the consulship of Valentinian and Valens Augusti (365).

[4][262] The same Augusti and GRATIAN Augustus to Probus, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy, Africa, and Illyricum). We want the official staffs of the governors (rectores) of the provinces to be admonished by letters of Your Magnificence that they should determine that those who are accepted or approved for their own staff must be enrolled in the name of the cohorts and admitted to the privileges of the legions.

Given May 17, in the consulship of Modestus and Arintheus (372).

[5][263] The same Augusti to Modestus, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). pr. Any of the quartermasters-general (primipilares) in Osrhoene who rejoices in a great many sons may substitute one of them into his own place, as if by hereditary right; he may deliver another one, for love of his homeland, to perform duties in the municipal council (curia) of Edessa; and he may arrange for the others whatever imperial service may please him. But if he has sired only two sons, he shall be obliged to satisfy both the cohort (in which he serves) and the council. If he has sired one son he shall restore him to the curial order (ordo) of his homeland, and no special favor (granted him) shall avail against this general ordinance. 1. We, of course, allow their fathers as well as the sons themselves who by the authority of this law are assigned to (curial) duty in cities, if they find that any decurions have been excused by the patronage of the leading members of the council (principales), to let this be known so that those decurions, having been assigned to comparable duties, may obey the orders effected for them.

Given December 3, at Antioch, in the post-consulate of Gratian Augustus, for the third time, and the vir clarissimus Equitius (375).

[6][264] Emperors GRATIAN, VALENTINIAN, THEODOSIUS, and ARCADIUS Augusti to Neoterius, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy). pr. If a subordinate official who has committed a crime should flee, the edict by which he may be recalled shall follow with terms specified in accordance with the laws. If he fails to make [262] = C.Th. 8.4.12. Combine with C.Th. 12.1.78. This constitution was probably posted (not given) on May 16.

[263] = C.Th. 12.1.79.

[264] = C.Th. 8.4.15.

proferatur. 1. Veniam enim talibus non permittimus nec indulgentiis crimina sublevamus.

D. prid. id. Iun. Mediolani Arcadio A. et Bautone conss.

[7] Imppp. Valentinianus Theodosius et Arcadius AAA. Tatiano pp. pr. Ordinariorum iudicum apparitores, qui vel speculatorum vel ordinariorum attigerint gradum, nullo annorum numero, nulla stipendiorum contemplatione laxentur, priusquam primipili pastum digesta ratione compleverint. 1. Quod si ante debitum locum, qui huic functioni habetur obnoxius, vel aegri corporis labem vel defessae senectutis extrema ad impetrandam quietem crediderit praetendenda, non prius otio condonetur, quam omne quod primipilo debetur expenderit. 2. Eos etiam, qui pro sceleribus suis soluto militiae cingulo addicuntur infamiae, ne integro peculio sub hac occasione laetentur, ita condignae ultioni volumus subiacere, ut functioni quoque, quae extrema militiae debetur, nihil ex eorum facultatibus subtrahatur.

D. III non. Mai. Mediolani Timasio et Promoto conss.

[8] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Euthymio vicario Asiae. Speciebus primipilaribus adaerandis eadem pretiorum taxatio servetur, quae in venalibus publicis poterit reperiri.

D. V k. Mart. Constantinopoli Arcadio IIII et Honorio III AA. conss.

[9] Idem AA. Clearcho pp. Illyrici. pr. Per Illyricum, in quo plurima ac maxima necessitatum publicarum emolumenta officiis constat praesidalibus expediri, centeni numero singulis iudicibus obsecundent: nec ultra hunc modum vel ad militiam ullus adspiret vel coniventia iudicum perseveret. 1. Adhibendi autem sunt ad huiusmodi ministeriorum satisfaction, sentence commensurate with the quality of his offense shall fittingly be passed upon the fugitive by the judge. 1. For We grant no pardon to such persons nor encourage crimes by indulgence.

Given June 12, at Milan, in the consulship of Arcadius Augustus and Bauto (385).

[7][265] Emperors VALENTINIAN, THEODOSIUS, and ARCADIUS Augusti to Tatianus, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). pr. Subordinates of the provincial governors (ordinarii iudices) who have reached the (senior staff) rank of either speculator or ordinarius shall not be released (from duty) by any number of years nor in consideration of their terms of service (stipendia) until they have completed the duties of the office of quartermaster-general (pastus primipili) and rendered their account. 1. But if any person subject to that duty should suppose, before he fills that compulsory position, that he may allege the prostration of a sickened body or the extremities of tottering old age in favor of obtaining rest, he shall not be rewarded with leisure until he has paid all that he owes to the office of quartermaster-general. 2. We desire also that those who have been deprived of the belt of the imperial service (cingulum militiae) and have been adjudged infamous on account of their crimes, lest they make this the occasion of enjoying their property (peculium) undisturbed, shall be visited by so well-deserving a punishment that none of their property (facultates) shall be exempted from responsibility for the discharge of that obligation which is the last they owe to the imperial service.

Given May 5, at Milan, in the consulship of Timasius and Promotus (389).

[8][266] Emperors ARCADIUS and HONORIUS Augusti to Euthymius, Vicar of the Diocese of Asia. In commuting supplies under the control of the quartermasters-general (species primipilares) into money, the same valuation shall apply as may be found for goods offered for sale in the public markets.

Given February 26, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Arcadius, for the fourth time, and Honorius, for the third time, Augusti (396).

[9] The same Augusti to Clearchus, Praetorian Prefect of Illyricum. pr. In Illyricum, where it is well known that the greatest and largest yields of public revenues (necessitates) are exacted by the official staffs of the provincial governors (officia praesidalia), a staff of 100 persons shall serve under each governor (iudex). No one beyond this number shall aspire to the imperial service or remain there with the connivance of the governors. 1. Those who would fraudulently pursue vast personal gains in the name of the imperial service

[265] = C.Th. 8.4.16.
[266] = C.Th. 8.4.19.

obsequia non illi, qui vano militiae nomine immania lucra sectentur, sed qui necessitatem officii sollicitudinibus debitis exsequantur.

[10] Idem AA. et Theodosius A. Anthemio pp. Quicumque ad chartas vel tabulas vel quodcumque aliud ministerium cohortalis optaverit, non ante accedere permittatur, nisi eius nomen matriculis receptum primitus fuerit: poena proposita his, qui contra statuta caelestia crediderint suscipiendos aliquos aut quodlibet eis officium iniungendum.

D. XVI k. April. Constantinopoli Honorio VII et Theodosio iterum AA. conss.

[11] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Anthemio pp. Si quis ex grege cohortalinorum urguente criminis insectatione stipendiis fuerit exemptus, aut otio traditus quietis artibus immoretur, aut si ad pristina sacramenta precum miseratione maluerit repedare, indultum nostrae maiestatis oraculum amplissimae tuae sedi offerat adlegandum.

D. XIII k. Mart. Constantinopoli Honorio X et Theodosio VI AA. conss.

[12] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Isidoro pp. pr. Si cohortalis apparitor aut obnoxius cohorti ad ullam adspiraverit dignitatem, spoliatus omnibus impetrati honoris insignibus ad statum pristinum revocetur: liberis etiam in tali eius condicione susceptis fortunae patriae mancipandis. 1. Quod si quis ex his ausus fuerit ullam adfectare militiam, nulla praescriptione temporis muniatur praeter eam scilicet, quae ex quadraginta annis colligitur: sed ad condicionem propriam retrahatur, ne ipse vel eius liberi post talem ipsius statum procreati quod cohorti debetur valeant declinare. 2. Sed nec ad aliam cohortalinus vel cohortalini filius audeat adspirare fortunam, cui maiorum suorum must not be employed for services in this sort of administration, but instead persons who perform the duties of the staff with due diligence.

(402–407).

[10][267] The same Augusti and Theodosius Augustus to Anthemius, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). Whoever may aspire to keep records (chartae) or accounts (tabulae), or to perform any other function of the provincial administration (ministerium cohortalis), shall not be permitted to obtain such a position unless his name has first been accepted on the register. A punishment is fixed for those who suppose that any persons might be accepted or any official duty assigned to them contrary to imperial (caelestia) statutes.

Given March 17, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Honorius, for the seventh time, and Theodosius, for the second time, Augusti (407).

[11][268] Emperors Honorius and Theodosius Augusti to Anthemius, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). If any member of the provincial administration (ex grege cohortalinorum) has been discharged from the service on account of prosecution for a crime, he must either devote himself to leisure and immerse himself in quiet pursuits, or if he would prefer to return to his former sworn duties by inspiring pity with his imprecations, he must lay before the office of Your Eminence an imperial enactment (oraculum) obtained as an act of grace (indultum) of Our Majesty.

Given February 17, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Honorius, for the tenth time, and Theodosius, for the sixth time, Augusti (415).

[12][269] Emperors Theodosius and Valentinian Augusti to Isidorus, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). pr. If a subordinate official in the provincial administration (cohortalis apparitor) or anyone obligated to join the provincial administration has obtained any position of rank (dignitas), he shall be deprived of all the insignia of the honor he has attained and recalled to his former position; his children, too, born while he is of that status (condicio), are bound to their father's fate. 1. And if anyone of such status has ventured to aim at any (higher) position in the imperial service, he shall be protected by no lapse of time (praescriptio temporis) – except, that is to say, one acquired by a span of forty years; but he shall be sent back to his own station in life, so that neither he nor his children born while he is in that condition may decline the duties that they owe to the provincial administration. 2.[270] Nor may any member of the provincial administration (cohortalinus) or his son dare to aspire to any

[267] = C.Th. 8.4.20.

[268] = C.Th. 8.4.26. The date is corrected to February 17, 406, by Seeck.

[269] The pr. and §1 = C.Th. 8.4.30. Combine with C. 10.32.55 (= C.Th. 12.1.188), C.Th. 12.1.187. C.Th. adds that the law was copied to Eubulus as Praetorian Prefect of Illyricum.

[270] Section 2 = C.Th. 8.4.28.

exempla praeiudicant. 3. Sed etiam cunctos, qui diversarum rerum negotiationibus detinentur, trapezitas scilicet vel gemmarum argentique vestiumve venditores, apothecarios etiam ceterosque institores aliarum mercium quibuscumque ergasteriis adhaerentes iubemus a provincialibus officiis removeri, ut omnis honor atque militia contagione huiusmodi segregetur.

D. III non. April. Constantinopoli Isidoro et Senatore conss.

[13] Idem AA. Thomae pp. pr. Nullum ex primipilaribus, nullum ex principe cohortalis officii vel ad aliam posse militiam adspirare vel ministeriis sibi contra publicam utilitatem blandiri vel ad quamlibet aliam dignitatem ad praeiudicium praeteriti status accedere concedimus. 1. Quod si contra hanc tam saluberrimam formam vel responsa caelestia quaedam militia aut dignitas audacter eliciatur, pro ingestis haberi, etiamsi speciali adnotatione nostrae indulgentiae eam obtinuisse videatur, nec adsertionem ei quoquo modo patere, qui se memoratis artibus publicae studet commoditati subtrahere, sed statim civitatis unde oriundus est curiae tradi praecipimus.

[14] Imp. Leo A. Constantino pp. pr. Quisquis cohortalibus adhuc obsequiis obligatus vel regimen provinciae vel cingulum cuiuslibet militiae dignitatisve quoquo modo meruit, ante omnia contra licitum usurpatis impetratisve careat, etiamsi ultronea nostra liberalitate ius gerendae provinciae vel militiae seu dignitatis cuiuspiam sibi iactaverit fuisse delatum. 1. Dehinc universis solaciis condicionis quam spreverat defraudatus, ne quid eorum omnino per se vel interpositam personam possit adquirere, primipili tantum munus implere cogatur: mox curialibus civitatis, in qua natus est, in diem vitae suae functionibus condition (fortuna) other than that to which the precedents of their forebears have destined them. 3. So, too, We order persons engaged in various trades, such as money-changers, vendors of gems, silver, or clothing, shopkeepers (apothecarii), and vendors of other merchandise, no matter to what workshop they belong, to be excluded from all provincial office staffs, so that every honor and the imperial service may be insulated from contamination of this kind.

Given April 3, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Isidorus and Senator (436).

[13][271] The same Augusti to Thomas, Praetorian Prefect (of the East?). pr. We permit no former quartermaster-general, no former Chief of Staff of the provincial administration (nullus ex principe cohortalis officii), to aspire to any other (position in the) imperial service, or flatter himself with responsibilities (ministeria) contrary to the public interest, or attain any other official position of rank (dignitas) to the detriment of his former status. 1. But if any position in the imperial service or official position of rank is audaciously obtained contrary to this most beneficial ordinance or to imperial (caelestia) rescripts, We order it to be regarded as invalid (pro ingestis), even if it appears to have been validated by a special annotation (adnotatio) of Our Generosity, nor will a claim to this effect be available in any way to a person who devotes himself to working against the public welfare through the aforementioned trickery, but he shall be immediately delivered over to the municipal council (curia) of the city where he was born.

(442?).

[14][272] Emperor Leo Augustus to Constantinus, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). pr. Should anyone as yet obliged to perform the duties of the provincial administration (cohortalia obsequia) obtain the governorship (regimen) of a province, or the belt (cingulum) of any branch of the imperial service, or an official position of rank (dignitas) in any way, he shall above all be deprived of what has been unlawfully usurped and obtained, even if he boasts that his entitlement to the governorship, the imperial service, or some position of rank has been voluntarily conferred through Our generosity. 1. He shall, moreover, be deprived of all emoluments of the status (condicio) which he spurned; lest he be able to obtain any of them at all personally or through a third person, he shall be compelled to fill only the compulsory duties of the office of quartermaster-general (primipili munus). He shall thereafter be assigned to the curial responsibilities of the city in which he was born for the remainder of his life. Accordingly, even those who have attained any kind of position in the imperial [271] The date is corrected to 436–450. Seeck gives February 25, 442.

[272] pr. = C. 1.40.14 (given August 7, which Seeck prefers here as well).

inhaesurus, ita scilicet, ut etiam ii, qui post impletam talem militiam quodlibet militiae dignitatisve genus adfectaverint, curiae patriae suae restituantur.

D. VI k. Ian. Constantinopoli Leone A. IIII et Probiano conss.

LVIII De Apparitoribus Praefecti Annonae

[1] Imppp. Valens Gratianus et Valentinianus AAA. Rufino pu. Apparitores urbanae praefecturae annonario officio se non inserant, sed apparitorum aemulatione secreta ministerio suo annonae praefectura fungatur.

D. III id. Iul. Valente A. V et Valentiniano iuniore conss.

[2] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Messalae pp. Praefectus annonae canonem, qui ad officium suum pertinet, per compulsores suos exigat, et cum officio suo retineatur obnoxius, qui ad implendum canonem devotionis suae exactionem non ostenderit.

LVIIII De Diversis Officiis et Apparitoribus Iudicum et Probatoriis Eorum

[1] Imppp. Valentinianus Valens et Gratianus AAA. ad Severum magistrum militum. Si quando praefectus praetorio vel vicarius aut rector provinciae significaverit eum, qui chartis ac ratiociniis publicis invenitur obnoxius, ad praepositturam castri ac militum transisse, retractus illi adsignetur officio, a quo ad necessitatem praestandi ratiocinii devocatur: in reiecti vero locum is potissimum destinetur, cui meritorum adstipulentur insignia.

D. X k. Ian. Gratiano A. II et Probo conss.

service or official position of rank, and have completed such service, shall be restored to their native municipal council.

Given December 27, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Leo Augustus, for the fourth time, and Probianus (471).

Fifty-Eighth Title Subordinate Officials of the Prefect of the Food Supply

[1][273] Emperors VALENS, GRATIAN, and VALENTINIAN Augusti to Rufinus, Praetorian Prefect. The subordinate officials of the City Prefecture shall not interfere with the official staff of the Prefecture of the Food Supply (annonarium officium), but the rivalry among subordinates shall be eliminated and the Prefecture of the Food Supply shall discharge its own responsibilities.

Given July 13, in the consulship of Valens Augustus, for the fifth time, and the younger Valentinian (376).

[2][274] Emperors ARCADIUS and HONORIUS Augusti to Messal(l)a, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy and Africa). The Prefect of the Food Supply shall collect the taxes pertaining to his office through his own collectors of arrears (compulsores), and together with his official staff he will be held liable if he cannot show that the exaction of His Devotion was made so as to obtain the taxes due.

(399?).

Fifty-Ninth Title Various Official Staffs and Subordinate Officials of Magistrates and Their Certificates of Appointment

[1][275] Emperors VALENTINIAN, VALENS, and GRATIAN Augusti to Severus, Master of Soldiers. If the Praetorian Prefect, Vicar, or governor (rector) of a province shall at any time indicate that someone who is found to be obligated to (the offices of) public records and public accounts (chartis ac ratiociniis publicis obnoxius) has (instead) gone over to assume the position of commandant (praepositura) of a military camp and soldiers, he shall be dragged back and assigned to the official staff by which he is being drafted for the duty of keeping an account. In the place of the one who has been expelled should far better be assigned the person who has signal merits on his side.

Given December 23, in the consulship of Gratian Augustus, for the second time, and Probus (371).

[273] = C.Th. 1.6.7. Combine with C. 1.28.3. The recipient was actually City Prefect of Rome.

[274] Possibly combine with C. 12.55.3 (= C.Th. 1.12.7); C.Th. 11.7.15, 14.15.6 (etc.). These constitutions were given on or about September 28, 400, which Seeck prefers here.

[275] = C.Th. 8.7.11, the subscript of which adds that it was "issued to all Masters of Soldiers, Counts, and Dukes."

[2] Impp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. ad Eusignium pp. Nullus ex his, quos claruerit militia resolutos, indebita denuo sacramenta sine augustis adfatibus suscipiat. si quis autem id per obreptionem forte meruerit, quinque librarum auri multetur incommodo.

D. prid. id. Iul. Mediolani Honorio np. et Euodio conss.

[3] Idem AAA. ad Eusignium pp. pr. Nullus apparitor amplitudinis tuae vel de officiis palatinis ad eam provinciam, ex qua oriundus est vel in qua collocaverit larem, vel qui iam in huiusmodi officio fuerit commoratus, obtentu publicae necessitatis vel exsecutor privati negotii dirigatur. 1. Etenim officii celsitudinis tuae primiscrinius tres libras auri fisci utilitatibus sine dilatione persolvet, si statuta fuerint temerata: apparitor vero, qui huic se muneri passus est deputari, militia spoliabitur.

2. Haec vero poena etiam ceteris inrogata est, ut, si domesticus aut protector, strator vel agens in rebus vel palatinus utriusque officii vel ad eandem provinciam, in qua natus est, vel ad eam, in qua collocarit larem, cum huiusmodi usurpatione perrexerit, matriculis quidem exemptus ipse, qui se voluit mitti, auri libram unam fisci viribus inferre cogetur, adiutores vero officiorum palatinorum ac numerarii comitum illustrium virorum sive actuarii libram fisci viribus solvant, nisi statuta fuerint custodita.

D. III non. Dec. Mediolani Honorio np. et Euodio conss.

[4] Imppp. Theodosius Arcadius et Honorius AAA. Silvano duci et correctori limitis Tripolitani. Qui vel exiguam rei familiaris substantiam habent, militare in apparitorum numero non vetentur.

D. VI k. April. Constantinopoli Theodosio A. III et Abundantio conss.

[2][276] Emperors Gratian, Valentinian, and Theodosius Augusti to Eusignius, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy and Illyricum). No person whom the imperial service has acknowledged as having been released therefrom shall again assume sworn duties (sacramenta) which are unowed without imperial assent. Anyone who perchance has surreptitiously done so shall be punished by a fine of 5 pounds of gold.

Given July 14, at Milan, in the consulship of Honorius, Most Noble Boy, and Euodius (386).

[3][277] The same Augusti to Eusignius, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy and Illyricum). pr. No subordinate (apparitor) of Your Magnificence or from the staffs of palatine officials (i.e., the palatini of the Imperial Benefactions [largitiones] and Privy Purse [res privata]) shall be sent into the province in which he was born or in which he has taken up residence, or (in which) he has already sojourned on official duties of some kind, either on the pretext of public necessity or as a court clerk (exsecutor) in connection with a private suit. 1. The First Assistant Head (primiscrinius) of the official staff of Your Highness must, without delay, pay 3 pounds of gold into the accounts of the Treasury if this order is violated, and the subordinate who permitted himself to be assigned to such duty shall be discharged from the imperial service.

2. This punishment is to be visited upon the others as well, so that if a member of the Household garrison and guards (domesticus aut protector), an inspector of horses (strator), a courier (agens in rebus), or a member of either palatine staff should proceed with some such illicit purpose to the same province in which he was born or to that in which he has taken up his residence, he himself, who was willing to be sent, shall be stricken from the register and compelled to pay a pound of gold into the account of the Treasury; moreover, the principal assistants (adiutores) of the palatine staffs and the chief accountants (numerarii sive actuarii) of the Counts (of the Imperial Benefactions and of the Privy Purse) of illustris rank shall pay a pound of gold to the accounts of the Treasury if these regulations are not obeyed.

Given December 3, at Milan, in the consulship of Honorius, Most Noble Boy, and Euodius (386).

[4][278] Emperors Theodosius, Arcadius, and Honorius Augusti to Silvanus, Duke and Governor (corrector) of the Border of Tripolitania (limes Tripolitanus). Persons who have negligible private property should not be forbidden to enter the imperial service in the ranks of subordinate officials (apparitores).

Given March 27, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Theodosius Augustus, for the third time, and Abundantius (393).

[276] = C.Th. 8.7.18.
[277] = C.Th. 8.8.4.
[278] = C.Th. 12.1.133.

[5] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Graccho pu. Quicumque apparitores ob culpam vel neglegentiam fuerint iudicato discincti, ad nullam militiam adspirandi habeant facultatem: nec ex rescripto his ullus aditus reseretur, quos congruit poenae gravissimae subiugari, si contra inhibita quoque sacratissimis constitutis adspirare contempserint.

D. VIII k. Aug. Ravennae Honorio X et Theodosio VI AA. conss.

[6] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Hierio pp. pr. In his officiis, id est virorum spectabilium proconsulis Asiae comitis Orientis praefecti Augustalis et vicariorum, quos etiam monuimus sub viginti interminatione librarum auri, nemo aliter admittatur, nisi eum emissa ex sacris scriniis probatoria consecrarit. 1. Quod si quis talis sub tua fuerit iudicatione convictus, profecto irritis his quae vetita contrectavit etiam congruam indignationem incurret.

D. X k. Iul. Nicomediae Theodosio XII et Valentiniano II AA. conss.

[7] Idem AA. Anatolio magistro militum. Ad splendidioris militiae privilegia, posteaquam priorem continuo labore compleverint, eos venientes admittimus, qui ea voto adipiscendi honoris crediderint expetenda, non eos, qui studio exercendae cupiditatis ambierint, ut velut in meliore fortuna positi aut ea scelera quae prius commisisse doceantur occultent aut alia deinceps possint impune committere.

[8] Imp. Leo A. Iohanni magistro officiorum. Viros spectabiles duces eorumque apparitores nec non limitaneos castrorumque praepositos

[5][279] Emperors Honorius and Theodosius Augusti to Gracchus, City Prefect (of Rome). Subordinate officials who have been deprived of the belt of their office by conviction on account of wrongdoing or negligence shall not have the opportunity of seeking entry into any branch of the imperial service. Not even by a rescript shall any entrance be unlocked for persons who ought rightly to be visited with a most weighty punishment, if they do not shrink from seeking that which has also been prohibited by these most imperial enactments.

Given July 25, at Ravenna, in the consulship of Honorius, for the tenth time, and Theodosius, for the sixth time, Augusti (415).

[6][280] Emperors Theodosius and Valentinian Augusti to Hierius, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). pr. Unless a certificate of appointment (probatoria) issued from the imperial bureaus (sacra scrinia) sanctions him, no person shall be admitted to the official staffs of the Proconsul of Asia, the Count of the East, the Augustal Prefect, and the Vicars, each of spectabilis rank, whom We have also admonished under a threat of 20 pounds of gold. 1.[281] If any such person shall be convicted by your judgment, his unlawful acts shall immediately be void, and he shall also bring appropriate displeasure down upon himself.

Given June 22, at Nicomedia, in the consulship of Theodosius, for the twelfth time, and Valentinian, for the second time, Augusti (426).

[7][282] The same Augusti to Anatolius, Master of Soldiers (in the East). We offer preferment to those ascending to the privileges of a more distinguished branch of the imperial service, once they have completed their previous appointment with unstinting effort, who believe that those privileges are worth seeking due to a longing for the attainment of honor, but not to those who strive after them with the object of gain, so that were they placed in a more powerful position they would hide the crimes they had previously learned to commit or would later be able to commit other crimes with impunity.

(438–443).

[8][283] Emperor Leo Augustus to John, Master of Offices. We direct that the Dukes of spectabilis rank and their subordinates (apparitores), as well as the border troops (limitanei) and the commandants (praepositi) of the camps, shall be summoned only by order of the tribunal of Your Sublimity and shall not be subject to the jurisdiction of other judges – reserving, however, to the Magnificent Masters of Soldiers of illustris rank the customary authority

[279] = C.Th. 8.7.20.
[280] pr. = C.Th. 8.7.21.
[281] Section 1 = C. 12.49.7.1.
[282] The date is restored conjecturally by Seeck to January 28, 443.
[283] Compare C. 12.5.3, 12.25.3.

tantummodo ex sublimis tui iudicii sententia conveniri nec aliis subiacere iudicibus praecipimus: illustribus scilicet ac magnificis viris magistris militum consuetudine ac potestate, si qua ad limites aliquos Orientis Thraciarum et Illyrici ex longo tempore hactenus obtinuit, reservata.

[9] Idem A. Hilariano magistro officiorum. pr. Probatorias memorialium et agentium in rebus, ceterorum nihilo minus apparitorum praetorianae per Orientem amplissimae praefecturae, eorum etiam, qui in diversorum iudicum officiis numerantur, ex sacris probatoriis solito more militiae sacramenta sortiri decernimus, non passim nec licenter solis auctoritatibus vel sacrarum litterarum exemplaribus: sed ex authenticis tantum sacris probatoriis manu nostra subscriptis et nostro arbitrio praestandis, ita ut nullus his dolus aut fraus possit adnecti, de his etiam, qui sunt verae et catholicae fidei, iubemus admitti. 1. Aliter vero militantes, nisi ex his sint, quos solis auctoritatibus apparitioni adgregari vetusta consuetudo perdocuit, detecta fraude cuiuscumque accusandi studio non solum mendaci carere militia, sed etiam proscriptionis stilum subire decernimus et bonorum omnium amissione multamus.

[10] Idem A. Erythrio pp. pr. Hac sanctione decernimus, ut in posterum nemini licentia sit edendi exemplaria his, qui sociandi sunt cuicumque militiae, quam sine divinis probatoriis adipisci non possunt, sed periculo primatum uniuscuiusque officii ipsas authenticas sacras, quae divinam nostrae pietatis continent adnotationem, cum subscriptione administrantium, sub quorum iurisdictione consistunt, his qui militare volunt praestari: exemplaribus videlicet earum cum subscriptione eorundem iudicum apud singula quoque officia, prout convenit, reservandis.

1. Quamvis autem manifestum sit de huiusmodi probatoriarum observatione excepta esse certorum iudicum officia, tamen ne ullius (potestas) established long before now on some of the borders of the Dioceses of the East, of Thrace, and of Illyricum.

(467–470).

[9][284] The same Augustus to Hilarianus, Master of Offices. pr. We order that the certificates of appointment (probatoriae) of clerks in the imperial bureaus (memoriales), of couriers (agentes in rebus), of others including not least the subordinates (apparitores) of the most magnificent Praetorian Prefecture of the East, and also of those enrolled on the official staffs of the various magistrates (iudices) – that by (such) imperial certificates of appointment shall appointments in the imperial service (sacramenta militiae) be obtained in the customary manner, and not indiscriminately and arbitrarily or pursuant solely to (magisterial) authority (auctoritates) or copies (exemplaria) of imperial letters; but only by authentic imperial certificates of appointment subscribed by Our own hand and granted at Our discretion, so that no deception or fraud can be connected therewith. We likewise order only persons who profess the true and catholic faith to be admitted.

1. We decree that persons in the imperial service under other conditions – unless they are among those persons whom ancient custom has permitted to be joined to the ranks of subordinate officials (apparitio) pursuant solely to (magisterial) authority – shall, when the fraud is detected, on the initiative of any accuser, not only be ousted from the fraudulently obtained imperial service, but shall also suffer the sentence of banishment, and We (also) punish them by the loss of all of their property.

(470?).

[10][285] The same Augustus to Erythrius, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). pr. We determine by this decree that no one shall hereafter have permission to issue copies (exemplaria; i.e., of certificates of appointment) to those who are to be associated with any (position in) the imperial service that cannot be obtained without imperial certificates of appointment (probatoriae); but, at the peril of the senior members (primates) of every official staff, the authentic imperial certificates themselves, containing the imperial annotation of Our Piety together with the signature of the magistrates (administrantes) under whose jurisdiction they stand, shall be delivered to those desiring to enter the imperial service. Copies thereof, with the signature of the same magistrates (iudices), are to be preserved by each official staff, as is proper.

1. Since it is well known, however, that the staffs of certain magistrates (iudices) are exempted from the foregoing rule as to certificates of appointment, [284] Possibly combine with C. 1.23.6 (given March 27, 470), 12.19.10. Seeck gives this date here as well.

[285] The dates are restored.

ignorantiae relinquatur occasio, omnium officiorum, quibus necesse est per sacras probatorias militiae sociari, notitiam in sacris apicibus subdendam esse censuimus. 2. Sub hac igitur observatione omnes, qui sive in hoc sacro palatio nostro sive in aliis quibuscumque officiis deinceps militare cupiunt, qui tamen, ut dictum est, non possunt pro tenore sacrarum constitutionum vel vetere consuetudine nisi praecedentibus sacris probatoriis militiae sociari, sicut subnexa notitia demonstrat, adipisci praecipimus: scientibus his, qui ex aliqua parte praesentis nostrae serenitatis legis formam conìventia vel neglegentia quadam colludere temptaverint, non tantum amissione bonorum omnium, sed etiam capitis periculo utpote criminis falsitatis obnoxios semet esse plectendos.

3. Et est notitia. Scrinii memoriae probatoriae agentium in rebus, palatinorum largitionum, palatinorum rerum privatarum partis Augustae.

4. Item scrinii sacrarum epistularum sic: in officiis virorum illustrium praefectorum praetorio Orientis et Illyrici et urbis, officii proconsulum Asiae et Achaiae, officii praefecti Augustalis, officii comitis Orientis, officii comitis divinarum domorum, officii vicariorum Thraciae Ponti Asiae et Macedoniae et thesauriensium classis.

5. Item scrinii sacrorum libellorum: officii virorum illustrium magistrorum militum utriusque militiae in praesenti, Orientis et Illyrici, invitatorum, admissionalium, memorialium omniumque paedagogorum, cellariorum, mensorum, lampadariorum eorum, qui sacris scriniis deputati sunt, decanorum partis Augustae, cursorum partis Augustae, officii virorum spectabilium ducum Palaestinae, Mesopotamiae, novi limitis Phoenices, Osrhoenae, Syriae et Augustae Euphratensis, Arabiae et Thebaidis, Libyae, Pentapoleos, utriusque Armeniae, utriusque Ponti, Scythiae, Mysiae primae, secundae, Daciae, Pannoniae, officii virorum spectabilium comitum Aegypti, Pamphyliae, Isauriae, Lycaoniae et Pisidiae.

We have thought it best, lest the occasion of any want of knowledge remain, to append to these imperial decrees a schedule of all those official staffs for which it is necessary to be associated with the imperial service by means of imperial certificates of appointment. 2. In accordance with this regulation, therefore, We direct that all persons who hereafter desire to serve in this Our imperial palace or on any official staff whatsoever, but who, as has been said, are unable to be associated with the imperial service unless, in conformity with the tenor of imperial constitutions or with established custom, imperial certificates of appointment are forthcoming, must obtain appointment in the manner prescribed by the appended schedule. Such persons should be aware that those who by any connivance or negligence attempt in any way to evade the general norm (forma) of the present law of Our Serenity will be punished not only by the loss of their goods, but also by capital punishment as though guilty of forgery.

3. And the schedule is as follows: The bureau of memorials (scrinium memoriae) (issues) the certificates of appointment of couriers (agentes in rebus), the palatine officials of the department of Imperial Benefactions, and the palatine officials of the Privy Purse of the Empress.

4. Likewise the bureau of imperial letters (scrinium sacrarum epistularum) (issues the certificates of appointment) for the official staffs of the Praetorian Prefects of the East and of Illyricum, and of the City Prefect, each of illustris rank; of the Proconsuls of Asia and of Achaea, of the Augustal Prefect, of the Count of the East, and of the Count of the Imperial Household (comes divinarum domorum); of the Vicars of Thrace, of Pontus, of Asia, and of Macedonia; and of the depot officials (thesaurenses) of the fleet.

5. Likewise the bureau of imperial petitions (scrinium sacrorum libellorum) (issues the certificates of appointments) for the official staffs of the Masters of Soldiers of both Infantry and Cavalry in the Imperial Presence, of the East, and of Illyricum, each of illustris rank; of the invitation-officers (invitatores), the ushers (admissionales), of the clerks of the imperial bureaus (memoriales), all of the pages (paedagogi), of porters ([can]cellarii), of quartering masters (mensores), of the lampkeepers (lampadarii) assigned to the imperial bureaus, of the doorkeepers (decani) of the empress, and of the couriers (cursores) of the empress; for the official staffs of the Dukes of Palestine, of Mesopotamia, of the new frontier of Phoenicia, of Osrhoene, of Syria and Augusta Euphratensis, of Arabia and the Thebaid, of Libya, of Pentapolis, of both provinces of Armenia (i.e., Armenia I and II), of both provinces of Pontus (i.e., Pontus Polemoniacus and Helenopontus), of Scythia, of Moesia Prima, of Moesia Secunda, of Dacia, and of Pannonia, each of spectabilis rank; and for the official staffs of the Counts of Egypt, of Pamphylia, of Isauria, of Lycaonia and Pisidia, each of spectabilis rank.

(471–472?).

LX De Exsecutoribus et Exactoribus

[1] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. ad provinciales et ad proconsules. Ne per diversas provinciarum partes aut palatinus exactor accederet aut illustrium virorum apparitor vagaretur vel militaris terror inferret formidinem, hac lege sancimus, ut omnis memoratis intentio ad provinciae rectorem sit, cum eo agant, illo insistente disponente et agnoscente suo periculo rem peragant et impleant universa.

D. XVII k. Iul. Mediolani Olybrio et Probino conss.

[2] Idem AA. Andromacho pp. Quicumque e palatio nostro cuiuslibet tituli ad provincias commeaverit compulsor exactor admonitor portitorve praecepti, agens in rebus vel palatinus vel apparitor illustrium potestatum, hoc tantum potestatis adripiat, quod mandatum curae suae specialiter approbatur, nec quod iniunctum alteri fuit collegii iure praesumat, ne, dum hoc sibi invicem mutui officii licentia partiuntur, agant cuncti, quod singulis credebatur.

D. prid. id. Iul. Mediolani Olybrio et Probino conss.

[3] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Palladio pp. pr. Sive ex praetoriano officio sive illustris comitivae sedis largitionum nec non et rei privatae nostrae vel ex quacumque apparitione ad quamcumque necessitatem profligandam quis fuerit destinatus, sciat intra anni metas debere collectis ratiociniis ad proprium iudicem remeare eique suam efficaciam ostendere, quid eius instantia exactum fuerit quidve in debitis habetur vel penes quos resederit vel cuius culpa aut causa in eadem provincia fuerit derelictum. 1. Quod si exacto spatio anni eius regionis visceribus praedator insidens deprehensus fuerit remorari, tunc absolutus cingulo militia abicietur, primoribus eius militiae decem librarum

Sixtieth Title Court Clerks and Tax Collectors

[1][286] Emperors ARCADIUS and HONORIUS Augusti to the provincials and to the Proconsuls. Lest a palatine official (of the Imperial Benefactions [largitiones] or the Privy Purse [res privata]) enter into the different parts of the provinces as a tax collector (exactor); or a subordinate (apparitor) of officials of illustris rank (of the Praetorian Prefecture, e.g.) roam around therein; or military terror instill fear therein: We ordain by this law that all the exertions of the aforementioned officials shall be directed to the governor (rector) of the province; they shall deal with him while he presses them on and arranges their efforts and acknowledges that they conduct their business and accomplish everything at his peril.

Given June 15, at Milan, in the consulship of Olybrius and Probinus (395).

[2][287] The same Augusti to Andromachus, Praetorian Prefect. Anyone who is dispatched from Our palace into the provinces in any capacity – be it as a collector of arrears (compulsor), tax collector (exactor), dunning agent (admonitor), or bearer (portitor) of an order; whether he is a courier (agens in rebus), a palatine official (of the Imperial Benefactions [largitiones] or the Privy Purse [res privata]), or the subordinate (apparitor) of officials of illustris rank (of the Praetorian Prefecture, e.g.), shall claim only the authority (potestas) which can be shown to have been assigned specifically as a matter of his concern; nor shall he presume, by right of collegiality, to do anything enjoined upon another, lest all might undertake what has been entrusted to specific persons as they share it out with one another in turn on the pretext of their mutual duty.

Given July 14, at Milan, in the consulship of Olybrius and Probinus (395).

[3][288] Emperors HONORIUS and THEODOSIUS Augusti to Palladius, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy, Africa, and Illyricum). pr. If any person has been dispatched from the official staff of the Praetorian Prefect, or from the office of the Count of the Imperial Benefactions of illustris rank, or that of Our own Privy Purse, or from any of the ranks of subordinate officials (apparitio) to collect any public obligation (necessitas), he is advised that within a year he must return with the collected accounts to his superior and report to him what he has accomplished, (i.e.,) what has been collected on his initiative, what remains in arrears, who is in arrears, and by whose fault and cause a delinquency had arisen in that province. 1. But if he is found to have remained after the passing of a year, preying upon the vitals of this region like a vulture, he shall be deprived of the belt of his office (cingulum) and expelled from the imperial service, and the senior

[286] = C.Th. 8.8.6.
[287] = C.Th. 8.8.7. Combine with C.Th. 2.12.6, 7.12.3. The recipient was actually City Prefect of Rome; Seeck corrects the date to July 6, 395.
[288] = C.Th. 8.8.9.

auri multa proposita. 2. Si redire dissimulet, per vices officiorum ligatus ferreis nexibus cura provincialis officii ad debitum mittatur examen nec ei liberum sit, ut hoc se privilegio aut occasione defendat, quod sibi aliud negotium vel aliam necessitatem post iniunctam esse causetur, cum isdem licentiam auferamus in eadem provincia continuare exactionem.

D. x k. Oct. Ravennae Theodosio A. VII et Palladio conss.

[4] Idem AA. Iohanni pp. Nullam possessionem alterius pro alienis debitis publicis sive privatis praecipimus conveniri.

D. v id. Iul. Ravennae Honorio XIII et Theodosio x AA. conss.

[5] Impp. Theodosius et Valentinianus AA. Volusiano pp. Contra nostra praecepta si quisquam vetito ausu exsecutor audebit, licebit provinciae moderatori eundem correptum ad sublimitatis tuae iudicium sub prosecutione dirigere, licebit provinciali, etsi probatur obnoxius, exsecutoris contra vetitum exactionem sibi vindicantis temeritatem legitime repellere.

D. III k. Mart. Ravennae post cons. Felicis et Tauri vv. cc.

[6] Imp. Zeno A. Arcadio pp. pr. Sancimus, ut eum, cui ex iudicio tui culminis quocumque modo sive studio numerariorum aut tractatorum vel ipsorum iussu, qui pro tempore amplissimae tuae sedis administrationem suscipiunt, exactio publicarum pecuniarum iniungatur, minime prius liceat aliam sollicitudinem gerendam suscipere, antequam reversus iniunctae sibi causae responsum praebuerit. 1. Si tamen ita sors tulerit, ut in ea provincia, ad quam exsequendi causa publici negotii aliquis proficiscitur, alia quoque causa sit exsequenda, non prohiberi unum eundemque exsecutorem ab hac urbe regia proficiscentem duorum simul, non plurium negotiorum exsecutionem suscipere, dum ipsi quoque tertii negotii non sit iniungendi, antequam superioribus responsum portaverit.

members (primores) of that branch of the imperial service shall pay a fine of 10 pounds of gold. 2. If he neglects to return, he shall be bound with iron chains by agents of the official staff and sent in the charge of the provincial officials to the proper tribunal; nor shall he be permitted to defend himself by the privilege or pretext that another transaction or duty was entrusted to him later, because We deprive these same persons of the prerogative of carrying out consecutive exactions in the same province.

Given September 22, at Ravenna, in the consulship of Theodosius Augustus, for the seventh time, and Palladius (416).

[4][289] The same Augusti to John, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy). We decree that the property of one person cannot be the object of a suit for the public or private debts of another.

Given July 11, at Ravenna, in the consulship of Honorius, for the thirteenth time, and Theodosius, for the tenth time, Augusti (422).

[5][290] Emperors THEODOSIUS and VALENTINIAN Augusti to Volusianus, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy and Africa). If with forbidden intrepidity a court clerk (exsecutor) dares to do anything contrary to Our orders, the governor (moderator) of the province is authorized to seize him and send him under escort to the tribunal of Your Sublimity, and a provincial is authorized lawfully to reject the effrontery of a court clerk who attempts to claim for himself an exaction contrary to Our prohibition, even if the provincial is proven to be liable (for the obligation).

Given February 27, at Ravenna, in the post-consulate of the viri clarissimi Felix and Taurus (429).

[6][291] Emperor ZENO Augustus to Arcadius, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). pr. We ordain that if a person is in any manner charged with the collection of public revenues by order of Your Highness or at the desire of the chief accountants (numerarii) or financial managers (tractatores) or at the behest of those who for the time being carry on the administration of your most magnificent office, he shall not at all be permitted to undertake any other assignment until he has, upon his return, rendered a full account of the matter (first) enjoined upon him. 1. If it should turn out, however, that in the province to which a person goes for the purpose of carrying out some public business another matter also needs attention, it is not forbidden to charge one and the same court clerk (exsecutor) who is setting out from this imperial city to undertake to carry out two transactions, but no more; he must not take charge of any additional transaction until he has reported on the others.

289 = C.Th. 8.8.10. Combine with C. 4.4.1 and the other laws cited there. 412 is a possible alternate date.
290 = C.Th. 12.6.32.2. Combine with C. 10.72.15; C.Th. 11.1.35.
291 Possibly combine with C. 12.49.10. The date is corrected to 490.

2. Exsecutoribus his, qui secundam, si non simul duas, vel etiam tertiam causam passi fuerint exsequendam suscipere, non solum cinguli et bonorum suorum amissionem, verum etiam perpetui exsilii supplicium subituris. 3. Eandemque hanc poenam numerarium quoque et eius adiutores, ad quorum curam quod violatum est pertinet, formidare.

[7] pr. Πᾶς ἄνθρωπος εἴτε θείαν κέλευσιν εἴτε ἀρχικὴν πρόσταξιν ἐκβιβάζων ὀφείλει πρότερον ἐμφανίσαι τῷ ἄρχοντι, ἵνα ὁ ἄρχων ἐξετάσῃ, εἰ μηδεμία πλαστοῦ αἰτία ἐστὶν ἐν αὐτοῖς ἢ κατὰ συναρπαγὴν ἢ ἐναντιούμενον νόμοις. 1. Ὁ δὲ ἐκβιβασμὸς καὶ ἐγγράφως καὶ ἀγράφως γίνεται, δηλονότι τῶν θείων λογίων προκειμένων καὶ πάντων τῶν κτητόρων τῶν παρόντων ἅμα αὐτῷ τὴν ἐξέτασιν ποιουμένων.

2. Καὶ εἰ συνίδοι, παρέχει βοήθειαν· ἐὰν δὲ ἢ πλαστὸν εὕρῃ φανερῶς ἢ νόμῳ ἐναντιούμενον φανερῶς, δεῖ αὐτὸν μὴ ἐκβιβάζειν, ἀλλ' ἀναφέρειν εἰς βασιλέα διὰ τοῦ μαγιστριανοῦ, ἢ εἰς αὐτὴν τὴν ἀρχήν, ἐξ ἧς τὸ πρᾶγμα ἐγίνετο, τὸν δὲ ἐκβιβαστὴν ὑπὸ ἀσφάλειαν ποιεῖν τὴν ἐγχωροῦσαν, καὶ τὰ πρόσωπα δὲ τὰ αἰτιασθέντα ὑπὸ προσωπικὴν ἀσφάλειαν ἀζημίως· ὁ γὰρ ἐγχειρίσας αὐτῷ τὸ ἀζήμιον περιποιήσει, εἴπερ εὑρεθείη μάτην αὐτῷ ἐγχειρίσας. 3. Εἰ γὰρ μὴ τοῦτο γένηται, ὁ μὲν ἐκβιβαζόμενος ἀπωθεῖται τὸν ἐκβιβασμόν· ὁ δὲ ἄρχων, εἰ πρὸς αὐτὸν ἡ κέλευσις γέγονεν, ἢ καί τις ἕτερος ἴσως πρός τινα ἕτερον ἐγένετο, ὑπὸ ἀσφάλειαν ὀφείλει ποιῆσαι τὸν ἐκβιβαστὴν τὴν ἐγχωροῦσαν. 4. Εἰ δὲ καὶ δυνηθείη τις ἀπωθήσασθαι τὸν ἐκβιβασμόν, ὀφείλει μανθάνων ὁ ἄρχων ἀποστῆσαι τὸν ἐκβιβαστήν, ποιεῖν δὲ ὑπὸ ἀσφάλειαν προσωπικὴν τὸν αἰτιασθέντα καὶ μηνύειν. 5. Εἰ δὲ ῥαθυμήσῃ τούτου ἢ ὁ ἄρχων ἢ ἡ τάξις αὐτοῦ ἢ πρὸς ὃν τὸ γράμμα γέγονεν, οἴκοθεν τῷ ὑπομνησθέντι ποιήσει τὸ ἀζήμιον καὶ ἐν ὅσῳ ἄρχει καὶ μετὰ τὸ παύσασθαι τῆς ἀρχῆς. 6. Ὑπεξαιρεῖ δὲ ἡ διάταξις τοὺς προφάσει δημοσίων ἐνεχομένους. 7. Εἰ δὲ λήμματος ἡττηθέντες οἱ ἄρχοντες μὴ ποιήσωνται τὴν ἐξέτασιν προκειμένων τῶν ἁγίων λογίων, ἢ καὶ παρίδωσι, καὶ εἰς χρήματα ζημιοῦνται καὶ ἐκβάλλονται τῆς ἀρχῆς καὶ εἰς σωτηρίαν κινδυνεύουσι.

8. Πᾶς δὲ νόμος ἐμφανιζόμενος ὀφείλει πρότερον γίνεσθαι τοῖς ἐπάρχοις καταφανής, τὸν δὲ διακομίζοντα αὐτὸν εἰς τὴν ἐπαρχίαν λαμβάνειν χρυσίνους ἕξ, τὸν δὲ ἄρχοντα σπουδάζειν διὰ προστάξεων οἰκείων πάσαις ταῖς πόλεσι ταῖς ὑφ' ἑαυτὸν φανεροὺς καθιστᾶν τοὺς νόμους, ἀζημίως παντελῶς μηδὲ τοῦ ἄρχοντος μηδὲ τῶν ἐκδίκων μηδὲ τοῦ διακομίζοντος.

2. Court clerks (exsecutores) who permit themselves to undertake a second transaction, or two at the same time, or even a third transaction (contrary hereto), shall experience not only the loss of the belt of their office (cingulum) and their property but shall also suffer the penalty of perpetual exile. 3. The same punishment is to be feared by the chief accountant (numerarius) and his principal assistants (adiutores) in whose charge is the matter which has been violated.

(485–486).

[7][292] pr. Whoever carries out an imperial command or an order of a magistrate must first bring it to the attention of the governor, so that the latter may determine that it is no forgery, was not surreptitiously obtained, and is not contrary to law. 1. This may be accomplished either with or without writing, in the presence, certainly, of the divine scriptures, and with all of the landowners who are present participating in the investigation with him.

2. If he finds everything in proper order, the governor shall render assistance; but if he finds it to be incontrovertibly forged or patently contrary to law, he must not carry it out but refer it to the Emperor through an official or to the same magistrate from whom the matter originated, requiring the court clerk meanwhile to give proper surety and the persons against whom the demand is made to give personal surety without expense. For the court clerk must indemnify the latter, if he is found to have summoned him without just cause. 3. If this is not done, the person summoned may refuse the summons. For the governor to whom the order is directed, and similarly anyone else to whom it may be directed, must cause the court clerk to give suitable surety. 4. But although anyone may refuse the summons, the governor, once he has learned of it, is nevertheless obligated to call the court clerk away, to cause the person from whom the demand is made to give personal surety, and to report the matter. 5. And if the governor or his official staff, or the person to whom the order is directed, shall neglect this, he shall indemnify the person summoned out of his own property either during his time in office or thereafter. 6. The constitution makes an exception in cases of persons who are liable for taxes. 7. But if the governors, corrupted by money, fail to make an investigation with the Holy Scriptures before them, or indeed are guilty of complicity, they shall be punished by a fine, be removed from office, and stand in peril of their safety.

8. Every law, moreover, which is to be brought to the attention (of the governor), must first be shown to the (Praetorian) Prefect; the person who carries it into the province receives 6 solidi; the governor should hasten to cause the laws to be made public by edicts issued to all the cities subject to him, without any fees being paid either to the governor, the municipal defenders, or the messenger.

[292] From Bas. 56.17.58. Corcoran identifies this as a law issued by Justinian and added to the 2nd edition of C.

9. Ὁ δὲ κερδάνας διπλάσιον δίδωσι καί, εἰ μὲν ἄρχων ἐστίν, ἐκπίπτει τῆς ἀρχῆς, εἰ δὲ ἑτέραν φροντίδα εἶχεν, ἐκβάλλεται τοῦ φροντίσματος.

LXI De Lucris Advocatorum et Concussionibus Officiorum sive Apparitorum

[1] Imp. Constantinus A. proconsuli Africae. Si quis se a ducenariis vel centenariis vel fisci advocatis laesum esse cognoscit, adire iudicia et probare iniuriam non moretur, ut in eum qui convictus fuerit competenti severitate vindicetur.

D. VI id. Nov. Triveris. acc. XV k. Mart. Karthagine Constantino A. IIII et Licinio IIII conss.

[2] Imp. Constantius A. Eubulidae vicario Africae. pr. Praeter sollemnes et canonicas pensitationes multa a provincialibus indignissime postulantur ab officialibus et scholasticis non modo in civitatibus singulis, sed et mansionibus, dum ipsis et animalibus eorundem alimoniae sine pretio ministrantur. 1. Provinciales itaque cuncti iudices tueantur nec iniurias inultas transire permittant.

D. III k. Iul. Leontio et Sallustio conss.

[3] Impp. Arcadius et Honorius AA. Pompeiano proconsuli Africae. Quotiens compulsor arguitur in depraedatione convictus, etiam non consulta clementia nostra poenam subeat legibus competentem.

D. prid. k. Ian. Mediolani Stilichone et Aureliano conss.

[4] Impp. Honorius et Theodosius AA. Hadriano pp. Curialibus et naviculariis omnibusque corporibus ita subveniri volumus, ut nihil apparitoribus universorum iudicum liceat, quod ad praedam provinciarum pertinet.

9. If any person receives any fee, he must pay back double the amount; if he is the governor, he loses his office; if he occupies another office, he shall be removed therefrom.

(April 529–November 534).

Sixty-First Title (Unlawful) Gain of Advocates and Extortions by Official Staffs or Subordinates

[1][293] Emperor Constantine Augustus to (Aelianus,) Proconsul of Africa. If anyone knows himself to have been injured by the ducenarii, the centenarii (i.e., senior staff officials), or the Advocates of the Treasury, he should not hesitate to go before the courts and prove the wrong, so that proper punishment may be visited upon the guilty person upon his conviction.

Given November 8, at Trier, (314), and received February 16, at Carthage, in the consulship of Constantine Augustus, for the fourth time, and Licinius, for the fourth time (315).

[2][294] Emperor Constantius Augustus to Eubulidas, Vicar of Africa. Aside from the customary and regular tax payments (pensitationes), many things are most improperly demanded from the provincials by members of official staffs (officiales) and advocates (scholastici) not only in the individual cities but also at post-stations (mansiones), inasmuch as they have supplies furnished them and their animals without payment. All governors (iudices) must protect the provincials, accordingly, and shall not permit such injuries to go unpunished.

Given June 29. in the consulship of Leontius and Sallustius (344).

[3][295] Emperors Arcadius and Honorius Augusti to Pompeianus, Proconsul of Africa. Whenever a collector of arrears (compulsor) is accused and convicted of plunder he shall suffer the penalty prescribed by law without referring the matter to Our Clemency.

Given December 31, at Milan, in the consulship of Stilicho and Aurelianus (400).

[4][296] Emperors Honorius and Theodosius Augusti to Hadrianus, Praetorian Prefect (of Italy and Africa). We want the decurions, the members of the guild of shippers (navicularii), and all corporate bodies to be protected in such a manner that nothing may be tolerated on the part of the subordinates (apparitores) of all the governors (iudices) which abets the plundering of the provinces.

(March 3, 414).

[293] = C.Th. 8.10.1. Combine with C. 10.19.1 (which names the addressee) and the other laws cited there. Seeck dates the law to November 8, 313.

[294] = C.Th. 8.10.2.

[295] = C.Th. 8.10.3. Combine with C. 9.26.1 and the other laws cited there [296] = C.Th. 6.29.11, from which Seeck restores the date.

LXII De Primipilo

[1] Impp. Valerianus et Gallienus AA. Domitio. Commoda primipilatus post administrationem deberi incipiunt, et si is, qui ea percipere debuit, prius rebus humanis eximatur, heredibus petitio salva sit.

[2] Impp. Diocletianus et Maximianus AA. Alexandro. Obtentu nominis primipili civiles actiones ad alios iudices transferendae non sunt.

[3] Idem AA. Domnae. Utilitas publica praeferenda est privatorum contractibus: et ideo si constiterit fisco satisfactum esse ob causam primipili, poteris obligatam tibi possessionem dotis titulo petere, ut satis doti fieri possit.

[4] Idem AA. Dionysio. Cum ex sola primipili causa liberos, etiam si patribus heredes non existant, teneri divus Aurelianus sanxerit, si neque successistis patri vestro nec quicquam ex bonis eius tenetis, consequens est a paternis creditoribus vos non conveniri.

LXIII Publicae Laetitiae vel Consulum Nuntiatores vel Insinuatores Constitutionum et Aliarum Sacrarum vel Iudicialium Litterarum ex Descriptione vel ab Invitis Ne Quid Accipiant Immodicum

[1] Imppp. Gratianus Valentinianus et Theodosius AAA. Floro pp. pr. Quidquid nostrorum umquam nuntiari coeperit prosperorum, bella si desinent, si oriuntur victoriae, fastis si honor datus fuerit regalium trabearum, compositae pacis si erit efferenda tranquillitas, sacros vultus inhiantibus si forte populis inferimus, haec sine immodico pretio

Sixty-Second Title The Office of the Quartermaster-General

[1][297] Emperors Valerian and Gallienus Augusti to Domitius. The perquisites of the office of quartermaster-general (primipilatus) begin to be owing after the administration of that position (is completed), and if the person who is entitled to them is taken away from earthly affairs beforehand, the claim to them will be preserved for his heirs.

(253–260).

[2] Emperors Diocletian and Maximianus Augusti to Alexander. Civil actions are not to be transferred to other judges on the pretext of (an alleged privilege to this effect attaching to) the position of quartermaster-general.

(284–287).

[3][298] The same Augusti to Domna. The public welfare must take precedence over private contracts. If it is determined, therefore, that the Treasury has been satisfied with regard to a suit involving the office of quartermaster-general, you can (only then) claim the property pledged to you for your dowry, so as to satisfy such claim.

(287).

[4] The same Augusti to Dionysius. Since the deified Aurelian ordained that children are held liable, even though they are not their father's heirs, only in suits arising out of the office of quartermaster-general, it follows that you cannot be sued by your father's creditors if you did not become your father's successor and have none of his property.

(287–292).

Sixty-Third Title Announcers (Nuntiatores) of Occasions of Public Rejoicing or of (New) Consuls and Those Who Give Notice of Constitutions and Other Imperial and Magisterial Enactments Shall Not Receive Immoderate Fees by Levy or from Unwilling Persons

[1][299] Emperors Gratian, Valentinian, and Theodosius Augusti to Florus, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). pr. Whenever any event evincing Our good fortune is announced – when wars cease; when victories arise; when the honor of the bestowal of consular regalia is added to the calendar; when the repose that [297] Compare Vegetius, Epit. rei milit. 2.8.

[298] For the date, Corcoran.
[299] = C.Th. 8.11.4, which has "without expense" for "without immoderate expense."

nuntiari excipique sancimus. 1. Gerulum iubemus esse castissimum: indices nummarios esse prohibemus: iudices statuimus esse sollicitos, ne turpi colludio quaeratur ex miseris pretium gaudiorum. 2. Quod si id sacrilega fuerit dissimulatione violatum, et accipientem pudoris fortunarumque manebit excidium et cogentem par poena multabit et officium triginta librarum auri vexatione quatiatur.

D. IIII non. Febr. Constantinopoli Merobaude II et Saturnino conss.

[2] Αὐτοκράτωρ Ἰουστινιανὸς Αὔγουστος Ἰουλιανῷ ἐπάρχῳ τῶν πραιτωρίων. pr. Θεσπίζομεν, εἴ τις ἐμφανίζει κατὰ χώραν ἢ ἀρχόντων οἰωνδήποτε ἢ ὑπάτων προαγωγὰς ἢ γενικοὺς τύπους τῶν ἐνδοξοτάτων ὑπάρχων ἢ καὶ ἑτέρου τινὸς τῶν ἡμετέρων ἀρχόντων, ἢ καὶ διατάξεων ἢ θείων κομμωνιτωρίων ἢ γραμμάτων γενικῶν μέντοι ἐμφανίσεις ποιοῖτο ἢ καὶ ἀνδριάντων βασιλικῶν καθιδρύσεις, μὴ εἶναι τούτῳ παρρησίαν περαιτέρω ἓξ νομισμάτων ἐφ' ἑκάστῃ μηνύσει ἢ ἐφ' ἑκάστῳ τύπῳ ἢ ἑκάστῃ διατάξει ἢ θείῳ κομμωνιτορίῳ ἢ γράμματι γενικῷ ἢ ἀνδριάντων καθιδρύσει κομίζεσθαι καθ' ἑκάστην ἐπαρχίαν, εἰς ἣν ταῦτα παρέλαβεν, ὥστε, ὁπόσας ἂν ἔχοι πόλεις ἡ ἐπαρχία, μηδὲν αὐτῷ διαφέρειν, ἀλλὰ τοὺς ἓξ μόνους κομίζεσθαι χρυσοῦς. 1. Εἰ δέ τι πλέον κομίζοιτο, τοῦτο τετραπλάσιον ἀποδοῦναι κωλυόντων τοῦ τε ἄρχοντος καὶ τοῦ ἐπισκόπου καὶ τῶν πρώτων τῆς πόλεως καὶ πάσης πολιτικῆς καὶ δημοσίας βοηθείας. 2. Ὁ μὲν γὰρ ἐπίσκοπος ὑπὸ ἀγανάκτησιν ἔσται βασιλικήν, ὁ δὲ ἄρχων καὶ ἐκπεσεῖται τῆς ἀρχῆς καὶ δημευθήσεται καὶ ἐξορισθήσεται καὶ ἡ τάξις δὲ κινδυνεύει. 3. Μήτε διαγραφὴν γενέσθαι προφάσει τούτων τῶν αἰτιῶν ὑπὲρ τοῦ μὴ ἓξ χρυσούς, μήτε ὡς παρὰ ἑκόντων μηδέν, ἀλλὰ τὸν λαβόντα διδόναι τὸ τετραπλοῦν.

4. Καὶ ἡνίκα δὲ οἱ πολῖται βούλονται ἑαυτοὺς διαγράψαι τυχὸν ἢ εἰς ἔργον δημόσιον ἢ εἰς σιτωνίαν, ἢ αἰτοῦσι παρὰ βασιλέως τοῦτο ἐπιτραπῆναι, οὐ χρὴ ζημιοῦν αὐτοὺς οὐδὲν ὑπὲρ τοῦτο, ἵνα μὴ οἱ μὲν ἱερεῖς ἀγανακτῶνται, οἱ δὲ ἄρχοντες καὶ τῆς ἀρχῆς ἐκπίπτωσι καὶ ἐξορίζωνται καὶ δημεύωνται. ἡ δὲ τάξις εἰς σῶμα τιμωρεῖται, εἰ μὴ μηνυθῇ βασιλεῖ τὰ παρὰ τὴν διάταξιν γινόμενα. 5. Ἐξουσίαν γὰρ ἔχουσιν οἱ διαγραφόμενοι proceeds from the conclusion of peace is to be issued forth; when perchance We display the imperial countenances to the wondering multitude – We ordain that these occasions shall be announced and received without immoderate expense. 1. We order the messenger to exercise the utmost restraint; We forbid the announcers to be too eager for fees; We adjure the governors (iudices) to take care lest a fee for their joys is extorted from the poor through detestable collusion. 2. If this ordinance is violated by sacrilegious evasion, ruin of his good name and fortunes will await the receiver of money, a like penalty will penalize the (official) who compelled the payment, and his official staff will be visited with a penalty of 30 pounds of gold.

Given February 2, at Constantinople, in the consulship of Merobaudes, for the second time, and Saturninus (383).

[2][300] Emperor JUSTINIAN Augustus to Julian, Praetorian Prefect (of the East). pr. We ordain that if anyone should announce in a province the promotion of any magistrates or Consuls, or the general sanctions of the viri gloriosissimi Prefects or of any other of Our officials, or should publish decrees or imperial instructions or general letters, or even the erection of statues of the Emperor, he may not collect more than 6 solidi for each proclamation, each sanction, imperial instructions or general letter, or erection of statues, in each province to which he brings news of these things. Thus it shall make no difference how many cities the province should have, but he shall receive 6 solidi only. 1. If he demands more, he shall pay it back fourfold. The governor, the bishop, the leading men of the city, and the whole official staff must prevent it. 2. For the bishop will incur the displeasure of the Emperor; the governor will be removed from office, his goods will be confiscated, and he will be banished; and his official staff, too, will be endangered (if they permit it). 3.[301] No levy in excess of 6 solidi shall be imposed for the sake of such announcements, nor indeed shall even voluntary gifts be accepted, and whoever does so shall repay them fourfold.

4. If by chance the citizens, however, want to impose a levy upon themselves at any time, either for some public work or for the purchase of grain, or to petition the Emperor to be permitted to do so, no loss should be inflicted on them on that account, lest (otherwise) the priests incur displeasure, and the governors be removed from office, their property confiscated, and themselves banished. The official staff will suffer bodily chastisement if they fail to notify the Emperor of violations of the constitution. 5. Those upon whom a levy is (unlawfully) being imposed may legitimately resist those by whom the levy is [300] Combine with C. 3.2.4 and the other laws cited there. The pr. and the beginning of §1 have been restored from 1.4.26.6–7; the remainder is restored from Bas. 56.17.67.

[301] Sections 3 and 4 = 1.4.26.15 (altered).

ἀντιλέγειν τοῖς διαγράφουσιν· εἰ δὲ μὴ δύνανται τοῦτο ποιεῖν, ἐπικαλεῖσθαι τὸν ἄρχοντα καὶ βασιλεῖ μηνύειν.

6. Οὐ χρὴ δὲ οὔτε τοὺς πατέρας οὔτε τοὺς σιτῶνας ἢ ἐθνικοὺς ἀποδέκτας παρέχειν ἐκ τῶν οὐσῶν ἐν χερσὶ προσόδων μηδὲ ποσότητα φυλάττεσθαι τῇ ἀφωρισμένῃ χρείᾳ. εἰ δὲ παραβῇ ὁ ἄρχων, οἴκοθεν ταῦτα καταβάλλει. χρὴ γὰρ ἀμείωτα τά τε δημόσια καὶ τὰ πολιτικὰ φυλάττεσθαι.

D. VIII k. Iul. Chalcedone Lampadio et Oreste vv. cc. conss.

being imposed, and if they are not strong enough to do so, they may call on the governor and notify the Emperor.

6. Neither the city magistrates (pateres), nor the grain-buyers (sitônai), nor the provincial tax-receivers (apodektai) must give away any of the revenues collected by them and in their hands, but must preserve it for the purpose for which it was intended. If the governor neglects this, he shall make restitution from his own property, for the funds of the Treasury and the public property of the city should remain unimpaired.

Given June 24, at Chalcedon, in the consulship of the viri clarissimi Lampadius and Orestes (530).

Glossary of Roman Law Terms

References are to titles within Justinian's Codex. Definitions for Roman legal terms rely heavily (at times, verbatim) on Adolf Berger, Encyclopedic Dictionary of Roman Law (1953), which readers are encouraged to consult for further information.

abigeus: a cattle thief, a rustler: C. 9.37.

abolitio: the dismissal of an accusation and of a criminal trial, e.g., through amnesty or the withdrawal of a complaint: C. 9.42–45.

acceptilatio: a formal oral mechanism for dissolving oral obligations; it is also used for dissolving non-oral obligations, by novating them through a stipulation (called the stipulatio Aquiliana after its inventor) and then dissolving them by acceptilatio: C. 8.43.

accessio: the accretion of one thing to another by natural or artificial means, so that they form an organic unity.

accusatio: usually, an accusation in a criminal proceeding; but the word is also used for civil lawsuits, especially when dishonest conduct is being alleged: C. 9.1–2.

acta (publica): records of official proceedings; acta is also used for a private legal declaration, an affidavit. A record-keeper is ab actis. The phrase apud acta or in actis refers to court records, especially if used as evidence.

actio: the bringing of a lawsuit, the basis for it, or the resulting trial. An actio civilis is one based on the ius civile. An actio in rem is an action based on a claim to a certain thing; while an actio in personam (or actio personalis) is based on an obligation of the defendant. An actio temporalis can only be brought within a limited period of time. An actio utilis (or actio in factum) is an effective or analogous action, formed on the basis of a legally recognized action. An actio arbitraria authorizes a judge to issue an interlocutory order bidding the defendant to satisfy the plaintiff's claim by restoring or producing a claimed object; if the defendant obeys, final judgment is forestalled. An actio noxalis (noxal action) allows a defendant to escape further liability by surrendering to the plaintiff the person (slave or son) or animal that did the act in question: C. 3.41. An actio rescissoria seeks annulment of legal acts in specified circumstances, as when a Roman returns from captivity or public service. An actio contraria is a countersuit or counterclaim by a defendant. An actio iudicati is an action to enforce a judgment.

actio de dolo* or *actio doli: an action on deceit, dolus. Actio dotis: action for recovery of a dowry, called an actio rei uxoriae in classical law: C. 5.12–23, 7.74. Actio familiae herciscundae: an action for division of an inheritance. An actio iudicati is brought to enforce a judgment: C. 3.36, 38. Actio communi dividundo: action to divide commonly owned property: C. 3.37–38. Actio finium regundorum: action to settle boundaries: C. 3.39. Actio ad exhibendum: an action brought to force production in court of contested property or evidence: C. 3.42. Actio Serviana: an action to recover possession of property given as security. Actio pigneriticia: an action by a creditor for damage to a pledge: C. 4.24. Actio de peculio vel in rem verso: action against a paterfamilias or master, on transaction with a child's or slave's peculium: C. 4.26. Actio quod iussu: a suit by a third party who alleges that a transaction by a child or slave was authorized by the paterfamilias or master: C. 4.26. Actio restitutoria: an action granted to creditors against primary debtors when they lost their first action because of a woman's invalid novatory intercession. Actio institoria and exercitoria: see institor and exercitor: C. 4.25. Actiones aediliciae: actions in the Edict of the Aediles regulating sales in the Roman market: C. 4.58. Actio redhibitoria: an Aedilician action to rescind a sale because of a defect in the object of sale; actio quanti minoris: an Aedilician action for refund of the difference in price of a defective object of sale. Actio praescriptis verbis (called an actio civilis incerti by Justinian): a form of general contractual action with special terms set out in a preamble to the formula, for contracts falling outside the traditional list of contracts: C. 4.64. Actio rei uxoriae: an action by an ex-wife to recover her property from her husband or his family: C. 5.13. Actio ex stipulatu: action against a promisor on the basis of a stipulation: C. 5.13, 8.37–38. Actio servi corrupti: for losses stemming from the defendant's deliberate corruption of another's slave: C. 6.2. Actio Calvisiana: an action protecting the patron's right to inherit from a freedman, against fraudulent alienation following intestacy: C. 6.5.

actor: in private law, a manager of another's affairs: C. 5.61. Also, in some texts, a plaintiff.

actuarius: a quartermaster: C. 12.49.

ad responsum: a liaison officer to an official staff.

adfinis: a near relative by marriage.

adiacentia: appurtenances to property.

aditio hereditatis: informal acceptance of an inheritance; see cretio.

adiutores: assistant officers in branches of the imperial administration: C. 12.49.

adlecti: persons who had not held an office admitted by imperial dispensation to a title or rank associated with the office.

administratio: the exercise of a public office by an official, administrator, a name used for high officials: C. 1.49; 11.31, 38; 12.8. Administratio negotiorum: see negotiorum gestio. Admincula: functionaries.

admissio: admission to an audience with the Emperor, supervised by ushers (admissionales).

adnotatio: an Emperor's personal response to a petition.

adoptio: a procedure transferring a child in a father's power from one paterfamilias to another (mutatio familiae, change of household); distinguished from adrogatio where a sui iuris person enters the power of a paterfamilias, although the two institutions are sometimes confused in later law: C. 8.47.

adscripticius: in the late Empire, a farmer (colonus) who is registered for the census (censibus adscriptus) not in his own right, but in connection with the estate where he is a tenant or laborer. The term is used in the East, and translates the Greek ἐναπόγραφος (γεωργός). See colonus. The exact meaning of these categories is much debated.

adsertio: any assertion made in court. Adsertor libertatis: a person who defends the liberty of an alleged slave: C. 7.17.

adsessor: a salaried legal advisor who assisted magistrates and judges in judicial activity: C. 1.51–52.

adulterium: criminal adultery, normally by wives: C. 9.9.

adultus: a legal adult (roughly: 12 for females, 14 for males); adulescens: a young adult, less than 25 years old.

advocatus* or *togatus: one who speaks for another in court; in the late Empire, advocates were increasingly organized in Orders (consortia) associated with particular courts: C. 2.7, 9; 12.10, 61. The Treasury Advocates (advocati fisci) represented the interests of the imperial Treasury both extra-judicially and in courts: C. 2.8. An advocatio is, in one meaning, an informal local or regional Society of Advocates.

aedilis: a Roman magistrate charged especially with maintaining public order and security, particularly in the marketplace; the Aediles had an edict containing the actiones aediliciae for sale: C 4.58.

aequitas: fairness, equity, often used as a legal principle moderating strict law.

aerarium* (sacrum): in the late Empire, the Imperial Treasury; see largitiones sacrae.

aestimatio: an appraisal of the value of property or of damages.

aetas legitima: full legal majority, although the term is used somewhat imprecisely.

affectus* or *affectio maritalis: affection between spouses, considered a legal requirement for marriage to continue.

agentes in rebus: in the later Empire, government couriers and general agents, organized into a corps, schola, and especially associated with the cursus publicus, see curiosi: C. 12.20–21.

ager, agri: a field or farm.

agger: a military or public road; the duty to repair it.

agnatio: a relationship among persons who are under the same paternal power, or who would have been if their first common male ancestor, as traced only through males, were still alive.

agnoscere: to take up a legal duty, or to seek one (e.g., bonorum possessio).

alienatio: alienation, the transfer of property through a transaction: C. 4.51–52.

alimenta: support payments: C. 5.26, 50.

alluvio: the natural accretion to land along a river course: C. 7.41.

alumnus: a foster-child or foundling.

ambitus: corrupt solicitation to obtain office: C. 9.26.

angaria: transport, compulsory service in the imperial post (cursus), by providing animals and carriages; requisition for such vehicles: C. 12.50.

animus: in many legal sources, a person's intent to accomplish an act with legal effects.

annalia: an annuity supported by an endowment.

annona: the grain supply, especially to Rome or Constantinople (annona civica or civilis), under the supervision of the praefectus annonae: C. 12.58; in the later Empire, a land tax in kind: C. 10.16. The annona militaris supplied the army: C. 10.16, 11.23–25, 12.38.

annus utilis: in procedural law, an effective year, 365 days not counting ones on which the party involved was unable to be in court for valid personal reasons (such as illness) or other acceptable excuses.

antipherna: a gift from husband to wife, as a counterpart to dowry.
apices sacrae: an administrative letter from the Emperor.
apocha: a written receipt for a payment; an apocha publica is for tax payments.
apostoli: a judge's report on a case, accompanying a litigant's appeal from his decision.
apparitor: a subordinate official in the offices of magistrates and imperial officials: C. 12.53–59. Apparitio: support staff.
appellatio: a litigant's appeal to a higher judicial court: C. 62–70.
aqua publica: the water supply; aquaeductus: an aqueduct for public use: C. 11.43. Aquarius: a subordinate officer in water administration arbiter: an arbitrator, either on the basis of an arbitration agreement (compromissum) between private parties, or through appointment as a judge (iudex) in a trial. In the latter sense, arbiter is translated "judge arbitrator." Arbitrium tutelae is a ward's action against a tutor: C. 5.51. Arbitratu boni viri means "by the standards of an upright person."
arcarius: the treasurer in a public arca, treasury: C. 10.72.
archiater sacri palatii: the chief physician to the Emperor and his family: C. 12.13.
argentarius: a banker: C. 11.18.
arra* or *arrha: earnest money given to conclude a sale or a marital engagement.
articulus: a particular legal point, or a special provision in an enactment.
auctor: a guarantor; a predecessor in title who transfers his right to another (most commonly, through sale) and thereby guarantees that the acquirer will not be evicted from the thing transferred. If this guarantee is violated, the seller is liable to an actio auctoritatis.
auditorium: in legal usage, a courtroom.
aula: in administrative parlance, the Court of the Emperor.
aureus: a gold coin. Aurum coronarium: a tax to pay for the crown of a new Emperor: C. 10.76. Aurum argentumve: a special tax imposed on merchants every five years; also called collatio lustralis or chrysargyron: C. 11.1. Auri massa: gold bullion, managed by a bureau under the Count of Imperial Finances: C. 12.23.7.
bona: all of a person's property. Bona vacantia: an estate after its owner's death and before an heir enters into it; ownerless property more generally, including confiscated property: C. 10.10; see also caduca.
bona fides: honesty, upright behavior; also fides sincera. See also possessio bona fide.

bonorum possessio: the right to enter into possession of all or part of an inheritance; in post-classical law, effectively the right to inherit: C. 6.9–19; 7.72.

brevis (breve): a list or register used by officials; a list of tax-debtors or of military sutlers: C. 1.42.

caduca: property that escheats (cadere in casum) to the Treasury when it is left or bequeathed to a party who, under an escheat statute (lex caducaria), is incapable of acquiring under a will: C. 6.51; 10.10–12.

caelebs: an unmarried person, penalized under the Augustan marriage legislation: C. 8.57.

Caesariani: servants in the imperial household; in the later Empire, subordinate Treasury officials in charge of seizing property.

calumnia: trickery or deception, especially in bringing vexatious lawsuits or false accusations: C. 9.46. Calumniatores: false accusers.

cancellarius: auxiliary official in a high functionary's chancery, with secretarial duties: C. 1.51.

candidati: in the later Empire, members of the imperial bodyguard.

canon: a regular annual payment of rent for land held in emphyteusis, or a land tax more generally; in another usage, a legal rule. Canon aurarius: a tax levied in gold. Canonicarius: tax collector.

caput: most commonly, an individual person of whatever status. Capita officii: the heads of the official staff: C. 12.19. Capitatio: especially in the late Empire, a tax paid per head (caput), a poll tax: C. 11.49. See also deminutio capitis.

casarius: a cottager, evidently a class of bound tenant (colonus): C. 9.49.7.

castra: a military camp; ex castris: by military service. Castrensis: Steward, overseer of the imperial household: C. 12.5.

casus (fortuitus): (unavoidable) accident, an event that happens without human intervention or fault.

causa: in one usage, the purpose for which an action is brought, or the trial itself. A causa liberalis determines whether an individual is free or a slave: C. 7.16–18. Causa iudicati: an action brought to enforce a judicial judgment. The phrase causa cognita refers to the judicial hearing of a case or of some element of it.

causidicus: an advocate.

cautio* or *cautela: a formal guarantee or declaration, usually in writing. Cautio Muciana: a means whereby a legatee could receive a bequest with a negative condition (that something not be done): C. 6.40. Cautio iuratoria: an oath to perform a pre-existing legal duty. Cavere: to provide or promise.

census: a census, or taxation based upon the census (C. 4.47). Censualis: an official in the capital cities charged with taxation of Senators and with other duties related to public order: C. 10.71. Censitor: a tax assessor.

centenarius: government official with a salary of 100,000 sesterces.

cessio bonorum: surrender of property to creditors to avoid compulsory sale: C. 7.71.

chartae, chartulae: records. Chartularius: a late imperial official who handles tax registers: C. 12.49.

chirographum: a promissory note written by the debtor and held by the creditor: C. 8.26. A chirographarius creditor is one whose debt is secured only by a promissory note, and not by a pledge.

cingulum: belt of office, granted to high officials in the late Empire; by metonymy, their office.

citatoria: summonses to appear as witnesses in trials.

civitas: a political unit comprised of its cives; often in later sources, a city or a territorial unit: C. 11.32–33.

clarissimus: the honorific for those who reached senatorial rank, whether by birth, imperial appointment, or attainment of office: C. 3.24, 5.33.

classicus, classiarius (miles): marine: C. 11.13.

clientela: a relationship in which a weaker party, the cliens, is protected socially or legally by a stronger one, the patronus.

codicillus: a diploma of an official's appointment by the Emperor. Codicilli: a written document supplementary to a will, with further testamentary dispositions: C. 6.36.

cognatio: a blood relationship, as distinguished from agnatio, a relationship only through males.

cognitio extra ordinem: in the late Empire, the standard form of civil procedure, originally called "extraordinary investigation" to distinguish it from Praetorian (formulary) procedure; a form of procedure organized around administration of justice by state officials. Cognitor: the person presiding over a judicial hearing.

cohortales or cohortalini: officials subordinate to Praetorian Prefects and the provincial governors in the late Empire: C. 3.25, 12.57.

collatio: a contribution of money, used for payment of taxes. Collatio bonorum: hotchpot, a rule requiring emancipated children, or daughters with a dowry, if they seek an intestate share of the estate of their paterfamilias, to contribute to the estate, prior to its division, all their acquisitions separate from the estate: C. 6.20. Collator: in public law, a taxpayer. Collatio lustralis: a merchants tax, see aurum argentumve.

collegium: an association of private or public character, including guilds of trades and crafts. Collegiatus: member of a guild.

collusio: a secret agreement between individuals to fraudulently obtain an illegal profit or to injure a third person at law: C. 7.20.

colonus: originally, a tenant farmer; in the late Empire, often a tenant farmer effectively bound to the soil, although technically a free Roman citizen. See C. 11.48 (with a fuller note), 50–53, 63–64, 69. Colonus originalis: a tenant bound by virtue of origo, the locale or estate where he or she was born; censitus: registered in the census. See also adscripticius, casarius, inquilinus. These definitions are still highly contentious, however.

comes: roughly, Count. There are many such Counts in the late imperial bureaucracy; these are among the more important: The comes sacrarum largitionum (Count of the Imperial Finances) was the highest officer in financial administration of the state and head of the state Treasury, with final judicial authority in tax matters: C. 1.32, 12.6. The comes rerum privatarum or rei privatae (Count of the Privy Purse) directed the administration of imperial real property: C. 1.33, 12.6. The comes sacri patrimonii (Count of the Imperial Patrimony) was the chief adminstrator of the Emperor's Patrimony. The comes Orientis (Count of the East) governed the diocese of the East, roughly Greater Syria. A comes rei militaris (Military Count) was a decorated commander: C. 1.47. The comes domorum (Count of the Household) superintended imperial estates in Cappadocia. Comes commerciorum: Count of External Trade.

comitatus: the imperial retinue consisting of all Counts (comites); the Chancery. Comitiva consistoriana or comitatus sacer: Imperial Council. Comitiva: Countship, of various ranks (primi ordinis is a Count of the First Order); comitiva honoraria: honorary rank of Count. Comitatenses: staff of the office of the comes sacrarum largitionum; in another meaning, military field officers.

commeatus: a military furlough; by extension, any leave of absence from service: C. 12.42.

commentariensis: a subordinate officer in the judicial branch of high officials; also, an official in a public prison who superintends corporal punishment, a head warden.

comminatio: a judicial warning or threat against a contumacious litigant: C. 7.57.

commissum: confiscation of goods, especially for violation of customs procedures: C. 4.61.

commodatum: a gratuitous loan of property that the borrower is to use and return: C. 4.23.

commodum: advantage, profit, or benefit, as in rights associated with a certain legal relationship.

compensatio: offset, especially of reciprocal debts within a lawsuit: C. 4.31.

compromissum: an extrajudicial arbitration agreement to submit a controversy to an arbitrator (arbiter privatus): C. 2.55. Compromissarius: a settlement arbitrator.

compulsores: collectors of tax arrears.

concubinatus: concubinage, a monogamous union of persons not legally married: C. 5.26.

condicio: a condition, a clause that makes the validity of a transaction or a testamentary disposition contingent on the occurrence or nonoccurrence of a future event: C. 6.25, 46. In another sense, the legal or social status of a person.

condictio: a claim in personam for restitution of unjust enrichment, brought in many forms: e.g., for recovering a payment made in error (indebiti: C. 4.5), or a payment made in anticipation of an expected event that fails to materialize (causa data causa non secuta or ob causam datorum: C. 4.6), or money paid for an immoral cause (ob turpem causam: C. 4.7), or for an illegal cause (ob iniustam causam: C. 4.9), or for the value of stolen property (furtiva: C. 4.8). Justinian creates a general condictio ex lege for prosecuting any claim (C. 4.9).

conductor: in public law, a lessee and holder of a public contract: C. 10.57. For private law, see locatio conductio.

confessio: a full or partial admission of liability: C. 7.59.

confiscatio: seizure by the Treasury of the estate of a condemned person: C. 9.48.

consanguineus: a blood-relation.

consensus: agreement, especially in the formation of a contract.

consilium: any group of advisors; in private law, a family council called by a paterfamilias. The consilium principis is the Emperor's council of advisors. Consiliarius: member of any council, but especially of the Emperor's consilium.

consistorium: Imperial Council in the later Empire.

consobrinus: a first cousin.

consors: partner, including a spouse and also a business partner (socius). Consortium: a guild; also used to mean ordo, a status or standing. Consortium advocatorum or togatorum: the Order of Advocates associated with various imperial courts: C. 2.7.

constitutio: a term embracing all forms of imperial legislation: C. 1.14. Constitutio generalis: an enactment specifically intended for application beyond an immediate case.

constitutum debiti: an informal promise by a debtor to repay a preexisting debt; it provides an independent basis for suing: C. 4.18.

consuetudo: long-standing custom: C. 8.52.

consul: during the Empire, the highest normal Republican magistracy; two Consuls normally gave their names to the year: C. 12.3. Consularis: an ex-Consul, often charged with official duties.

consultatio: a request for a legal ruling, from a lower-level judge to a superior who would rule on an appeal: C. 7.61–62.

contestatio: a declaration before witnesses or before a public official.

contubernium: domestic partnership, a permanent marriage-like relationship between slaves or freedmen; it lacks most of the incidents of marriage.

conubium: legal capacity to marry validly.

conventio: a generalized word for "agreement" between two parties; also, in later procedure, a summons to court or to perform a public duty (see libellus).

convicium: verbal offense, delivered in a crowd; a form of iniuria, affront.

cornicularius: an adjutant to a military commander; later, also to a higher civil official: C. 12.57.

corpus: a body, often applied to legal persons. Corpus togatorum: see consortium. Corporator or corporatus: member of a corporate body: C. 11.15.

corrector: in the late Empire, a high government dignitary, often a provincial governor (see rector).

corrumpere: to lower the value, esp. of another's property.

cretio: acceptance of an inheritance through a formal declaration; see aditio.

crimen (publicum): an accusation, or the crime itself: C. 3.15. Crimen capitale: a capital crime.

cubicularius: an imperial chamberlain: C. 12.5.

culpa: fault, especially carelessness. Later Roman law knows degrees of culpa, including culpa lata (serious fault, recklessness) and culpa levis (slight fault).

cura: guardianship. Curator: guardian of the economic interests of a sui iuris person under 25. Curatores were also appointed to protect the insane, furiosi, and spendthrifts, prodigi: C. 5.70. In public law, curatores are commissioners charged with branches of administration, including imperial property. The various curatores divinae domus are in charge of the Imperial Patrimony. A curator may also be a municipal official with oversight of a special duty.

curia: municipal council, or the building where it meets. Curialis: member of a municipal council, a decurion: C. 3.25, 10.22. Curia is also used to designate the Roman Senate; honor curiae means senatorial rank.

curiosi: inspectors of the public post, associated with agentes in rebus: C. 12.22.

cursus (publicus): the imperial postal service: C. 12.50. Cursor: a messenger in the imperial postal service.

custodia: safekeeping, a high degree of responsibility for protecting another's property; in public law: protection (for shores or roads): C. 12.44.

damnum: loss or damage. Damnum iniuria datum: wrongful damage to property, actionable under the lex Aquilia: C. 3.35. Damnum infectum: threatened loss from the defective state of a neighbor's property.

debitor: one who is obligated to pay or perform, a debtor.

decanus: a low-ranking doorkeeper in the imperial palace: C. 12.26.

decretum: a formal disposition, even by private individuals, but usually referring to a magistrate's (including an Emperor's) order of a judicial or administrative character: C. 5.72; however, municipal senates can also issue decreta: C. 10.47.

decurio: member of a municipal senate (curia), elected for life: C. 10.32–35; the commanders of the silentiarii: C. 12.16. Decuria: an association or guild: C. 11.14–15.

dediticia condicio: the subordinate status of free persons who, after surrendering to Rome, lack all public rights and citizenship; also applied to freedmen whose liberties were severely curtailed, usually by virtue of their having committed some crime or delict while enslaved: C. 7.5.

defensor: a person who defends another's interests in a trial; the representative of a public corporate body. Defensor civitatis: Defender of the City, an imperial official appointed to defend the less privileged against exactions by the powerful, with some police power and jurisdiction in civil affairs: C. 1.55.

delator: an accuser in a criminal trial (often with a pejorative connotation): C. 10.11, 13.

delegatio: in private law, delegation, when one person gives an order to another to pay a debt to, or to assume an obligation towards, a third party, often as a form of novation: C. 8.41. In tax law, an assessment of the tax levied.

delictum: a wrongdoing, particularly one prosecuted in private law and punishable through a monetary penalty paid to the plaintiff.

deminutio capitis: a change in civil status, often with legal implications. Three types are distinguished: maxima or magna, loss of freedom; media, loss of citizenship; minima, loss of family relationships, usually through adoption or emancipation.

demonstratio: description; in litigation, a statement of the subject matter of a claim. Demonstratio falsa: an incorrect description of a person or object.

denuntiatio: notice, whether official or private.

deportatio: perpetual banishment, capital exile.

depositum: property consigned by its owner to another person for custody, or the contract effecting this; the term is eventually extended to include bank deposits where the depositary returns not the property itself, but its equivalent: C. 4.34.

descriptio: a tax assessment: C. 10.22, 36.

desertor: military deserter: C. 12.45.

detentio: in property law, the simple factual holding of property, without possession or ownership.

dies cedens (legati): the date on which a legacy falls due: C. 6.53. Dies: a deadline; dies fatalis: a judicial deadline: C. 7.63. Dies utiles: days on which certain acts can be performed in court; see annus utilis.

dignitas: respect and esteem associated with position of rank; by extension, a rank or office itself: C. 12.1.

dilatio: a continuance: C. 3.11.

diligentia: a high standard of carefulness in protecting another's property. Diligentia quam suis (rebus): the standard of care that a person exercises in handling his own property.

dioecesis: a late imperial administrative unit joining several provinces and governed by a Vicar.

discussor: a late imperial official who audited public expenditure accounts: C. 10.30. An audit of records is a discussio.

divortium: divorce: C. 5.24.

dolus (malus): deceit, especially cunning or fraud. It may be actionable in its own right through the actio de dolo: C. 2.20; but dolus is often also used to describe deceitful conduct within a private transaction or litigation. See also the exceptio doli.

domestici et protectores: imperial guardsmen, often junior officers in training: C. 12.17.

domicilium: a person's domicile, permanent residence: C. 10.40.

dominus: in private law, a property owner. Dominium ex iure Quiritium: in classical law, full title to property, a category abolished by Justinian: C. 7.25.

domus divina or augusta: in the late Empire, the Imperial Patrimony, the private property of the Emperor and his family: C. 3.26; 11.72, 77.

donatio: a gift or the promise of a gift: C. 8.53–54. A donatio mortis causa is a gift made in contemplation of the donor's death and effective upon his death: C. 8.56. A donatio ante nuptias is a premarital gift to a betrothed woman from her fiancé, reclaimable only if made under condition that a marriage follow: C. 5.3, 14. Donatio inter virum et uxorem: gifts between husband and wife during marriage: C. 5.16. Revocatio donationis: revocation of a gift: C. 8.55.

dos: dowry, property given to a groom by the bride or someone else on her behalf, and held by the husband during marriage: C. 5.12–15, 18–23; 7.74. Dos profecticia: a dowry given by the bride's father or other male ascendant, and reclaimable by him if a wife predeceased her husband; dos adventicia: dowry from another source, including from the bride.

duoviri (iuri dicundo): the two administrative heads of municipalities, and the highest judicial magistrates in Italian and provincial cities.

ducenarius: government official with a salary of 200,000 sesterces; see centenarius.

dux: Duke; the head of a military district in the later Empire, especially on the frontiers (duces limitum).

edictum: an edict issued by a magistrate, including the Emperor. The edictum perpetuum, Perpetual Edict, is the final statement of the Praetor's Edict, written by the jurist Julian under Hadrian. Edictum peremptorium: official summons to a contumacious defendant, threatening trial in absentia.

editio actionis: notice by a plaintiff to the defendant of an action being brought: C. 2.1.

emancipatio: the voluntary release of a child from paternal power: C. 4.13; 8.48–49.

embola felix: "Felicitous Embarcation," the shipment of grain from Alexandria to Constantinople.

emphyteusis: long-term lease of imperial or private land, with rights similar to, but shy of, ownership: C. 4.66; 11.62–63.

emptio venditio: literally, "purchase and sale," a contract for the exchange of property for money: C. 4.38–58.

epidemetica: a commutation payment for quartering of soldiers (metata): C. 12.40.

epistularis: secretary, the lowest equestrian rank. Epistula is also used of an Emperor's letter to a petitioner, or of a letter patent granting an appointment.

equites: in the late Empire, a recognized civil status short of the highest ranks: C. 12.31.

ergasterium, ergastulum: workhouse or workshop.

erogator: paymaster, especially in distributing military supplies.

error: mistake, a false knowledge or want of knowledge of legally important circumstances, whether factual or legal: C. 1.18.

evectio: an official warrant allowing use of the public post.

evictio: the expulsion of a holder of property, by its true owner: C. 8.44–45; 10.5.

evocatus: a person on reserve military service. Evocatoria: an imperial summons.

exactio: tax collection: C. 10.19–20; exactor: tax collector: C. 12.60.

exceptio: a defense; see praescriptio. An exceptio doli is a defense based on the other party's deceit either in a transaction or through abuse of judicial procedure. An exceptio non numeratae pecuniae expresses the defendant's objection that he did not receive money which the plaintiff seeks in restitution: C. 4.30. An exceptio pacti is a defense based on an agreement that effectively delays or blocks a cause of action. Exceptio rei iudicatae: a defense based on the assertion that the matter in question was settled in a previous trial. An exceptio annalis (or temporis) is based on lapse of a claim owing to a statute of limitations: C. 7.40. Exceptio peremptoria: a defense that can be interposed at any point in the trial and that, if proved, renders the plaintiff's claim void.

exceptor: a scribe or shorthand writer in the imperial service: C. 12.49. See also notarius.

excusatio: a claim for exemption from a public duty, such as tutelage or municipal services: C. 5.62–68; 10.48–59, 66.

exemplum, exemplarium: copy of an original document (exemplar).

exercitor: the owner or charterer of a ship, who could be sued directly, through the actio exercitoria, on business obligations assumed by a captain he employs: C. 4.25.

exheredatio: disinheritance: C. 6.28.

exhibere: in judicial procedure, to produce disputed objects or evidence in court: C. 3.42.

exilium: most commonly, exile as a punishment, accompanied by loss of Roman citizenship and property; deportation: C. 10.61.

existimatio (integra): spotless reputation, with no criminal conviction.

expilatio: despoilment, as of the property in an inheritance: C. 9.32.

expositio filii: the exposure and abandonment of a newborn child: C. 8.51.

exsecutio: in civil matters, a claim on a judgment debt: C. 7.53. Exsecutores; court clerks or bailiffs: C. 12.60; late imperial collectors of taxes and other Treasury debts.

extra ordinem: see cognitio extra ordinem.

extraneus: in the law of succession, an heir not subject to a testator's power at his death.

fabricensis: an armorer, a worker in a state munitions factory (fabrica): C. 11.10.

facere litem suam: "to make the suit one's own," a phrase referring to judicial misconduct that leads to liability for the judge; the category expanded over time.

Falcidia: see lex Falcidia.

falsum: any kind of forgery, falsification, or counterfeiting: C. 9.22–24.

familia: in one meaning, the paterfamilias and all those persons subject to his power, including slaves. Familiaris: family relation; associate.

favor libertatis: the policy that ambiguous documents be interpreted in favor of granting freedom to slaves; partiality for freedom. Favor is used in a similar way for children (liberi), minors (pupilli), marriage (matrimonium), and dowry (dos).

fenus nauticum: a bottomry loan given in connection with transport of goods by sea: C. 4.33.

fideicommissum: a testamentary trust, in which a testator directs another to carry out some performance for the benefit of a third person: C. 3.17; 6.42–46.

fideiussio: suretyship, through which a third party guarantees the debt of the principal debtor through a formal promise (called an adpromissio): C. 8.40.

fides: in one usage, fidelity to one's promises; in another, credit, the confidence others have in one's behavior, especially in paying debts.

fiducia: a fiduciary transfer based on the transferor's trust (fides) in the recipient.

filius: a son; often a child of either sex, although females are generally referred to in the feminine (filia). Filiusfamilias: a child subject to a father's power: C. 2.22; 4.13; 10.62.

fiscus: the imperial Treasury: C. 10.1, 8–9; and see 2,17, 36; 3.26; 7.3; 10.1–9. It is represented in trials by the advocatus or patronus fisci: C. 2.8.

foederati: "allied troops," originally barbarian, but later used of regular troops.

follis: see gleba.

forma: in one usage, a legal norm established by statute, imperial or magistral edict, or by decree of the Senate. The forma perpetua is the Perpetual Edict.

formulae iuris: the legal formulas used to frame lawsuits in Praetorian law: C. 2.57.

fraus: a detriment or disadvantage, often as inflicted deliberately on a victim: C. 7.75.

fruor: to enjoy, hence to exploit property. Fructus: "fruits," proceeds of property, including interest on debt, rents, and so on: C. 7.51. Fructuarius: a usufructuary.

fugitivus: runaway, fugitive; used of slaves and for free tenants bound to the soil (coloni): C. 6.1; 11.64.

functio: the performance of official or other duties, especially the duty to pay taxes.

fundus: a farm, or, more generally, a plot of land.

furiosus: an insane person.

furtum: theft, actionable both as a private delict and as a crime: C. 4.8, 6.2.

gladiatores: gladiators: C. 11.44.

gleba: a land tax in gold imposed on Senators, and later abolished; also called follis or septem solidi: C. 12.2.

gradus: a grade within the imperial bureaucracy.

habitatio: the personal right to use another's house as a dwelling: C. 3.33.

hasta fiscalis: a tax auction: C. 10.3.

heres: a person who through the law of succession enters into the rights and the place of the deceased: C. 4.17; 6.24. Hereditas: an estate. A heres suus is an heir who is under a decedent's paternal power; if he becomes sui iuris upon the death of his paterfamilias, he is a heres suus et necessarius with limited power to refuse the estate: C. 6.55. A heres necessarius is a slave manumitted and instituted heir in his master's will; he cannot reject the estate: C. 6.27. A heres scriptus is appointed heir by a testator in a valid will; a heres legitimus is an intestate successor through statutes: C. 6.15.

homicidium: killing, including manslaughter: C. 9.16.

honestiores: the upper classes, those of higher social classes distinguished by official position, wealth, or origin.

honor: in one meaning, an office and the dignity and privileges associated with it. Honorati: in the late Empire, current or past holders of high civil or military office: C. 11.20; honorarius: a person holding "honorary" rank.

horrea: a granary, or storehouse more generally: C. 10.26.

hospes: a guest in another's house; a quartered soldier. Hospitalitas: the right to quarter.

hostis: an enemy with whom Rome was at war.

humiliores: lower classes, often subject to harsher legal punishments than the better off (honestiores) hypotheca: a security arrangement or hypothec over property, often one that allows the debtor to keep the secured property subject to the creditor's lien. See C. 8.13–35. A hypotheca omnium bonorum covers the debtor's entire property. A hypotheca tacita arises by operation of law, without express party agreement; C. 8.14. A hypothecarius is a secured creditor.

idoneus: upright; suitable as a debtor, taxpayer, or holder of a public duty.

illatio: an installment; a tax payment.

immunitas: immunity, especially from taxes: 10.25.

impensae: expenses made on property. They are generally divided into necessariae, necessary to prevent deterioration or loss; utiles, beneficial in improving property; and voluptariae, serving only to increase beauty or to ornament.

imperitia: lack of skill or knowledge, especially regarding legal rules.

imperium: in one meaning, the power of a magistrate's office.

impubes: a prepubescent minor (for females, below 12; for males, usually below 14).

incola: a long-term resident of a city who originates elsewhere: C. 10.40.

indictio: indiction, an extraordinary imperial requisition of grain from the owners of provincial land: C. 10.17, 43; a tax cycle or public exaction more generally.

indignus: unworthy, in a legal judgment of, e.g., a potential heir.

infamia: a legal stigma stemming from exercise of a dishonest profession or an adverse judgment for dishonesty: C. 2.11, 10.59. One so attainted is infamis.

inferiores: the more humble people; see humiliores.

infulae: "fillets," insignia of office.

ingenuitas: the status of a free-born person; in the late Empire, also used of freedmen.

iniuria: outrage or affront, an intentional private delict encompassing both bodily injury and offenses against the good repute of a free person: C. 9.35.

inofficiosus: one disregarding proper duties to relatives or patrons, particularly in writing a will: C. 3.28–30.

inquilinus: in the late Empire, a resident tenant, similar to a bound colonus.

inscriptio: in criminal procedure, an official record of an accusation; a criminal complaint: C. 9.2.

insinuator: public herald: C. 12.63.

institor: the manager of a commercial or industrial business, appointed by its owner; for the institor's business obligations, the owner could be sued directly by the actio institoria: C. 4.25.

institutio heredis: the naming of an heir, within a will: C. 6.24–25.

instrumentum: the equipment necessary for reasonable use of a property. Instructus: provided with such equipment. Instrumentum is also used of a document.

intentio: in post-classical procedure, any assertion of the plaintiff that must be proved by him.

intentor: a surety guarantor, e.g., for payment of a judgment debt.

intercessio: taking upon oneself another's debt or liability for another. Such a delegatee is an intercessor.

interdictum: an order issued by a magistrate at the request of a claimant and addressed to another person who is ordered to do, or not to do, something: C. 8.1. On particular interdicts, see quorum bonorum: C. 8.2; quod legatorum: C. 8.3; unde vi: C. 8.4; uti possidetis: C. 8.6. The interdicta exhibitoria order defendants to produce a person (even a free person) or a thing; they include, among others, the interdicts de homine libero exhibendo and de liberis exhibendis (for production of a free person or a child in power: C. 8.8), and de tabulis exhibendis (for production of a document: C. 8.7). The interdictum Salvianum allows a landlord to obtain possession of a farm tenant's personal property that has been pledged: C. 8.9.

interest: in measuring civil damages, the extent of a litigant's interest in a certain performance having occurred, as in the phrases id quod interest or quanti ea res est: C. 7.47.

interlocutio: an order, statement, or preliminary finding during a trial: C. 7.45.

interminatio: a threatened statutory punishment for infraction of law.

interpellare: to initiate a lawsuit, or the action itself. Interpellatio planaria: informal complaint "out of court," de plano (literally, away from the elevated judge's tribunal).

interversor: embezzler.

invecta et illata: personal property brought into a farm or dwelling by a tenant, and obligated to the landlord by a pignus tacitum: C. 8.14.

irenarcha: a civic officer charged with maintaining public order: C. 10.77.

iudex: in the late Empire, any imperial official who has any jurisdiction; this title or iudex ordinarius is often used for provincial governors in their judicial role: C. 1.45, 48–49; 7.49. On the iudex militaris (military judge), see C. 1.46. A iudex delegatus or pedaneus is a judge whom a magistrate delegates to hear a specific case: C. 3.3. Iudex delegatorius: tax judge. Iudex competens: the appropriate judge for a particular trial.

iudicium: a trial, or the legal basis for a trial: C. 3.1. A iudicium bonae fidei is a trial in which the parties' conduct is measured by bona fides. Iudicium de moribus: an action by a husband against a wife, for misconduct: C. 5.17. Iudicium publicum: a criminal trial or court. Iudicium can also be the judgment in a testator's will, or the will itself.

iugum: a measurement of land (c. 0.6 acre); a property tax (iugatio terrena).

iuridicus: a senior provincial Justice with broad activity in judicial matters: C. 1.57.

iurisdictio: the power to set the legal rules used to adjudicate controversies.

ius: most commonly, law, a rule of law, or a right given by law; iure means rightfully, lawfully. Ius strictum is "strict law," legal rules unmitigated by considerations of fairness. See also ratio iuris. Ius civile: the law of a given people, especially the private law. Ius vitae necisque: the power of life and death over others. Ius liberorum: under the Augustan marriage legislation, privileges given to parents with the requisite number of children: C. 5.66; 8.58. Ius mariti: a husband's right to prosecute his adulterous wife; ius extranei: the right of a non-family member to do so. Ius fisci: the Treasury's rights as a privileged creditor: C. 7.73; 10.1–10. Ius Italicum: the set of legal privileges granted to favored non-Italian provincial cities, largely meaningless after the grant of universal citizenship in 212 CE and abolished by Justinian: C. 7.31.

iusiurandum: an oath sworn either during a trial or extrajudicially: C. 4.1.

iussio: an imperial pronouncement. Iussum: in public law, an order given by a magistrate within the limits of his power; in private law, especially an order given by a paterfamilias or master to a child or slave to conduct a transaction with a third party, who can sue the principal by the actio quod iussu: C. 4.26.

kalendarium: a debt book kept by money-lenders or municipalities.

largitiones sacrae: Imperial Finances, the state Treasury (fiscus) in the later Empire: C. 12.23.

laterculum: official register of all public offices and officers in the later Empire, kept by registrars, laterculenses.

latro, latrunculus: bandit, outlaw; latrocinium: highway robbery: C. 9.39.

Latinitas: in one legal usage, the status of freedmen who were manumitted by irregular procedure; Latini Iuniani, so-called after the lex Junia Norbana of 19 CE: C. 7.6.

legatum: a legacy, bequeathed to a legatee out of an inheritance: C. 6.37, 43. Legatum per praeceptionem: a legacy left on a preferential basis, before the estate is determined. Legatum sub modo: a legacy combined with a request that the legatee perform a certain act: C. 6.45.

legatus: an official delegated to hear civil and criminal cases: C. 1.35; an ambassador: C. 10.65. Legatio: an embassy: C. 10.65.

legitimi: statutory heirs upon intestacy: C. 6.15.

leno: a pimp: C. 11.41. Lenocinium: procurement of prostitution.

lex: a statute; in late imperial usage, extended to imperial constitutions: C. 1.14. Leges generales are imperial enactments of general application; leges edictales emanate from imperial edicts. The lex regia is Justinian's term for the lex de imperio granting power to an Emperor. Lex is also used for a term in a private contract or other document. A lex commissoria allows a seller to declare a sale void if the price is not paid by a set date.

lex Cornelia* (81 BCE): referring most commonly to one of the criminal statutes enacted by Sulla. Lex Fabia (late Republican): against unlawfully appropriating a slave: C. 9.20. Lex Iulia repetundarum (59 BCE): criminalizing provincial extortion. Lex Iulia Maiestatis: a law on treason, either of Julius Caesar (46 BCE) or Augustus (8 BCE). Lex Falcidia: a statute of 40 BCE providing that legacies not exceed three-quarters of a testator's estate: C. 6.50. Lex Aquilia: a statute from the early third century BCE providing compensation for wrongful damage to property (damnum iniuria datum): C. 3.35. Lex Iulia de maritandis ordinibus (18 BCE), often joined by legal sources with the lex Papia Poppaea (9 CE): the Augustan marriage legislation, called the lex Iulia Miscella by Justinian: C. 6.40; 8.57. Lex Iulia de adulteriis (18 BCE): a law fixing the definition and prosecution of alleged adultery, and probably other sexual offenses as well: C. 9.9. Lex Iulia de ambitu (18 BCE): penalizing corrupt solicitation of office. Lex Iulia iudiciorum publicorum and iudiciorum privatorum (c. 17 BCE): two laws regulating criminal and civil procedure. Lex Iulia de vi privata and lex Iulia de vi publica (Augustan?): criminalizing violent acts. Lex Aelia Sentia (4 CE): restricting manumissions. Lex Visellia (24 CE): punishing freedpersons who falsely pretend to be free-born: C. 9.21. Lex Iunia Vellaea (28 CE?): with rules on designating and disinheriting posthumous children.

libellus: a small book; in law, a written complaint in a civil or criminal matter, or a written declaration. In the late Empire, a libellus from a plaintiff initiates a private lawsuit. A responding declaration is a libellus contradictorius. In private law, a libellus famosus is a defamatory publication: C. 9.36; publishing libelli famosi about the Emperor could also result in criminal prosecution.

liberatio: liberation, as from slavery (manumission) or from a debt: C. 8.42; 11.40.

liberi: children of either sex.

libertas: freedom, the status of a free person: C. 7.22. See also favor libertatis.

libertus: a freedman, especially in relation to his manumitter: C. 4.13; 6.4, 7; 10.58. Libertus orcinus: a freedman manumitted in his master's will.

lis: any lawsuit; both the trial and its object. Litis contestatio: joinder of issue; in post-classical procedure, the moment when a jurisdictional officer began formally to hear a case: C. 3.9. Litem suam facere: a delict whereby a judge, after gross misconduct, assumes the defendant's liability: C. 7.49.

locatio conductio: "lease and hire," a sprawling contract that covers most exchanges of money for a service, including lease of an object: C. 4.65; lease of imperial land: C. 10.71–73.

logographus: a bookkeeper in a public office: C. 10.71.

lucrum: profit or benefit.

luitio pignoris: redemption of a pledge: C. 8.30.

magister: a title indicating a person who exercises the highest functions in an organization, association, or public office: C. 12.9; also used of a teacher: C. 10.53; 11.19. Magister militum: the Master of the Soldiers, commander of an army division: C. 1.29, 12.4. Magister officiorum: the Master of Offices, the Chief of Staff among the court offices: C. 1.31, 12.6. Magister census: a high official charged with handling taxation of Senators and with wills.

magisterium (magisteria potestas): the office of a magister whatever his special functions were.

maiestas (laesa): the crime of high treason (very broadly construed): C. 9.8.

maior, maior annis: a full adult, over 25: C. 2.53.

maleficus: sorcerer (magus): C. 9.18.

manceps: a public contractor, especially to collect taxes or customs or to lease public land.

mancipatio: a ceremony for conveying title to property in the category res mancipi, effectively abolished by Justinian.

mancipium: frequently synonymous with servus, slave: C. 11.63. In mancipio: free persons conveyed by mancipatio to another, usually in noxal surrender. See also res mancipi.

mandatum: an order. In private law, a consensual contract in which one person orders another to act for him: C. 4.35; a mandator is one who orders or commissions another to do something, such as to extend credit: C. 8.40. In public law, a judicial or administrative instruction issued by the Emperor to imperial officials, esp. governors: C. 1.15.

mansio: a post station along major Roman roads; see statio.

manumissio: the release of a slave from his master's power: C. 4.14; 7.1–15. The Codex refers to a number of methods for manumission, both formal (vindicta, testamento, fideicommisaria, apud consilium) and informal (inter amicos, per mensam).

manus iniectio: symbolic seizure of an alleged or adjudged debtor or miscreant.

mathematicus: astrologer: C. 9.18.

matricula: register, e.g., of Advocates.

matrimonium: marriage, sometimes synonymous with nuptiae: C. 5.4, 6–7.

melloproximus: a deputy chief clerk.

memorialis: an official record-keeper, clerk, in a bureau of the imperial chancery.

mensores: quartering masters: C. 12.27.

mercator: merchant or tradesman: C. 4.63.

metallum: a mine in private or public ownership: C. 11.7.

metata: quartering of soldiers: C. 12.40.

metoeci: resident foreigners (metics); more commonly, bound tenants subject to transfer.

metrocomia: a "mother-village," a head village: C. 11.56; metropolis: a "mother city," a major regional city or capital.

metus: fear or duress, usually physical: C. 2.19.

militia: military service; in the later Empire, also employment in civil administration: C. 12.33.

ministerium: in administrative parlance, the office and activity of a public official or worker (minister). See also statuti, supernumerarii.

missio: discharge, as from military service; a missio honesta is an honorable discharge; a missio causaria is for a disability. Missio in possessionem: a magistrate's order to seize the property of an adversary or of an estate: C. 6.43.

mittendarius: an imperial official who transmits messages to governors or collects taxes.

moderator: a provincial governor.

modius: a dry measure equivalent to about 8.73 liters, or, for wheat, about 6.75 kilograms.

moenia: walls; public buildings.

monetarius: a worker in the imperial mint: C. 11.8.

mora: delay by a debtor in paying a debt, or by a creditor in accepting payment.

mos, mores: custom, especially the prevailing values and usages.

multa: a pecuniary penalty, a fine.

municipium: a town with limited self-government and legal personality. Municeps: a citizen of a municipality: C. 10.39.

munus (civile), munera: in one usage, public services, charges, duties, or offices toward the state or city (municipium) of domicile: C. 10.41–46, 64. Munera personalia: duties attached to specific persons; civilia: civic services; sordida: "base services" involving physical labor.

mutuum: a loan; in classical Roman law, a gratuitous loan of a fungible such as money, but the word is used more widely in later sources.

natalium restitutio: the privileges of a free-born person, granted as a benefit by the Emperor to certain freedmen: C. 6.8.

naturalis: natural, by nature; a term also used for illegitimate children: C. 5.27. Naturalis ratio: natural reason, innate understanding.

navicularii: shipowners, organized into guilds with public duties: C. 11.2–4. Naucleri: shipmasters: C. 11.2. Nauticus: shipper. Naufragium: a shipwreck: C. 11.6.

necessitas: compulsion, exigency; compulsory service. Necessarii: close relations.

neglegentia: carelessness, tantamount to culpa (fault).

negotiator: businessman, especially on a larger scale: C. 12.34.

negotiorum gestio: the management of another's affairs, especially without that person's authorization: C. 2.18; 5.45.

nexum: a lien on pledged property.

nomen: a debt account; a demand or claim for payment of a debt. In another sense, the title of an office. Dare nomen: to enroll.

nominator: a person who proposes another for a tutorship or magistracy, often bound as a surety for the nominee's performance: C. 10.67–69; 11.34.

nota (censoria): in later law, legal ignominy tantamount to infamia.

notarius: a scribe or notary; in the later Empire, a confidential secretary to the Emperor, one of the corps, numeri, organized within a squad, schola, that was led by a chief secretary (primicerius) and his assistant (secundocerius), often with some degree of military responsibility: C. 12.7. See also exceptor.

novatio: novation, the transformation and transfer of a prior obligation into a new one, usually through a stipulation, in such a way as to destroy the prior debt: C. 8.41.

noxa: guilt or responsibility for a misdeed: C. 3.41.

numeri: military regiments of infantry or cavalry. Numerarius or numeratus: a chief accountant or auditor, also called tabularii: C. 12.49.

nummularius: a money changer: C. 11.18.

nuncupatio: a solemn oral declaration, before witnesses.

nundinae: a market or fair; the interval between consecutive markets: C. 4.60.

nuntiator: an informer as to criminal conduct; in later law, also a public herald: C. 12.63. Nuntiatio operis novi: protest by a neighbor against new construction.

nuptiae: marriage (synonymous with matrimonium) or a wedding: C. 5.4, 8.

oblatio votorum: a formal process for bestowal of vows for the Emperors: C. 12.48.

obligatio: a broad word designating both legal and moral duties, as determined by context: C. 4.10. An obligatio verborum is a stipulation or other formal oral undertaking. As applied to property, obligatus refers to a security lien.

obnoxius: obligated (obligatus), as a debtor or as security for a debt.

obsequium: a freedman's respectful behavior to his patron: C. 6.6. Obsequium divinum: imperial service.

octovarius: a collector of the 12.5 percent sales tax (octava) on market sales.

officium: in one meaning, the office or official staff of a magistrate, or the official duties of a magistrate: C. 1.40, 43–46, 48; 11.39. Officialis: a lower-grade official in the imperial administration: C. 12.47. Officium iudicis: a judge's duty, discretion.

opera, operae: labor both manual and intellectual. Operae liberti: the services owed by a freedman to his patron: C. 6.3.

operis novi (de)nuntiatio: a protest against new construction by a neighbor, when the protestor fears resulting damage to his own property.

opinio: in administrative law, a tax assessment. Opinator: tax assessor.
optimo iure: free from legal restrictions and charges.
optio: a low-ranking military or civil official.
oraculum: an oracle, used of an imperial enactment in the late Empire.
oratio (principis): the Emperor's speech proposing legislation in the Senate; it is often treated as equivalent to the senatusconsultum itself.
orbus: a married but childless person, penalized under the Augustan marriage legislation: C. 8.57.
ordo: in one meaning, a Senate or a municipal council; in another, status or station (e.g., ordo minor is a lower station). Ordinarius: in one meaning, a rank of distinction in government service.
originarius, originalis: citizen of a community by birth: C. 10.39. Colonus originarius: a tenant bound on basis of place of birth (origo): C. 11.48, 52.
pactum, pactio: an agreement of any kind between two parties. A pactum nudum is a simple, formless agreement lying outside the classical system of contracts; in later sources it often refers to the absence of an accompanying stipulatio.
pagani: in one meaning, civilians (as opposed to soldiers).
palatini: all officials in civil or military service in the imperial palace: C. 12.23, 30.
parangariae: vehicles for supplementary transport, or requisitions for them: C. 12.50.
parapherna: property belonging to the wife during marriage: C. 5.14.
paraveredi: requisition of supplemental mounts for public post.
parens: a parent or ascendant.
pascuum publicum: public pasture land: C. 11.61.
paterfamilias: the male head of an agnatic family descended from him: C. 4.13, 43; 10.62. A pater civitatis is a civic curator.
patria: place of birth; native country.
patria potestas: a father's power over his unemancipated agnatic descendants: C. 8.46.
patriciatus: in the late Empire, the highest rank at Court.
patrimonium: a person's entire property; also used of the Emperor's crown property: C. 1.34; 10.42; 11.62–65.
patrocinium: patronage and protection; in a trial, an advocate's legal assistance.
patronus: the ex-master of a manumitted slave, who had various duties towards him: C. 6.3–7. In a trial, a legal representative, an advocate.
peculatus: misappropriation of public funds or property: C. 9.28.

peculium: property granted by a paterfamilias to a child or slave for that person's use; it remains effectively under the recipient's control, although still belonging to the giver. Creditors of the peculium may sue the giver by the actio de peculio. See C. 4.26; 7.23. A peculium castrense is property acquired by a man in his father's power while the man is on military service (C. 1.3; 12.30 and 36); a peculium quasi castrense is a similar late imperial institution for public and church officials.

pecunia: money; sometimes used for an entire estate. Pecunia maritima or traieticia: a bottomry loan; see fenus nauticum.

pensio, pensitatio: an installment or tax payment.

peraequatio: an equitable tax adjustment, by an adjuster (peraequator): C. 11.58.

perduellio: treason; see maiestas.

peregrinus: the citizen of a state other than Rome, including non-citizens resident within the Roman Empire.

perfectissimus: a title of high officials of equestrian rank: C. 12.32.

periculum: danger, risk, as of the loss or deterioration of property; commonly used to express risk associated with legal procedure or contract: C. 5.38; 10.63; 11.34–35.

permissum: a discretionary permission that is allowed by a statute or by a magistrate.

permutatio: barter, the exchange of property for property: C. 4.64.

perpetuarius: a long-term lease holder, under the law of emphyteusis.

persecutio: an actionable claim.

persona: an individual, a human being, especially that person's legal status; by extension, a collective entity that functions legally as a person (personae vice). Persona extranea: a person outside a given familia. Persona incerta: in a will, a person who is not precisely designated, or whose existence is uncertain: C. 6.48. Persona publica: a public secretary.

petitio: a right of action, a claim. Petitio hereditatis: an action to claim an inheritance: C. 3.20–21.

philikon: "benevolence," a harbor tax.

pietas: dutifulness, respectful conduct, especially toward family members.

pignus: a pledge, contractual security for a debt. In some texts, pignus is associated with debtor's property held by a creditor to secure payment; in other texts, the word is used for security retained by the debtor (compare hypotheca). See C. 4.24; 8.13–32. Pignus tacitum: an implied pledge of property: C. 8.14. Pignus praetorium: a pledge taken by a creditor on a magistrate's order: C. 8.21. Distractio pignoris: creditor's sale of a pledge after debtor default: C. 8.27.

pistor: baker, organized in a legally protected guild: C. 11.16.

pittacium: a short note or ticket, used in administering army food supply.

placitum: an informal agreement; of the Emperor, a constitution.

plagium: kidnapping: C. 9.20.

plebs: the common people; plebeius: a common person, one of low social status.

poena: a civil or criminal penalty for misconduct: C. 9.47. Poena capitalis: capital punishment.

pollicitatio: an informal unilateral promise, especially a donative promise of money or construction to a municipality.

ponderator: official weigher of money or bullion from taxpayers: C. 10.73.

portio virilis, pro portione virili: one's share of a benefit or liability.

possessio: the factual, physical control of a corporeal object, combined with the possessor's intent to hold it, normally as owner: C. 7.32; also, a possessed object. Possessio vacua: undisturbed possession of an immovable; a seller tacitly guarantees that no third party will successfully evict a buyer from possession. Possessio bonorum: see bonorum possessio. Possessio momentaria: a non-technical term referring to temporary and provisional possession settled through an interdict. Possidens: often, a landowner. Possessor bonae fidei: a person who takes possession of property belonging to another, but believes in good faith that he is acquiring ownership.

postliminium: resumption of legal rights by a citizen who regains freedom after enemy capture: C. 8.50.

postulatio: pleading in court, a body of rules governing who may bring a claim for himself or others: C. 2.6; a summons to trial.

postumus: a child born within ten months after the testator's death: C. 6.29.

potentatus: (abuse of) power.

potentiores: in the later Empire, people with economic and social power over others by virtue of their official position or wealth: C. 2.13–14.

potestas: in one usage, an official position and the power associated with it.

praeceptum iuris* or *praeceptio: a legal rule.

praedia: plots of land along with the buildings on them.

praefectus: the chief of an office in any branch of administration. The praefectus praetorio (Praetorian Prefect) was, in the late Empire, the governor of one of the large prefectures, the head of a court of final instance, and a chief advisor of the Emperor in military and civil matters: C. 7.42; 12.4, 52; and see C. 1.27 for Africa, 1.26 for the East and for Illyricum. The praefectus urbi was the head of administration and had civil and criminal jurisdiction in the imperial capitals of Rome and Constantinople: C. 1.28; 12.4. The praefectus annonae (Prefect of the Food Supply) took charge of matters connected with food administration: C. 1.44; 12.58. The praefectus augustalis (Augustal Prefect) was governor of the diocese of Egypt: C. 1.37. The praefectus vigilum (Prefect of the Watch) acted as chief of police, with jurisdiction in some criminal and civil trials: C. 1.43.

praeiudicium: a preliminary judicial judgment of a question upon which a larger controversy turns: C. 3.8; 7.19; 9.31; prejudice or damage to a claim.

praelegatum: the legacy of specific property to an heir, in addition to his share.

praepositus: a person in charge, as the chief of a government bureau; a supervisor: C. 10.72. Praepositus sacri cubiculi: the Grand Chamberlain of the imperial household: C. 12.5. Praepositi labar(or)um: the imperial color guard: C. 12.18.

praerogativa: a privilege, see privilegium.

praescriptio: in late imperial procedure, a general term for a standard defense, synonymous with exceptio (q.v.). See C. 7.40; 8.35. A praescriptio moratoria or dilatoria is a defense delaying a trial for a specified time. A praescriptio peremptoria is one that makes the other party's claim void. Praescriptio militiae aut fori: a defense based on one's being on imperial or ecclesiastical service, or on an objection to jurisdiction.

praescriptio longi temporis: in late imperial law, a defense that allows a possessor of provincial land to use uninterrupted possession for ten or twenty years as a basis for defeating a property claim: C. 7.34–39. This defense was also available when an alleged slave had long lived as a free person: C. 7.22.

praesentales: soldiers or officials under one person's command, or in the Imperial Presence.

praeses provinciae: governor of a province: C. 1.40; 5.2.

praestatio: the performance of a legal duty; a payment.

praetor: a Republican magistrate with some judicial functions in the late Empire: C. 1.39, 12.2. Praetoria: official residences of magistrates.

pragmatica: see sanctio pragmatica.

precarium: request, sufferance; a gratuitous transfer of property to another, who holds it only as long as the grantor permits: C. 8.9. Precario or precariis verbis: the typical wording of a testamentary "request" directing an heir to undertake a trust (fideicommissum).

pretium: the money price fixed in a sale. Pretium iustum: an adequate or just price; pretium verum: a true price, evidently as fixed by a market.

primas: a person holding the top position in a government or local office or in a professional association: C. 11.29.

primicerius: a chief official; see notarius.

primipili* or *primipilares: in the army, the highest-ranking centurions, quartermasters-general; in the late Empire, commissaries entrusted by the Emperor with special military missions: C. 12.57, 62.

primiscrinius: a first assistant bureau chief (see scrinium).

princeps: in the later Empire, the Chief of Staff in a civil or military office. Principalis: in military service, an officer of lower rank; in other contexts, a chief civic magistrate. Princeps or principatus: the Emperor; the highest rank in an office.

privilegium: a legal exemption from specified general rules. Privilegium fisci: a privilege held by the Treasury: C. 7.73. Privilegium dotis: the right of a wife to recover her dowry from her late husband's estate, before heirs or creditors: C. 7.74.

probatio: a proof, or the means of proof: C. 4.19. Probatoria: an imperial decree appointing an official: C. 12.59.

proceres: the most senior members of imperial or military staffs.

proconsul: a governor with Proconsular power: C. 1.35.

procurator: a person who administers another's affairs on behalf of that person: C. 2.12, 48; or on his own behalf (procurator in rem suam). A procurator also often represents the interests of a litigant in court: C. 2.12. In administrative law, equestrian procurators of the Privy Purse (procuratores privatae rationis) head most offices concerned with financial administration: C. 10.72.

prodigus: spendthrift, whose affairs may be supervised by a curator: C. 5.70.

proferre sententiam: of a judge, to deliver or render a verdict.

professio: a declaration of family and property for the census; or other declarations.

professio censualis: a tax declaration. Professor: an upper-level teacher: C. 10.53; 12.15.

programma: a proclamation of the Emperor or a provincial governor: C. 7.57.

propinquus: a close relative; a neighbor.

proprietas: ownership; proprietarius: a property owner (dominus).
prosecutor: an agent appointed to convey public property: C. 10.74.
protectores: in the later Empire, imperial guardsmen, often seconded to high-ranking officers: C. 12.17; see domestici. Protectoria dignitas: the rank of the protectoriate, often strictly honorary. In the fifth century, the scholae Palatinae had replaced the protectores as a palace guard, and were in turn being supplanted by the candidati.
provocatio: in later Roman law, an appeal addressed to the Emperor: C. 7.64, 70.
proximi: chief clerks, assistants in imperial offices: C. 12.19.
pulsare: to sue.
pupillus: a sui iuris minor who is the ward of a tutor.
quaestio: a judicial examination, a trial; in the case of slaves whether accused or as witnesses, an examination under torture: C. 9.41. Quaestio libertatis: inquest into whether someone is free.
quaestor: a city official in charge of public games: C. 1.30, 12.6. From the early fourth century, the quaestor sacri palatii was the highest civil functionary in each half of the Empire, with responsibilities in drafting enactments and legal decisions for the Emperor.
querella inofficiosi testamenti: a legal complaint by a legitimate intestate heir who was omitted or unjustly disinherited in a testator's will: C. 3.28.
quod legatorum: an interdict available to an heir against someone holding estate property on the pretext that it was bequeathed: C. 8.3.
quod vi aut clam: the opening words of an interdict demanding return or repair of damage to real property: C. 8.2.
quorum bonorum: opening words of an interdict available to a Praetorian successor against anyone holding property belonging to an estate: C. 8.2. rapina: robbery, theft of property by force: C. 9.33 (vi bonorum raptorum).
raptus: criminal abduction of a woman against her will or that of her parents: C. 9.13.
ratio iuris: the logic of the law; the consistency of a rule with the more general legal system. Ratio naturalis: reason in conformity with "natural" instinct. Rationes privatae: see res privata.
rationes, ratiocinia: accounts, account books, including imperial accounts; rationes privatae (Caesaris): the imperial Privy Purse; rationes publicae: public accounts; rationalis: an imperial comptroller.
re integra: "while the matter is unchanged," when an agreement remains entirely executory.

receptum arbitri: agreement of a private arbitrator to settle a controversy: C. 2.55.

rector: governor of a province: C. 1.40.

rector provinciae: a provincial governor: C. 1.40. Regimen: governorship.

recusatio: objection to a judge.

redemptio: ransom, especially from Roman enemies: C. 8.50.

redhibitio: cancellation of a sale when goods are defective.

reditus: income, proceeds, as from taxes: C. 11.70.

refragatio: hindrance, especially a legal objection.

regesta: the records of a government official.

regula: an abstract legal principle.

relatio: in procedural law, a lower-level judge's report or referral of a legal question to a higher official or the Emperor: C. 7.61. See also consultatio.

replicatio: a counterdefense: see exceptio and praescriptio.

relegatio: non-capital exile, sometimes associated with confiscation of property, loss of citizenship, or confinement in a certain place.

relevare: to relieve from payment of taxes or from other public duties.

reliqua: arrears in payments owed to a private or public person, including tax arrears.

remunerationes: expenditures, especially from the Emperor.

reparatio: replacement as a remedy. Reparatio temporum: reinstatement, a device for undoing the consequences of delay in meeting a judicial deadline: C. 7.63.

replicatio: in civil procedure, a counterdefense, a defense to a defense.

repudium: notice to the other party of the sender's withdrawal from engagement or marriage.

requirere: to search after (a wanted person): C. 9.40.

res: most commonly, in property law, any property, including both corporeal and incorporeal things. Res mancipi (land in Italy, slaves, beasts of draft and burden, rural servitudes): an ancient property category requiring mancipation for conveyance of title; Justinian abolished the category: C. 7.25, 31. Res litigiosa: property in a pending lawsuit: C. 8.36. In civil procedure, res is both the object of the controversy and the litigation itself; a res adiudicata or iudicata is an adjudicated matter: C. 7.52, 54–57, 60. Res lucrativae: gainful acquisitions.

res privata (Caesaris): in administrative usage, the Emperor's Privy Purse (also res dominica, rationes privatae), his purely private property: C. 11.61.

res publica: the Roman state; a municipality (see also civitas): C. 11.30–33.

rescissio: rescission, i.e., cancellation, for instance of a contract.

rescriptum: the Emperor's written answer to queries from officials or to private petitions, especially on questions of law: C. 1.23.

restitutio: return or restoration, as of an inheritance: C. 6.25. Restitutio in integrum: restoration into a former legal position, where a person has suffered an inequitable loss or is threatened by one; it is granted most often when sui iuris persons under 25 are taken advantage of: C. 2.21–53. In criminal law: restoration of position after being convicted: C. 9.51.

retractio: revocation or rescission of a legal act; in procedural law, retrial.

reus: in private or criminal law, a defendant. A reus stipulandi is a creditor (promisee) by virtue of a stipulation; a reus promittendi is a promisor.

revocatio donationis: revocation of a gift: C. 8.55. Revocatoria sacra: an imperial summons to come to the capital city, usually to receive an office.

rusticitas: boorish ignorance, especially of country folk; it can excuse ignorance of law: C. 1.17.

sacra: in one meaning, the rituals performed on behalf of a familia; often identified with patria potestas. In sacris: under patria potestas. Sacramentum: a soldier's oath of allegiance to his standards and to the Emperor: C. 10.55.

sacrilegium: theft of religious property; in later extended usage, any offense against the sanctity of imperial law: C. 9.29.

salarium: an honorarium given to persons exercising a liberal profession.

salgamum: accoutrements, military provisions other than weapons and clothing: C. 12.41.

saltus: elevated woodland or pasture; large estates, especially those belonging to the Emperor or his family: C. 11.62–64, 66–67. Saltuenses: shepherds to the land (?).

sanctio: in one meaning, a sanction, a penalty for violating a law. Sanctio pragmatica: in the late Empire, an imperial enactment of a general and permanent validity (synonyms: pragmatica, lex pragmatica, etc.): C. 1.23.

satisdatio: a performance bond given to a creditor through a debtor's surety: C. 2.56.

schola: in the late Empire, a group of persons in the military or organized on military lines, a squad, under the command of a tribunus or praepositus: C. 12.29. Scholae palatinae: military units stationed in and around the imperial palace, under the command of a tribune or Count. Scholares: imperial guardsmen. Scholasticus: advocate.

scriba: a clerk in a court or office, a secretary: C. 10.71.

scrinium: in the late Empire, a subdivision or bureau of the imperial chancery: C. 12.9. Various scrinia are named from their functions: a memoria or memoriae, memorials, performing secretarial work on all imperial decisions; ab epistulis or epistularum, handling private and official correspondence; a libellis or libellorum, handling petitions; cognitionum et dispositionum, trials and dispositions ("arrangements") of cases. Scriniarii: employees in government bureaux: C. 12.49.

secundocerius: assistant chief; see notarius.

securitates: receipts, as for payment of taxes; synonymous with apochae.

sedes: the "seat" or office of a magistrate.

seditio: open rebellion against the government, especially by large numbers of people: C. 9.30.

senator: a member of the Roman Senate; an official with Senatorial status.

senatusconsultum, SC: a decree of the Senate, treated as law during the Empire. SC Macedonianum (Vespasian): a decree forbidding loans of money to sons under paternal power: C. 4.28. SC Silianum (10 CE) punished slaves found under the same roof as a master who was violently murdered. SC Claudianum (52 CE): permitting the owner of a male slave to enslave a free woman who persisted in having sex with the slave: C. 7.24. SC Libonianum (Claudius): voiding testamentary dispositions in favor of the will's writer: C. 9.23. SC Velleianum (56 CE): a law restricting women from acting as sureties: C. 4.29. SC Trebellianum (56 CE): regulating trusts that require an heir to restore an estate to a third party. SC Turpilianum (61 CE): restricting withdrawal of a criminal complaint (tergiversatio): C. 9.45. SC Tertullianum (Hadrianic) gave mothers a right of intestate succession to their children: C. 6.56. SC Orfitianum (178 CE) gave children the right to succeed to their mothers in preference to other relations: C. 6.57.

sententia: the verdict, the final judgment in a civil trial, rendered by a judge: C. 7.43–50, 55; 10.9, 50.

separatio bonorum: the separation of an heir's property from the estate he inherited, in order to protect the former from the decedent's creditors: C. 7.72.

sepulchrum: a grave or place of burial: C. 9.19.

sequestratio: deposit of contested property with a third party sequester: C. 4.4.

servitus: a servitude (easement) held by a dominant over a servient property, as a right of way or a right to convey water: C. 3.34.

servus: a slave. Servitus: slave status. Servus hereditarius: a slave in an inheritance. Servus communis: a slave owned in common. Servus fugitivus: a runaway slave: C. 6.1. Servus corruptus: a slave whose character is harmed by a third party: C. 6.2.

sicarius: in later law, any murder: C. 9.16.

signum: on a written document, a seal.

silentiarii: thirty officials charged with keeping order during imperial audiences, headed by decuriones, commanders: C. 12.16.

siliqua: a small civil coin, the basis of a sales tax in the late Empire; a sales tax.

societas: a contract of partnership: C. 4.37. Socius: a partner; socius omnium bonorum: a partner as to all the property of the partners.

solacia: compensation, indemnification; stipend or salary.

solemnia: formalities prescribed by law for certain acts; more generally, solemnitas means what is prescribed by law, i.e., law itself.

solidus: a standard gold coin in the late Empire. In solidum means "for the entirety" of a debt. Septem solidi: see gleba.

solutio: payment of a debt, or liberation from it: C. 8.42; 11.40.

species: merchandise, goods; a particular object; supplies: C. 10.27; taxes paid in kind.

spectacula: shows (synonymous with ludi): C. 10.41–42.

speculator: in one meaning, a highly qualified soldier or civil servant.

spondere: to promise formally to assume an obligation.

sponsalia: engagement or betrothal prior to marriage: C. 5.1. In the late Empire the eventual marriage may be guaranteed by payment of earnest money (arra).

sportula: a fee payable to lower-level judicial officials for conduct of legal business: C. 3.2.

statio: a public office; a district division of the Treasury. Stationarius: a military police officer assigned to a statio. Stativa: provision for lodging: C. 12.51.

statuliber: a slave manumitted by his master's will upon a suspensive condition (that something occur).

status: a legal situation or condition, as of a person: C. 3.22. Statu integro: a phrase, used in conveying property, that means "complete with all physical and legal incidents."

statutum: a law or enactment, a statute. Statuti: the members of a regular staff.

stellionatus: the crime of double-dealing, villainy; a catch-all crime of trickery or cheating: C. 9.34.

stipendium: a payment, especially for a soldier or public employee; accordingly, stipendia is length of service.

stipulatio: a formal oral promise by a debtor; in late classical law, largely replaced by a written document witnessing the promise. C. 8.37–39. A stipulator puts the question in the formal process, and so is the promisee. For stipulatio Aquiliana, see acceptilatio.

strator: a prison warden; in another meaning, an imperial groom or horse inspector (C. 12.24).

stuprum: criminal fornication, especially with an unmarried woman: C. 9.9.

subscriptio: in private law, a signature, especially to a legal document. In public law, the Emperor's signature, usually accompanying a rescriptum in answer to a petition.

substitutio heredis: the appointment of another heir by a testator in the event the first heir either cannot or will not accept the inheritance: C. 6.25–26. Substitutio pupillaris: a father's appointment of a substitute heir for his minor child: C. 6.26.

suffragium: a recommendation of a person for a position or a privilege by a recommender (suffragator), usually in return for an honorarium: C. 4.3. In another meaning, a privilege granted by law.

suggestio: a query or report from a lower to a higher official or to the Emperor.

sui iuris: not subject to patria potestas, the power of a paterfamilias; also used more generally, under his own authority summae rationes, summa res: the general fiscal administration of the Roman state.

sumptus: expenses, especially on property (also impensae).

superindictio: in the later Empire, an extraordinary additional charge or tax: C. 10.18.

supernumerarii: additional staff members, beyond the regular staff in an office (the statuti), who are promoted to a regular staff position as vacancies arise.

supplicium capitale: capital punishment.

susceptor: a tax collector: C. 10.72; 11.17. Susceptio: tax collection.

syndicus: a representative of a corporate body or a group.

tabula: a writing tablet; a written document. Tabulae nuptiales or dotales are documents associated with arranging marriage and dowry. Tabellio: a private notary who draws up written documents for private individuals. Tabularius: a subordinate tax official or archivist, or a civic secretary: C. 10.71; a chief accountant: C. 12.49. Tabularium: an archive, especially one of the imperial archives.

temo: a recruitment tax, paid in consortium by landowners in lieu of supplying a recruit.

tessera (frumentaria): a token for obtaining free grain in the capitals.

testamentum: a will, the solemn written declaration in which a testator names an heir or heirs, and otherwise disposes of his estate: C. 6.23. A testamentum inofficiosum is an undutiful will that omits or unjustly disinherits legitimate intestate heirs: C. 3.28.

testis: a witness, either to a transaction or in a trial: C. 4.20. Testificatio: a declaration.

thesaurus: a treasure trove, something valuable that has been hidden for so long that its owner can no longer be established: C. 10.15; in administrative law, an imperial treasury or storage depot. Thesaurensis: a late imperial official charged with imperial storehouses.

tiro: military recruit: C. 12.43.

titulus (iustus): title to property; in tax law, a taxpayer's account. Titulus auri comparaticii: the privilege of paying money in gold.

togatus: see advocatus.

trabea: official vestment; by metonymy, the consulship.

tractoria: warrant for use of the imperial post: C. 12.50–51.

traditio: physical delivery of property: C. 7.25, 32.

transactio: a voluntary extrajudicial settlement of a dispute: C. 2.4.

tributum: in later law, a general term for taxes: C. 10.16, 21; tributarius: a taxpayer.

turmarii: tax officials charged with the recruitment of cavalry.

tutor: guardian of a sui iuris minor; see C. 5.28–69, 71–75. Tutela testamentaria: tutelage imposed on minor children through a will: C. 5.28.

unde liberi: "whereby children," a provision in the Praetor's Edict allowing offspring, in the first instance, to claim the inheritance under Praetorian rather than civil intestacy rules: C. 6.15. Similarly named provisions order the following ranks of claimants: the agnates who are intestate heirs under civil law, and after them the cognates (unde legitimi and unde cognati: C. 6.15–17); spouses (unde vir et uxor: C. 6.18).

unde vi: "whence by force," a general title for three interdicts in the Praetor's Edict, all directed against forcible dispossession from land: C. 8.4.

universitas: a collectivity, especially one treated as a legal person. Per universitatem: "as an entirety."

usucapio: usucapion, acquisition of ownership of another's property through possession of it for a legally set period; this is not adverse possession, but rather a means whereby the right to property that has been informally conveyed can ripen into ownership. See C. 7.26–31.

usufructus: the personal right to use and exploit another's property without impairing its substance: C. 3.33. The holder is a usufructuarius.

usurae: periodic interest on debt; see C. 4.32; 5.56; 6.47, 54. Public law sets limits on the rate of interest that can be charged: usurae legitimae. Also, if a debt is not repaid and goes into delay (mora), pre-judgment interest may be due as a matter of private law.

uti possidetis: an interdict aiming to maintain an existing possessory situation, where a possessor has been disturbed by an adversary who threatens a suit over ownership: C. 8.6.

utilitas: the advantage or interest of a private individual; utilitas publica: the welfare of the state: C. 1.22.

vacantes: titular officials. vacatio (munerum): exemption from public charges, services, or taxes: C. 10.45–46.

vacua possessio: see possessio.

vectigalia: a general term for public revenues, especially rents and other periodic payments, as well as taxes, imposts, and customs duties: C. 4.61–62. Vectigal alabarchiae: transit impost.

venalicium: the sales tax.

venia aetatis: an imperial privilege allowing full legal capacity to a person above the age of adulthood, but less than 25: C. 2.44.

veredi: post-horses.

versum in rem: what is turned to a father or master's advantage, from the transaction of a son or slave with his peculium: C. 4.26.

vestis militaris: a tax to provide clothing for soldiers: C. 12.39.

veterani: soldiers honorably discharged from service: C. 12.46.

vexillatio: cavalry squadron.

vicarius: after 314 CE, Vicar, the governor of a diocese in the later Empire, with civil responsibilities including the administration of justice and collection of taxes: C. 1.38; more generally, any deputy.

vicesima hereditatum: the 5 percent tax on inheritances: C. 6.33.

vicus: a village; a small territorial unit.

vindicatio rei: an action to recover property on the basis of title: C. 3.32; 7.38. Vindicatio in libertatem: an action in favor of a free person held by another as a slave (causa liberalis): C. 7.16–18.

vindicta: a rod, used for a symbolic gesture especially in manumission: C. 7.1.

violatio sepulchri: desecration of a grave, a crime: C. 9.19 vir bonus: an upright man, used as a standard in measuring reasonable conduct; synonymous with vir honestus.

vir clarissimus: an honorific given to Senators and high officials of senatorial rank, and to their wives: C. 3.24; 5.33. Vir egregrius: honorific for an imperial procurator of equestrian rank. Vir eminentissimus: the honorific of a Praetorian Prefect. Vir gloriosissimus: under Justinian, the honorific of the highest imperial officials. Vir magnificus or magnificentissimus: an honorific for high imperial officials. Vir illustris: an honorific title of high officials and their families in the later Empire; it carries certain personal privileges (C. 5.33). Vir perfectissimus: a honorific for high officials of equestrian rank; see C. 12.32. Vir spectabilis: an honorific title of higher officials, second in rank to illustres.

vis: force or violence, often associated with duress. Vis privata is force used against a private individual: C. 2.19; 8.4–5; 9.12. Vis publica is a crime committed with violence and prosecuted by the state: C. 9.12, 33. Vis maior, "greater force," is an external force that cannot be foreseen or averted by human effort, e.g., an earthquake.

vitium: a defect in an object or in the observance of a legal formality.

vocatio in ius: in classical law, a plaintiff's summons to a defendant to appear before a magistrate; in post-classical law, this summons is an official act in which the plaintiff does not participate. See C. 2.2.

voluntas: a person's intent or wish.

votum: a solemn vow. See also oblatio votorum.

Chronological List of the Constitutions in Justinian's Codex

This chronological list of constitutions derives directly from Appendix I to Krüger's 9th edition of the Codex (1914), pp. 489–509, and it relies on the dating used in his edition; the only alterations are typographical.

At the outset of his appendix, Krüger notes the following (our translation): "Our restored order follows the dates on which constitutions were given (datae) or, when they do not survive, the dates on which a constitution was received (accepta) or posted (proposita). The notes that proceed the dates (d., s., or the like) have been omitted. In constitutions that were given to private individuals (though these are lacking in the case of Diocletian) we have also suppressed the notations pp. and acc., since scholars agree that these constitutions were actually given on the dates when they are described as posted or accepted. Except for the names of private persons, we have attached to the subscriptions, in italics, the persons to whom they were directed. However, both the sequence of Emperors and the designations of consulates that are restored in this tabulation quite commonly deviate from those given by historians, and you will easily see that this is usually due either to the errors of earlier Codices or the mistakes of the Justinianic compilers. Historical flaws in individual constititions, whether committed by the compilers or by scribes, are indicated in the edition itself; here we have either silently corrected them (for more significant textual changes a star * has been prefixed to the constitution's numbers) or we added a question mark. 'Twin' constitutions (leges geminatae) and those that should be combined we have connected with an ampersand (&).

Krüger, who also edited the Theodosian Codex and the fragments of the two pre-Theodosian codices, is obviously no mean authority on dating; the list below is therefore more than a historical curiosity. But Krüger, as a Romanist, was also a deeply conservative text editor who disliked printing conjectures even when he recognized their likely validity. Already when the 9th edition of the Justinianic Codex was published, scholars such as Theodor Mommsen and Otto Seeck (along with Krüger himself) had demonstrated a significant level of error in the transmission of inscriptions and subscriptions to the Codex, and subsequent scholars have confirmed this. (Noel Lenski discusses the scholarship in his note for the introduction.) Since we are using Krüger's 9th edition as our target text, we have left Krüger's chronological list unchanged, but have referred to some of this scholarly discussions in notes on individual passages. Readers should be aware of this issue, although the report of the vast majority of constitutions is unaffected.

a. 117–138 IMP. HADRIANUS A.
sine conss. 6,23,1
a. 138–161 IMP. TITUS AELIUS ANTONINUS A.[1]
sine conss. 4,32,1. 5 25,1. 6,24,1. 6,37,1. 6,54,1. 7,43,1. 9,47,1
a. 146 CLARO II ET SEVBRO CONSS.
sine die 6,26,1
a. 150 GALLICANO ET VETERE CONSS.
IIII id. Oct. 2,12,1
a. 155 SABINIANO II ET SEVERO CONSS.
IIII k. Oct. 2,1,1
a. 161–169 IMPP. ANTONINUS ET VERUS AA.[2]
sine conss. 8,10,1. 8,46,1
a. 161 IPSIS III ET II AA.[3] CONSS.
id. April. 5,25,2
XVI k. Iul. 7,12,1?
viii k. Aug. 2,12,2
a. 162 RUSTICO ET AQUILINO CONSS.
XIII k. Mart. Romae 5,25,3
a. 169–180 IMP. ANTONINUS A.[4]
sine conss. 6,54,2. 9,18,1?
a. 169 PRISCO ET APOLLINARI CONSS.
VII k. Mart. 6,27,2

[1] sic 6,24,1. 6,26,1. 7,43,1 (omisso A.). 9,47,1, cf. 3,31,1 (not 4): imp. Antoninus A. Pius 6,37,1: imp. Pius Antoninus A. 2,1,1: imp. Pius A. 4,32,1. 5,25,l: divus Pius 2,12,1. 6,64,1
[2] sic 8,46,1, cf. 7,12,1: divi fratres 2,12,2. 5,25,2
[3] AA. om. 2,12,2
[4] sic 6,27,2, ubi Iustiniani eum cum Caracalla vel Elagabalo confuderunt: imp. Titus Aelius Antoninus A. 3,31,1. male: divus Marcus 6,54,2

a. 170 CLARO ET CETHEGO CONSS.
vi k. Febr. Augurino proc. Afr. 3,31,1 IMP. PERTINAX A.
a. 193 FALCONE ET CLARO CONSS.
xi k. April. 6,27,1
x k. April. 4,28,1
a.* 193–197 (196?) IMP. SEVERUS A.[5]
sine die et conss. 2,47,1
a. 193 FALCONE ET CLARO CONSS.
v. k. Iul. Victorino 3,28,1
a. 194 SEVERO A. II ET ALBINO CONSS.
v k. Mart. 8,13,1?
non. Iul. 2,1,2 vi k. Oct. 2,23,1
xi k. Nov. 8,15,1
vii k. Dec. 2,3,1?
a. 195 TERTULLO ET CLEMENTE CONSS.
v id. Mart. 9,1,1
a. 196 DEXTRO II ET PRISCO CONSS.
k. Ian. 9,41,1
prid. k. Iul. 4,19,1
k. Oct. *6,39,1
iiii non. Oct. 3,15,1
iii non. Oct. 2,18,1
vii id. Nov. 4,26,1
id. Nov. 5,4,3
xii k. Dec. 6,83,1
xi k. Dec. 6,54,3
viii k. Dec. 4,26,2
vi k. Dec. 7,32,1 iiii k. Dec. 3,28,2. 4,14,1
a. 193–211 IMPP. SEVERUS ET ANTONINUS AA.[6] sine conss. 2,11,1. 2,31,1. 4,32,2,4. 4,35,1. 4,39,1. 4,61,1–3. 4,62,1. 2. 5,3,1. 5,4,2. 6,9,1. 7,2,1. 2. 7,8,2. 7,12,1? 7,21,1. 7,46,1. 7,58,1. 8,50,1 (Ovinio). 10,1,1. 10,41,1. 10,62,1. 11,32,1. 12,33,1

[5] sic 2,47,1. 4,14,1 (a. 196), item 2,3,1, quae potius ad a. 194 quam ad a. 200 pertinet: reliquae omnes impp. Severus et Antoninus AA

[6] imp. Antoninus A. a. 204 6,28,1?: a. 205 2,11,7. 8. 5,72,1. 9,1,2: a. 208 2,11,9.10. 8,25,2: cf. Mommsen Zeitschrift jur Rechtsgeschichte IX p. 101.

a. 197 LATERANO ET RUFINO CONSS.
v id. Ian. 2,11,2
xv k. Febr. 2,18,2
k. Febr. 8,17,1
non. Febr. 5,25,4
xiii k. Mart. 5,47,1. 7,4,1.
vi id. Mart. 5,54,1
xv k. April. 6,49,1
xii k. April. 8,16,1
iii id. April. 5,18,1
vii id. Mai. 3,26,1
iii id. Mai. 6,50,1 xi k. Iun. 4,15,1
viii k. Iul. 3,28,3
ii k. Iul. 2,30,1
k. Iul. 6,50,2
xiii k. Aug. 9,9,1
x k. Sept. 6,37,2
k. Sept. 4,30,1&8,32,1
viii k. Oct. 3,36,1
k. Nov. 2,50,1
non. Dec. 6,46,1 x k. Ian. 2,11,3
viii k. Ian. 8,2,1
a. 198 SATURNINO ET GALLO CONSS.
vi k. Mart. 2,11,4
v k. Mart. 4,28,2
v non. Mart. 2,38,1
id. Mart. 4,28,3
iii k. Iun. 6,53,1
k. Iul. 2,11,5
a. 199 ANULLINO ET FRONTONE CONSS.
viii k. Febr. 2,18,3
non. Mart. 5,4,1
k. Iul. 9,9,2
prid. k. Aug. 6,47,1
vi k. Oct. 3,33,1
k. Oct. 6,25,1
a. 200 SEVERO[7] ET VICTORINO CONSS.

[7] vulgo Severo A II.

VI k. Mart. 8,44,1
XII k. Mai. 8,37,1
XI k. Mai. 6,2,1
k. Iul. 3,31,2
XV k. Oct. 4,55,1
V k. Oct. 4,32,3?
id. Oct. 2,34,1&2,36,1. 8,40,1
VII k. Nov. 4,55,2
VII k. Dec. 2,3,1?

a. 201 FABIANO ET MUCIANO CONSS.
VII k. Mart. 5,58,1
XII k. Mai. 4,28,4
k. Aug. 5,12,1
III non. Dec. 2,18,4

a. 202 SEVERO III ET ANTONINO AA. CONSS.
prid. id. Febr. 2,3,2
VIII k. April. 2,3,3
III k. Sept. 2,1,3&3,9,1
V k. Oct. 4,32,3
sine die 7,33,1

a. 203 GETA ET PLAUTIANO CONSS.
non. April. 5,66,1
III id. Mai. 2,20,1
XIII k. Iul. 2,18,5
XIII k. Dec. 3,8,1
VII id. Dec. 2,11,6

a. 204 CILONE II ET LIBONE CONSS.
XV k. April. 6,35,1
k. Mai. 5,62,1
II k. Iun. 8,13,2
VI k. Iul. 6,28,1
k. Iul. 4,2,1
XV k. Aug. 6,53,2
XIII k. Aug. 5,15,1
VI k. Aug. 6,26,2
V k. Aug. 2,43,1. 6,53,3
X k. Sept. 2,12,3
VIII k. Sept. 3,17,1. 5,62,2
III id. Sept. 9,41,2
III k. Dec. 6,2,2

III k. Ian. 6,3,1

a. 205 ANTONINO A. II ET GETA II CONSS.

V id. Ian. 2,11,7
X k. Mart. 2,11,8
II k. Mart. 8,44,2
k. April. 3,1,1
VI (?) non. April. 3,15,2
V id. April. 1,54,1
XII k. Mai. 7,8,1&8,25,1. 9,32,1
VI k. Mai. 6,3,2
k. Mai. 8,13,3
VI id. Mai. 3,33,2
non. Iun. 4,53,1
k. Iul. 9,12,1
non. Iul. 4,32,5 Antiochiae XI k. Aug. 6,42,2
k. Aug. 5,53,1
V id. Aug. 3,31,3
id. Sept. 7,21,2
XII k. Oct. 9,1,2
IIII id. Oct. 5,69,1
prid. id. Oct. 8,15,2
III non. Nov. 6,9,2&6,55,1
IIII k. Ian. 5,72,1

a. 206 ALBINO ET AEMILIANO CONSS.

VII k. Febr,5,14,1?
III k. Febr. 7,53,1
III id. Febr. 2,3,4
id. Mart. 5,62,3
III k. April. 8,30,1
XII k. Oct. 5,37,1
k. Nov. 6,3,3

a. 207 APRO ET MAXIMO CONSS.

prid. non. Ian. 2,12,4
V k. Febr. 8,10,2
prid. non. April. 5,18,2
XVII k. Mai. 7,2,3
VI k. Mai. 8,28,1
II k. Mai. 5,37,2
k. Mai. 8,36,1

v k. Iul. 8,16,2
xvii k. Aug. 5,28,1
xii k. Oct. 3,36,2
id. Oct. 4,24,1
sine die 2,18,6

a. 208 Antonino A. iii et Geta iii Conss.
ii id. Febr. 8,25,2
xii k. Mart. 2,11,9
vi id. Mart. 3,28,4
vii k. Mai. 6,35,2
iiii k. Iun. Quintiliano 7,45,1
iii k. Iun. 8,13,4 iiii k. Aug. 2,11,10
k. Aug. 6,53,4
xvii k. Sept. 8,40,3

a. 209 Pompeiano et Avito conss.
id. Ian. 7,62,1
k. Mai. 7,74,1
id. Iul. 8,18,1
iii k. Ian. 7,8,3

a. 210 Faustino et Rufino conss.
iii non. Mai. 3,32,1
v k. Iul. 8,53,1
v non. Iul. 6,4,1
viii k. Aug. 8,44,3 prid. non. Nov. 8,37,2
vi k. Ian. 3,1,2

a. 211 Gentiano et Basso conss.
vi k. Mai. 6,37,3

a. (204)[8] 211–217 IMP. ANTONINUS (CARACALLA) A.[9]

sine conss.[10] 3,36,2. 3,4,7 1. 4,30,4. 4,31,1. 2. 4,32,8–10. 4,31,2. 4,39,2. 4,46,1. 7,16,1. 7,45,2. 7,52,3. 7,53,2. 7,54,1 (procuratoribus hereditatium). 7,72,1. 7,73,1. 8,35,3. 9,18,1? 9,45,1. 9,47,3–5. 9,51,1. 2. 10,39,1. 10,40,1. 10,42,1. 2. 10,53,1. 10,55,1. 10,67,1. 11,6,1. 11,30,1.2. 11,32,3. 11,33,1. 11,35,1. 11,36,1. 12,35,1. 2 (militibus cohortis primae). 3

a. 211 Gentiano et Basso conss.

[8] cf. not. ad a. 193–211
[9] impp. Severus et Antoninus AA. a. 213: 3,32,2. 4,5,1. 2. 5,23,1. a. 214: 3,13,1. a. 215: 5,6,1. 6,54,4. 7,2,4 [10] tn iis constitutionibus, a quibus tituli incipiunt, haud raro dubium est, utrum Caracallae an Pio vel Marco vel etiam Elagabalo tribuendae sint

k. Mai. 2,4,1
prid. k. Oct. 7,59,1
II non. Oct. 3,28,5
non. Oct. 7,1,1
non. Nov. 2,20,2
III id. Nov. 3,34,1
VI k. Dec. 3,38,1
V k. Ian. 6,45,1
sine die 9,40,1

a. 212 DUOBUS ASPRIS CONSS.
non. Ian. 5,75,1
III id. Ian. 5,16,1
VI k. Febr. 8,15,3
III id. Febr. 4,32,6. 8,43,1
III k. Mart. 2,12,5
V non. Mart. 2,53,1
non. Mart. 9,22,1
V id. Mart. 2,1,4
VI id. April. 8,8,1
id. April. *5,28,2
XIIII k. Mai. 6,3,4
VII k. Mai. 1,18,1
id. Mai. 8,17,2
III id. Mai. 6,3,5
id. Mai. 8,13,5
XVI k. Iun. 6,47,2
prid. non. Iun. 8,42,1
XV k. Iul. 6,24,2
VII k. Iul. Romae 3,28,6
VI k. Iul. 9,47,2
non. Iul. 10,9,1
pp. Romae V id. Iul. 10,61,3
XV k. Aug. 8,35,1
XI k. Aug. 8,44,4
id. Aug. 5,43,1
XVII k. Sept. 6,42,1
XIIII k. Sept. 5,37,3
VIII k. Sept. 4,25,1
non. Sept. 9,23,1
V id. Sept. 6,21,1

xv k. Oct. 8,44,5
xi k. Oct. 5,53,2
v k. Oct. Romae 5,51,1
prid. id. Oct. 5,58,2
xiii k. Dec. 5,71,1
non. Dec. *Carnuti 4,29,1 xiiii k. Ian. 7,49,1
xii k. Ian. 9,50,1
a. 213 ANTONINO A. IIII ET BALBINO CONSS. prid. non. Ian. 4,65,1
non. Ian. 10,3,1 prid. id. Ian. 7,57,1
xv k. Mart. 8,35,2. 9,12,2
xii k. Mart. 5,16,2. 5,23,1. 7,52,1 xi k. Mart. 5,54,2. 6,21,2
vii k.Mart. 3,31,4. 6,44,1
k. Mart. Romae 3 37,1. 7,10,1 iiii non. Mart. 5,16,3 viii id. Mart. Romae 6,25,2
xii k. April. 9,20,1 xi k. Aprii. 5,14,2
id. April. 4,30,2
vi k. Iun. 3,31,5
k. Iun. 8,14,1
non. Iun. 5,51,2&5,56,1
id. Iun. 5,66,2
xv k. Iul. 4,1,1 viii k. Iul. Romae 5,39,1
v k. Iul. 6,37,4
iiii k. Iul. 6,29,1 prid. k. Iul. Claudio Tryphonino 1,9,1
k. Iul. Romae 4,65,2
iii non. Iul. 5,54,3
non. Iul. 7,65,1
xviii k. Aug. 7,4,2?
xv k. Aug. 9,9,3
xiii k. Aug. 5,44,1
x k. Aug. 3,8,2
viiii k. Aug. Romae 2,55,1 viii k. Aug. Romae 2,3,5. 5,41,1

VIII k. Aug. 5,36,1
VII k. Aug. 9,20,2
V k. Aug. 2,3,6
V k. Aug. Romae 8,22,1
IIII k. Aug. Romae 5,60,1
III k. Aug. 2,3,7. 3,33,3. 4,5,1. 4,50,1. 5,12,2. 8,13,6
III k. Aug. Marcello 9,49,1
VII id. Aug. 5,65,1
VI id. Aug. 6,38,1
III id. Aug. 2,4,2. 4,29,2. 3.
id. Aug. 7,26,1
id. Sept. 4,21,1. 6,37,6
XV k. Oct. 8,40,4
XII k. Oct. 5,37,4
III k. Oct. 2,7,1
V id. Oct. 8,17,3
II id. Oct. 7,75,1
XIIII k. Nov. 7,73,2
XII k. Nov. 3,32,2
VIII k. Nov. 3,44,1
k. Nov. 6,21,3
id. Dec. 9,23,2
XIIII k. Ian. 4,5,2
XIII k. Ian. 2,8,1
III k. Ian. 7,73,3

a. 214 MESSALA ET SABINO CONSS.
II non. Ian. 5,31,1
VIII id. Ian. 4,65,3
II id. Ian. 3,13,1
II non. Febr. 5,31,1
non. Febr. Romae 7,16,2
III id. Febr. 9,47,6
VI k. Mart. 8,14,2 1
VII k. Mai. 4,2,2
V k. Mai. 6,7,1
VI non. Mai. 2,37,1. 8,40,5
IIII k. Iun. 4,58,1
XI k. Iul. 7,53,3. 8,40,6
k. Iul. 6,30,1
III non. Iul. 5,31,2

id. Iul. 6,31,1
III k. Aug. 5,70,1
non. Nov. 5,40,1
XIIII k. Dec. 8,20,1
a. 215 LAETO II et CEREALE CONSS.
id. Ian. 5,13,2
prid. k. Febr. 9,16.1
VII id. Febr. 5,6,1
XIII k. Mart. 8,48,2
VII k. Mart. 9,32,2
III k. April. 8,16,3
II non. April. 2,24,1
VIII k. Mai. Romae 6,37,6
VIII k. Mai. Rutiliano cons. Lyciae 9,43,1
IIII id. Iun. 4,49,1
VII k. Iul. Romae 7,29,1
VI k. Iul. Romae 3,28,7
V k. Iul. 6,31,2
III k. Iul. 4,26,3. 4,30,3. 6,54,4. 7,73,4
III k. Iul. Romae 5,51,3
k. Iul. 3,34,2. 5,37,5. 5,53,3. 8,40,7
k. Iul. Romae 8,38,1
VI id. Iul. Romae 5,50,1
VI id. Iul. 6,46,3
V id. Iul. 6,37,7
IIII id. Iul. 5,31,3
III id. Iul. 5,31,4
VI k. Aug. 4,6,1. 6,42,2
X k. Sept. 3,26,3
VI k. Sept. 5,18,3
XIII k. Oct. 2,53,2
VII k. Oct. 9,6,2
k. Oct. 5,32,1
IIII non. Oct. Romae 4,32,7?
XV k. Dec. 4,7,2. 4,19,2
VII k. Dec. 7,2,4
VI k. Dec. 2,46,1
V id. Dec. 6,42,3. 8,17,4 prid. non. ... Romae 7,52,2

a. 216 Sabino II et Anullino conss.
III non. Ian. 9,32,3
VIII id. Mart. Romae 6,37,8
VI id. Mart. Romae 2,18,7
VII k. April. 9,41,3
V. k. April. 9,41,4 prid. k. Mai. 6,25,3
k. Mai. 3,44,2
III non. Iun. 7,53,4
XI k. Iul. 5,62,4
III k. Aug. 2,6,1
V id. Aug. 4,54,1?
k. Oct. Romae 8,18,2
V id. Oct. 4,54,1?
VI k. Nov. 4,35,3
XV k. Dec. 10,8,1
V k. Ian. 4,26,4

a. 217 Praesente et Extricato conss.
VIII k. Mart. 2,18,9&8,37,3

IMP. ANTONINUS (ELEGABALUS) A.[11]

a. 218 Antonino A. et Advento conss.
VI k. Aug. 2,18,8

a. 222–235 IMP. ALEXANDER A.

sine conss. 2,12,9. 2,24,2. 2,27,1. 3,36,4. 5. 4,30,5. 6. 4,31,6. 4,32,12. 13. 4,35,4. 5. 4,54,3. 4. 5,3,2. 3. 5,4,5. 5,6,1. 5,16,4. 5,39,2. 5,62,5. 7,2,5. 7,4,6. 7,8,6. 7,10,2. 7,11,2. 3. 5. 7,14,1. 7,16,4.5. 7,21,3. 7,26,3. 4. 7,27,1. 7,28,1. 7,30,3. 7,32,2. 7,46,2. 7,58,3. 7,62,2. 7,64,2. 8,32,2. 8,40,10. 9,9,4 (Iuliano proc. Narbonensis). 9,46,1. 3. 9,47,7–9. 9,49,2. 9,51,3–5. 10,40,2. 10,42,3. 10,44,1. 10,52,1. 10,60,1. 10,63,1. 10,68,1. 11,30,3. 11,37,1. 11,39,1. 11,40,1 (quattuorviris et decurionibus Fabraternorum). 12,1,1. 12,35,4

a. 222 Alexandro A. cons.[12]
III non. Febr. 9,1,3
XI k. Mart. 4,44,1
VIII id. Mart. 8,44,6
XIII k. April. 4,50,2
VIII k. April. 7,64,1
II k. April. 8,37,4

[11] cf. not. ad a. 211–217
[12] sic vulgo: alias Antonino IIII et Alexandro vel Antonino et Alexandro conss.

III non. April. 8,44,7
II non. April. 6,35,3
III k. Mai. 4,25,2. 5,51,4
k. Mai. 3,42,1
non. Mai. 7,56,1
VI id. Mai. 7,8,4
XVI k. Iul. 9,1,4
Id. Iul. 1,23,1
III k. Aug. 9,2,1
k. Sept. 4,54,2. 8,29,1
sine die 7,4,3? 4?
prid. id.Sept. 2,3,8. 7,4,5?
id. Sept. 4,14,3&6,2,4
IIII k. Oct. 2,3,9
k. Oct. 4,24,2. 9,1,5
id. Oct. 6,50,3. 8,34,1
XIII k. Nov. 2,50,2
VI k. Nov. 7,66,1
III k. Nov. 3,32,3?
k. Nov. 4,19,4? 5,34,1. 6,3,6
VII id. Nov. 3,35,1. 6,44,2
VI id. Nov. 4,57,1
XVI k. Dec. 6,21,4
XVI k. Dec. 6,21,4
XII k. Dec. 2,18,10
XI k. Dec. Syro 3,42,2&9,2,2&9,35,1
k. Dec. 4,65,4
III non. Dec. 7,66,2
VI id. Dec. 4,24,3. 5,12,3
XI k. Ian. 8,10,2. 8,44,9
V k. Ian. 6,50,4
III k. Ian. 8,29,2
a. 223 MAXIMO II ET AELIANO CONSS.
III non. Ian. 7,48,1
non. Ian. 2,51,3
id. Ian. 8,27,1
k. Febr. 4,48,1?
III non Febr. 8,38,2
VII id. Febr. 3,28,8&6,30,2. 5,49,1. 6,37,9
V id. Febr. *4,39,3&8,41,1

VI k. Mart. 2,12,6
k. Mart. 4,65,5
VIII id. Mart. 2,12,7
VII id. Mart. 2,1,5
V id. M. (sic) 7,19,1
IIII id. Mart. 4,55,3. 7,57,2
XVII k. April. 9,23,3
XII k. April. 2,42,1
VI k. April. 4,1,2
V k. April. 4,48,2
II k. April. 6,32,1
III id. April. 9,8,1
XIII k. Mai. 10,11,1
XII k. Mai. 4,24,4. 5,63,1
X k. Mai. 2,11,11. 4,20,2
VI k. Mai. 6,11,1&6,24,3. 8,22,2
III k. Mai. 6,2,5
k. Mai. 3,34,3. 4,32,12
III non. Mai. 9,22,2
non. Mai. 6,44,3. 6,58,1
VI id. Mai. 5,37,6
V id. M. (sic) 7,19,1 prid. id. Mai. 5,55,1&6,6,1
id. Mai. 3,28,9
III k. Iun. 7,8,5
id. Iun. 9,9,5
V k. Iul. 5,31,5. 6,42,4
V non. Iul. 3,44,3
VI id. Iul. 5,37,7
V id. Iul. 2,21,1
IIII id. Iul. 5,12,4
XVII k. Aug. 6,6,2
V id. Aug. 7,19,2
prid. id. Aug. 2,4,3. 3,28,10. 9,9.6.
id. Aug. 3,34,4
XIII k. Sept. 7,68,1
XI k. Sept. 6,26,3
VIII k. Sept 2,12,8
k. Sept. 3,42,3
prid. id. Sept. 2,3,8

xvii k. Oct. 4,39,4 xvi k. Oct. 8,29,3
xii k. Oct. 8,27,2 iiii k. Oct. 2,3,9. 4,48,3&8,56,1
iii k. Oct. 4,21,2
k. Oct. 4,31,3. 7,45,3
ii non. Oct. 8,35,4
iiii id. Oct. 6,12,1
ii id. Oct. 8,40,8
id. Oct. 8,14,3
xv k.Nov. 6,50,5. 8,46,1
vi k. Nov. 6,33,2
v k. Nov. 8,15,4
iii k. Nov. 4.56.1
k. Nov. 6,6,3
vi non. Nov. 3,44,4 iiii non. Nov. 9,2,3
iii non. Nov. 8,27,3
non. Nov. 4,30,7. 5,6,2
iii id. Nov. 7,11,1
id. Nov. 12,36,1
xvi k. Dec. 2,1,6
xiii k. Dec. 3,41,1
x k. Dec. 2,19,1. 7,71,1
vii k. Dec. 8,44,10
vi k. Dec. 7,19,3
v k. Dec. 8,40,9
ii k. Dec. 6,35,4
k. Dec. 4,56,2
non. Dec. 5.50.2
vi id. Dec. 4,26,5 iiii id. Dec. 6,16,1
xii k. Ian. 9,9,7
vi k. Ian. 4,29,4. 5,2,6?
v k. Ian. 5,28,3. 6,50,6

a. 224 IULIANO II ET CRISPINO CONSS.

iiii id. Ian. 6,15,1
id. Ian. *9,9,8
xvii k. Febr. 6,21,5
xv k. Febr. 6,42,5

x k. Febr. 4,57,3. 5,57,1
vii k. Febr. 9,9,9
k. Febr. 8,18,3
iii non. Febr. 9,8,2
vi id. Febr. 3,1,3
xvi k. Mart. 6,42,6
v k. Mart. 4,65,6
k. Mart. 4,39,5. 6,12,2
v non. Mart. 7,26,2
iii non. Mart. 5,29,1
non. Mart. 2,6,2
vii id. Mart. 6,35,5
vi id. Mart. 9,41,6
xii k. April. 6,47,3
vii k. April. 8,1,1&8,10,3&8,52,1
vi k. April. 6,25,4
xiii k. Mai. 4,24,5
xii k. Mai. 5,44,2
viii k. Mai. 3,44,5. 5,56,2
k. Mai. 6,2,6?
v non. Mai. 3,37,3. 9,1,6
iii non. Mai. 5,62,6
iii id. Mai. 7,11,4
xii k. Iun. 6,3,7
vii k. Iun. 5,28,4
iii k. Iun. 8,51,1
xv k. Iul. 4,29,5
xiii k. Iul. 5,56,2
xi k. Iul. 4,55,4
x k. Iul. 3,31,6
viii k. Iul. 3,44,6. 9,20,3. 12,36,2
vi k. Iul. 9,46,2
k. Iul. 2,11,12. 10,7,1
vi non. Iul. 7,35,1
iii non. Iul. 5,76,2
viii id. Iul. 4,51,1
iii id. Iul. 5,62,7. 6,20,1
iii id. Aug. 6,54,5 viiii k. Sept. 9,47,10
iii non. Sept. 10,8,2

IIII id. Sept. 6,20,2
II id. Sept. 6,3,7. 7,68,2
XVI k. Oct. 7,58,2
X k. Oct. 5,31,6&5,35,1
prid. k. Oct. 6,6,4
III id. Oct. 12,36,3
IIII k. Ian. 3,28,11

a. 225 FUSCO II ET DEXTRO CONSS.

VI id. Ian. 6,54,6
id. Ian. 4,56,3
XV k. Febr. 6,57,1
VII k. Febr. 4,55,6
IIII k. Febr. 5,62,8
III non. Febr. 9,23,4
non. Febr. 7,16,3
XV k. Mart. 6,42,7
X k. Mart. 2,1,7. 6,2,8. 6,54,7
prid. k. Mart. 8,16,4
VI id. Mart. 3,18,1
k. April. 7,4,7
VI id. April. 6,28,2
id. April. 4,24,6
XII k. Mai. 6,21,6
V non. Mai. 9,9,10
XV k. Iun. 6,42,8. 7,73,5
k. Iun. 6,23,2. 8,27,4
XVII k. Iul. 9,23,5
IIII k. Iul. 6,26,4
k. Iul. 5,34,2
VIII k. Aug. 5,57,2
VII id. Aug. 6,3,10
XVI k. Sept. 5,18,4
XV k. Sept. 7,4,8
VII k. Oct. 10,4,1
k. Oct. 2,1,8

a. 226 ALEXANDRO A. II ET MARCELLO CONSS.

VIIII k. Febr. 5,38,1
II non. Mart. 2,4,4
VI id. Mart. 3,33,4
VII k. April. 7,30,1

k. April. 3,33,5
III id. April. 5,12,5
k. Mai. 6,50,7
III non. Mai. 4,21,3
id. Mai. 9,50,2
VI k. Iul. 2,19,2
non. Iul. 5,38,2
V k. Aug. 2,43,2
k. Aug. 2,36,2
VIII id. Aug. 5,29,2
k. Sept. 9,9,11
IIII id. Sept. 9,49,3
k. Dec. 6,46,4
III non. Dec. 2,51,1
XIII k. Ian. 6,53,5

a. 227 ALBINO ET MAXIMO[13] CONSS.
v id. Ian. 4,65,7
XII k. Febr. 2,18,11
V k. Febr. 6,37,10
id. Febr. 5,16,5
III k. Mart. 2,3,10. 2,12,10
k. Mart. 2,4,5. 2,9,1
III id. April. 8,25,3
VI id. Sept. 7,57,3
XIIII k. Dec. 4,6,2
V id. Dec. 8,47,3
XI k. Ian. 9,22,4
IIII k. Ian. 9,22,3
VI k. Ian. 9,6,4

a. 228 MODESTO ET PROBO CONSS.
k. Febr. 5,62,9
V id. Mart. 7,66,3
XII k. April. 4,30,8
III id. April. 5,4,4. 5,29,3
id. April. 5,56,3
XV k. Mai. ad rationales 10,5,1
V id. Iun. 5,36,2. 7,21,4

[13] Aemiliano (videlicet Maximo Aemilio Aemiliano) 2,4,5. 9,6,4; unde factum videtur, ut legum geminarum 2,3,10. 5,14,1 altera huic altera a. 206 adscriberetur, licet etiam in die dissentiant

prid. id. Iun. 6,2,7
XV k. Iul. 4,50,3
k. Aug. 3,1,4
XIII k. Sept. 1,54,2
VI id. Oct. 4,29,6
a. 229 ALEXANDRO A. III ET DIONE II CONSS.
id. Ian. 5,43,3
V id. Mai. 2,40,1
prid. id. Mai. 2,12,11&5,61,1
XV k. Iul. 6,35,6 .
XII k. Iul. 6,21,7
k. Iul. 7,55,1
id. Aug. 5,62,10
V id. Sept. 5,43,4
XVII k. Oct. 4,31,4
XIII k. Nov. 2,11,13
VIII k. Nov. 5,54,4
VII k. Nov. 8,40,11
non. Nov. 5,17,1
sine die 4,31,5
XVI k. Dec. 3,38,2. 4,31,6&5,21,1
XIII k. Dec. 8,33,1
non. Dec. 2,3,11&4,47,1. 3,28,12. 5,15,2. 5,16,6
VI id. Dec. 5,37,8
XV k. Ian. 6,34,1&7,45,4
a. 230 AGRICOLA ET CLEMENTE CONSS.
VIII id. Ian. 2,4,6
III k. Mart. 2,3,12&3,42,4
prid. k. Mart. 4,28,5
IIII k. April. 2,2,1
XVI k. Mai. 5,37,9
non. Mai. 4,25,3
V id. Mai. 8,19,1
prid. id. Mai. 9,35,2
id. Mai. 8,24,1
XIIII k. Iul. 6,20,3
VIII k. Iul. 4,39,6&7,10,3
k. Iul. 3,33,6
XI k. Aug. 5,37,10
k. Aug. 2,18,12

xv k. Sept. 9,1,7
vi k. Sept. 8,40,12
iii k. Sept. 9,22,6
v k. Oct. 2,12,12
prid. k. Oct. 1,26,1
viii k. Nov. 2,18,13

a. 231 Pompeiano et Peligniano conss.
v k. Febr. 2,26,1
non. Febr. 8,44,11
v id. Febr. 9,34,1
x k. Mart. 6,2,8
v non. Mart. 6,37,11
non. Mart. 7,30,2
k. April. 7,4,9
xii k. Aug. 8,27,5
k. Aug. 4,65,8. 5,11,1
xiii k. Sept. 3,22,1
xiii k. Oct. 2,48,1 viii id. Dec. 5,36,3&5,62,11
v k. Ian. 4,19,3

a. 232 Lupo et Maximo conss.
k. Mart. 1,21,1
id. Mart. 6,35,7
k. Iun. 8,42,2
x k. Iul. *7,75,2
x k. Oct. 2,41,1
k. Oct. 5,16,7
xi k. Ian. 6,23,3

a. 233 Maximo ii et Paterno conss.
iii k. Mai. 8,16,5&8,17,5
iii k. Iul. 6,36,1
vi id. Iul. 2,33,1.
id. Sept. 6,50,8
v k. Oct. 5,16,8
iiii id. Oct. 3,26,4
viii k. Ian. 5,43,5

a. 234 Maximo ii et Urbano conss.
x k. Mart. 2,18,14
iii id. Mart. 5,46,1
vi k. April. 1,40,1

xi k. Mai. 4,32,14
iiii id. Iul. 4,34,1
vii id. Sept. 4,65,9
a. 235 Severo et Quintiano conss.
id. Aug. 1,26,2
IMP. MAXIMINUS A.
a. 236 Maximino A. et Africano conss.
v id. Ian. 2,3,13
iii id. Febr. 5,12,6[14]
a. 238–244 IMP. GORDIANUS A.
sine conss. 3,36,6.9. 10. 4,31,8. 9. 4,32,16. 4,34,4. 4,35,7. 4,45,1. 4,51,2. 4,52,1.2. 4,54,5. 5,6,3. 7,2,6. 7,8,7. 7,9,1.2. 7,21,5. 7,36,1. 7,46,3.4. 7,48,2. 7,50,1. 7,52,4. 7,58,4. 7,62,3. 7,64,3. 7,72,2.3. 8,40,13. 9,47,11. 9,49,4. 9,51,6. 10,1,2.3. 10,2,1. 10,39,2. 10,41,2. 10,46,1. 10,53,2. 10,61,2. 10,69,1. 10,70,1. 11,34,1.2. 12,35,5–7. 12,36,4
a. 238 Pio et Pontiano conss.
k. Ian. 5,70,2[15]
xii k. April. 7,26,5[15]
x k. Iul. 2,9,2
xvii k. Aug. 9,1,8
x k. Aug. 5,51,5
iiii k. Aug. 7,43,2
iii non. Aug. 6,3,11
viii id. Aug. 2,21,2
vi id. Aug. 2,19,3
xiii k. Sept. 8,27,6
xii k. Sept. 5,11,2
vi k. Sept. 2,11,14
k. Sept. 8,41,2
iiii non. Sept. 3,1,5
iii non. Sept. 4,35,6
non. Sept. 8,13,7
viii id. Sept. 10,11,2
vi id. Sept. 8,9,1
v id. Sept. 5,73,1
id. Sept. 4,14,4. 8,23,1
xvii k. Oct. 6,42,9
xii k. Oct. 4,29,7

[14] adscribitur imp. Alexandro
[15] 5,70,2. 7,26,6 re vera Maximini sunt

vii k. Oct. 5,16,9. 5,53,4
v k. Oct. 8,42,3
iii k. Oct. 6,21,8
k. Oct. 5,12,7
v non. Oct. 6,21,9
iii non. Oct. 2,22,1&4,13,1. 2,37,2. 2,52,1 prid. non. Oct. 6,24,4. 7,66,4
non. Oct. 4,29,8
prid. id. Oct. 8,42,4
id. Oct. 2,39,1
xv k. Nov. 6,50,9
xi k.Nov.2,52,2. *2,52,3&3,32,4. 5,62,2
viii k. Nov. 5,75,3
vii k. Nov. 8,42,5. 9,6,6
v k. Nov. 8,27,7
k. Nov. 4,34,2
viii id. Nov. 4,64,1
v id. Nov. 5,43,6
xv k. Dec. 2,26,2
vii k. Dec. 7,66,5
prid. non. Dec. 8,33,2
x k. Ian. 2,4,7

a. 239 Gordiano A. et Aviola conss.
vi id. Ian. 5,14,3. 5,31,7
iii id. Ian. 2,12,13
xv k. Febr. 6,35,8
x k. Febr. 5,62,13.8,56,2
iii k.Febr. 3,28,13. 5,71,2
iii id. Febr. 8,42,6
ii id. Febr. 3,32,5. 3,42,5. 4,21,4
viii k. Mart. 4,65,10
vi non. Mart. 9,1,9
vii id. Mart. 8,44,12
iiii id. Mart. 6,20,4
id. Mart. 5,64,1. 8,13,8&8,26,1
iii k. April. 5,16,10
iii non. April. 8,27,8
vii id. April. 5,70,3
vi id. April. 6,58,2
xi k. Mai. 8,25,4

k. Mai. 7,18,1
xvi k. Iun. 8,44,13
k. Iun. 8,47,1
iii non. Iun. 3,41,2
vi id. Iun. 9,45,2
v id. Iun. 8,41,3
iiii id. Iun. 7,43,3
xvii k. Iul. 2,11,15
xii k. Iul. 2,49,1
iii k. Iul. 5,65,2
iii non. Iul. 8,40,14
non. Iul. 4,29,9
vi id. Iul. 2,18,15
v id. Iul. 3,32,6&*4,34,3. 7,56,2 ii id. Iul. 9,35,3 xiiii k. Aug. 8,44,14
xii k. Aug. 6,23,4
vi k. Aug. 9,6,6
k. Aug. 9,1,10
iii non. Aug. 2,19,4. 8,28,2
v id. Aug. 5,37,11
id. Aug. 8,22,3
xv k. Sept. 3,1,6
xii k. Sept. 5,4,6
viii k. Sept. 4,2,3
k. Sept. 3,36,7?
non. Sept. 5,39,3. 6,20,5. 6,47,4
id. Sept. 1,54,3. 5,62,14
iii k. Oct. 8,13,9
v k. Nov. 10,3,3
viii id. Nov. 2,2,2. 3,35,2
id. Nov. 8,41,4
x k. Dec. 7,19,4
vii k. Dec. 5,3,4
vi k. Dec. 3,28,14. 6,13,1
v k. Dec. 8,40,15
iii k. Dec. 7,41,1
k. Dec. 4,58,2
iii non. Dec. 9,20,4
non. Dec. 9,9,12

III id. Dec. 6,42,10. 7,57,4
id. Dec. 3,6,1
XV k. Ian. 4,48,4
XIIII k. Ian. 2,4,8
XII k. Ian. 2,50,4
VI k. Ian. 2,19,5
II k. Ian. 8,40,16? 9,34,2
V k. ... 10,3,2

a. 240 SABINO II ET VENUSTO CONSS.
k. Ian. 5,11,3
X k. Febr. 7,2,7
VI k. Febr. 4,15,3
k. Febr. 5,12,8
VII k. Mart. 5,43,7
III k. Mart. 9,19,1
k. April. 8,29,4
VIII id. April. 8,45,2
VI k. Mai. 4,57,4
VII id. Mai. 9,41,6
VI id. Mai. 2,50,5
V id. Mai. 7,14,2
XV k. Iun. 6,44,4
XII k. Iun. 8,30,2
II k. Iun. 9,9,13
V id. Iun. 2,6,3. 5,14,4
III k. Iul. 4,21,5
non. Iul. 7,73,6
V id. Iul. 6,37,12
III k. Aug. 2,11,16
VI id. Aug. 6,45,2
id. Aug. 2,20,3
XVI k. Sept. 4,57,5
III non. Sept. 6,6,5
IIII k. Nov. 5,4,7
III non. Nov. Domitio pp. 1,50,1

a. 241 GORDIANO A. II ET POMPEIANO CONSS.
VIII id. Ian. 2,17,1
XII k. Febr. 7,57,5
III non. Febr. 2,38,2
XI k. Mart. 4,16,1

v k. Mart. 5,4,8. 5,64,2
non. Mart. 9,2,4
VI id. Mart. 2,30,2
II id. Mart. 8,53,2
v k. April. 3,35,3
k. April. 2,3,14
VI id. April. 2,4,9
VI id. Mai. 5,52,1
II id. Iun. 8,40,16? 8,50,2
v k. Iul. 5,16,11
prid. k. Iul. 10,11,3
k. Iul. 2,22,2
XIII k. Aug. 4,24,7. 6,40,1
III k. Aug. 3,44,7
VI non. Aug. 2,17,2
XV k. Sept. 6,30,3
k. Sept. 3,36,7?
VI id. Sept. 8,25,5
III id. Sept. 9,2,5
v k. Oct. 6,24,5
v non. Oct. 5,23,2
III non. Oct. 2,12,14. 5,37,12
v id. Nov. 6,50,10
XVI k. Ian. 5,73,2
XVI k. Ian. 6,42,11

a. 242 ATTICO ET PRAETEXTATO CONSS.

k. Febr. 3,3,1
XII k. Mart. 6,11,2
VI k. Mart. 9,32,4
k. Mart. 9,33,1
non. M. (sic) 4,32,15?
non. Mart. 9,9,14
VI id. Mart. 8,40,17
IIII id. Mart. 9,9,15
id. Mart. 5,75,4
XV k. April. 7,55,2
III k. April. 6,6,6
id. April. 9,34,3
v k. Mai. 4,10,1
VIII k. Oct 2,11,17

III id. Oct. 7,53,5

a. 243 ARRIANO ET PAPO CONSS.

VI k. Febr. 5,16,12
k. Febr. 3,33,7
IIII non. April. 9,2,6
III non. April. 9,16,2
VIII k. Mai. 5,37,13
XII k. Aug. 6,22,1
XV k. Nov. 1,18,2
VIII k. Nov. 5,62,15. 6,50,11
XVI k. Dec. 4,14,5
VI non ... 3,36,8

a. 244 PEREGRINO ET AEMILIANO CONSS.

VIII id. Ian. 9,2,7
id. Ian. 6,10,1

a. 244–249 IMP. PHILIPPUS A. ET PHILIPPUS C.

sine conss. 3,36,11. 4,32,17. 5,6,4. 5,63,3. 7,2,8. 7,14,3. 7,43,5. 7,45,5. 7,53,6. 7,57,6. 7,62,4. 9,49,5. 10,39,3. 10,52,2.3. 10,53,3. 10,64,1. 11,31,1. 12,35,8

a. 244 PEREGRINO ET AEMILIANO CONSS.

II id. Mart. 3,42,6
prid. k. April. 2,4,10
VII k. Mai. 6,20,6[16]
VI id. Mai. 9,34,4
XVI k. Iul. 1,18,3. 3,44,8
XIII k. Iul. 9,1,11
II k. Iul. 2,43,3
XIII k. Aug. 5,34,3
X k.Aug. 5,34,4. 5,62,16.
VI k. Aug. 8,42,7
V k. Aug. 8,40,18
VI id. Aug. 4,65,11
XVIII k. Sept. 4,29,10
VIII k. Oct. 4,29,11
V id. Oct. 7,43,4
id. Oct. 6,36,2. 6,42,12
XVIII k. Nov. 6,49,2
XIII k. Nov. 5.43.8

[16] imp. Gordianus A. inscribitur

a. 245 PHILIPPO A. ET TITIANO CONSS.
k. Ian. 6,39,2
XVI k. Febr. 7,71,2
XV k. Febr. 9,32,5
VI non. Mart. 4,28,6
XV k. April. 9,22,6
IIII k. April. 8,10,4
III k. April. 5,38,3
VII id. April. 4,19,5
V id. Mai. 8,42,6
id. Mai. 4,19,6
XIIII k. Iun. 5,63,2
V k. Aug. 3,28,15
k. Aug. 8,44,15
prid. non. Aug. 5,37,14
XV k. Sept. 5,6,5
XIIII k. Sept. 3,29,1
XII k. Sept. 5,38,4
XVIII k. Nov. 2,26,3
XIIII k. Nov. 3,32,7
XII k. Nov. 5,48,1
IIII k. Nov. 4,65,12
VI k. Dec. 3,44,9
a. 246 PRAESENTE ET ALBINO CONSS.
k. Febr. 3,34,5
XV k. Mart. 4,2,4
XII k. Mart. 6,24,6
VIII k. Mart. 4,24,8. 6,42,1
XIII k. April. 5,67,1
X k. April. 7,57,6?
VI k. Mai. 6,20,7
XII k. Iun. 6,21,10
VI non. Iul. 6,21,12
IIII id. Iul. 5,46,2
a. 249 AEMILIANO ET AQUILINO CONSS.
X k. Mart. 9,32,6
XV k. Iul. 8,55,1
a. 249–251 IMP. DECIUS A.
a. 249 AEMILIANO ET AQUILINO CONSS.
XVII k. Nov. 10,16,3

XIIII k. Nov. 4,16,2

a. 250 DECIO A. II ET GRATO CONSS.

x k. Mart. 6,30,4

non. Mart 8,53,3

v k. April. 7,32,3

a. 250–251 IMP. DECIUS A. ET DECIUS ET QUINTUS CC.

a. 250 DECIO A. II ET GRATO CONSS.

VI id. Iun. 5,12,9

k. Dec. 3,22,2

II non. Dec 6,58,3

a. 252,253 IMPP. GALLUS ET VOLUSIANUS AA.

a. 252 GALLO II ET VOLUSIANO CONSS.

prid. id. Mart. 3,36,12

XI k. Mai. 2,18,16

a. 254–256(260)[17] IMPP. VALERIANUS ET GALLIENUS AA.

sine conss. 4,38,1. 4,62,3. 7,12,2. 7,43,6. 7,44,1. 9,51,8. 10,65,1. 12,62,1

a. 254 VALERIANO II ET GALLIENO AA. CONSS.

VI k. Mart 2,8,2

IIII non. April. 2,50,6

IIII non. Iul. 6,23,5

non. Aug. 6,21,13

a. 255 VALERIANO III ET GALLIENO II AA. CONSS.

XIIII k. Sept. 6,42,14

III k. Sept. 4,20,3

a. 255–260 IMPP. VALERIANUS ET GALLIENUS AA. ET VALERIANUS NOB. C.[18]

sine conss. 4,50,4. 7,16,6. 7,64,4. 10,2,2.10,42,4. 10,65,2. 11,36,3

a. 255 VALERIANO ET GALLIENO AA. UTRISQUE II CONSS.

XV k. Dec. 2,4,11

a. 256 MAXIMO II ET GLABRIONE CONNS.

XIIII k. Iun. 9,9,16

VI k. Aug. 3,29,2

VI id. Oct. Romae 6,42,15

XII k. Ian. 6,32,2

a. 257 VALERIANO IIII ET GALLIENO III AA. CONSS.

k. April. 4,6,3

XV k. Mai. 8,31,1

[17] cf. not. seq.

[18] et Val. nob. C. a permultis constitutionibus abest partim incuria librariorum partim antiquiore vitio, cf. 4,7,3. 4. 5,42,1. 2

xvi k. Iul. 6,30,5
vi k. Aug. 9,9,17
x k. Nov. 3,29,3
xii k. Dec. 6,25,5
a. 258 Tusco et Basso conss.
iii non. Ian. 5,71,3 viiii k. Mart. 4,29,12
id. Mai. Antiochiae 5,3,5&9,9,18
iii k. Iul. 9,22,7
prid. non. Iul. 9,45,3 ii id. Aug. 2,40,2&3,28,16
vi k. Dec. 8,54,1
a. 259 Aemiliano et Basso conss.
xvi k. Mart. 2,4,12
x k. Mart. 2,3,15
viii id. Mart. 4,65,13
id. Mart. 4,49,2
vii k. April. 5,17,2
v k. Mai. 4,6,4
ii non. Mai. 5,18,5
non. Mai. 9,20,5
xvi k. Iun. 8,46,4
xv k. Iun. 7,73,7
viii k. Iun. 4,65,14?
iii k. Iun. 4,22,1
xii k. Iun. 4,26,6
iii k. Iul. 9,22,8
non. Iul. 5,42,1
id. Iul. 4,34,5
id. Aug. 4,65,15
xiii k. Dec. 7,71,3
v k. Dec. 10,32,1
iii k. Ian. 4,35,8
sine die 5,45,1. 9,35,4
a. 260 Saeculare ii et Donato conss. xiiii k. Febr. 4,10,2
iii k. Mart. 5,28,5&7,4,10
xv k. Mai. 5,71,4
vii k. Mai. 3,20,1&8,1,2. 8,7,1. 9,33,2
iii k. Mai. 5,71,5

prid. non. Mai. 9,45,4
prid. id. Mai. 8,17,6
id. Mai. 5,6,6. 5,36,4&5,42,2
VI id. Iun. 7,21,6
X k. Aug. 7,10,4
IIII k. Aug. 4,65,16
VIII k. Oct. 2,30,3
XIIII k. Ian. 2,11,18
sine die 10,16,2

a. 260–268 IMP. GALLIENUS A.[19]

a. 262 GALLIENO A. V ET FAUSTINO CONSS. prid. non. Sept. 4,19,7
non. ... 3,8,3

a. 265 VALERIANO II ET LUCILLO CONSS.
VI id. Ian. 5,62,17
XIII k. Febr. 9,16,3
k. April. 5,44,3

a. 267 PATERNO ET ARCESILAO CONSS.
k. Nov. 5,44,4

a. 268–270 IMP CLAUDIUS A.

a. 269 CLAUDIO A. ET PATERNO CONSS.
VII k. Mai. 3,34,6

a. 270–274 IMP. AURELIANUS A.
sine conss. 5,3,6. 5,72,2. 7,16,7. 10,62,2

a. 270 ANTIOCHIANO ET ORFITO CONSS.
VII k. Nov. 1,23,2[20]

a. 274 AURELIANO A. ET CAPITOLINO CONSS.
k. Iul. 2,44,1

a. 276–282 IMP. PROBUS A.
sine conss. 5,4,9

a. 277 PROBO A. ET PAULINO CONSS.
III non. Mai. Sirmi 8,55,2

a. 278 PROBO A. N ET LUPO CONSS.
III k. Iul. 2,16,1

a. 280 MESSALA ET GRATO CONSS.
V k. Ian. 8,53,4

a. 283 (–284)[21] IMPPP. CARUS CARINUS ET NUMERIANUS AAA.
sine conss. 4,54,6. 5,3,7. 6,49,3. 7,64,6. 10,42,5. 10,43,1. 10,48,1. 11,36,3

[19] Impp. Valerianus et Gallienus AA. a. 262 3,8,3, a. 265 5,62,17 [20] adscribitur Alexandro A.
[21] cf. not. seq.

a. 283 Caro et Carino AA. conss.
id. Ian. 7,64,5
IIII k. Mart. 3,32,9
non. Mart. 5,71,6
V id. Aug. 8,14,4
VI id. Sept. 5,71,7
VI id. Nov. 7,2,9
prid. id. Nov. 6,42,16
XI k. Dec. 9,46,4
V k. Dec. 7,45,6
VIII k. Ian. 2,55,2

a. 284 IMPP. CARINUS ET NUMERIANUS AA.[22]

a. 284 Carino II et Numeriano AA. conss.
II id. Ian. 8,55,3
XVII k. Febr. 2,11,19
VI k. Febr. Komae 8,53,5
prid. id. Febr. 3,28,17
Hemesae XV k. April. 5,52,2
III k. April. 9,22,9
III k. Sept. 10,11,4

a. 284–292 IMPP. DIOCLETIANUS ET MAXIMIANUS AA.

sine conss. 2,16,2. 2,46,2. 3,36,13–15. 4,33,4. 4,35,9. 4,39,7. 4,46,2. 4,58,4. 4,64,2. 7,21,7. 7,32,5. 7,34,1. 7,39,1. 7,53,7. 7,62,5. 7,64,8. 9,2,8. 9,41,8 (ad Sallustianum praes.). 9,46,5. 9,47,12. 13. 9,51,9. 10. 10,1,4.5 (ad Flaccum). 10,2,3. 10,32,2. 10,33,1. 2. 10,39,4. 10,40,3–5. 10,42,6. 7. 10,43,2. 3. 10,44,2. 10,47,1. 10,48,2–4. 10,50,1–3. 10,51,2. 10,52,4.10,53,4. 10,55,2.3. 10,57,1. 10,59,1. 10,62,3 (Crispino). 10,65,3. 11,30,4. 11,36,4. 11,42,1. 11,55,1 (ad Charisium). 12,33,2. 12,62,2–4

a. 284 Carino II et Numeriano Conss.
id. Oct. 3,7,1
VIII k. Dec. 4,20,4[23]

a. 285 Diocletiano A. II et Aristobulo conss.
k. Ian. 6,34,2&7,64,7?
non. Aug. 2,53,3
XI k. Oct. 9,22,10
V k. Nov. 4,44,2
III non. Nov. 2,29,1&5,71,8. 6,23,6
III non. Nov. Atubino 4,48,5
sine die 5,4,10. 11

[22] sic 2,11,19. 3,28,17. 9,22,9. 10,11,4?: imppp. Carus Car. et Num. AAA. reliquae
[23] imppp. Car. Car. et Num. AAA. inscribitur

non. Nov. 5,4,12. 5,71,9 II id. Nov. 2,53,4
id. Nov. 10,32,3
XII k. Dec. 10,32,4
III non. Dec. 6,24,10
III id. Dec. 5,5,2

a. 286 MAXIMO II ET AQUILINO CONSS.
XIII k. Febr. Nicomed. 4,21,6
VIII k. Febr. 4,13,2
VI id. Febr. 9,43,2
IIII id. Febr. 2,3,16
IIII id. Febr. *Nicomed. 3,29,4&8,53,6
III id. Febr. 8,25,6
XVI k. Mart. Nicomed. 3,28,18
XII k. Mart. Nicomed. 7,35,2
II k. Mart. 3,29,5
IIII non. Mart. 6,14,1
V id. Mart. 8,47,2. 8,54,2
IIII id. Mart. 4,33,2
prid. id. Mart. 4,33,3?
XVI k. Mai. 2,26,4
XV k. Mai. 4,58,3. 6,37,13
XII k. Mai. 5,12,10. 6,42,17
VI k. Mai. 3,29,6
V k. Mai. 4,20,5. 7,10,5
IIII k. Mai. 2,24,3
IIII non. Mai. 3,34,7
VIII id. Mai. 4,38,2
V id. Mai. 3,29,7. 6,6,7. 8,42,9
XVI k. Iun. 3,42,7
XV k. Iun. 4,21,7. 8,18,4
XIII k. Iun. 8,15,5
prid. k. Iun. Tiberiade *4,10,3
XVI k. Iul. 8,47,3
XII k. Iul. 5,16,13
VIIII k. Iul. 2,3,17
prid. id. Iul.Tiberiade 1,51,1
X k. Sept. 4,1,3
II k. Sept. 6,37,14
prid. ... Sept. 7,16,8

k. Nov. 9,41,7
v k. Dec. 7,33,2
III non. Dec. [8,39]
id. Dec. 6,1,1
v k. Ian. 6,9,3
VI id. ... 10,32,5&10,62,4

a. 287 DIOCLETIANO III ET MAXIMIANO AA. CONSS.
VII id. Ian. 2,3,18
XII k. Febr. 6,6,8
XV k. Mart. 4,21,8
v k. Mart. 8,39,1
k. Mart. 8,46,5
prid. non. Mart. 5,37,15
III id. Mart. 9,20,6
prid. id. April. 4,12,1
VI k. Mai. 2,23,2
XIII k. Iun. 8,27,9
X k. Iul. 9,22,11
v k. Sept. 8,50,3
III non. Sept. 4,12,2
v id. Sept. 8,25,7
VIII id. Nov. 2,2,3
XVII k. Dec. 8,46,6?
XV k. Dec. 9,42,1
II k. Dec. 2,42,2
non. Dec. ad Pompeianum 9,9,19
VIII id. Dec. 3,44,10
VI id. Dec. Maximo pu. 9,20,7

a. 288 MAXIMIANO A. II ET IANUARIO CONSS.
XVII k. Dec. 8,46,6?

a. 289 BASSO ET QUINTIANO CONSS.
XIIII k. Sept. Honorato 7,56,3&9,2,9
XIII k. Dec. 4,19,8

a. 290 DIOCLETIANO IIII ET MAXIMIANO III AA. CONSS. (vulgo IPSIS IIII ET III AA. CONSS.)
III id. Ian. Sirmi 10,3,4
XVIII k. Febr. 8,13,10
XVII k. Febr. 6,23,7
non. Febr. 5,14,5
VIII id. Febr. 3,32,10

XVI k.Mart. ad Honoratum 2,10,1
XVI k. Mart. 2,11,20
III k. Mart. Hadrianop. 6,55,2
id. Mart. 6,42,18
III k. April. 7,43,7
k. April. 4,65,17
IIII non. April. Byz. 2,4,13
VIII id. April. 3,44,11
VI id. Mai. Hemesa ad Charisium praes. Syriae 9,41,9 x k. Iun. 6,24,8&6,26,5
VIII k. Iun. 5,30,1
VII k. Iun.Laodiceae 6,15,2?
v k. Iun. 8,50,4
XVII k. Iul. 3,38,3
XVI k. Iul. 6,50,12. *8,50,5
XIIII k. Iul. 7,20,1
x k. Iul. 7,75,3. 8,44,16
k. Iul. 4,1,4. 4,27,1. 6,23,8.9
IIII non. Iul. 2,4,14
VIII id. Iul. 1,18,4
VI id. Iul. 6,20,8. 9,35,5
IIII id. Iul. 4,49,3
id. Iul. 6,58,4. 8,53,7. 9,35,6
XVI k. Aug. 6,30,6
XV k. Aug. 2,4,15
III k. Aug. 4,7,3
k. Aug. 7,32,4
v id. Aug. 5,71,10
XIII k. Sept. 8,25,8
VIII k. Sept. 9,20,8
VI k. Sept. 9,41,10
v k. Sept. 2,11,21
IIII k. Sept 5,51,6
III k. Sept. 4,29,13
II k. Sept. Tiberiade 5,17,3
k. Sept. 8,47,4
VIII id. Sept. 4,49,4. 6,42,19. 8,53,8
VI id. Sept. 6,36,3
III id. Sept. 5,38,5
III id. Sept Numidio correctori Italiae 7,35,3

prid. id. Sept. 4,50,5
XII k. Oct. 2,40,3&4,49,5
XI k. Oct. 4,65,18
Sirmi XI k. Oct. 8,54,3
X k. Oct. 4,6,5. 8,25,9
III k. Oct 3,44,12. 6,37,15. 7,43,8
VI non. Oct 8,10,5
III non. Oct. 5,16,14. 8.27.10. 9,9,20
non. Oct. 4,10,4&5,74,1
VIII id. Oct. 1,19,1&7,13,1
XVI k. Nov. 3,38,4
XIIII k. Nov. 9,9,21
XII k. Nov. 9,9,22
XI Nov. 7,43,9
VII k. Nov. 5,18,6?
III k. Nov. 9,2,10
k. Nov. 9,9,23
V id. Nov. 8,44,17
XV k. Dec. 8,4,1
XIII k. Dec. Sirmi 2,3,19
XII k. Dec. 5,71,11
X k. Dec. Sirmi 2,28,1
V k. Dec. 9,41,11
prid. k. Dec. Sirmi Agathoni 9,16,5
k. Dec. 6,22,2?
III non. Dec. 4,1,5&6,42,20. 8,48,1
VI id. Dec. 9,23,6
id. Dec. 8,38,3
XV k. Ian. Sirmi 3,28,19
XIII k. Ian. 8,23,2

a. 291 TIBERIANO ET DIONE CONSS.

IIII k. Febr. 5,16,15
k. Febr. 8,50,6
III non. Febr. 8,60,7
V id. Febr. 4,1,6. 8,50,8
VI id. Mart. 5,16,16
V id. Mart 5,31,8. 8,48,2. 9,9,24
X k. April. 6,56,1
III id. Mai. 7,43,10
III id. Mai. Sirmi 9,41,12

k. Oct. 8,54,4 prid. non. Dec. Triballis 8,47,5
sine die 6,35,9

a. 292 HANNIBALIANO ET ASCLEPIODOTO CONSS.
IIII k. Mart Crispino 7,35,4 prid. k. April. Crispino praes. prov. Phoenice 1,23,3 VIII id. April. have Crispine k. n. 9,2,11
prid. id. April. Scyrioni rationali 10,10,1

a. 293–304 IMPP. DIOCLETIANUS ET MAXIMIANUS AA. ET CC.[24] sine conss. 3,38,10. 4,30,10 (III id. Dec. ipsis conss.). 4.30.11. 4,31,10.11. 4,32,18–22 (id. Iul. ipsis conss.) 4,35,20. 4,37,2–4. 4,38,6. 12.13. 4,39,8. 4,44,10–13. 4,51,6. 4,52,5. 4,54,7. 8. 4,64,3–6. 5,3,10. 11. 13. 14. 5,4,13–16. 5,6,7. 6,2,19. 6,9,5. 6,36,4. 7,1,3. 7,2,13. 7,4,11? 7,11,6.7. 7,14,9.10. 7,16,40 (ad Verinum). 7,18,2. 7,27,3. 7,29,3. 7,34,2. 4. 5. 7,35,7. 7,36,2. 7,43,1i. 7,45,7.8. io. 11. 7,62,7–9 (have Heraclida k. n.). 7,62,11&10,40,7. 7,64,9. 7,71,4.5. 7,72,6. 7,75,6. 8,35,11. 8,48,4. 9,47,14.15. 9,49,6.9,51,11.12. 10,32,13. 10,40,6. 10,42,8–10 (ad praefectos). 10,43,4.10,47,2.10,48,5.6. 10,51,3.4. 10,52,5. 10,53,5. 10,54,1. 10,58,1. 12,36,5

a. 293 DIOCLETIANO V ET MAXIMIANO HH AA. CONSS. (vulgo AA. CONSS.[25])
k. Ian. * 1,18,5&2,3,20
k. Ian. Sirmi 3,34,8. 5,74,2. 6.26.7
VII id. Ian. Sirmi 4,7,4. 4,10,7&9,33,3
IIII id. Ian. 7,14,4
III id. Ian. 2,55,3?
XVII k. Febr. 8,17,7
V k. Febr. 7,29,2
k. Febr. 7,35,5
VIII id. Febr. 4,44,3
VII id. Febr. Sirmi 6,2,9
VI id. Febr. Sirmi 3,38,5?
VI id. Febr. 6,42,21
id. Febr. Sirmi 9,35,7
VI k. Mart 2,5,1
XIII k. Mart Sirmi 4,9,1?

[24] et CC.] et Constantius et Maximianus nobilissimi CC. 1,18,5, et Const. et Max. CC. 1,22,2; et CC. om. libri ad 6,42,21. 22 (a. 293). 2,26,5 (a. 294)
[25] denominationem AA. conss. huius anni propriam esse probavit Mommsen Zeitfolge der Verordnungen Diocl. p. 433

sine die 4,34,6.7
IIII k. Mart. Sirmi 3,32,11. 4.34.8
III k. Mart 8,13,11
III non. Mart. 5,39,4
v id. Mart 2,4,16
xv k. April. Ravennae (?) 6,8,1&7,9,3
v k. April. 8,13,12
k. April. Heracl. 8,55,4
sine die 7,16,9
IIII non.... 7,16,10
IIII non.April.Byzantii 8,47,6
III non. April. 2,12,15. 4,9,2
III non. April. Byz. 4,5,3. 5,30,2&5,31,9
prid. non. April. 7,14,5
non. April. Byz. 2,12,16. 4,10,5. 4,26,7. 4,44,4. 4,45,2
non. April. 5,11,4
VIII id. April. Byz. 4,29,14
VII id. April. Byz. *4,19,18
VI id. April. 3,32,12
VI id. April. Byz. 4,26,8. 4,49,6 v id. April. Byz. 4,5,4. 7,60,1. 8,8,2. 8,42,10
v id. April. 6,26,8. 7,27,2. 8? 50,9
sine die 7,33,3 IIII id. April. 7,33,4 prid. id. April. Byz. 3,22,3. 4,14,6 prid. id. April. 5,51,7
id. Aprii. 3,19,1. 3,32,13. 4,19,9. 6,2,10?&7,32,6 id. April. Byz. 5,70,4. 6,42,22. 7,60,2. 8,39,2
sine die 7,16,11
XVIII k. Mai. 4,19,10. 7,16,12
XVII k. Mai. Melantiae 4,49,7
XVI k. Mai. 5,51,8. 8,53,9
XV k. Mai. Heracleae 3,35,4
XIIII k. Mai. Heracl. 2,21,3. *6,9,4
XIIII k. Mai. 4,5,5. 4,16,3
XII k. Mai. 4,15,4. 5,34,5
XI k. Mai. 7,33,5
x k. Mai. Heracl. 5,12,11. 5,37,16
x k. Mai. 7,75,4
VIII k. Mai. 2,45,1. 10,32,6

VIII k. Mai. Heracl. 5,1,1&9,12,3.5,12,12.5,16,17
VII k. Mai. 7,14,6
VI k. Mai. 4,20,7
VI k. Mai. Heracl. *6,20,9
V k. Mai. Heracl. 2,21,4&2,24,4. 2,21,5. 3,42,8. 4,19,11. 4,65,19. 5,16,17&8,42,11. 6,50,13. 8,27,11. 8,55,5
V k. Mai. 4,49,8&4,52,3? 7,16,13. *8,53,10. 9,1,12
IIII k. Mai. Heracl. 7,16,14
III k. Mai. Heracl. *2,19,6. *2,20,4. *4,65,20. 8,13,13. 9,41,13
III k. Mai. *4,26,9. 8,38,4
sine die 8,44,18
prid.k. Mai.Heracl. 5,12,13. 5,71,12. 7,19,5. 8,17,8. 8,27,12. 8,53,11. 9,33,4 prid.k. Mai. 5,34,6. 7,1,2. 8,40,19. 8,44,19
k. Mai. Heracl. 8,13,14. 8,16,6. *9,20,9
k. Mai. Trallis 2,3,2&6,30,7&6,53,6. 5,3,8. 8,35,5 VI non. Mai. Mediol.(?) 4,24,9
V non. Mai. 1,22,1. 4,2,5. 5,14,6?
III non. Mai. 4,37,1
non. Mai. 4,24,10
VII id. Mai. 6,14,2
sine die 7,16,15
VI id. Mai. Hadrianop. 7,16,16
IIII id. Mai. Hadrianop. 8,13,6
IIII id. Mai. Paulino (?) 10,32,7
III id. Mai. 8,42,12
III id. Mai. Hadrianop. 8,50,10
II id. Mai. 4,6,6
XVII k. Iun. 8,53,12
XVI k. Iun. 4,57,6
XVI k. Iun. Beroeae *5,24,1
XV k. Iun. 8,13,17
XIIII k. Iun. Beroeae 6,59,2
X k. Iun. 7,16,17
VIIII k. Iun. 6,3,12
VIII k. Iun. Philippop. *2,17,3. *2,52,4
VII k. Iun. 8,42,13
VI k. Iun. 4,23,1
sine die 4,38,3
IIII k. Iun. 4,38,4

II non. Iun. 2,19,7
non. Iun. Philippop. 2,12,17
v id. Iun. 2,4,17
id. Iun. 2,20,5
xv k.... 6,23,10
xv k. Iul. Philippop. *4,49,9. 7.67.1
xv k. Iul. 6,55,3. 7,14,7
vi k. Iul. 3,33,8. 4,21,9. 8,44,20
vi k. Iul. Serdicae *8,44,21
IIII k.Iul. Serdicae 5,16,16
III k. M. 3,32,14
vi non. Iul. Philippop. 9,33,5 IIII non. Iul. Philippop. *5,12,14 prid. non. Iul. Philippop. 5,34,7. 6,23,12
prid. non. Iul. 6,23,11
vi id. Iul. Philippop. 6,26,6&6,49,4 v id. Iul. Philippop. 8,15,6
v id. Iul. 8,42,14
id. Iul. Philippop. *5,16,19. 7,16,18
XI k. Aug. 3,31,7?
VIII k. Aug. 2,45,1
vi id. Aug. 4,5,6
vi id. Aug.Viminacio 9,22,12
v id. Aug.Viminacii *5,16,20
III id.Aug.Viminacii *5,16,21
XVI k. Sept. 9,46,6?
XIIII k. Sept. Viminacio 4,50,6?
XI k. Sept. Viminacii 2,20,8
X k. Sept. 7,22,1
VIII k. Sept. 3,36,16
VII k. Sept. 4,6,7
VII k.Sept.Viminacio 6,2,11. 8,44,22
sine die 7,16,19
vi k. Sept. Viminacii *2,9,3. 6,50,14
vi k. Sept. 3,13,2. 7,16,20
sine die 8,50,15?
v k. Sept. 6,42,23? 8,42,15
v k. Sept.Viminacii 8,50,16?
v k. Sept. Crispino 9,9,25
III k. Sept. 2,4,18

k. Sept. Viminacii 8,35,6
v id. Sept. 4,5,7
IIII id. Sept. Aristobulo sal. *2,13,1
III id. Sept. Sirmi 4,12,3
xv k. Oct. 3,32,15. 8,53,14
xv k. Oct. Sirmi 8,48,3. 8,53,13.
XIIII k. Oct. Sirmi 2,4,19
XIII k. Oct. *2,42,3. 8,38,5
VIII k. Oct. Sirmi *5,71,13
v k. Oct. 5,21,2
IIII k. Oct. 2,4,20
k. Oct. Sirmi 4,36,1
v non. Oct. 2,4,21. 4,19,12
v non. Oct. Sirmi 3,41,3. 4,2,7. *4,26,10
non. Oct. Sirmi 6,38,2. 7,16,21 .
VIII id. Oct. Sirmi 4,65,21
VI id. Oct. 8,30,3
id. Oct. Sirmi 6,2,12. 6,15,3
XVI k. Nov. Sirmi *2,39,2. *4,25,4. 4,51,3. 5,37,17. *6,5,1. 6,24,9
XV k. Nov. 3,35,5. 8,42,16
XV k. Nov. Sirmi 4,44,5
XII k. Nov. Sirmi 6,17,1
sine die 8,40,20
XI k. Nov. 8,40,21
x k. Nov. 7,75,5
prid. non. Nov. 4,23,2
non. Nov. Lucione 9,20,10. 11
VII id. Nov. Sirmi 4,34,9 IIIid. Nov. Sirmi *3,44,13
id. Nov. Sirmi 3,32,16
id. Nov. 4,1,7 .
XVIII k. Dec. Sirmi *2,3,22
XVIII k. Dec 5,71,14 .
XVII k. Dec. Sirmi 2,3,23
sine die 8,27,13
XVI k. Dec. Sirmi 8,27,14
XV k. Dec. 4,2,6? 8,53,15
XII k. Dec. Sirmi 3,32,17
x k. Dec. Sirmi 4,16,4
VIII k.Dec. 2,51,2? 4,38,5. 5,11,5. 5,71,15

VII k. Dec. Sirmi 3,36,17
VI k. Dec. *6,20,10
V k. Dec. 7,16,22. 8,37,5. 8.53.16
sine die 4,44,6. 7
k. Dec. Sirmi *1,22,2. *6,2,13. 6,42,24. 7,2,12. 8,9,2. 8,13,18. 8,34,2. 8.42.17
k. Dec. 2,4,22. 2,19,9&*2,20,6&*2,31,2&4,44,8. 3,33,9. 4,19,13.14. 5,46,3. 8,25,10
II non. Dec. 5,21,3. 5,22,1
VI id. Dec. 2,42,4? 6,55,4
V id. Dec. 7,32,7
III id. Dec. 4,30,9
XVIII k. Ian. 3,36,18? 19. *4,29,15
XVII k. Ian. Sirmi 3,31,4
sine die 4,35,10. 7,72,4
IIII k. Ian. Sirmi 4,35,11
XVII k. Ian. Sirmi *2,3,24. *4,35,12. 6,30,8
XVII k. Ian. 4,2,8. 4,49,10. 7,72,5. 8,13,19
XVI k. Ian. Sirmi *2,17,4. 6,27,3. 6,30,9. *10. 6,58,5. 8,37,6
XVI k. Ian. 8,3,1. 8,19,2
XV k. Ian. 4,2,9. 8,50,11. 9,25,1
XV k. Ian. Sirmi 4,44,9. 6,39,3
XIIII k. Ian. Sirmi 9,2,12
XIII k. Ian. Sirmi 2,18,17. 3,33,10
XI k. Ian. Sirmi 6,15,4
X k. Ian. 4,49,11
VIIII k. Ian. 2,18,18. 3,32,18&8,43,2?
VIIII k. Ian. Sirmi 4,10,6
sine die 4,65,22. 23
VIII k. Ian. 2,29,2. 4,65,24. 5,3,9
VIII k. Ian. Sirmi 3,32,19. 5,12,15? 6,2,14. *6,5,2
VI k. Ian. 3,13,3. 4,19,15. 8,15,7. 8,53,11
VI k. Ian. Sirmi 6,55,5. 9,22,13
V k. Ian. Sirmi 3,34,9. *4,24,11. 6,31,4. 8,1,3
V k. Ian. 6,20,11. 8,24,2. 8,50,12. 8,53,18
sine die 7,16,23
IIII k. Ian. 7,14,8. 7,16,24
III k. Ian. Sirmi 4,10,7&9,33,3. 4,65,25. *5,17,4. 6,2,15. *7,19,6. 8,56,3. 9,22,14 sine die ad Primosum praes. Syriae 7,33,6 prid. k. Ian. Sirmi 5,37,18. 6,31,5&6,58,6. 8,44,23 prid. k. Ian. 5,51,9. 7,33,7

sine die 8,4,2
a. 294 CC. CONSS.[26]
k. Ian. 4,15,5
V k. Ian. 5,34,8
non. Ian. Sirmi 3,28,20&5,12,17. *5,12,16. 5,61,2 XVIIII k. Febr. 3,6,2
XVII k. Febr. Sirmi 6,37,16
XVIII k. Febr. 8,13,20
XVII k. Febr. Sirmi 4,29,16
XVII k. Febr. 5,59,1&8,37,7 .
XVI k. Febr. Sirmi 6,50,15. *16. 8,53,19
XIIII k. Febr. Sirmi *5,12,18
XIII k. Febr. Sirmi 4,10,8. 4,26,12. 5,12,19
XIII k. Febr. 5,60,2. 9,22,15
XII k. Febr. Sirmi 2,12,18
XII k. Febr. 8,14,5
XI k. Febr. Sirmi 3,34,10. 6,20,12. 8,47,7
XI k. Febr. 5,51,10
X k. Febr. 4,19,16: ad Asclepium 9,1,13
VII k. Febr. 8,53,20
VI k. Febr. 2,19,10. 5,62,23. 6,46,5
VI k. Febr. Sirmi 8,44,24
III k. Febr. Sirmi 5,34,9
k. Febr. Sirmi 4,35,13
prid. non. Febr. Sirmi 3,15,2. 4,2,10&4,49,12. 4,50,8
non. Febr. 2,50,7
VIII id. Febr. 3,37,4
VIII id. Febr. Sirmi 9,22,16
VI id. Febr. 2,32,1&2,45,2. 3,28,21. 4,9,3. 6,55,6
VI id. Febr. Sirmi 5,3,12. 6,20,13. 6,30,11
V id. Febr. 4,19,17. 7,16,25. 7,26,7. 8,47,8
V id. Febr. Sirmi 5,18,7. 8,39,3
III ... Febr. 3,26,20
III id. Febr. *2,25,1&4,51,4&8,42,18. *4,6,8
III id. Febr. Sirmi *4,6,9. 5,37,19. 5,56,4. 9,22,17
II id. Febr. Sirmi *4,2,11. 7,52,5
id. Febr. Sirmi 2,18,19. 2,36,3. 3,28,22

[26] cf. Mommsen Zeitfolge der Verordnungen Diocl. p. 440

id. Febr. 4,10,9. 4,52,3? 8,42,18. 8,44,25
XVI k. Mart. Sirmi *4,13,3. 6,58,7. 7,32,8
XVI k. Mart. 9,1,14
XV k. Mart. Sirmi 6,59,3
XII k. Mart. Sirmi 4,13,4. 6,15,5. 6,29,2
XII k. Mart. 8,37,8
VII k.Mart. 6,20,14? 6,54,8&11,31,2
VI k. Mart. 3,32,20
III k. Mart. 9,1,15
II k. Mart. 6,42,25. 8,35,7
k. Mart. Sirmi 8,27,15
V non. Mart. 2,34,2
III non. Mart. 6,37,17. 9,22,18
II non. Mart. Byzantio? 3,22,4 prid. non. Mart. Sirmi 4,16,5 non. Mart. Sirmi 4,38,7
non. Mart. 7,10,6. 7,14,11
VIII id. Mart. 2,4,23. 4,29,17. 9,22,19
VIII id. Mart. Sirmi 4,51,5
VII id. Mart. 7,16,26
V id. Mart. 8,50,13. 8,53,21
prid. id. Mart. 2,12,19
XVII k. April. 4,38,8
XVI k. April. 8,50,14
XV k. Aprii. Sirmi 2,32,2& *7,2,11
XV k. April. 3,3,2?&3,11,1&7,53,8?&7,62,6?
XIII k. April. Sirmi 5,18,8
VIII k. April. Sirmi 4,38,9&7,26,8?
VII k. April. Sirmi *6,57,2. 8,53,22
VI k. April. Sirmi 4,35,14
VI k. April. 8,2,2. 8,19,3
V k. April. Sirmi 3,38,6
V k. April. 3,41,5
V k. April. Sirmio 3,31,8& *6,59,4&7,16,27. 7,34,3
III k. April. 5,34,10. 5,36,5 prid. k. April. Sirmi8,44,26
IIII non. April. Sirmi 6,22,3
III non. April. 4,10,10. 7,45,9. 7,51,1. 8,27,16. 9,45,5
III non. April. Sirmi 7,32,9
II non. April.Sirmi *2,4,24

prid. non. April. 8,27,17. 8,46,7
non. April. Sirmi 5,28,6
non. April. 5,62,18
VIII id. April. 8,4,3. 9,41,14
VII id. April. 4,38,10
VI id. April. 5,71,16?
VI id. April. Sirmi 6,16,2
V id. April. 9,41,15
Sirmi? IIII id. April. 7,16,28
IIII id. April. Sirmi 8,4,4
III id. April. 4,13,5
III id. April. Sirmi 4,23,3
II id. April. 2,4,25
II id. April. Sirmi 6,42,26. 8,41,5
id. April. 2,4,26
XVII k. Mai. 4,35,15. 5,59,2
XVII k. Mai. Sirmi 5,28,7. 7,4,12
XVI k. Mai. 2,20,7. 2,53,5
XVI k. Mai. Sirmi 6,55,7&8,46,8
XIIII k. Mai. Sirmi 3,1,7
XIII k. Mai. Sirmi 2,28,2
XII k. Mai. 4,1,8. 6,59,5.
XII k. Mart. 8,37,8 8,40,22
XII k. Mai. Sirmi 6,35,10
X k. Mai. 4,22,2
VIII k. Mai. Sirmi 2,18,20
VIII k. Mai. 5,43,9
VI k. Mai. 4,8,1. 6,32,3. 8,27,18
V k. Mai. 1,18,6. 4,1,9
V k. Mai. Sirmi 2,21,6. 4,17,1. 5,12,20. 6,49,5. 8,46,9 IIII k. Mai. Sirmi 2,3,25. 6,9,6
IIII k. Mai. 5,44,5
III k. Mai. 4,65,26. 6,1,2 prid. k. Mai. Sirmi 5,31,10
k. Mai. Sirmi 2,35,1. 4,22,3
k. Mai. 4,8,2
V non. Mai. Aurris 6,21,14
VIII id. M. (sic) Sirmi 4,51,5
VII id. Mai. 2,4,27
VI id. Mai. *4,7,5

xv k. Iun. 4,7,6
xv k. Iun. Sirmi 6,59,1 xvii k. Iul. Sirmi *9,12,4 vii k. Iul. Sirmi 4,18,1
vi non. Iul. 1,18,7
iii non. Iul. 2,4,28
non. Iul. Sirmi *6,58,8 xv k. Aug. 3,3,2&3,11,1?&7,53,8?&7,62,6?
xi k. Aug. 2,21,7
viii k. Aug. 4,10,11
k. Aug. Sirmi 5,16,22
v non. ... 4,50,9 iiii non. Aug. Diogeni praes. insularum 3,22,5 non. Aug. Agrippinae ad Geminum 5,12,21 xvi k. Sept. Sirmi 6,24,10 m
xv k. Sept. 4,2,12
xiii k. ... 6,8,2 xiii k. Sept. Sirmi 9,18,2
viii k. Sept. 3,37,5. 3,42,9
v k. Sept. *1,18,8
vi id. Sept. Singiduni *4,19,21
v id. Sept. 3,28,23
iii id. Sept. 3,29,8 prid. id. Sept. Singiduni 9,20,12
xvii k. Oct. 8,44,27
sine die 4,65,27
xv k. Oct. 4,65,28
x k. Oct. Demesso ad Verinum praes Syriae. 2,12,20
sine die 4,35,16? 17?
vii k. Oct. Sirmi? 4,35,18?
vi k. Oct. Viminacii 2,18,21. 2,54,1
sine die 8,50,15
v k. Oct. 5,12,22. 8,38,6
v k. Oct.Viminacii 5,12,23. 6,42,27&8,53,23. 8,55,6. 8,50,16
iiii k. Oct. 2,4,29 0,52,3 iiii k. Oct.Viminacii 3,33,11 iii k. Oct.Viminacii 4,32,23
iii k. Oct. 4,35,16?
prid. k. Oct. Viminacii 7,62,10
k. Oct. Viminacii 6,2,16

k. Oct. 6,59,6
v non. Oct. 7,23,1
III non.Oct. Scuppis 8,44,28
prid. non. Oct. 6,59,7
VIII id.Oct. Retiariae 4,33,5
VI id. Oct. 3,32,21
VI id.Oct. Retiariae 6,59,8. 7,60,3. 8,13,21
sine die 7,16,29. 30
v id. Oct. Crebri 2,4,30
v id. Oct. 7,16,31. 8,42,19
III id. Oct.Varianae 2,3,26. *8,37,9
XV k. Nov. 3,35,6. 8,35,8. *9,35,8
XV k. Nov. Transmarisca 6,42,28 .
XIIII k. Nov. Sirmi? 4,35,19?
XIII k. Nov. 4,10,12. 4,64,7
XII k. Nov. Dorostolo 4,5,8&8,41,6
XII k. Nov. *6,57,3
XI k. Nov. Sirmi? 3,34,11
XI k. Nov. *4,10,13
XI k.Nov. Dorostoli 9,22,20
VIIII k. Nov. 2,56,1
VIII k. Nov. 2,4,32. 5,18,9
VIII k. Nov. Reginassi *4,20,8. 4,21,10
VI k. Nov. Romae? 9,16,5
VI k. Nov.Anchialo *5,12,24
v k. Nov.Anchialo*5,51,11. 6,50,17. 8,31,2. 8,47,9 IIII k. Nov. 4,25,5
III k. Nov. 3,33,22 .
III k. Nov. Develti *6,36,5. 8,50,17
II k. Nov. Hadrianop. 8,42,20
k. Nov. Burtudizi 5,16,23
III non. Nov. Burtudizi *2,3,28. 8,35,9
non. Nov. 7,16,32.7,53,9 .
non. Nov. Heracleae 7,48,3
VII id. Nov. Heracl. 5,18,10
VI id. Nov. Heracl. 2,3,27. 7,35,6. *8,27,19
v id. Nov. Melantiade 2,4,33
v id. Nov. 2,4,34
IIII id. Nov. Byzantio *2,4,31. 8,27,20 .
IIII id. Nov. 7,16,33

III id. Nov. 4,21,11
III id. Nov. Pantichi 4,29,18. *5,12,25. 6,22,4
id. Nov. 7,16,34
XVII k. Dec. Nicomediae 4,2,13
XVI k. Dec. 3,32,23. 24
XVI k. Dec.Nicom. 3,32,25. 4,19,19. 4,43,1. *10,32,8 XIIII k. Dec.4,25,6. 4,32,24. 6,44,5
x k. Dec. 2,18,22
XII k. Dec. Nicom. 2,18,23. 4,24,12. 6,55,8. *S,8,3. 9,1,16
XII k. Dec. *4,23,4. 8,50,18
sine die 5,62,19
x k. Dec. Sirmi? 5,51,11
x k. Dec. Nicom. 5,62,20
VIIII k. Dec. Nicom. 2,4,35. 2,26,5?
XIII k. Dec. 4,22,4
VI k. Dec. 3,36,21. 6,23,13
VI k. Dec. Nicom. 6,19,2. 9,35,9
sine die 4,2,14.10,32,9–11
V k. Dec. 4,1,10. 5,38,6. 7,20,2. 8,43,3. 9,20,13. 10,32,12
V k. Dec. Nicom. 4,2,15. 4,7,7. 4,10,14. 5,17,5
III k. Dec. Nicom. 3,31,9
III k. Dec. 6,30,12. 7,14,12. 7,56,4
k. Dec. 4,16,6&7,12,7
k. Dec. Nicom. 8,35,10
IIII non. Dec. Nicom. 4,5,9. 4,19,20. 4,20,6
IIII non. Dec. 4,49,13. 8,17,9
III non. Dec. Nicom. 3,28,24. 4,6,10
II non.Dec. 4,38,11. 8,42,21
II non. Dec. Nicom. 3,38,7. 9,20,14
non. Dec. 3,38,8. 5,45,2. 7,16,35. 8,17,10
non. Dec. Nicom. 4,64,8. 8,40,23
x? id. Dec. 3,32,26
VIII id. Dec. 2,4,36?&6,23,14&6,42,29. 5,59,3&7,26,9
VII id. Dec. 5,71,17. 5,75,5? *6,56,2&8,44,29. 7,4,13.
VI id. Dec. *1,18,9. 2,4,36. 2,11,22. 2,24,5. 2,42,4? 6,37,18
VI id. Dec. Nicom. 3,38,9. 4,16,7. 9,12,5
sine die 7,34,8.9
V id. Dec. 4,19,14? 6,37,19. 7,34,10. 8,42,22
III id. Dec. Nicom. 6,30,13. 6,36,6. 8,6,1. 8,13,22
prid. id.Dec.Nicom. 4,34,10

id. Dec. Nicom. 3,39,1. *4,21,12. 5,42,4. *5,73,3. 8,54,5
id. Dec. 5,39,5. 6,2,17. 6,20,15. 8,44,30
XVIIII k. Ian. Nicom. 6,30,14
XVIII k. Ian. Nicom. *2,40,4&5,42,3. 3,32,27. 4,29,19. 5,17,6. 5,49,2. 5,62,21. 8,44,31
XVIII k. Ian. 5,58,3. 9,9,26
XVII k. Ian. 4,6,11. 4,9,4. 8,41,7
XVII k. Ian. Nicom. 4,31,12. 8,13,23
sine die 7,16,36.37
XVI k. Ian. Nicom. *4,21,13. 7,16,38. 8,29,5
XV k. Ian. Nicom. 3,32,28&6,59,9. 4,44,14. 4,48,6&4,49,16. 4,49,15. 8,13,24. 4,19,19. 4,43,1. *10,32,8 8,42,23. 9,35,10
XIIII k. Ian. Nicom. 5,14,7
XIII k. Ian. 3,31,10. 4,22,5
XIII k. Ian. Nicom. 5,62,22. 9,20,15
XII k. Ian. Nicom. 2,4,37. 4,37,5
XI k. Ian. 8,40,24
VIIII k. Ian. Nicom. 3,39,2
VIIII k. Ian.4,19,22.4,29,20
VIII k. Ian. Nicom. 2,4,38&*2,6,4&6,19,1&6,31,3. 5,53,5
VIII k. Ian. 4,19,23
VII k. Ian. 6,37,20. 7,14,14. 7,29,4
VII k. Ian. Sirmi? 7,16,39
VII k. Ian. Nicom. 7,50,2. 8,13,25. 8,42,24. 9,16,6
VI k. Ian. 5,12,26. 6,59,10. 8,40,25
VI k. Ian. Sirmi? 5,12,27. 8,13,26
VI k. Ian. Nicom. 6,58,8. 7,72,8
sine die 3,36,22. 23
V k. Ian. 1,18,10. *3,26,24&6,20,16. 6,34,3
V k. Ian. Sirmi? 2,4,39
III k. Ian. Nicom. 3,34,12. 6,2,18. 8,42,25

a. 295 TUSCO ET ANULLINO CONSS.
VII k. Mart. Trimontii 6,20,14
XV k. April. Nicomediae 5,72,3
id. April. 3,36,25
k. Mai. Damasco 5,4,17
k. Iun. Concordio praes. Numidiae 9,9,27

a. 299 DIOCLETIANO VII ET MAXIMIANO VI AA. CONSS.
V id. Ian. 9,1,17
non. Febr. Antiochiae *8,53,24

III k. Iul. 9,45,6?
XIIII k. Sept. *3,21,1&*4,50,7&7,72,9
x k. Dec. Mel. (sic) 7,22,8?

a. 300 CONSTANTIO III ET MAXIMIANO III CC. CONSS.
II id. Febr. Antiochiae 9,21,1?
VIII k. April. Antiochiae ad Serapionem 3,3,3?
VII k. April. Antiochiae 7,22,2

a. 301 TITIANO ET NEPOTIANO CONSS.
IIII non. Iul. Antiochiae 3,28,25
x k. Sept. 4,12,4

a. 303 DIOCLETIANO VIII ET MAXIMIANO VII AA. CONSS.
VIII id. Ian. Nicom. 2,30,4
VI id. Iun. Dorostolo Alexandro 5,73,4 x k. Dec. Dechioppe Firmino 3,3,4

a. 304 DIOCLETIANO VIIII ET MAXIMIANO VIII AA. CONSS.
III k. Mart. 9,1,18
V k. Sept. Nicomediae Serapioni suo sal. 3,28,26

a. 305–307 IMPP. CONSTANTIUS ET MAXIMIANUS AA. ET SEVERUS ET MAXIMINUS NOBILISSIMI CC

a. 305 CONSTANTIO V ET MAXIMIANO V AA. CONSS.
vi id. Sept. 6,9,7
xi k. Ian. 5,42,5
non. Apollonio superioris (sic) Verino 3,12,1

a. 307–337 IMP. CONSTANTINUS A.

sine conss. Volusiano pp. (pu?) 4,35,21. 12,1,2; Ursino duci Mesopotamiae 4,42,1: ad Felicem pp. 4,62,4: ad Probum 6,1,3: ad Maximum pu. 7,1,4: ad Titianum praes. Cappadociae 7,16,41: ad Bassum 7,19,7: ad Orfitum 7,37,1: ad Maximum vic. Or. 11,50,1: Capestrino (?) 11,59,1: ad Dracontium 11,62,2: ad Constantium pp. 11,68,1: Ianuario com. Or. 11,68,2: ad Paternum Valerianum 12,32,1

a. 313 CONSTANTINO A. III ET LICINIO III CONSS.
pp. xv k. Febr. Rom. ad populum 11,58,1 vi id. Mart. Med. ad Aemilium rationalem 10,10,2 pp. id. Mart. ad Euagrium 10,32,14
k. Iun. ad Eusebium v. p. praes. Lyciae et Pamph. 11,49,1
k. Oct. ad Bassum 1,22,3 III non.Nov.Trev. acc. xv k. Mai. Hadrumeti Volusiano et Anniano conss. ad Catullinum 7,62,12&9,47,16

a. 314 VOLUSIANO ET ANNIANO CONSS.
pp. k. Ian. ad Maximum pu. 9,8,3

pp. XI k. Febr. Triv. ad Maternum 7,32,10
pp. III k. Febr. Verino suo sal. 11,33,2 II non. Mart. ad Ursum vic. 3,11,2
VII k. April. Trev. 5,37,20
III k. Mai. ad Dionysium vice praef. ag. 3,1,8&7,22,3 IIII k. Nov. Triv. palatinis bene meritis sal. 12,28,1 VI id. Nov. Trev. acc. XV k. Mart. Karthag. Constantino A. IIII et Licinio IIII conss. Aeliano proc. Afr. 2,8,3&10,19,1&12,61,1

a. 315 CONSTANTINO A. IIII ET LICINIO IIII CONSS.
non. Febr. ad Ursum 3,26,5
pp. iin id. Mart. Hadrumeto ad concilium prov. Afr. 2,12,21
XII k. April. Cabilluno (Cibalis?) Eumelio 9,47,17
pp. VI id. Mai. Karthag. edicto suo ad Afros 12,57,1 III non. Iun. Sirmi ad universos provinciales 8,16,7 pp. XVII k. Iul. Trev. Cupito 11,62,1
XV k. Iul. ad Proclianum 10,16,4
VI k. Aug. Catullino proc. Afr. 6.56,3
k. Aug. ad Celsum vic. Afr. 9,20,16
XV k. Nov. Murgillo ad Euagrium pp. 1,9,3

a. 316 SABINO ET RUFINO CONSS.
III id. Ian. Trev. ad Domitium Celsum vic. 1,48,1 III k. Febr. acc. k. Aug. Hilariano correctori Lucaniae et Brittiorum 9,22,21&10,32,15
pp. m non. Febr. Rom. ad Maximum pp. 5,37,21&8,53,25
XII k. Mai. Serdicae Catullino proc. Afr. 8,53,26
prid. id. Mai. ad Titianum 12,50,1 VI id. Iun. ad Protogenem episc. 1,13,1 id. Aug. Arelato. pp. id. Oct. Theveste Petronio Probiano suo sal. 1,21,2&7,62,13
III non. Dec. Basso pu. 1,14,1 prid. non. Dec. Serdicae. acc. non. Mart. Cordubae Gallicano et Basso conss. ad Octavianum com.
Hisp. 3,24,1

a. 317 GALLICANO ET BASSO CONSS.
id. Mart. rationalibus Hisp. 10,13,1
XV k. Mai. Aquileiae ad Catullinum proc. Afr. 9,12,6
VIII id. Iun. Sirmio ad Bassum pu. 7,62,14
V k. Iul. Tbessal. ad Valerianum 6,1,4
pp. Rom. XII k. Aug. ad populum 4,21,15
XII k. Aug. ad Bithynos 11,8,1

a. 318 LICINIO V ET CRISPO C. CONSS.
VII id. Febr. Sirmi Profuturo pf ann. 3,11,3 V id. Febr. Sirmi ad Catullinum proc. Afr. 3,11,4 xvi k. Dec. Licinio v et Crispo C. conss. acc. prid. id. Mart. Carthag. Constantio A. v et Licinio C. conss. ad Verinum vic Afr. 9,17,1
a. 319 CONSTANTINO A. V ET LICINIO C. CONNS.
id. Ian. acc. v k. Aug. Corintho ad Ianuarinum 9,40,2 pp. k. Febr. Rom. ad Maximum 9,18,3 prid. non. Febr. Sirmio. acc. VIII id. Mart. Corinthi ad Symmachum 5,40,2 IIII id. Febr. Sirmio Profuturo pf ann. 7,61,1 XVI k. Mart. ad Ianuarinum 6,1,5 pp. VII id. Mart. Karthag. 11,63,1
id. April. Sirmi ad Verinum 3,28,27
VIII k. Mai. ad Proculum 8,52,2 v k. Mai. Sirmio ad Rufinum pp. 12,1,3&12,28,2 pp. non. Mai. Karthag. *ad Proculum proc. Afr.*11,65,1
d. (?) v id. Mai. Rom. ad Bassum 9,14,1 III k. Iun. ad provinciales 10,1,6 XIII k. Iul. ad Bassum pu. 2,12,22 x k. Iul. Aquileiae ad Severum vic. 7,62,15
k. Iul. Agrippinae ad Antonium Marcellinum praes.prov. Lugdun. primae 4,47,2 k. Iul. Aquileiae Patroclo 5,5,3 pp. id. Iul. ad Bassum 7,10,7 xv k. Aug. Aquil. recitata apud Vettium Rufinum pu. in senatu non. Sept. consulibus praetoribus trib. pl. senatui s. 6,60,1 VIII k. Aug. Naissi ad Symmachum vic. 2,20,8 VII k. Aug. Naisso. pp. non. Oct. Rom. ad Bassum 2,52,5?
pp. VI k. Sept. Carthag. *ad Catullinum proc. Afr.*11,65,2 pp. prid. non. Oct. Rom. ad Bassum pu. 9,12,7 IIII id. Oct. Aquil. ad Bassum pu. 5,34,11
XVII k. Nov. pp. VI k. supra scriptas Rom. ad Maximum pu. 5,3,15
VIII k. Nov. Sirmi ad Felicem praes. Corsicae 7,49,2
VI k. Dec. Serdicae ad Ianuarinum pu. (?) 9,42,2 VII k. Ian. ad Proculum 7,50,3
a. 320 CONSTANTINO A. VI ET CONSTANTINO C. CONSS. prid. k. Febr. Serdicae. pp. k. April. Rom. ad populum 6,9,9&6,23,15 &6,37,21&8,34,3&8,57,1&10,19,2 k.Mart. in civitate Velovocorum 12,46,1 xv k. April. ad Bassum pp. 7,57,7

pp. VIII k. April. in foro Traiani ad Maximum pu. 9,22,22 prid. k. April. Aquil. ad populum 7,13,3 prid. non. April. Aquil. ad Bassum vic. Italiae *9,10,1 pp. id. April. Rom. ad Maximum pu. *6,7,2 IIII k. Iun. Serdicae ad populum *9,11,1 prid. k. Iul. Serdicae ad Florentium rationalem 9,4,1 VIII id. Iul. ad Crispinum 7,63,1 XV k. Sept. ad Bassum pp. 1,51,2
k. Oct. Aeliano proc. Afr. 1,35,1 VIII id. Dec. Thessalonicae Restituto praesidi Sardiniae 10,21,2?

a. 321 CRISPO II ET CONSTANTINO II CC. CONSS.
prid. id. Ian. Sirmi ad Maximum 3,1,9&7,62,16
XIIII k. Febr. Sirmio Dalmaiio 10,52,6?
VIII id. Febr. Serdicae ad Claudium praes. Daciae 3,28,28
III k. Mart. Serdicae Petronio 5,16,24
pp. V non. Mart. Helpidio 3,12,2
V id. April. Thessal. pp. III k. Iun. Rom. ad Verinum pu. 2,44,2?
XIIII k. Mai. Hosio episc. 1,13,2
XIII k. Iun. Sirmi ad Bassum pu. 7,66,6
X k. Iun. Aquil. ad Bassum pu. 9,18,4 VI k. Iun. Viminacio Relpidio agenti vice pp. 8,10,6
k. Iul. ad Iunium Rufum cons. Aemiliae 4,61,4 pp. V non. Iul. Rom. ad populum 1,2,1
III id. Iul. Menandro 4,61,5
XVIII k. Oct. Sirmio ad Maximum pu. 9,51,13
d. (pp.?) XII k. Dec. Rom. ad Ianuarinum 7,13,2&9,24,1
d. (pp.?) Romae k. ... ad Bassum 3,36,26

a. 322 PROBIANO ET IULIANO CONSS.
pp. Rom. VIII k. April. ad Maximum 3,11,5 prid. id. Iun. Sirmio ad Maximum pu. 7,16,42
VII k. Aug. Savariae ad Lusitanos 1,23,4
d. XV k. Ian. Serdicae ad Severum 5,71,18?

a. 323 SEVERO ET RUFINO CONSS.
d. (pp.?) id. April. Cp. ad Florentium pp. 1,56,1
d. id. April. Sirmi ad Severum 3,12,3 IIII k. Mai. Aelio pp. 12,35,9&12,42,1
XV k. Iun. Thessal. ad Maximum pu. 7,18,3&8,46,10
a. 324 CRISPO III ET CONSTANTINO III CONSS.
XIIII k. Febr. Sirmio Dalmatio 10,52,6?
pp. VII id. Iul. Carthag. ad Hilarianum proc. Afr. 10,32,16

a. 325 PAULINO ET IULIANO CONSS.
prid. non. Mart. [acc. ...] Trev. 10,75,1 III k. April. Helladio 2,6,5 x k. Iun. Nicaeae Severo pu. 1,19,2 XIII k. Aug. ad Euphrasium rationalem trium provinc. 10,72,1&10,73,1 III k. Aug. ad Severum pu. 3,1,10
pp. Beryto k. Oct. Maximo pp. 11,44,1 pp. VIII k. Ian. ad Maximum vtc. Or. 10,39,5
a. 326 CONSTANTINO A. VII ET CONSTANTIO C. CONSS.
III non. Febr. Heracleae ad Euagrium 9,4,2: Africano 9,9,28
pp. XV k. Mart. ad Acindynum pp. 12,50,2 id. Mart. Sirmi ad populum 2,27,2&4,32,25&5,37,22&5,72,4
pp. Nicomed. VII k. Mai. ad Euagrium 9,9,29
XVI k. Iun. ad Euagrium pp. 10,32,17
pp. x k. Iun. ad Severum pu. 12,30,1 pp. XVIII k. Iul. Caesareae ad populum 5,26,1 prid. non. Iul. Mediol. ad Tertullum proc. Afr. 9,24,2 VII k. Aug. Naisso. pp. Rom. non. Oct. ad Bassum pp. 2,52,5 pp. k. Sept. Gerasto ad Bracilianum 1,5,1 x k. Oct. Aquii. ad Euagrium pp. 2,19,11 x k. Nov. Mediol. Severo 8,5,1 prid. k. Ian. Sirmio 10,1,7 pp. XV k. ... Lastronae Mastichiano pf. ann. *6,62,1
a. 327 CONSTANTIO ET MAXIMO CONSS.
XV k. Iun. Serdicae ad Afros 10,21,1 XIIII k. Aug. pp. Romae ad senatum ad Iulianum pu. 2,52,6 prid. k. Aug. Victori rationali urbis Rom. 7,62,18
a. 328 IANUARINO ET IUSTO CONSS.
lecta VII id. Mai. Rom. ad Aemilianum pp. 11,48,1 IIII k. Ian. [acc. ...] Trev. ad Maximum pp. 1,40,2. 12,46,2
a. 329 CONSTANTINO A. VIII ET CONSTANTIO C. IIII CONSS.
XV k. Sept. Serdicae provincialibus suis 4,43,2 pp. VIII k. Oct. Rom. ad populum 1,19,3
III k. Oct. Serdicae 10,32,18
VIII k. Nov. Heracl. ad Lucretium Paternum 10,32,19
a. 330 GALLICANO ET SYMMACHO CONSS.
VI k. Mart. Bessi ad Tertullianum 3,39,3&8,4,5 IIII k. Mai. Valeriano agenti vic. praef. 1,18,11

xv k. Iun. ad Maximilianum cons. aquarum 11,43,1 lecta apud acta xii k. Iul. ad Bassum pp. 3,39,4
a. 331 BASSO ET ABLABIO CONSS.
k. Aug. pp. k. Sept. Cp. ad universos provinciales 1,21,3&*3,13,4&3,1 9,2&7,62,19&8,36,2 prid. non. Aug. ad Euagrium pp. 12,47,1 pp. k. Nov. Cp. ad provinciales 1,40,3
a. 332 PACATIANO ET HILARIANO CONSS.
prid. id. April. Marcianop. ad Pacatianum pu. 5,1,2 iii... Iun. ad Maximum pp. 6,36,7 xv k. Sept. Cp. ad Tiberianum com. Hisp. 6,1,6
a. 333 DALMATIO ET ZENOPHILO CONSS. xiiii k. Mai. Cp. Felici 5,37,23 iiii non. Mai. Cp. ad Severum com. Hisp. 4,21,14&8,53,27
pp. v k. Oct. Cp. ad populum 10,53,6  k. Nov. Aquis ad Felicem 11,8,2 iii id. Nov. Aquis ad Pompeianum cons. Camp. 1,22,4
a. 334 OPTATO ET PAULINO CONSS.
iii k. Mai. Gerulo rationali trium prov. 3,38,11 xiiii k. Iun. Veroniciano vic. Asiae 12,49,1 xv k. Iul. Cp. ad Andronicum 3,14,1 viii k. Sept. Naisso ad Iulianum praes. 4,20,9
a. 335 CONSTANTIO ET ALBINO CONSS.
xi k. April. Cp. ad provinciales 10,11,5 id. Iul. Cp. [acc. xiii k. Mai. Hispali] Nepotiano et Facundo conss. ad Tiberianum vic. Hisp. 5,3,16
d. (?) x k. Nov. Nicopoli ad Periclem praes. 1,40,4
a. 336 NEPOTIANO ET FACUNDO CONSS.
id. Mart ad Calpurnianum 3,8,4 lecta xii k. Aug. Cp. ad Gregorium 5,27,1
a. 337 FELICIANO ET TITIANO CONSS.
iiii non. Aug. ad Maximum pp. 10,66,1 sine die Naisso ad Dalmatium 5,17,3
a. 337–340 [IMPPP. CONSTANTINUS CONSTANTIUS ET CONSTANS AAA.][27]
a. 337 FELICIANO ET TITIANO CONSS.

[27] Inscriptiones huius temporis quod ad imperatorum nomina attinet partim propter compendia scripturae partim propter compilatorum errores incertae sunt: constat tamen trium imperatorum nomina simul non legi, Constantem vulgo iungi cum Constantino, Constantini paucas, Constantii plerasque auctoris nomen solum proferre

VIII (prid.) id. Dec. Thessal. imp. Constantinus A. ad Egnatium Faustinum praes. Baeticae 4,46,3&11,59,2

a. 338 URSO ET POLEMIO CONSS.

VI k. Aug. Sirmio impp. Constantius et Constans AA. (imp. Constantius A. 10,48,7?) ad Catullinum vic. 8,11,1&10,48,7?

a. 339 CONSTANTIO A. II ET CONSTANTE A. CONSS.

k. Febr. Serdicae imp. Constantius A. ad populum* 6,9,9&6,23,15&6,37,21

III non. Febr. imp. Constantius A. ad Uranium 10,16,5 pp. prid. id. Mart. Heliopoli imp. Constantius A. ad Dionysium *6,9,8 id. Aug. Cp. imp. Constantius A. ad Euagrium 1,10,1

a. 340 ACINDYNO ET PROCULO CONSS.

XII k. Febr. Naisso impp. Constantius et Constans AA. ordini civit. Constantinae Cirtensium 10,32,20

a. 340–350 IMPP. CONSTANTIUS ET CONSTANS AA.[28]

sine conss. Philippo pp. 12,1,4: *ad Clearchum pu.*12,1,5?

a. 340 ACINDYNO ET PROCULO CONSS.

non. April. Acindyno pp. 9,4,3

V id. April. Aquileiae ad Petronium vic. Afr. 3,11,6

VII k. Iul. Mediol. ad Titianum pu. 9,19,2 prid. id. Aug. Bessae Nemesiano com. 10,32,21

V id. Oct. Leontio pp. 12,41,1?

a. 341 MARCELLINO ET PROBINO CONSS.

prid. id. Febr. Antiochiae edictum ad Heliopolitanos 11,66,1

VII id. April. Albino 7,62,20

VIII k. Iul. Lauriaco ad Catullinum pp. 10,71,1

a. 342 CONSTANTIO III ET CONSTANTE II AA. CONSS.

X k. Febr. Marcellino praes. Phoenice 2,57,1 prid. non. Dec. Mediol. pp. Romae VN k. Ian. ad populum 9,9,30?

a. 343 PLACIDO ET ROMULO CONSS.

VIII k. Febr. Bononiae ad Italicum 3,26,5?&11,75,1 prid. k. Iul. [acc. ...] Triv. ad Titianum 10,65,4

VI k. Sept. clericis sal. dicit 1,3,1

a. 344 LEONTIO ET SALLUSTIO CONSS.

III k. Iul. Eubulidae vic. Afr. 12,61,2 prid. non. Iul. ad Leontium pp. 10,66,2

V id. Dec. ad Hieroclem cons. Syriae Coeles 7,65,2

a. 345 AMANTIO ET ALBINO CONSS.

IIII id. Mai. Nizibi Nemesiano com. larg. 10,19,3

[28] Constantii constitutiones pleraegue eum solum nominant

a. 346 Constantio IIII et Constante III AA. conss.
non. Mai. Cp. ad Veronicianum vic. Asiae 12,23,1 id. Oct. Theodoro praes. Arabiae 9,47,18?
prid. non. Dec. Mediol. pp. Rom. XVII k. Ian. ad populum 9,9,30?
a. 347 Rufino et Eusebio conss.
v id. Mart. Hierapoli Bonoso mag. equitum 6,62,2
a. 348 Philippo et Salia conss.
xv k. Iul. Mediol. Orioni c. r. p. 10,14,1
a. 349 Limenio et catullino conss.
XVI k. Mart. ad Bulephorum rationalem summae rei 3,26,7 VIII id. Mart. pp. Rom. ad Eustathium pp. 10,19,4 v k. April. ad Limenium pp. 9,19,3
VIII id. April. ad Leontium com. Or. 6,14,3&6,30,15
III k. Iun. Titiano pp. 12,35,10
XII k. Oct. ad Philippum pp. 8,55,7 v non. Oct. Cp. ad Marcellinum com. Or. 8,11,2&10,37,1 v k. Ian. Rufino pp. 6,62,3
a. 350–351 IMP. CONSTANTIUS A. sine conss. ad Orfitum pu. 12,1,6
a. 352 Constantio A. v et Constantio C. conss.
v k. Mart. Sirmi ad Rufinum pp. 6,22,5
a. 352 Constantio A. VI et Constantio II conss.
III id. Aug. ad Euagrium pp. 12,46,3
a. 354 Constantio A. VII et Constantio III conss.
k. Dec. ad Taurum pp. 1.11.1
a. 355 Arbitione et Lolliano conss.
XII k. Mart. Mediol. ad Volusianum pu.(?) 6,22,6 v k. April. ad Orfitum pu. 8,55,8
XI k. Aug. Mediol. acc. XII k. Sept. ad Lollianum pp. 12,22,1
VIII k. Aug. Messadensi. pp. Capuae ad Lollianum pp. 7,62,21
III k. Aug. ad Volusianum pp. 7,62,22
a. 355–361 IMP. CONSTANTIUS A. ET IULIANUS C.
a. 357 Constantio A. VIIII et Iuliano C. II conss.
VIII k. Febr. Mediol. ad populum 9,18,5
k. April. Mediol. ad Taurum pp. 10,48,8 xv k. Mai. Medioi. ad Taurum pp. 12,22,2 III k. Mai. Med. ad Dulcitium cons. Aemiliae 11,48,2
k. Iun. Kom. Olybrio pu. 11,2,1
id. lun. Med. ad poputum 9,19,4 VIII k. lul. Med. ad Taurum pp. 12,50,3

v non. Iul. Med. ad Thalassium pp. 1,7,1 prid. non. Dec. Med. ad populum 9,18,6 VIII id. Dec. Med. lecta v k. Ian. apud acta Felici episc. 1,3,2

a. 358 DATIANO ET CEREALE CONSS.
v non. Mart. Sirmi ad Taurum pp. 3,26,8 VI k. Iun. Med. acc. (acc. Med.?) VIII id. Iul. ad Taurum pp. 12,57,2 d. (?) III non. Iul. Arimini ad Taurum pp. 9,18,7 XIIII k. Ian. Sirmio ad Maximum praes. Ciliciae 3,30,1

a. 359 EUSEBIO ET HYPATIO CONSS.
d. (?) et pp. Rom. in foro Traiani k. Nov. (pp. prid. k. Dec. 12,22,3) ad agentes in rebus 1,31,1&12,22,3 III k. Ian. ad senatum 1,39,1

a. 360 CONSTANTIO A. X ET IULIANO C. III CONSS.
XVI k. Iun. Hierapoli Helpidio pp. 12,37,1
d. epistula prid. k. Iui. Mediol. ad Taurum pp. 1,3,3

a. 361 TAURO ET FLORENTIO CONNS.
v non. Mai. ad senatum 7,62,23&12,1,7 XIIII k. Iun. Olybrio 3,29,9 IIII k. Sept. ad Taurum pp. 1,3,4

a. 361–363 IMP. IULIANUS A. sine die Atarbino 11,70,1

a. 362 MAMERTINO ET NEVITTA CONSS.
non. Febr. Cp. Sallustio pp. 12,1,8
v k. April. 11,65,3
XV k. Mai. Cp. ad Iulianum com. Or. *1,4,1&*4,63,1 emissa XV k. Iul. Germaniano pp. 7,67,2 XV k. Iul. acc. IIII k. Aug. Spoletio 10,53,7 v k. Aug. Antiochiae Secundo pp. 3,3,5 v k. Sept. Antiochiae Iuliano com. Or. 10,32,22
III non. Sept. Antiochiae Secundo pp. 3,40,1 v id. Sept. ad Mamertinum pp. 12,50,4 VII k. Nov. [Antiochiae acc. XV k. April. Carthag.] Iuliano A. IIII et Sallustio conss. ad Avitianum vic. Afr. 8,10,7 pp. Beryto k. Nov. Iuliano com. Or. 10,32,23
pp. IIII non. Dec. Antiochiae Ecdicio pf. Aegypti 8,11,3&4

a. 363 IULIANO A. IIII ET SALLUSTIO CONSS. lecta apud acta prid. non. Febr. Secundo pp. 2,12,23
prid. id. Febr. Antiochiae ad populum 9,19,5 XIIII k. Mart. Antiochiae ad Secundum pp. 4,47,3
k. Mart. Antiochiae Leontio cons. Palaest. 10,32,24

vii id. Mart. Antiochiae ad Iulianum com. Or. 8,35,12 pp. iii id. Mart. Cp. Secundo pp. 11,70,2? viiii k. Mai. Salonae (?) ad Mamertinum pp. 10,73,2

a. 363–364 IMP. IOVIANUS A.

a. 363
v k. Oct. Edessa [acc...] Ioviano et Varroniano conss. Secundo pp. 12,37,2

a. 364 Ioviano A. et Varroniano conss.
v non. Ian. Ancyro ad Apronianum pu. *1,40,5.
d. xi k. Mart. Antiochiae Secundo pp. 1,3,5[29]

a. 364–367 (373) IMP. VALENTINIANUS ET VALENS AA.[30] sine conss. ad Ampelium pu. 1,28,2: ad Probum pp. 4,60,1: ad Modestum pp. 10,32,30: ad Equitium mag. eq. et ped. 11,68,3: ad Symmachum pu. 12,1,9 a. 364 Divo Ioviano et Varroniano conss.

vi id. April. ad Volusianum pu. 10,26,1 viii k. Iun. *Philippop. ad Symmachum pu. 8,11,5 vii k. Iun. ad Mamertinum pp. 11,59,3 vi k. *Iun. Bonamansione ad Victorem mag. mil. 12,37,3 viii k. Sept. Arelate Artemio praes. 10,26,2 prid. id. Sept. Aquil. ad Byzacenos 10,32,25 xiii k. Oct. Aquil. acc. xv k. Nov. Salerni ad Artemium correctorem 12,54,1 iii non. Oct. Altino ad Bulephorum cons. Campaniae 11,47,1 viii id. Oct. Altino ad Symmachum pu. 11,27,1 prid. k. Nov. [acc ...] Rom. Val. et Val. AA. conss. ad Mamertinum pp. 10,72,3? prid. k. Nov. Philippop. ad Mamertinum pp. 12,31,1? prid. non. *Nov. Med. sal. dicunt ordini civitatis Carthag. 7,62,24 xv k. Dec. [acc ...] Hadrumeto Valentiniano et Valente AA. conss. ad Bracontium vic. Afr. 10,1,8?
vi id. Dec. [Sallustio pp.?] 3,40,2

a. 365 Valentiniano et Valente AA. conss.[31] xi k. Febr. Med. Valentino cons. Piceni 9,3,1 iii k. Febr. Med. ad Mamertinum pp. 12,52,1 xiiii k. Mart. Cp. edictum 9,36,1: ad Clearchum 12,49,2

[29] immo Iuliani lex est data a. 363
[30] Gratianum addunt a. 366 4,61,7. 8,50,19, cf. 11,23,1 et not. ad a. 366
[31] a compilatoribus et Iustiniani et Theodosiani Codicis anni 365. 368. 370. 373 passim confunduntur

x k. Mart. Med. ad Florentium c. s. l. 4,61,6 VIII k. April. Med. ad Symmachum corr. Lucaniae ei Brittiorum 12,50,5
II non. April. Med. ad Volusianum pu. *1,28,1
XV k. Iul. Med. ad Bracontium vic. Afr. 10,16,6
V k. Iul. Tyrici Senecae defensori 1,55,1?
IIII k. Iul. Med. ad Volusianum pu. 10,32,28: ad Germanianum c. s. l. 11,8,3
III non. Iul. [Heracliae ad Philippum vic.?] 3,26,9
XV k. Aug. ad Mamertinum pp. 12,54,2?
VIIII k. Aug. ad Volusianum pu. 7,39,2 prid. k. Aug. Med. ad Faventium vic. Italiae 11,48,3 III id. Aug. Op. ad Secundum pp. *10,72,2
XV k. Oct. [acc. ?] Rom. ad Volusianum pu. l,19,5 VIIII k. Oct. Luceriae ad Rufinum pp. 11,61,1
VIII k. Oct. Med. ad Germanianum c. s. l. 11,62,3
VI non. Oct. Festo cons. Syriae 12,57,3
III id. Oct. ad Germanianum pp. Gall. 10,32,29
acc. (?) XV k. Dec. Hadrumeto ad Bracontium vic. Afr. 10,1,8?
XI k. Dec. ad Probum pp. Gall. 7,38,1 prid. k. Dec. ad senatum 9,15,1 IIII id. Dec. Parisiis ad Cresconium com. metall. 11,7,1 prid. id. Dec. Parisiis Rufino pp. 12,49,3

a. 366 GRATIANO NP.[32] ET DAGALAIFO CONSS.[33]
pp. Beryto IIII k. Febr. ad Archeiaum com. Or. 4,61,7?
XIIII k. Iun. Remis ad Germanianum c. s. l. 11,65,4
VIII k. Iun. ad Festum proc. Afr. 3,16,1 XVIII k. Iul. Remis ad Iulianum pf. ann. 11,23,1
V k. lul. Remis ad Severianum ducem 8,50,19
XV k. Oct. Mantebri ad Florentium c. s. l. 10,72,4
VII k. Dec. Remis ad Valerianum 9,46,7 XIII k. Ian. ad Germanianum 1,56,2 sine die ad Ruricium praes. Tripol. 11,48,5: ad Germanianum pp. Gall. 11,48,6

a. 367 LUPICINO ET IOVINO VV. CC. CONSS.
VI id. Ian. Rom. (?) ad Germanianum c. s. l. 10,72,5&11,7,2&11,11,1?

[32] A. pro np. 8,50,19. 11,23,1 [33] post cons. Val. et Val. AA. 4,61,7 pp. XIII k. Mai. ad Germanianum c. s. I. 11,63,2

a. 367(366)–375(377) IMPPP. VALENTINIANUS VALENS ET GRATIANUS AAA.[34]

sine conss. ad Theodosium mag. mil. 4,41,1: ad Iulianum pp. (pf. ann.?) 11,11,2: ad Maximum pp. 11,48,7: ad Probum pp. 11,48,8: ad Claudium 11,75,2

a. 367 LUPICINO ET IOVINO VV. CC. CONSS.

XV k. Sept. Ambianis ad Praetextatum pu. 8,49,1
III k. Oct. Aureliano pf. ann. 11,3,1
III id. Oct. Trev. ad Florianum c. r. p. 6,4,2&11,68,4?

a. 368 VALENTINIANO II ET VALENTE II AA. CONSS.[32]

III k. Febr. Triv. ad Praetextatum pu. *10,53,9
III id. Mart. Trev. ad Probum pp. 10,6,1?
id. Mart. Trev. ad Florianum c. r. p. 11,62,4&11,66,2?
VIIII k. Mai. Trev. Mauris Sitifensibus 10,32,27?
prid. non. Mai. Trev. Remigio mag. off. 1,9,4?
pp. Rom. XV k. Sept. ad Olybrium pu. 2,6,6&7,85,4 prid. k. Oct. Agrippinae ad Probum pp. 11,55,2 III non. Nov. ad Probum pp. 1,55,2?
XIIII k. Dec. Marcianop. Auxonio pp. 12,39,1
id. Dec. Marcianop. ad Auxonium pp. 11,8,4 VI k. Ian. ad Honoratum cons. Byzacii 1,33,1 III k. Ian. Trev. ad Viventium pp. 7,61,2

a. 369 VALENTINIANO NP. ET VICTORE CONSS.

XIIII k. Febr. [acc.] Sirmi ad Probum pp. 10,53,8 pp. Beryto IIII k. Febr. ad Archelaum com. Or. 4,61,7 X k. Mart. Trev. ad Viventium pp. 10,24,1
VII k. Mart. Trev. Olybrio pu. 7,51,2
IIII k. April. ad Florianum c. r. p. 10,10,3
V non. Mai. Marcianop. ad Auxonium pp. 12,37,4 IIII non. Mai. Trev. ad Olybrium pu. 3,12,4
III non. Mai. Trev. ad Probum pp. 9,49,7 VI id. Mai. Trev. ad Apodemium 7,61,3 prid. id. Mai. ad Artemium vic. Hisp. 10,30,1
V non. Iul. Novioduni. acc. XV k. Aug. Marcianop. Archelao c. s. l. 10,2,4&11,9,1 VIII id. Iul. ad Olybrium pu. 9,8,4: ad Claudium pu. 1,4,2&7,65,4 prid. id. Oct. Trev. ad Probum pp. 9,42,3

[34] Gratianum om. non solum eae constitutiones a. 368. 370. 373, quae errore compilatorum ad a. 365 relatae sunt, sed aliae quoque a. 367–372

III id. Nov. Trev. ad Viventium pp. 10,3,5 indictione XII Auxonio pp. 11,13,1
a. 370 VALENTINIANO ET VALENTE III AA. CONSS.[35]
k. Mart. Trev. ad Olybrium pu. 2,6,7 VII id. Mart. Marcianop. ad Felicem c. s. l. 10,3,6 vi id. Mart. ad Olybrium pu. 10,53,10
d. (?) vi id. April. Sirmio ad Probum pp. 12,37,5 III id. April. Olybrio pu. 9,47,19
k. Dec. Triv. ad Claudium proc. Afr. 10,48,9?
prid. id. Dec. Cp. ad Modestum pp. 9,18,8?
a. 371 GRATIANO A. II ET PROBO CONSS.
XII k. Febr. ad Probum pp. 7,44,2
II id. April. ad Felicem cons. (c. s. l.?) 6,1,7
k. Mai. Cp. ad Modestum pp. 11,18,4?
XIIII k. Iun. Trev. ad senatum 9,43,3
III k. Iul. Contionaci ad Probum pp. 9,4,4 IIII id. Iul. Contionaci ad Crescentem vic. Afr. 11,59,4
III id. Iul. ad Probum pp. 6,3,13. 11,53,1
III id. Iul. Ancyrae ad Modestum pp. 10,32,31
XVII k. Aug. ad senaium 5,4,18
VII id. Aug. Contionaci ad Maximum 6,22,7
III id. Dec. Triv. ad Ampelium pu. 12,50,6 X k. Ian. Severo mag. mil. 12,59,1
a. 372 MODESTO ET ARINTHEO CONSS.
XVI k. Iun. ad Probum pp. 12,57,4
d. pp. Bersti (?) non. Iun. ad Modestum pp. 11,6,2
III non. Iul. Nasonaci. acc. III non. Sept. ad Ampelium pu. 12,4,1& 12,12,1 XII k. Sept. *Seleuciae ad Philematium c. s. l. 11,8,5
a. 373 VALENTINIANO ET VALENTE IIII AA. CONSS.[36]
pp. Beryto k. Ian. ad Modestum pp. 10,32,26
IIII id. Iun. Cyzico ad Modestum pp. 7,65,3
XIII k. Iul. Apolloniae ad Zosimum praes. Epiri novae 12,24,1 IIII id. Aug. Hierapoli ad senatum 1,55,3 XIIII k. Oct. Hierapoli Modesto pp. 12,43,1 XIIII k. Dec. Med. ad Zosimum praes. Epiri novae 12,52,2
a. 374 GRATIANO A. III ET EQUITIO CONSS.
pp. VII id. Febr. Rom. ad Probum pp. 9,16,7

[35] Valent. et Valente AA. conss. pleraeque constitutiones, cf. not. ad a. 365
[36] imppp. Valent. Val. et Grat. AAA *a.*376 9,41,16: a. 377 12,23,2. 12,50,7: cf. 3,12,5

III non. Mart. ad Probum pp. 8,51,2
pp. Rom. x k. April. Simplicio vic. 9,39,1 III non. Dec. Trev. ad Probum pp. 7,44,3 sine die Tatiano c. s. l. 4,63,2?

a. 375 POST CONS. GRATIANI A. III ET EQUITII VC.
v id. April. Trev. ad Chilonem 10,72,6 III non. Aug. Chiloni proc. Afr. 11,3,2 prid. id. Aug. Carnunti Laodicio praes. Sard. *9,1,19
III non. Dec. Antiochiae Modesto pp. 12,57,5

a. 376–378 IMPPP. VALENS GRATIANUS ET VALENTINIANUS AAA.[33] sine conss. ad Antonium pp. 11,59,5

a. 376 VALENTE V ET VALENTINIANO AA. CONSS. lecta in senatu III id. Febr. ad senatum 3,24,2?
VI id. Mart. Triv. ad Hesperium proc. Afr. 11,41,1 pp. XVI k. Mai. Romae ad Maximinum pp. 9,22,28
III id. Iul. ad Rufinum pp. 1,28,3&12,58,1 XV k. Oct. Trev. ad Antonium pp. Gall. 9,41,16
lecta k. Dec. ad Gracchum pu. 3,5,1&4,20,10

a. 377 GRATIANO A. IIII ET MEROBAUDE VC. CONSS.
prid. non. Ian. Trev. ad Gracchum pu. 12,1,10
VIII id. Ian. Antonio pp. 1,38,1
XII k. Febr. ad Hesperium pp. 1,38,2
VIII k. Febr. Antiochiae Titiano c. s. l. 12,23,2
III k. Mart. Triv. ad Hesperium pp. 12,50,7
III non. Mart. ad Cataphronium 1,3,6 prid. non. April. Antiochiae ad Modestum pp. 12,37,6 prid. non. Iul. Hierapoli Fortunatiano c. r. p. 10,2,5 v id. Aug. Hierapoli Modesto pp. 12,39,2 XVIII k. ... Hierapoli ad Procopium 12,1,11
XVI k. Nov. Cp. ad Florianum vic. Asiae 1,6,1
XIII k. Nov. ad Modestum pp. 8,10,8 IIII non. Nov. ad Modestum pp. 11,62 5

a. 378 VALENTE VI ET VALENTINIANO II AA. CONSS.
prid. id. Ian. Trev. ad Antonium pp. 4,19,24&9,31,1
III k. Febr. Trev. ad Thalassium proc. Afr. 7,65,5
XII k. Mai. Triv. ad Ausonium pp. 12,50,8
XV k. Sept. Rav. ad Antonium pp. 2,7,2

a. 379–384 (386) IMPPP. GRATIANUS VALENTINIANUS ET THEODOSIUS AAA.

sine conss. ad Eusignium pp. 1,29,1: Palladio c. s. l. 4,61,9: Arintheo pp. (?) 11,11,3: ad Hesperium proc. Afr. 11,66,3: ad Nebridium c. r. p. 11,66,4: ad Florum pp. 11,71,1

a. 379 AUSONIO ET OLYBRIO CONSS.

non. April. Triv. ad Hypatium pu. 7,65,6 prid. non. Iul. Scupis Pancratio c. r. p. 12,23,3 III k. Aug. Med. ad Hesperium pp. 6,32,4
III non. Aug. Med. acc. XIII k. Sept. ad Hesperium pp. 1,5,2 X k. Oct. Rom. ad Potitum vic. 7,48,4
k. Oct. ad Syagrium mag. off. 12,42,2
VIII k. Nov. ad Potitum vic. 3,2,1
VIII id. Dec. Sirmio ad Hesperium pp. 12,23,4

a. 380 GRATIANO V ET THEODOSIO AA. CONSS.

VIII id. Ian. Eutropio pp. 1,54,4
XVIII k. Febr. Thessal. Neoterio pp. 12,1,12
VIII id. Febr. Triv. navicularììs Afris sal. 11,6,3 pp. Carthagine III k. Mart. post cons. Ausonii et Olybrii ad Eucherium 11,8,6 III k. Mart. Thessal. ad populum urbis Cp. 1,1,1&9,29,1 prid. id. Mart. Aquil. post cons. Ausonii et Olybrii ad Hesperium pp. 11,8,7 XVI k. April. Thessal. ad Neoterium pp. 10,32,32
VI k. April. Thessal. Albuciano vic. Maced. 3,12,5
XV k. Iul. Thessal. Eutropio pp. 5,1,3?&5,2,1&6,23,16&9,49,8&12,7,1: Neoterio pp. 5,7,1: Tatiano pp. 8,36,3 XIIII k. Iul. ad Syagrium pp. 7,62,25
VIII k. Iul. Thessal. Restituto pu. 12,4,2&12,6,1 pp. id. Iul. Rom. ad Syagrium pp. 7,13,4&12,45,1
VI id. Sept. Sirmio Neotiterio 12,47,2?
XVI k. Dec. Thessal. Eutropio pp. 10,12,1
XV k. Ian. Eutropio pp. 5,9,1&6,56,4
III k. Ian. Cp. Eutropio pp. 9,3,2&9,4,5

a. 381 EUCHERIO ET SYAGRIO VV. CC. CONSS.

IIII id. Ian. Cp. Eutropio pp. 1,1,2
III non. Febr. Cp. Eutropio pp. 12,28,3
VIII k. Mai. *Aquil. ad Valerianum pu. 11,41,2*&3
III k. Iun. Cp. Eutropio pp. 5,9,2
III non. Iun. Cp. Eutropio 2,4,40
prid. non. Iun. Cp. Eutropio pp. 11,58,2 IIII k. Iul. Cp. 1,3,7 prid. non. Iul. Cp. acc. XII k. Aug. Palladio c. s. l. 4,61,8 XII k. Aug. Heracl. Palladio c. s. l. 10,6,2: Eutropio pp. 10,32,33

III k. Aug. Heracl. Pancratio pu. 1,2,2
VIII non. Sept. Cynegio pp. 5,20,1 IIII k. Oct. Cp. Eutropio pp. 5,34,12
a. 382 ANTONIO ET SYAGRIO CONSS.
VIII k. Mart. Cp. Floro pp. 1,19,4
III k. April. Cp. Floro pp. 11,9,2: omnibus rectoribus prov. 12,49,4 prid. non. April. Pancratio pu. 2,12,24&8,4,6 III id. April. Cp. have Lampadi k. n. 10,75,2 pp. Carthag. id. April. post cons. Syagrii et Eucherii ad Hypatium pp. 10,48,10
d. (?) id. Mai. Tyro metropol. pp. Beryto Eutropio pp. 12,43,2?
XV K. Iun. Cp. Floro pp. 4,19,25&9,46,9 VII k. Iun. Med. ad proconss. vicarios omnesque rectores 10,18,1 prid. id. Iun. Cp. Matroniano duci et praes. Sardiniae 9,27,1 XII k. Iul. Patavi ad Severum pu. 11,26,1
X k. Aug. Cp. Floro pp. 12,50,9
XV k. Sept. Verona Flaviano pp. Ill. 9,47,20
X k. Sept. Floro pp. 9,27,2 IIII k. Sept. Cp. Floro pp. 11,7,3 lecta III k. Sept. Capuae ad Syagrium pp. 10,48,11
pp. Beryto d. XII k. Oct. Philagrio com. Or. 12,50,10
X k. Nov. Cp. Floro pp. 10,32,34
VII k. Nov. Cp. Panhellenio cons. Lydiae 10,11,6
V id. Dec. ad Hypatium pp. 10,48,12
XV k. Ian. Cp. Floro pp. 5,9,3
a. 383 MEROBAUDE II ET SATURNINO CONSS.
XV k. Febr. Cp. Nebridio c. r. p. 11,59,6&11,71,2?
IIII non. Febr. Cp. Floro pp. 12,63,1
XI k. Mart. Med. ad Hilarianum pp. 6,57,4 III non. Mart. Med. ad populum 10,25,1&11,48,9 prid. non. April. Med. Marcellino 9,27,3 VIII id. April. Cp. Postumiano pp. 10,32,35
XIIII k. Mai. Med. Hypatio pp. 1,9,5
III k. Mai. Cp. post cons. Antonii et Syagrii have Hypati k. n. 10,72,7
VI non. Mai. Med. ad Hypatium pp. 4,44,15
XV k. Iun. Patavii ad Hypatium 1,7,2
VI k. Iun. Patavi Mariniano vic. Hisp. 9,2,13
III id. Iun. Cp. ad Proculum 8,11,6 xvi k. Iul. *Veronae ad Basilium c. s. l. 10,32,36 xvi k. Iul. Veronae. acc. prid. k. Aug. ad Eusignium proc. Afr. 1,15,1 xiiii k. Aug. Cp. Postumiano pp. 10,32,37 xii k. Aug. Lolliano 10,23,1 v id. Oct. Cp. Nebridio c. r. p. 12,23,5 vii k. Nov. Med. [acc.] post. cons. Merob. ii et Saturnini ad Probum pp. 12,23,6 pp. xvii k. Ian. ad Ammianum c. r. p. 2,9,4 sine die Postumiano pp. 11,63,3

a. 384 RICOMERE ET CLEARCHO CONSS.
xv k. Febr. Cp. Cynegio pp. 8,11,7&10,76,1

a. 384–392 (393) IMPPP. VALENTINIANUS THEODOSIUS ET ARCADIUS AAA.[37]

sine conss. 11,9,3: Nebridio pu. 1,43,1: Fausio c. s. l. 4,40,1: Cariobaudi duci Mesopot. 4,40,2: ad Andromachum c. r. p. 5,5,4: Tatiano pp. Or. 11,59,8: ad Nebridium c. r. p. 11,66,5: Drepanio c. r. p. 11,67,1

a. 384 RICOMERE ET CLEARCHO CONSS.
id. Febr. ad Principium pu. 1,48,2 vi non. Mart. Cp. Cynegio pp. 12,50,11 iii k. April. Cp. Nebridio c. r. p. 11,62,6 iiii d. April. Cp. Cynegio pp. 12,35,11
xii k. Iun. Med. ad Praetextatum pp. 12,8,1 iiii id. Iun. Heracl. Trifolio c. s. l. 12,23,7 viiii k. Aug. Heracl. Trifolio c. s. l. 11,8,8 vii k. Aug. Heracl. ad senatum 1,16,1 v id. Sept. Aquil. ad Praetextatum pp. 1,54,5 xv k. Oct. Cp. 10,71,2 viii id. Nov. Cp. ad Cynegium pp. 10,32,38 xiii k. Ian. Cp. Florentio pf. Aug. 9,30,1 v k. Ian. Med. [acc. ...] post cons. Ricomeris et Clearchi Symmacho pu. 9,29,2?

a. 385 ARCADIO A. ET BAUTONE VC. CONSS.
xi (?) non. Ian. Cp. Theodoro defens. civit. 1,55,4
k. Febr. Med. ad Nicetium pf. ann. 1,23,5 iii non. Febr. Cp. Cynegio pp. 8,11,8 xv k. Mart. Med. ad Petagium c. r. p. 7,62,26&7,65,7 v k. Mart. Med. Neoterio pp. 1,4,3 iiii id. Mart. Cp. Trifolio c. s. l. 12,23,8

[37] imppp. Grat. Val. et Th. AAA. pleraeque constitutunes annorum 384–386, item 4,38,14 a. 391: impppp. Grat. Val. Th. et Arc. AAAA. multae constitutiones a. 385. 386

xviii k. Mai. Med. ad Neoterium pp. 10,48,13
iii k. Mai. ad Polemium pp. 3,26,10 prid. k. Mai. Cp. Cynegio pp. 9,2,14 viii id. Mai. Cp. Menandro vic. Asiae 9,46,8 viii k. Iun. Cp. Cynegio pp. 1,11,2
k. Iun. ad Principium pp. 9,47,21 prid. id. Iun. Med. ad Neoterium pp. 12,57,6 xv k. Iul. Cp. Cynegio pp. 12,50,12 x k. Iul. Cp. 3,19,3 iiii id. Iul. Trev.(?) Desiderio vic. 9,44,1 xvi k. Aug. Eutropio pp. 9,29,3 viii k. Aug. Paulino pf. Aug. 1,3,8 pp. Alexandriae vii k. Aug. Neoterio pp. 3,39,5 xviii k. Oct. Aquil. ad Licinium pp. 11,60,1 xiiii k. Oct. Aquil. ad Principium pp. 12,53,1 viii k. Oct. Aquil. ad Principium pp. 10,16,7 vi k. Oct. Aquil ad Principium pp. 11,8,9
v id. Dec. Cp. Cynegio pp. 1,40,6 iiii id. Dec. Aquil. Principio pp. 12,49,5 iii id. Dec. Cp. Cynegio pp. 9,9,31&9,16,8 x k. Ian. Cp. Cynegio pp. 10,16,8

a. 386 Honorio np. et Euodio conss.
iii k. Febr. Cp. Nebridio pu. 11,20,1 xiii k. Mart. Cp. Florentio pf. Aug. 1,37,1 vi k. Mart. Cp. Cynegio pp. 11,62,7 iiii k. Mart. Cp. Cynegio pp. 1,2,3~3,44,14 prid. k. Mart. Cp. Cynegio pp. 12,19,1&12,21,1 pp. Hadrumeti vii id. Mart. post cons. Arc. A. et Bautonis vc. ad Principium mag. off. 1,31,2 vi k. April. Cp. Cynegio pp. 11,48,10&11,58,3 prid. k. Mai. Cp. Clearcho pp. 11,62,8
k. Mai. 7,71,6 vii k. Iun. Cp. Cynegio pp. 1,40,7 x k. Iul. Cp. edictum ad provinciales 9,27,4 iii k. Iul. Cp. Nebridio pu. 4,58,5 prid. non. Iul. Cp. Cynegio pp. 1,25,1 prid. non. Iul. Med. acc. iiii k. Sept. ad Pinianum pu. 12,28,4 prid. id. Iul. Med. ad Eusignium pp. 12,59,2 iiii k. Aug. Med. Eusignio pp. 11,7,4 non. Aug. Cp. Cynegio pp. 1,40,8

III non. Sept. Valentiae Cynegio pp. 10,16,9
VIII k. Nov. Cp. Cynegio pp. 11,51,1?&11,59,7&11,63,4&11,64,1?&11,64,2&11,68,5?
VI k. Nov. Cp. Cynegio pp. 10,72,8
XIIII k. Dec. Med. ad Eusignium pp. 7,69,1
VIII k. Dec. Cp. Cynegio pp. 10,34,1&10,72,9
III non. Dec. Med. ad Eusignium pp. 12,59,3
V id. Dec. Cp. Cynegio pp. 1,40,6
VIII k. Ian. ad Eusignium pp. 10,32,39
a. 387 VALENTINIANO A. III ET EUTROPIO CONSS. prid. non. Mart. Med. ad Eusignium pp. 12,17,1
k. April. Cp. Cynegio pp. 10,32,40
V non. Iul. Cp. Dextro c. r. p. 7,38,2 prid. non. Iul. Cp. Cynegio pp. 10,32,41
a. 388 THEODOSIO A. II ET CYNEGIO CONSS.
prid. id. Mart. Thessal. Cynegio pp. 1,9,6 XV k. Nov. Tatiano pp. 11,10,1
a. 389 TIMASIO ET PROMOTO CONSS.
Med. X k. Febr. Proculo pu. 9,22,24
XIIII k. Febr. Med. ad Trifolium pp. 11,14,1
V k. Mart. Med. Constantiano pp. Gall. 6,55,9
VII non. Mai. Med. Tatiano pp. 1,26,3
III non. Mai. Med. Tatiano pp. 12,57,7
XVII k. Iul. [acc. ...] Trev. ad Messianum c. r. p. 8,4,7
VIII k. Aug. Albino pu. Rom. 6,1,8
VII id. Aug. Rom. Albino pu. 3,12,6
XVII k. Sept. Rom. Albino pu. 9,18,9
VIII k. Sept. Rom. ad Albinum pu. 11,17,1
VIII ... [acc. ...] Cp. Pancratio pu. 11,43,2?
V k. Sept. Rom. Albino pu. Rom. 11,43,3
VI id. Nov. [acc. ...] Triv. Constantiano pp. Gall. 1,48,3&12,19,2 IIII k. Dec. Cp. Cynegio pp. 10,72,10
X k. Ian. Med. [acc. ...] post cons. Timasii et Promoti Polemio pp. Ill. 1,40,9 III k. Ian. Med. Proculo pu. 5,33,1
a. 390 VALENTINIANO A. II ET NEOTERIO CONSS.
XII k. Febr. Med. Tatiano pp. 5,35,2 prid. non. Febr. Med. Drepanio proc. Afr. 9,3,3 XV k. Mart. Med. Tatiano pp. 9,2,15
k. Mart. ... pf. Aug. 10,40,8 prid. non. Mart. Med. ad Albinum pu. 9,12,8 VIII id. Mart. Med. Rufino mag. off. 11,10,2 prid. non. Iun. Med. Severino c. r. p. 9,27,5 pp. XV k. Iul. Triv. Floro pp. 12,50,3 XI k. Iul. Med. Tatiano pp. 1,3,9

a. 391 TATIANO ET SYMMACHO CONSS.
XI k. April. Med. Tatiano pp. Or. 10,48,14
XVII k. Mai. Med. Severino c. s. l. 1,28,4
V id. Mai. Concordiae Flaviano pp. 1,7,a VI k. Iun. Vicentiae Flaviano pp. Ill. et It. 1,18,12&4,38,14: Ricomeri com. et mag. utr. mil. 12,35,12
XIII k. Iul. Aquil. acc. id. Ian. Hadrumeti post cons. Tatiani et Symm. vv. cc. ad Magnillum vic. Afr. 4,44,16
k. Iul. ad provinciales 3,27,1 prid. id. Iul. Aquil. ad Alypium pu. 11,15,1 XV k. Aug. Cp. Tatiano pp. 11,6,4

a. 392 ARCADIO A. II ET RUFINO CONSS.
XI k. Mart. Cp. Romulo c. s. l. 11,7,5
III non. Mart. Cp. Potamio pf. Aug. 1,55,5 id. Mart. Tatiano pp. 5,10,1
V id. April. Cp. Tatiano pp. 1,55,6
VI k. Iun. Cp. Tatiano pp. 3,12,7

a. 392–395 IMPPP. THEODOSIUS ARCADIUS ET HONORIUS AAA.[38] sine conss. 11,9,3: Rufino pp. 11,52,1

a. 392 ARCADIO A. II ET RUFINO CONSS.
VII k. Iul. Cp. Proculo pu. 11,25,1
V k. Aug. Cp. Apodemio pp. Ill. 10,65,5
III k. Aug. Cp. Potamio pf. Aug. 12,50,14
prid. k. Aug. Cp. Abundantio com. et mag. utr. mil. 10,32,42
VII k. Sept. Cp. Rufino pp. 12,51,1 XVIII k. Oct. Tatiano pp. 2,12,25
prid. non. Nov. Cp. Rufino pp. 3,39,6 IIII id. Nov. Cp. Marciano com. Or. 10,40,9&12,1,13
VII id. Dec. Cp. Rufino pp. 9,9,32 sine die Tatiano pp. 11,25,2

a. 393 THEODOSIO A. III ET ABUNDANTIO VC. CONSS.
prid. id. Ian. Cp. Addeo com. et mag. utr. mil. 1,26,4: comitibus et mag. utr. mil. 1,46,1 [38] imppp. Val. Th. et Arc. AAA. multae constitutiones a. 392. 393

iii k. Mart. Cp. Aureliano pu. 8,11,9 xvii k. April. Cp. Paterno 11,7,6 vi k. April. Cp. Silvano duci et correctori limitis Tripol. 12,59,4 iii non. April. Cp. Rufino pp. 11,58,4 prid. id. April. Cp. Rufino pp. 10,19,5&10,32,43
prid. non. Iun. Cp. Rufino pp. 10,45,1 iiii id. Iul. Cp. Rufino pp. 9,24,3 viii k. Aug. Aureliano pu. 5,33,2 iii k. Aug. Cp. Rufino pp. 12,37,7 v id. Aug. Cp. Rufino pp. 9,7,1&10,32,44 iiii k. Oct. Cp. ad Rufinum pp. 6,17,2 iii non. Oct. Cp. ad Flavianum proc. Afr. 12,55,1 vi k. Nov. Cp. Theodoto mag. off. 12,40,1 iii k. Dec. Cp. Rufino pp. 11,58,5
... k. Dec. Cynegio pp. 5,5,5?
prid. non. Dec. Cp. Rufino pp. 9,9,33
iii k. Ian. Cp. Infantio com. Or. 1,9,7

a. 394 ARCADIO III ET HONORIO II AA. CONSS.
iii non. Mart. Cp. Rufino pp. 4,3,1 iii k. Iun. Heracl. Rufino pp. *12,56,1 iii k. Iul. Heracl. Rufino pp. 1,4,4&11,41,4 iii non. Iul. Cp. Rufino pp. 8,11,10 viii id. Nov. Tyro Rufino pp. 11,59,9

a. 395–402(406) IMPP. ARCADIUS ET HONORIVS AA[39]

sine conss. Limenio c. s. l. 1,40,10: Anthemio pp. 4,61,10: Lampadio pu. 4,61,11: Nebridio com. Asiae 11,50,2: Florentino pu. 11,17,2: ad populum 11,48,11: Florentio 11,48,12: Hadriano pp. 11,71,3: Minervio c. s. l. 11,71,4: Minervio c. r. p. 11,75,3: Silvano c. r. p. 11,78,1: Pulchro mag. utr. mil. 12,33,3: Clearcho pp. Ill. 12,57,9

a. 395 OLYBRIO ET PROBINO CONSS.
iii non. Mart. Med. Basilio pu. 12,48,1 xv k. April. Med. Dextro pp. 12,50,15 xvii k. Iun. Med. Ennodio proc. Afr. 7,62,27&10,32,45 xii k. Iun. Cp. Theodoto pu. 12,21,2
k. Iun. Cp. Marcello mag. off. 12,22,4 v id. Iun. Cp. Rufino pp. *11,5,1 xvii k. Iul. Med. Messiano c. r. p. 10,48,15: ad provinciales et ad proconsules 12,60,1 [39] imppp. Theod. Arc. et Hon. AAA. 1,37,2 (a.395) 11,43,2. 3 (a. 395) 11,67,2 (a. 396)

XI k. Iul. Med. Eusebio c. s. l. 8,11,11
prid. id. Iul. Med. Andromacho pp. 12,60,2 VI k. Aug. Med. Petronio vic. 8,2,3
VIII id. Aug. Hadriano c. s. l. 11,70,3
VIII... Cp. Pancratio pu. 11,43,2
V k. Sept. Rom. Albino pu. Romae 11,43,3
IIII k. Oct. Med. Theodoro pp. 10,32,46
V id. Oct. Cp. Rufino pp. 2,4,41
id. Oct. Med. Florentino pu. 6,60,2 prid. k. Dec. Cp. Caesano pp. 11,76,1
prid. non. Dec. Cp. Rufino pp. 1,37,2
VIII k. Ian. Med. Pasiphilo 8,4,8&9,2,16&9,87,1
VII k. Ian. Ennodio 6,30,16
IIII k. Ian. Cp. Caesario pp. 10,32,47

a. 396 ARCADIO IIII ET HONORIO III AA. CONSS.
XVI k. Febr. Cp. Martiniano c. s. l. 12,39,3 non. Febr. Cp. pp. Alexandriae Eutycheo Gennadio pf. Aug. 1,4,5 XV k. Mart. Cp. Claudio pu. 12,19,3
VI k. Mart. Cp. Eutychiano pp. 5,37,24
V k. Mart. Cp. Euthymio vic. Asiae 12,57,8
III k. Mart. Cp. ad Iudaeos 1,9,9
V non. Mart. Cp. Clearcho pu. 1,5,3
XII k. April. Cp. Remigio pf. Aug. 1,20,1
XII k. April. Aeternali proc. Asiae 3,31,11&6,23,17
VIIII k. April. Caesario pp. 8,12,12
VIII k. April. Cp. Simplicio proc. Asiae 1,35,2
V k. April. Cp. ad Paulum com. domorum 7,38,3&11,67,2
III k. April. Med. Eusebio pp. 11,58,6
VII k. Mai. Cp. Caesario pp. 11,46,1
V k. Iun. Med. Hilario *10,29,1
XVI k. Iul. Hilario pp. 12,37,8
XI k. Aug. Cp. Nebridio proc. Asiae 7,62,28
III non. Aug. Cp. ad Africanum pu. 2,7,3: Caesario pp. 9,49,9 IIII id. Aug. Med. Apollodoro c. r. p. 7,65,8
VI id. Dec. Cp. Eutychiano pp. 5,5,6
XVIII k. Ian. Cp. Eutychiano pp. 10,38,1 X k. Ian. Med. Eusebio pp. 11,2,2

a. 397 CAESARIO ET ATTICO CONSS.
V id. Ian. Med. Iuliano proc. Afr. 7,45,12
XI k. Mart Cp. Eutychiano pp. 10,78,1 vi k. Mart. Cp. Remistheo duci Armeniae 12,50,16 xvi k. April. Med. Probino proc. Afr. 10,32,52 xvii k. Mai. Med. ad senatum et populum 4,40,3&11,23,2 xv k. Iul. Cp. Archelao pf. Aug. 1,12,1 vii id. Iul. Cp. Anatolio pp. per Ill. 10,26,3 prid. non. Sept. Ancyrae Eutychiano pp. 9,8,5 vi k. Oct. Cp. Africano pu. 6,23,18

k. Nov. Asterio com. Or. 11,43,4 vi id. Nov. Cp. Eutychiano pp. 9,1,20 xv k. Ian. Med. Vincentio pp. Gall. 3,13,5: Petronio vic. Hisp. 7,32,11&8,5,2 xii k. Ian. Med. Florentio pu. 3,23,1&10,32,48 x k. Ian. Med. Minervio c. r. p. 1,33,2

a. 398 Honorio A. iiii et Eutychiano conss.

k. Febr. Cp. Romuliano pu. 12,35,13
iii non. Febr. Cp. Eutychiano pp. 1,9,8 viii id. Febr. Cp. Osio mag. off. 12,40,2 id. Febr. Med. Theodoro pp. 10,32,49 xii k. Mart. Med. Vincentio pp. 12,50,17
non. Mart. Cp. Eutychiano pp. 11,59,10 v id. Mart. Cp. Simplicio com. et mag. utr. mil. 11,61,2 viii k. April. Cp. 12,37,9 vi k. Mai. Med. Theodoro pp. 1,3,10 xii k. Iun. Med. Victorio proc. Afr. et Dominatori vic. Afr. 12,55,2 x k. Iun. Cp. Eutychiano pp. 12,37,10 viiii k. Iun. Med. Firmino c. s. l. 11,74,1 viii k. Iun. Med. Theodoro pp. 10,19,6 iiii k. Iul. Nicaeae Severo pu. 12,49,6 prid. non. Iul. Nicom. Eutychiano pp. 11,62,9 vi k. Aug. Mnizo Eutychiano pp. 1,3,11&12&1,4,6&7&7,62,29
v id. Oct. Cp. Severo pu. 8,11,14 viii k. Nov. Cp. Eutychiano pp. 10,32,50
id. Dec. Eutychiano pp. 8,11,15 xviii k. Ian. Cp. Osio mag. off. 11,10,3 xii k. Ian. Med. Theodoro pp. 1,24,1&8,11,13
pp. Rom. Minervio c. r. p. 10,16,10

a. 399 Theodoro cons.

vii id. Ian. Med. Theodoro pp. 7,62,30 iiii k. Febr. Rav. Macrobio [pp. Hisp.] et Procliano vic. [v prov.] 1,11,3 xiiii k. Mart. Med. Messalae pp. 11,3,3

IIII id. April Cp. Eutychiano pp. 11,62,10
XVI k. Iun. Med. Messalae pp. 10,75,3&11,65,5
VII k. Iul. Brixiae Sapidiano vic. Afr. 1,3,13
VII k. Aug. Cp. Eutychiano pp. 9,47,22
XIII k. Sept. Patavii Apollodoro proc. Afr. 1,11,4 XII k. Sept. Messalae pp. *1,54,6&4,44,17&9,41,17&10,32,51 prid. non. Sept. Altino Messalae pp. 11,23,3 Id. Sept. Med. Stilichoni com. et mag. utr. mil. 12,38,1 VII k. Oct. Cp. Severino pu. 12,10,1
III k. Oct. Altino Messalae pp. 12,55,3&12,58,2?
XII k. Dec. Messalae pp. 3,11,7
VI k. Ian. Med. Messalae pp. 1,51,3
III k. Ian. Eutychiano pp. 1,9,10

a. 400 STILICHONE ET AURELIANO CONSS.[140]
XVI k. Febr. Med. Vincentio pp. 12,40,3 XI k. Febr. Cp. Aemiliano mag. off. 12,40,4 pp. Rom. in foro Aproniano VIIII k. Febr. Flaviano pu. 11,2,3 prid. non. Febr. Rav. Hadriano pp. 1,3,14
III non. Mart. Med. Flaviano pu. 5,62,24
prid. id. Mart. Med. Apollodoro proc. Afr. 10,20,1 XIIII k. April. Med. Stilichoni mag. mil. 12,35,14
VI id. Iun. Med. Benigno vic. urbis Rom. 10,72,11
III k. Iul. Med. Vincentio pp. Gall. 11,48,13&*14&11,66,6
VI k. Sept. Hadriano pp. 11,59,11
XV k. Dec. Med. Messalae pp. 2,14,1&10,30,2&11,74,2
V k. Dec. Messalae pp. 12,50,18 prid. k. Ian. Med. Pompeiano proc. Afr. *9,26,1&10,72,12&12,61,3

a. 401 VINCENTIO ET FRAVITO CONSS.
III k. Mart. Med. Limenio c. s. l. 1,32,1: Hadriano pp. 10,16,11
VIII k. April. Med. Hadriano pp. 10,71,3 prid. k. April. Med. provincialibus provinciae com. 12,37,11
III id. Iul. Med. Hadriano pp. 10,19,7
VI k. Aug. Nestorio c. r. p. 11,73,1

a. 402–408 IMPPP. ARCADIUS HONORIUS ET THEODOSIUS AAA.[141] sine conss. Petronio pp. 11,74,3

a. 403 THEODOSIO A. ET RUMORIDO CONSS.
VI k. Mart. Rav. Hadriano pp. 12,45,2
VII k. April. Rav. Septimino proc. Afr. 12,60,19

[140] Stilichone cons. 2,14,1
[141] imp. Arc. et Hon. AA. a. 404 1,3,15; a. 405 5,4,19. 5,27,2; a. 406 8,1,4. 11,4,1

III id. Iun. Caesario pp. 7,41,2 VI non. Oct. Hadriano pp. 3,27,2
a. 404 HONORIO A. VI ET ARISTAENETO CONSS.
VIIII k. April. Rom. Hadriano pp. 12,38,2 VI id. April. ad Caecilianum vic. 1,51,4 prid. k. Iul. Cp. Anthemio mag. off. 12,20,1 VIII id. Iul. Rom. Exsuperantio Iulio et ceteris decurialibus 11,14,2 IIII k. Sept. Cp. Studio pu. 1,3,15
a. 405 STILICHONE II ET ANTHEMIO CONSS.
III id. Iun. Nicaeae Eutychiano pp. 5,4,19
X k. Aug. Ancyrae Aemiliano mag. off. 12,27,1 prid. id. Aug. Ancyrae Nestorio c. r. p. 12,23,9 id. Nov. Cp. Anihemio pp. 5,27,2 VII id. Dec. Cp. Anthemio pp. 1,26,5 prid. k. Ian. Med. [Caeciliano pp. 1,55,7?]
a. 406 ARCADIO A. VI ET PROBO CONSS.
III id. Ian. Rav. Longiniano pp. 11,4,1
VIIII k. April. Rav. Longiniano pp. 12,45,3
V id. April. Cp. Anthemio pp. 12,37,12
V k. Iul. Cp. Aemiliano pu. 8,11,16: Philometori c. s. l. 11,8,10
XIII k. Aug. Cp. Aemiliano pu. 8,1,4 prid. id. Oct. Cp. Anthemio pp. 2,12,26
XI k. Nov. Cp. Aemiliano pu. 8,10,9
V k. Dec. Cp. Anthemio pp. 1,47,1 III
k. Ian. Rav. Nestorio c. r. p. 4,44,18?
a. 407 HONORIO VII ET THEODOSIO II AA. CONSS.
VIII k. Mart. Rom. Senatori pp. 1,5,4
XVI k. April. Cp. Anthemio pp. 6,30,17. 12,57,10
IIII non. Aug. Cp. Anthemio pp. 12,50,20
id. Oct. Rav. Epiphanio pu. 12,19,4
a. 408 BASSO ET PHILIPPO CONSS.
VI k. Febr. Lucio c. s. l. 10,72,13
III non. Febr. Rom. Curtio pp. 1,45,1
a. 408–423 (424) IMPP. HONORIUS ET THEODOSIUS AA.[42] sine conss. Gaisoni c. s. l. 4,61,12: Theodoro pp. 4,63,3: Anthemio pp. 4,63,4. 11,64,3: Maximino c. s. l. 4,63,6: Minervio c.r.p. 11,75,3: Eustathio pp. [Or.] et Nestorio pp. Ill. 12,46,4: Hadriano pp. 12,61,4
a. 408 BASSO ET PHILIPPO CONSS.
III id. April. Cp. Herculio pp. 10,49,1

[42] impp. Arc. Hon. et Th. AAA. 1,4,8 (a. 408): Constantius in hoc Codice om., cf. 10,10,4

v k. Mai. Cp. Anthemio pp. 3,12,8
IIII k. Iun. Cp. Anthemio pp. 1,9,11
XVII k. Nov. Theodoro pp. 4,2,16
VII k. Dec. Rav. Theodoro pp. 1,40,11:. ... c. s. l. 12,43,3
III k. Dec. Rav. Flaviano pp. 2,15,1?
VII id. Dec. Cp. ad Anthemium pp. 10,23,2
id. Dec. Theodoro pp. 1,4,8

a. 409 HONORIO VIII ET THEODOSIO III AA. CONSS.
XIIII k. Febr. Anthemio pp. 11,2,4&11,8,6&11,28,1?
XII k. Febr. Rav. Caeciliano pp. *1,4,9&1,55,*7&8&9&4,20,11&9,44,2
k. Febr. Rav. Caeciliano pp. 1,4,10: Theodoro pp. 5,4,20?&5,8,1 VIIII k. Mart. Cp. Monaxio pu. 8,11,17 prid. k. Mart. Anthemio pp. 1,3,16 x k. April. Cp. Anthemio pp. 12,37,13
k. April. Rav. Iovio pp. 1,9,12&1,12,2 XIIII k. Aug. Cp. Anthemio pp. 1,45,2&10,74,1&11,2,5
VIII id. Aug. Cp. Anthemio pp. 11,41,5
XII k. Sept. Eudoxiopoli Aetio pu. 1,2,4&4,63,5 x k. Oct. Cp. Anthemio pp. 9,38,1
[III id. Dec. Rav. Theodoro pp. 1,4,11&8,50,20]
VIII k. Ian. Cp. Anthemio pp. 10,77,1 sine die Monaxio pu. 5,34,13

a. 410 VARANE CONS.
XVIII k. Sept. Rav. Faustino pp. 4,40,4?&11,2,6 VII k. Sept. Cp. Anthemio pp. 10,22,1 prid. non. Sept. Cp. Isidoro pu. 1,19,6&8,57,2&8,58,1 VII k. Oct. Rav. Palladio proc. Afr. 12,21,3

a. 412 HONORIO VIIII ET THEODOSIO V AA. CONSS.
v k. Febr. Cp. Anthemio pp. 11,28,1 prid. k. Febr. Rav. Seleuco pp. 11,59,12
XV k. Mart. Rav. Melitio pp. 10,48,16
prid. k. Mart. Rav. Euchario suo sal. 10,72,14
VI id. Mart. Rav. Euchario proc. Afr. 10,32,53
XVI k. April. Rav. naviculariis per Africam 11,6,5 id. April. Rav. Probo c. s. l. 11,62,11
XV k. Iun. Cp. Anthemio pp. 11,10,4
VIII k. Iun. Rav. Melitio pp. 1,2,5
VII k. Aug. Rav. Iohanni pp. 1,9,13
VIII id. Aug. Cp. Philippo pp. 1,9,14
VII k. Nov. Cp. Anthemio pp. 10,25,2

VI k. Ian. Monaxio pp. 1,40,12

a. 413 LUCIO VC. CONS. in Oriente: POST CONS. HONORII VIIII ET THEODOSII V AA. in Occidente.

XII k. Mart. Rav. Iohanni pp. 6,23,19

XII k. April. Cp. Anthemio pp. 1,6,2: Prisciano pu. 12,11,1&2&12, 13,1&12,14,1 prid. non. April. Anthemio pp. 8,11,18

V k. Mai. Cp. Anthemio pp. 3,13,6

VIII id. Iun. Rav. Faustino pp. 12,19,5

VII id. Iun. Rav. Iohanni pp. 12,23,10

prid. id. Iun. Rav. Iohanni pp. 12,40,5: Gaisoni com. et mag. mil. 12,42,3

a. 414 CONSTANTIO ET CONSTANTE CONSS.

V non. Mart. Rav. Hadriano pp. 12,40,6 prid. non. Mart. Rav. Iulian*o proc. Afr.* 2,21,8&3,6,3

XIIII k. Mai. ad Anthemium pp. 9,47,23

XIII k. Iun. Mauriano com. domest. et vices agenti mag. mil. 11,45,1

III id. Iun. Cp. Probo c. s. l. 8,16,8&11,48,15?&11,59,13

VI id. Aug. Rav. Ursacio c. r. p. 1,33,3

III k. Sept. Rom. Iuliano proc. Afr. 7,52,6

XIII k. Dec. Constantio mag. mil. 12,37,14

prid. k. Dec. Cp. Monaxio pp. 10,53,11

id. Dec. Cp. ad Hypatium mag. mil. per Or. 1,29,2

a. 415 HONORIO X ET THEODOSIO VI AA. CONSS.

XIII k. Mart. Cp. ad populum 2,19,12: *Anthemio pp.*12,57,11

III non. Mart. Cp. Aureliano pp. 9,12,9&9,28,1

VIII k. Aug. Rav. Graccho pu. 12,59,5

V k. Sept. Rav. Symmacho proc. Afr. 8,35,13

III k. Sept. Rav. populo Carthaginiensi 1,11,5

non. Sept. comitibus et mag. mil. 11,61,3

XIII k. Nov. Cp. Aureliano pp. 1,9,15

prid. k. Nov. Cp. Urso pu. et Aureliano pp. Or. et Strategio pp. per Ill. 12,16,1

III id. Nov. Cp. Helioni mag. off. 12,20,2

III non. Dec. Aureliano pp. 11,59,14

III id. Dec. Seleuco pp. 1,51,5

a. 416 THEODOSIO A. VII ET PALLADIO CONSS.

VII id. Ian. Rav. Palladio pp. 10,17,1

VII id. Febr. Cp. Eustathio quaest. et Helioni mag. off. 12,19,6

VI id. Febr. Cp. Narsi com. et castrensi sacri palatii 12,25,1 vii id. Mart. Cp. edictum ad populum urbis Cp. et omnes provinciales 6,23,20 v non. Mai. Rav. Palladio pp. 10,32,54 iii k. Iul. Cp. Anysio c. s. l. et Tauro c. r. p. 12,23,11 x k. Aug. Cp. Urso pu. 12,24,1 vi k. Sept. Eudoxiopoli Monaxio pp. 1,46,2 iii k. Sept Eudoxiopoli Monaxio pp. 9,47,24 x k. Oct. Rav. Palladio pp. 12,60,3 iii k. (non. 10,65,6) Oct. Cp. Monaxio pp. 1,3,17. 10,65,6 prid. non. Nov. Cp. Helioni com. et mag. off. 12,26,1 iii id. Nov. Cp. Monaxio pp. 12,18,1

a. 417 Honorario A. xi et Constantio ii conss.
prid. id. Mart. Cp. Monaxio pp. 8,53,28 prid. id. Mart. Rav. Sebastio com. primi ord. 11,58,7&11,59,15 viiii k. Nov. Cp. Vitaliano duci Libyae 1,51,6 vii k. Ian. Rav. Palladio pp. 12,53,2

a. 418 Honorio xii et Theodosio viii AA. conss.
iii non. Febr. Cp. Monaxio pp. 1,3,18

a. 419 Monaxio et Plinta conss.
vi k. Iul. Rav. Palladio pp. 11,48,16
viii k. Oct. Monaxio pp. 9,47,25

a. 420 Theodosio A. viiii et Constantio iii conss.
iii non. Mai. Cp. Monaxio pp. 8,10,10 viii id. Mai. Rav. Palladio pp. 1,3,19 xiiii k. Oct. Cp. Eustathio pp. 12,44,1 v k. Oct. Rav. Maximo pu. 6,55,10 iii k. Ian. Cp. Patricio c. r. p. 10,1,9

a. 421 Eustathio et Agricola conss.
vi id. Mart. Rav. Palladio pp. 9,9,34 viii id. Iul. Rav. Palladio pp. 9,40,3&10,1,10&10,10,4 prid. id. Iul. Philippo pp. Ill. 1,2,6&11,21,1

a. 422 Honorio xiii et Theodosio x AA. conss.
prid. id. Ian. Cp. Scholastico v. s. com. et castrensi s. p. 12,25,2 v non. Mart. Cp. Eustathio pp. 12,40,7 x k. April. Cp. Eustathio pp. 1,51,7&2,7,4 v id. Iul. Rav. Iohanni pp. 2,13,2&4,4,1&4,26,13&8,15,8&11,48,17&12,60,4 iii non. Nov. Rav. ad Marinianum pp. 5,1,4&5,9,4&5,18,11&5,19,1 viii id. Nov. Cp. Florentio pu. 12,5,1

a. 423 Asclepiodoto et Mariniano conss.

xvi k. Mart. Cp. Asclepiodoto pp. 1,2,7&11,75,4&12,37,15
non. Mart. Cp. Asclepiodoto pp. 11,60,2 vii id. Mart. Rav. Venantio pp. 12,16,2 vii id. Mart. Cp. Asclepiodoto pp. 12,39,4 iii k. April. Cp. Asclepiodoto pp. 7,51,3&7,62,31
v id. April. Cp. Asclepiodoto pp. 1,9,16 prid. k. Iun. Cp. Asclepiodoto pp. 1,51,8: Macedonio mag. mil. 3,21,2 vi id. Iun. Cp. Asclepiodoto pp. 12,60,4 viii id. Aug. Rav. consulibus praet. trib. pl. senatui suo sal. dicunt 4, 20,12&6,7,3&9,1,21&9,2,17&9,46,10
iii k. Oct. Severino pu. 8,10,11

a. 423–424 IMP. THEODOSIUS A.

a. 424 VICTORE VC. CONS.
v id. Ian. Severino pu. 8,11,19
xvii k. Febr. Cp. Maximino c. s. l. 11,9,4 xvi(xiii) k. Mart. Cp. Asclepiodoto pp. 6,13,2&6. 36,8 vi k. Mai. Cp. Sallustio quaestori 1,30,1 iii k. Mai. Helioni com. et mag. off. 1,30,2 v id. Iul. Cp. Maximino c. s. l. 11,7,7 vi id. Oct. Cp. Isidoro pp. Ill. 1,2,8&10,16,12

a. 424–425 IMP. THEODOSIUS A. ET VALENTINIANUS C.[43]

sine conss. Maximino c. s. l. 12,23,12

a. 424 VICTORE VC. CONS.
xvii k. Nov. Cp. Maximino c. s. l. 11,8,11 xviii k. Dec. Cp. Asclepiodoto pp. 7,39,3 xiii k. Ian. Cp. Constantio pu. 1,28,5

a. 425 THEODOSIO A. XI ET VALENTINIANO C. CONSS.
iii k. Mart. Cp. Constantio pu. 11,19,1 id. Mart. Cp. Theophilo pu. 12,15,1 iii non. Mai. Aetio pp. 1,24,2 viiii k. Iun. Maximino c. s. l. 11,8,12
id. Dec. Cp. Valerio c. r. p. 11,68,6

a. 425–450 IMPP. THEODOSIUS ET VALENTINIANUS AA.

sine conss. Cyro pp. 10,71,4. 11,43,5.6. 12,8,2. 12,21,5. 12,50,21: Hormisdae pp. 11,22,1: Eutychiano pp. 11,43,7: Iohanni c. r. p. 11,77,1: Eudoxio c. s. l. 11,78,2. 12,23,13: ad ... pu. 12,1,15: Apollonio pp. 12,1,16: ad senatum 12,2,2. 12,3,1: Sporacio com. domest. 12,17,3: Nomo mag. off 12,19,7.8&12,21,6. 12,26,2: Florentio pp. 12,23,14: *Protogeni pp.*12,49,8:

[43] Impp. Hon. et Th. AA. 7,39,3 (a. 424): et Val. C. om. 1,28,5

Apollonio mag. mil. praes. et Anatolio mag. mil. per Or. 12,54,4: Thomae pp. 12,57,13: Anatolio mag. mil. 12,59,7

a. 426 THEODOSIO XII ET VALENTINIANO II AA. CONSS.

x k. Febr. Cp. Hierio pp. 9,48,1&9,49,10

VII k. Mart. Cp. Acacio c. s. l. 11,8,13

prid. non. Mart. Rav. Basso pp. 11,72,1

III k. April. Rav. Basso pp. 5,4,21?&6,7,4

VII id. April. Rav. Basso pp. 1,7,4 x k. Iul. Nicom. Hierio pp. 12,49,7&12,59,6

k. Iul. Nicom. Acacio c. s. l. 11,8,14?

VIII id. Nov. Rav. ad senatum 1,14,2&3&1,19,7&1,22,5: ad senatum urbis Rom. 6,30,18&6,55,11&6,56,5&6,60,3&6,61,1&8,55,9

VII k. Ian. Cp. Cyro pu. 2,7,5 sine die Basso pp. 11,48,18. 12,1,14

a. 427 HIERIO ET ARDABURE CONSS.

x k. April. Cp. Valerio c. s. l. 11,8,15

XII k. Iun. Eudoxio pp. 1,8,1?

XIIII k. Sept. Helioni mag. off. 12,40,8 prid. id. Oct. Cp. ad Antiochum pp. 1,50,2

a. 428 FELICE ET TAURO CONSS.

prid. k. Febr. Cp. Procuto pu. 12,5,2?

x k. Mart. Cp. Hierio pp. 2,57,2&5,3,17&5,4,22&5,11,6&6,18,1&6,24,11&6,61,2

XI k. Mai. Florentio pp. 1,4,12&11,41,6: *Hierio pp.*8,53,29

III k. Iun.Cp. Florentio pp. 1,5,5&1,6,3

v id. Iun. Cp. Florentio pp. 10,34,2&10,35,1

a. 429 FLORENTIO ET DIONYSIO CONSS.

pp. 1,14,4&11,71,5?

III k. Mart. Rav. Volusiano pp. 10,72,15&12,60,5

v id. Mart. Florentio pp. 6,62,4

VI k. April. Cp. Florentio pp. 1,19,8

v k. Mai. Rav. Celeri proc. Afr. 10,22,2&11,59,16

III k. Iun. Cp. Iohanni c. s. l. 1,9,17

III id. Iun. Rav. ad Volusianum

a. 431 BASSO ET ANTIOCHO CONSS.

x k. April. Cp. Antiocho pp. 1,12,3

III k. Mai. Rav. Flaviano pp. 4,61,13?&11,75,5

a. 432 AETIO ET VALERIO CONSS.

VIIII k. April. Rav. Flaviano pp. 12,10,3

v k. April. Cp. Hierio pp. 1,12,4

III id. Iun. Cp. Heliodoro pu. 12,17,2

a. 433 THEODOSIO A. XIIII ET MAXIMO CONSS.
v non. Iul. Cp. ad Taurum pp. 1,51,9
a. 434 ARIOBINDO ET ASPARE CONSS.
XIIII k. Iul. Cp. Tauro pp. 11,62,12
v k. Dec. Cp. Leontio pu. 11,24,2 XVIII k. Ian. ad Taurum pp. 1,3,20
a. 435 THEODOSIO XV ET VALENTINIANO IIII AA. CONSS.
IIII k. Febr. Cp. Valerio mag. off. 12,21,4
III non. Aug. Cp. Leontio pu. 1,5,6 VII id. Oct. Cp. Hermocrati c. r. p. 10,10,5
a. 436 ISIDORO ET SENATORE CONSS.
VIII id. Mart. Cp. Apollonio c. s. l. 11,9,5 III non. April. Cp. Isidoro pp. 10,32,55&12,57,12 prid. non. Iun. Cp. Isidoro pp. 10,32,56–59&11,28,2&11,29,1 v k. Sept. Apameae Dario pp. 10,17,2
a. 438 THEODOSIO A. XVI ET FAUSTO CONSS.
prid. k. Febr. Cp. Florentio pp. 1,5,7&1,7,5&1,9,19
prid. non. Nov. Cp. Aureliano c. r.p. 6,62,5?&11,10,5?
a. 439 THEODOSIO A. XVII ET FESTO CONSS.
XIII k. Febr. Cp. Florentio pp. 1,51,10. 3,25,1 x k. April. Cyro pu. 1,2,9&11,18,1
III non. April. Florentio pp. 1,24,3
VIII id. April. Cp. Florentio pp. 1,2,10&11,4,2
VII id. April. Cp. Florentio pp. 1,14,5&4,65,30
XIII k. Mai. Cp. ad Florentium pp. 2,7,6
III k. Iun. Cp. Florentio pp. 1,52,1
VI id. Iun. Cp. ad Florentium pp. 11,62,13
XV k. Iul. Cp. ad Florentium pp. 2,15,2
VI id. Iul. Cp. ad Florentium pp. 6,56,6&6,58,10&8,14,6
III id. Aug. Cp. Thalassio pp. 7,42,1 VII id. Sept. Cp. Thalassio pp. per Ill. 2,7,7: Florentio pp. 5,9,5 (=1,14,6)&6,61,3 prid. id. Sept. Cp. Florentio pp. 5,28,8 6,23,21&7,2,14
k. Nov. Cyro pu. 8,11,20
prid. non. Nov. Cp. Aureliano c. r. p. 6,62,5?&11,10,6?
VI k. Dec. Cp. Florentio pp. 9,27,6
a. 440 VALENTIANO A. V ET ANATOLIO CONSS.
XI k. Febr. Cp. Cyro pu. 8,11,21
non. April. Cp. Cyro pp. et cons. design. 1,14,7 XIII k. Iun. Cp. Eudoxio c. r. p. 11,66,7 xii k. Iun. Cyro pp. 3,4,1&7,62,32&7,63,2 xi k. Oct. Cp. Cyro pp. 3,23,2. 7,41,3 iii k. Ian. Cyro pp. cons. design. 2,7,8

a. 441 Cyro vc. cons.
prid. non. Mart. Cp. Cyro pp. 7,62,33. 12,54,3 xvi k. April. Cp. Phlegetio com. et mag. off. 1,31,3&12,29,1 xv k. Sept. Cp. Cyro pp. 1,55,10

a. 442 Eudoxio et Dioscoro conss.
v k. Mart. Cp. Thomae pp. 1,3,21&10,32,60
v id. April. Artaxi praepos. s. cub. 3,26,11
xii k. Sept. Cp. Apollonio pp. 2,7,9 v k. Ian. Apollonio pp. 10,30,3

a. 443 Maximo ii et Paterio conss.
v k. Febr. Cp. Anatolio mag. mil. 1,46,3 viii id. Mart. Cp. ad Apollonium pp. 10,35,2&10,36,1 prid. id. Sept. Cp. Nomo mag. off. 1,31,4&1,46,4&11,60,3 xvii k. Ian. Cp. ad Apollonium pp. 5,27,3

a. 444 Theodosio A. xviii et Albino conss.
xvii k. Febr. Cp. Nomo mag. off. 12,40,9 v k. Mart. Zoilo pp. Or. 1,51,11&12,9,1 v k. April. ad Nomum com. et mag. off. 1,24,4 x k. Mai. Cp. Zoilo pp. 10,12,2 xii k. Dec. Cp. Hermocrati pp. 10,28,1&11,59,17 sine die Zoilo pp. 12,36,6&12,52,3

a. 445 Valentiniano A. vi et Nomo conss.
iii id. Febr. Cp. Florentio pp. 1,3,22 xiii k. Mart. Cp. ad Taurum pp. 1,2,11&10,49,2

a. 446 Aetio iii et Symmacho conss. xvi k. Nov. ad senatum 1,14,8

a. 448 Zenone et Postumiano conss. xiiii k. Mart. Cp. Ὁρμίσδᾳ ἐπ. πραιτ. 1,1,3

a. 449 Protogene et Asterio conss.
v id. Ian. Hormisdae pp. 5,17,8

a. 450 Post cons. Protogenis et Asterii
v id. Ian. Hormisdae pp. 5,14,8 iii non. April. Hormisdae pp. 6,52,1

a. 450–455 IMPP. VALENTINIANUS ET MARCIANUS AA.[44] sine conss. Vincomalo mag. off. 12,40,10

[44] imp. Marcianus A. a. 451 9,39,2. 10,5,2: a. 452 1,1,4

a. 450 VALENTIANO A. VII ET AVIENO CONSS.
v id. Oct. Cp. edictum ad populum 7,51,4 XV k. Ian. Cp. Tatiano pu. 1,39,2&12,2,1 sine die Palladio pp. 1,51,12?

a. 451 MARCIANO A. CONS.
XV k. Febr. Cp. Palladio pp. Or. 11,70,5
III id. Iul. Cp. ad populum 1,12,5 prid. id. Nov. Cp. Palladio pp. 1,2,12. 1,11,7 XII k. Ian. Cp. Palladio pp. 9,39,2 v k. Ian. Cp. Palladio pp. 10,5,2

a. 452 SPORACIO CONS.
VII id. Febr. Cp. Palladio pp. 1,1,4 IIII k. Iul. Cp. Palladio pp. 2,7,1.0
prid. non. Iul. Cp. Palladio pp. 1,3,23 sine die Sporacio com. domest. et cons. 12,3,2

a. 454 AETIO ET STUDIO VV. CC. CONSS.
prid. non. April. Cp. ad Palladium pp. 1,14,9&5,5,7

a. 455 VALENTINIANO A. VIII ET ANTHEMIO CONSS.
x k. Mai. Cp. Palladio pp. 1,2,13
VIII k. Mai. Palladio pp. 1,3,24
k. Aug. Cp. Palladio pp. 1,5,8&1,7,6 sine die Palladio pp. 1,51,12?

a. (451) 455–457 IMP. MARCIANUS A. sine conss. Constantino pp. 4,41,2

a. 456 VARANE ET IOHANNE CONSS.
VIII … April. Constantino pp. 1,3,25?&1,4,13
XV k. Aug. Constantino pp. 10,22,3

a. 457–473 IMP. LEO A.
sine conss. τῷ δήμῳ 1,4,14&11,41,7: Erythrio pp. 1,5,10. 12,59,10: 1,5,11? Viviano pp. 4,42,2. 10,32,61. 11,16,1: Constantino pp. 10,32,62: ad senatum 10,32,63: Leontico 11,2,1: Pusaeo pp. 12,5,4. 12,50,22: Hilariano mag. off. 12,7,2&12,40,11: Patricio mag. off. 12,19,9. 12,20,3–5. 12,50,22

a. 457 CONSTANTINO ET RUFO CONSS.
id. Aug. Cp. 1,5,9

a. 458 LEONE A. CONS.
prid. non. Iul. Cp. Aspari mag. mil. 4,65,31?&12,35,15

a. 459 PATRICIO CONS.
v non. Mart. Cp. Constantino pp. 8,53,30
XV k. Oct. Viviano pp. 1,3,26

a. 460 MAGNO ET APOLLONIO CONSS.
k. Febr. Cp. Viviano pp. 2,7,11
a. 463 BASILIO ET VIVIANO CONSS.
x k. Mart. Cp. Eusebio pp. Ill. 2,7,12
a. 465 BASILISCO ET HERMINERICO CONSS.
v id. Nov. Cp. Pusaeo pp. 1,36,1&10,44,3?
a. 466 LEONE A. III CONS.
prid. k. (non.?) Mart. Cp. Erythrio pp. 1,3,27&1,12,6&9,30,2
a. 467–472 IMPP. LEO ET ANTHEMIUS[45] sine conss. Euphemio mag. off. 11,10,6.7: Iohanni com. et mag. off. 12,5,3&12,25,3&12,59,8
a. 468 ANTHEMIO A. II CONS.
VI id. Febr. 1,14,10
VIII k. April. Cp. Heliodoro c. s. l. *10,23,3 prid. k. April. Cp. Nicostrato pp. 1,4,15&2,6,8
k. Iul. Cp. Beliodoro c. s. l. 10,23,4
XV k. Sept. Cp. Nicostrato pp. 1,3,28
XV k. Sept. Nicostrato pp. 5,14,9
XIII k. Sept. Alexandro duci Aegyptiaci limitis ei pf. Aug. 2,7,13
V k. Sept. Nicostrato pp. 9,12,10
k. Sept. Nicostrato pp. 10,19,8&11,54,1&11,56,1: Callicrati pp. per Ill. 6,60,1 sine die Nicostrato pp. 12,21,7?
a. 469 ZENONE ET MARCIANO CONSS.
VIII id. Mart. Cp. Armasio pp. 1,3,30
V k. April. Cp. Callicrati pp. Ill. 2,7,14
VII id. Sept. Cp. Alexandro duci et pf. Aug. *1,57,1&8,52,3
V id. Dec. Cp. Armasio pp. 3,12,9
a. 470 IORDANE ET SEVERO CONSS.
k. Ian. Cp. Armasio pp. 5,27,4
VI k. April. Hilariano com. et mag. off. ac patricio 1,23,6&12,19,10?&12,59,9?
sine die Cp. Armasio pp. 1, 2,14
a. 471 LEONE A. IIII ET PROBIANO CONSS.
k. Iun. Cp. Ζήνωνι στρατηγῷ 1,3,29
VII k. Aug. Cp. Constantino pp. 1,40,14&*12,57,14 sine die Constantino pp. 1,40,15
a. 472 MARCIANO CONS.

[45] imp.Leo A. a. 468 1,3,28. 6,60,4. 11,54,1? 11,56,1? 12,21,4: a. 470 1,23,6: a. 471 1,40,14. 15. 12,57,14: a. 472 2,7,15. 5,30,3. 6,20,17. 6,24,12. 8,11,22. 8,17,11. 8,37,10. 11,32,1

k. Ian. Cp. Erythrio pp. 8,37,10 v k. Mart. Erythrio pp. 5,9,6&6,20,17&6,61,4 v k.Mart. Cp. Erythrio pp. *6,24,12&*8,11,22&*11,32,3 prid. non. April. Cp. Erythrio pp. 1,3,32&33
k. Iul. Cp. Erythrio pp. 1,4,16&1,18,13. 5,1,5&5,6,8&*5,30,3. 2,4,42&8,17,11 xvii k. Ian. Cp. Dioscoro pp. *2,7,15 x k. Ian. Cp. Dioscoro pp. 1,3,34
... k. Ian. Cp. Dioscoro pp. *1,3,31 sine die Dioscoro pp. 1,11,8? 10,49,3. 12,33,4. 12,35,16. 12,49,9

a. 473 IMP. LEO A.

a. 473 LEONE A. V CONS.
pp. III id. Febr. 4,59,1
k. Iun. Nepoti mag. mil. Dalmatiae 6,61,5

a. 474 LEONE IUNIORE A. CONS.
xvii k. April. Cp. Iustiniano pu. 2,7,16
x k. Mai. 1,14,11
vi id. Oct. Epinico cons. (c. s. l.?) 10,15,1 sine die Paulo pp. per Ill. 2,7,17: Hilariano com. et mag. off. 12,25,4: Eusebio mag. off. 12,29,2?

a. 474–491 IMP. ZENO A.

sine conss. 1,2,15. 1,3,35. 11,57,1. 12,3,3: Sebastiano pp. 1,29,3. 4,66,1. 5,5,9. 10,32,64. 10,34,3. 11,69,2. 12,3,4: Arcadio pp. 3,24,3&12,1,17. 8,12,1. 12,49,10. 12,60,6: Adamantio pu. 4,65,32. 8,10,12. 11,43,8: Basitio pp. 5,8,2: Aeneae c. r. p. 7,37,2: Δομνίκῳ 10,3,7: Sporacio 11,43,9. *10: Chryseroti praepos. s. cub. 11,69,1: Illyriciano mag. off. 12,7,2&12,40,11: Cosmae praepos. s. cub. 12,16,4: Longino mag. off. 12,29,3: Marciano mag. mil. 12,35,17: Catoni mag. mil. 12,49,11

a. 475 POST CONS. LEONIS IUNIORIS.
k. Sept. Cp. Epinico pp. 5,5,8

a. 477 POST CONS. ARMATI VC.
x k. Mart. Sebastiano pp. 5,27,5 id. Dec. Cp. Sebastiano pp. 8,4,9 xvi k. Ian. Sebastiano pp. 1,2,16 x k. Ian. Cp. Sebastiano pp. 1,23,7

a. 478 ILLO VC. CONS.
k. Mart. Cp. Sebastiano pp. 5,9,7. 8,53,31
v non. Nov. Cp. Alexandro v. i. 9,35,11

a. 479 ZENONE A. II CONS.
k. Mai. Sebastiano pp. 3,28,29&5,3,18

III k. Iun. Cp. 6,34,4
k. Sept. Cp. Dioscoro pp. 5,31,11
v id. Oct. Sebastiano pp. 1,49,1
a. 480 BASILIO IUNIORE CONS.
k. Mai. Cp. Sebastiano pp. 6,23,22
v k. Ian. Aeliano pp. *2,21,9&*5,12,28&5,75,6 sine die Aeliano pp. 11,70,6?
a. 483 POST CONS. TROCONDAE.
XVII k. Ian. Constantino pu. 4,59,2
a. 484 THEODERICO CONS.
v k. April. Cp. Sebastiano pp. 1,3,36. 4,65,33. 8,4,10
id. April. Sebastiano pp. 1,3,37
k. Sept. Iohanni mag. off. 12,21,8
a. 486 LONGINO VC. CONS.
XII k. Iun. Cp. Arcadio pp. 4,20,14
k. Iul. Cp. Basilio pp. 9,5,1
a. 487 POST CONS. LONGINI.
VI k. Iul. Cp. 1,51,13&2,7,18?&*2,7,19&2,12,27?&3,3,6?&*7,51,5
a. 489 EUSEBIO CONS.
pp. k. Sept. Cp. Dioscoro pp. 6,49,6
a. 491–518 IMP. ANASTASIUS A. sine conss. 1,2,17. 18. 1,4,17&1,4,18&10,27,3&12,37,19. 1,34,1.2. 1,42,1? 10,27,2? 11,1,1.2? 11,48,19. 12,37,18. 19: Iohanni mag. mil. per Ill. 1,29,4: ad populum 5,70,5: Leontio pp. 7,39,6: Stephano mag. mil. 7,51,6: Polycarpo pp. 10,32,66. 12,16,5: Sergio pp 11,43,11: Eusebio mag. off. 12,1,18. 12,5,5. 12,10,2. 12,19,11: Polycarpo pp. 12,16,5: Celeri mag. off. 12,19,12&12,20,6: Longino mag. equ. ac ped. 12,37,16: Arcadio pp. 12,37,17: Spartiatio pp. Ill. 12,49,12: Armenio pp. 12,50,23: magistris mil. 12,54,5
a. 491 OLYBRIO VC. CONS.
k. Iul. Cp. Matroniano pp. 1,22,6?
III k. Aug. Cp. Matroniano pp. 7,39,4&10,27,1&11,62,14
a. 492 ANASTASIO A. ET RUFO CONSS.
k. Ian. Cp. Iohanni mag. mil. praes. 12,35,18
k. Mart. Cp. Eusebio mag. off. 1,30,3
a. 496 PAULO VC. CONSS.
id. Febr. Cp. Hierio pp. 6,21,16
k. April. Εὐφημίῳ ἐπ. τ. πραιτ. 10,16,13
prid. k. Mai. Euphemio pp. 8,53,32
XII k. Aug. Εὐφημίῳ ἐπ. τ. πρ. 10,19,8

a. 497 ANASTASIO A. II CONS.
xv k. Mart. Theodoro 5,17,9 xi k. Ian. Cp. Eusebio mag. off. 2,7,20
a. 498 IOHANNE ET PAULINO CONSS.
prid. k. April. 10,19,10?
k. April. Polycarpo pp. 5,30,4
a. 499 IOHANNE CONS.
k. Ian. Antiocho praep. s. cub. 5,62,25
a. 500 PATRICIO ET HYPATIO CONSS.
xv k. Dec. Thomae pp. Ill. 2,4,43&2,7,21&7,39,5
a. 501 POMPEIO ET AVIENO CONSS.
xiii k. Ian. Cp. 8,36,4
a. 502 PROBO ET AVIENO IUNIORE CONSS.
xv k. Mart. Cp. Constaniino pp. 3,13,7 xii k. Aug. Cp. 6,20,18&6,68,11&8,48,5
a. 505 SABINIANO ET THEODORO CONSS.
k. *Ian. Cp. Constantino pp. 2,7,22 xiii k. Mai. Eustathio pp. 1,4,19&1,55,11
a. 506 AREOVINDA ET MESSALA CONSS.
x k. Aug. Cp. Eustathio pp. 4,35,22
xii k. Dec. Cp. Eustathio pp. 2,7,23
a. 510 BOETHIO VC. CONS.
v id. Aug. 1,5,11
a. 513 CLEMENTINO ET PROBO CONSS.
vi id. Febr. 1,42,2?
a. 517 ANASTASIO ET AGAPETO CONSS.
k. April. Celeri mag. off. 4,29,21: Sergio pp. 5,27,6
k. Dec. Sergio pp. 2,7,24
a. 518–527 IMP. IUSTINUS A. sine conss. 2,7,28: Theodoro pu. 4,30,13: Demostheni pp. 5,4,23. 7,62,34: Proculo quaest. s. pal 12,19,13: Tatiano mag. off. 12,19,14
a. 518 MAGNO CONS.
k. Dec. Cp. Appioni pp. 7,63,3
a. 519 IUSTINO A. ET EUTHERICO CONSS.
v id. Nov. Cp. Marino pp. 5,27,7
k. Dec. Cp. Marino pp. 2,7,25
a. 520 RUSTICIO CONS.
v k. Iun. Cp. Tatiano mag. off. 7,63,4
a. 521 IUSTINIANO ET VALERIO CONSS.
k. Iun. Cp. Demostheni pp. 6,22,8

a. 524 IUSTINO A. II ET OPILIONE CONSS.
id. Febr. Cp. Theodoro pu. 2,7,26
XIII k. Dec. Cp. Archelao pp. *1,3,40&6,23,23
XII k. Dec. Cp. Archelao pp. 2,7,27
VIII k. Ian. Cp. Licinio mag. off. 12,33,5
a. 525 PHILOXENO ET PROBO CONSS.
k. Dec. Cp. Archelao pp. 7,39,7
a. 526 OLYBRIO VC. CONSS.
k. Dec. Cp. Theodoro pu. 9,19,6
a. 527 IMPP. IUSTINUS ET IUSTINIANUS AA.
a. 527 MAVORTIO VC. CONS.
x k. Mai. Cp. Tatiano mag. off. 1,31,5 sine die 1,5,12. 1,15,2. 3,1,12?&7,62,36?&4,20,16?: Archelao pp. 5,3,19: Tatiano mag. off. 12,19,15
a. 527–534 IMP. IUSTINIANUS A. sine conss. 1,1,5. 1,2,20. 1,3,54. 1,4,20.32&4,66,4. 1,5,13–18. 1,10,2. 1,11,10. 1,29,6. 3,43,2. 4,21,22. 5,9,11. 6,25,6. 6,46,8. 6,48,1. 8,40,29. 10,32,68. 10,34,4.5. 10,35,4. 5. 12,17,5: Zetae v. i. mag. mil. per Armeniam et Pontum Polemoniacum 1,29,5: Iohanni pp. 2,7,28. 4,30,16. 4,34,12. 4,35,23. 5,3,20. 5,4,27. 28. 7,2,15. 7,32,12. 7,71,8. 8,53,37. 11,48,23. 12,3,5: δουκὶ Θηβαΐδος 3,2,2: Menae pp. 3,22,6. 12,34,1: Iuliano pp. 7,25,1: Vigilantio com. domest. consulari atque patricio 12,17,4: Φλώρῳ κόμητι τῶν πριβάτων 12,33,8
a. 528 DN. IUSTINIANO PP. A. II CONS.
id. Febr. Cp. ad senatum urbis Cp. c. Haec
k. Mart. Cp. Ἀταρβίῳ ἐπ. πραιτ. 1,3,41: Ἐπιφανίῳ ἀρχιεπισκ. Κωνσταντινουπ. καὶ πατριάρχῃ 1,3,42
k. Iun. Cp. Menae pp. 1,4,21&4,2,17&4*,20,18&4,21,17&4,30, 14&15?&5,15,3&10,22,4. 3,28,30&6,23,24&6,41,1. 4,20,17. 5,27,8&9&10,35,3&10,44,4? 6,20,19. 6,55,12&6,56,7&8,58,2. 7,3,1. 7,33,11. 7,70,1. 8,13,27. 8,53,33
III id. Dec. Cp. Menae pp. 1,53,1. 3,28,31&6,23,26. 4,32,26&7,39,8. 5,9,8&5,12,29. 5,16,25. 5,17,10. 6,23,25&8,37,11. 6,26,9. 6,37,22. 7,17,1. 8,16,9 sine die Menae pp. 1,2,19
a. 529 DECIO VC. CONS.
XV k. Febr. Μηνᾷ ἐπ. πραιτ. 1,3,43
XV k. Febr. Cp. Μηνᾷ ἐπ. πραιτ. 1,4,22&23&9,4,6&9,5,2&9,47,26
II k. April. Cp. Menae pp. 3,28,32
k. April. Cp. Menae pp. 1,20,2. 4,32,27. 5,9,9? 8,21,1. 9,44,3

VIII id. April. Cp. Menae pp. 2,44,3&5,74,3. *2,50,8&*6,21,37&*7,35,8. 4,21,18. 5,9,9? 5,14,10. 5,16,26. 5,60,3. 6,20,20. 6,24,13. *7,54,2&10,8,3. 7,62,37&7,64,10. 8,37,12. 12,33,6

VII id. April. Cp. Menae v. i. pp. II ex praefecto huius almae urbis Cp. ac patricio c. Summa

XV k. Oct. Chalcedone Demostheni pp. 1,4,24&8,51,3. *1,51,14. 2,58,1&9,41,18. 3,28,33&5,9,10. 4,1,11. *4,21,19. *4,32,28. 4,66,2. 5,27,10&6,57,5. 6,43,1. 6,59,11

X k. Oct. Cp. Δημοσθένει ἐπ. πραιτ. 1,4,25&3,43,1 recitata septimo milliario huius inclitae civitatis in novo consistorio palatii Iustiniani. d. III k. Nov. Demostheni pp. 1,2,22. 1,14,12. 2,55,4. 4,1,12. 4,34,11. 5,12,30. 5,30,5. 6,4,3. 6,30,19. 6,42,30. 6,61,6. 7,45,13&14? 8,53,34. 11,48,20

XV k. Dec. Chalcedone Triboniano quaestori s. p. 7,63,5 sine die Demostheni pp. *1,2,21. 1,5,19? 7,39,9. 7,62,38. 10,32,67

a. 530 LAMPADIO ET ORESTE VV. CC. CONSS.

XV k. April. Cp. Iuliano pp. *1,2,23&7,40,1. 4,20,19&*4,21,20. 4,29,22. 4,66,3. *5,12,31. 5,27,11&5,29,4&5,35,3. 6,23,27&*6,33,3. *6,61,7. 7,15,1. 8,33,3? 8,53,35&8,55,10

VI k. April. Cp. Iuliano pp. 2,55,5&4,20,20. 3,1,13. *14. *3,2,3. 6,23,28. 7,62,39. 8,40,26

VIII k. Iul. Chalcedone Ἰουλιανῷ ἐπ. πραιτ. 1,4,26&3,2,4&5&3,10,2? &7,45,15?&10,31,4&12,40,12&12,63,2

XI k. Aug. Cp. ad senatum 2,44,4&3,38,12&5,4,24&6,25,7. 4,65,35? 8,41,8. 11,48,21?

k. Aug. Cp. Iuliano pp. 3,33,12. 4,5,10. 4,28,7? 4,29,23? 24. 4,38,15. 5,20,2. 5,51,13. 6,2,20. 7,7,1. 7,15,2. 8,21,2. 8,37,13

k. Sept. Cp. Iuliano pp. 1,4,27&5,70,6&7&6,22,9

k. Oct. Cp. Iuliano pp. 1,4,28&5,4,25. 3,33,*13. *14. *15. 16. 4,5,11. 5,4,26. 6,2,21. 6,57,6&7,4,14&15

XV k. Nov. Cp. Ἰουλιανῷ ἐπ. πραιτ. 1,3,44.45.1,4,29

sine die 1,2,24

XIII k. Nov. Cp. Ἰουλιανῷ ἐπ. πραιτ. 1,2,25

XV k. Dec. Cp. Iuliano pp. 1,3,46. 2,18,24. 4,27,2. 6,2,22. 6,27,4. 6,29,3.4. 6,37,23. 7,4,16&17&7,7,2. 7,45,16

Cp. X k. Dec. ... κόμητι τῶν πριβάτων 1,5,20

XVIII k. Ian. Cp. Triboniano viro eminent. quaestori s. p. 1,17,1

sine die 7,5,1

a. 531 POST CONS. LAMPADII ET ORESTAE VV. CC.

x k. Mart. Cp. Iuliano pp. 2,58,2&3,1,15&16. 4,18,2. 4,21,21. 5,37,25. 5,59,4. 6,22,10. *6,23,29. 6,28,3. *6,38,3. 6,40,2. 6,43,2. 7,71,7. 8,40,27. 28? 11,48,22?

prid. k. Mai. Cp. Iohanni pp. 4,37,6? 6,27,5&6,46,6. 6,30,20.21. 6,35,11. 6,37,24&*6,42,31. 6,38,4

IIII k. Aug. Cp. Iohanni pp. 1,3,47. 1,4,30. *1,5,21. *3,28,34. 6,22,11&6,61,8. *6,24,14. 6,25,*8&*9&*10 &6,26,10&11. *6,27,6. *6,46,7 x k. Sept. Cp. Iohanni pp. *1,3,48. 5,37,26

VI k. Sept. Cp. Iohanni pp. 2,46,3 k. Sept. Cp. Iohanni pp. 1,3,49&1,5,22&3,28,37&6,22,12. 1,3,50&2,3,29. 2,41,2. 2,52,7. 2,55,6. 3,28,35&36&6,28,4. *3,31,12. 5,59,5. 6,43,3. 7,17,2? 7,47,1. 8,10,13. 8,39,4. *8,47,10. 8,56,4. 12,33,7

XV k. Nov. Cp. Iohanni pp. 1,4,31?&?,40,2? 3,33,17. 3,34,13&7,31,1. 4,1,13. 4,11,1. 4,51,7?&4,54,9. 6,23,30. 6,49,7? 6,58,12. 7,40,3. 8,40,28(vel 29). 8,53,36

k. Nov. Cp. Iohanni pp. 1,3,51. 2,3,30. 2,40,5. *3,1,17. *18. 4,18,3. 4,27,3. 4,29,25&5,13,1? 4,31,14. 4,39,9. *5,11,7. 5,14,11. 5,27,12. 5,37,27. 6,37,25. 6,40,3. 6,50,18. 6,58,13&8,47,11&8,48,6. 7,6,1. 7,15,3. 8,37,14.

v k. Dec. Cp. Iohanni pp. 1,3,52. *5,16,27. *6,42,3. 6,58,14. 7,33,12. 7,54,3. 8,17,12: ad senatum 6,30,22: Floro c. r. p. et curatori dominicae domus et Petro v. i. curatori divinae domus serenissimae Augustae et Macedonio v. i. curatori et ipsi dominicae domus 7,37,3

pp. k. Dec. Cp. 6,4,4 sine die Iohanni pp. 4,37,7

a. 532 POST CONS. LAMPADII ET ORESTAE VV. CC. ANNO SECUNDO.

VIII id. Mart. Cp. 1,44,2

k. Sept. *8,39,4

XV k. Nov. Cp. Iohanni pp. *3,10,3. *3,34,14. *5,37,28. 6,20,21. 6,21,18. 6,31,6. 6,35,12. 6,37,26. 6,38,5. 6,49,7? 8. 6,50,19. 7,72,10. *8,4,11. *8,10,14. 8,14,7. 8,25,11. 8,36,5. 8,37,15. *9,9,35

a. 533 DN IUSTINIANO PP. A. III CONS.

id. Mart. Κωνσταντινουπολίταις 1,1,6

VII k. April. Cp. Ἐπιφανίῳ ... ἀρχιεπισκ. 1,1,7

k. Iun. Cp. 3,2,6

VIII id. Iun. Cp. Iohanni archiepisc. 1,1,8

XV k. Dec. Cp. Hermogeni mag. off. 1,3,35&5,17,11&7,24,1&9,13,1& 11,48,24?

XVII k. Ian. Cp. ad senatum et omnes populos 1,17,2
a. 534 DN. IUSTINIANO PP. A. IIII ET PAULINO VC. CONSS.
VIII k. April. Rom. Iustiniano A. Iohannes episc. urbis Rom. 1,1,8 id. April. Cp. Archelao pp. Afr. 1,27,1?: Belisario mag. mil. per Or. 1,27,2
k. Iun. Cp. senatui urbis Cp. et urbis Romae 6,51,1
III non. Iul. Cp. Iohanni pp. 6,23,31
III id. Aug. Cp. Ἰωάννῃ ἐπ. πραιτ. 5,17,12 prid. id. Sept. Cp. Ἰωάννῃ ἐπ. πραιτ. 1,3,55
id. Oct. Cp. Iohanni pp. *6,58,15
k. Nov. Cp. τοῖς πανταχοῦ γῆς θεοφ. ἐπισκόποις 1,4,33&5,4,29?
prid. non. Nov. Cp. Ἐπιφανίῳ ἀρχιεπισκ. 1,4,34
sine die 6,23,32
XVI k. Dec Cp. senatui urbis Cp. sal. c. Cordi

Supplement to Krüger's list

Given here is a summary of recently discovered dating information that derives from manuscript evidence and is reflected in the text of these volumes. Most of the details can be found in the two articles by Corcoran, "After Krüger" (2009) and "New Subscripts" (2009).

a. 211: xv k. Iul. 7,72,1
a. 226: xvi k. April. 7,64,2
a. 239: iii k. Febr. 7,72,2
k. Mai. 7,72,3?
a. 240: k. Mart. 7,64,3?
a. 241: k. Mai. 7,72,3?
a. 245: 7,62,4?
a. 259: k. Iul. 7,64,4
a. 284: k. Dec. 7,64,6
a. 285: v k. Ian. 7,64,7
a. 287: 12,62,3?
a. 290: iiii k. Oct. 7,64,8
a. 293: non. Febr. 2,50,7
id. April. Byz. 7,72,4
xiii k. Oct. 2,46,2
a. 491–518 (Anastasius): ἐπαρχ. πρ. 1,11,9
a. 534: k. April. Cp. Archelao pp. Afr. 1,27,1